Shelved with Folios

This book has been DIGITIZED and is available ONLINE.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS LIBRARY
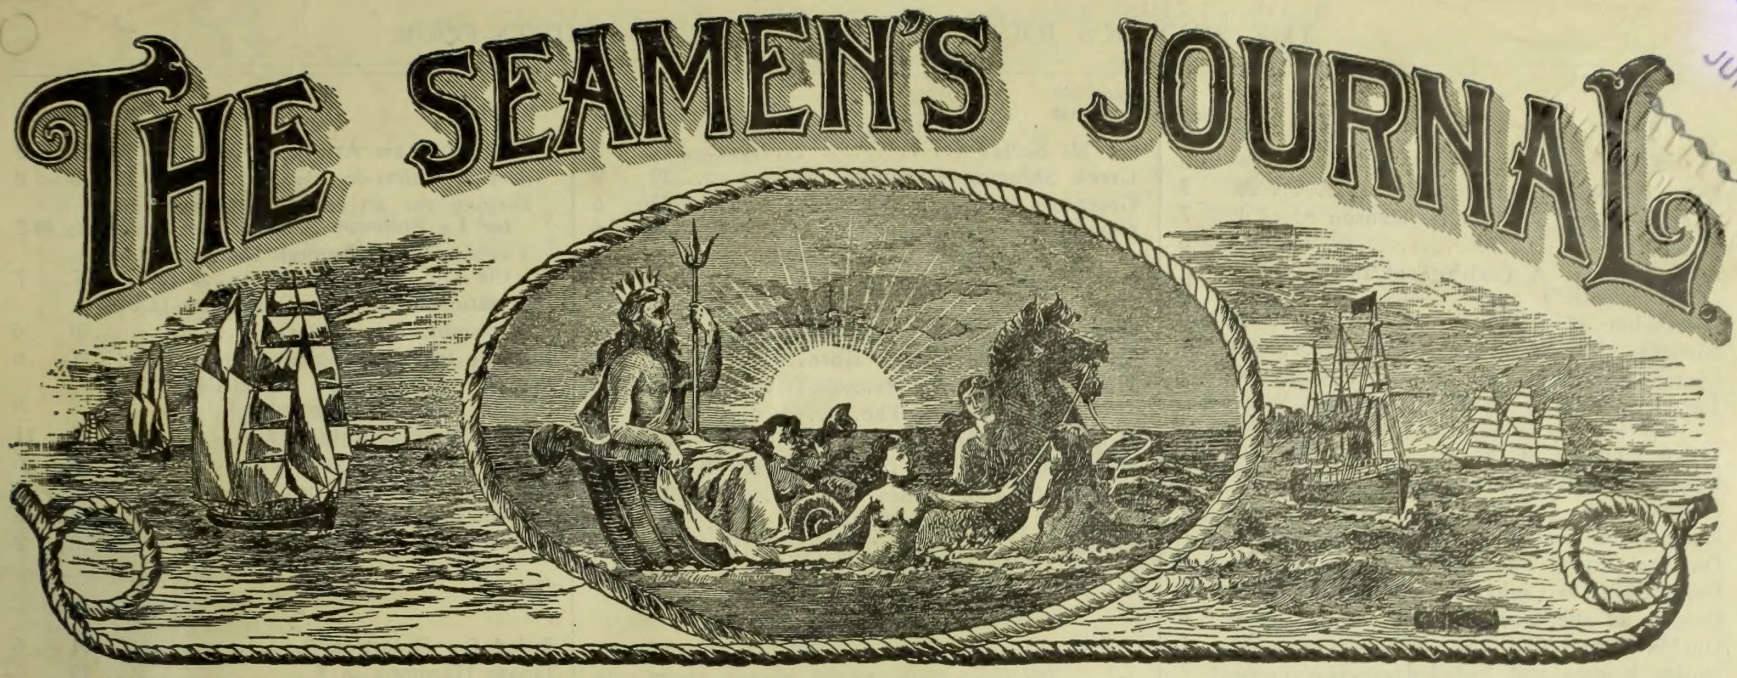
331.805
CO
v.34

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2014

https://archive.org/details/seamensjournal3419inte

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS LIBRARY
JUN 24 1922



INDEX—VOLUME THIRTY-FOUR

SEPTEMBER 8, 1920—AUGUST 31, 1921

22755
26 2M

All editorial matter is designated by an asterisk (*).

Title	No.	Page
A
A. B. Heard From, An (by James Forbes)	8	2
Actors Hard Hit, Movie	41	11
Age of the Earth	15	9
Alaska Fishermen's Contract	35	1
Alaska Fishing Regulations	26	1
American Federation of Labor—
A. F. of L. Takes Action *	26	6
A. F. of L. Weekly News Letter—See issues.
Confused Patriot, A	33	3
Employers Make Mistake *	48	6
Immigration and Exploitation	25	3
Men of Labor, Onward!	47	9
Miners' Strike, The	36	3
Seamen Before A. F. of L	44	2
Seamen's Law Defense	24	3
Shipowners Camouflage	38	3
Sid Hatfield Murdered	49	5
Toward the Goal *	5	6
Unions Block Reaction	49	7
Union Shop and "Shop Union"	45	7
American-Japanese Relations	18	1
"American Plan" Defined *	28	6
American Plan, The	46	9
American Protectorates (by W. L. Chenery)	15	2
American Ships Increase	49	8
American Views, An (by J. H. Eveland)	36	9
Americanism? Is This (by Julius Nelson)	48	8
Americans," "Better *	4	6
Arbitration, Anti-Strike Laws, Etc.—
British Coal Strike, The	16	2
"Can't-Strike" Law Is Costly	13	2
Decrease Hit Tugs	44	8
Engineers Renew Agreement	12	2
Wage Conference (Pacific Steamship Company; Matson Navigation Company and the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association No. 35)	20	5
Army Casualties, U. S.	17	2
"Article X," Dissecting (by Senator Borah)	3	7
Asiatics, Exclusion, Etc.—
American-Japanese Relations	18	1
Coolie Competition	18	9
Harmony in Japan *	19	6
Hawaii Nearly Half Jap	52	11
Importing Chinese Coolies	12	5
Japan, Doings in *	4	6
Japanese Exclusion Progress *	33	6
Japanese Families, Large	15	11
Japanese Labor Awake	19	11
Japanese Problem, The	6	1
Japanese Seamen's Merger *	18	6
Obtaining Results *	47	6
Reason for Suppression, A *	40	6
Speculators and Cultivators	4	9
Assert Your Rights	44	8
Atlantic and Gulf Coasts—
Atlantic and Gulf Section of the Journal—See issues 1 to 52.
Atlantic Fishermen's Agreement	15	1
Atta Boy! Atlantic *	40	7
Fire Below! (Baggage Room of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association afire)	34	9
Grasping An Opportunity *	25	7
Hope and Faith (by Charles Martell)	49	8
Located at Last (Marine Cooks and Stewards' Association new building)	7	8
Lockout Facts Stated	36	1
Need for Resistance, A *	36	6
Perjury of Persecution (crew of the "Ruth E. Merrill")	11	8
Reflections from Atlantic *	23	6
"Sequoya," The	24	8
Traitor Trapped, A (C. H. Thompson vs. The Marine Cooks and Stewards' Association)	1	8
Victims of Greed	43	1
Australian Seamen, Etc.—
Antipodes, Comment from the	42	3
Anti-War Resolutions *	3	6
Australia, A Voice from	35	9
Australian Government Ships	43	8
Australian Labor Laws Fail	32	9
Australian Seamen Gain *	43	6
Criminal Carelessness *	43	6
"Fulle of Devvylls"	4	2
Labor Event, A Great	43	3
Obtaining Results *	47	6
Ships, The Loading of	50	9
Stewards' Strike in Australia	20	5
Stuffing the Rolls	51	7
Working Hours in Australia, 44	12	3
B
Babes, Exploiting Our	29	9
"Balcatta" Affair, The	43	8
Better America Federation Barred from Schools	22	7
Blood Money *	15	6
"Booze," The Question of	17	2
"Brass Check" Works, The *	39	6
Britain's Food Supply	32	9
British Insurance Act, New	37	11
British Labor Situation	31	2
British Seamen Idle	46	7
British Trade Ship *	49	6
British Wages and H. C. L	31	7
Brutal Treatment of the Crew of the Bkt. "Rolph" *	42	6
Burden of Unemployment (by Paul S. Taylor)	40	11
Bureaucratic Lawlessness *	37	6
C
California State Federation of Labor Convention Report	8	2
"California," The U. S. S.	16	5
California's Problem * (Japanese)	1	6
"Call," More Power to the New York	3	11
Canadian Shipbuilding *	5	6
Capital Shows Its Hand *	30	6
Capitol's Doormat, On the	45	1
Cause and Effect	14	8
Check Their Game	27	6
Chicago Awakens *	22	6
Children's Confidence Abused *	32	6
Clipper Bow on Warships	46	9
Coal and the League *	4	6
Coal Miners' Attitude, The	14	2
"Coal Oil Johnny," Exit	22	7
Coal Profits and Unions (by Milred Everett)	28	2
Coal Strike Settlement	49	9
Commercial Ruthlessness *	23	6
Compensation State Fund Makes Good	46	3
Confession of a Faker	12	2
Congo Has Missing Links	12	11
Coolie Labor for America *	8	6
Co-operative Movement, The—
British Mine Sweepers' Co-operative Society *	9	7
Co-operation in the West *	16	7
Co-operation Will Cure Them	34	2
"Co-operative Garibaldi," The (by Captain A. Raimondo)	8	8
Democracy in Industry	40	2
Economics of Co-operation (by Percy Redfern)	36	9
Farmer Labor Bank, A *	9	6
Fraternal Arrangement, A *	5	7
Inspiring Interview, An *	12	6
Costly Pier, A *	18	7
Court Decisions, Maritime, Labor, Etc.—
Alves vs. "Eastern Admiral"	34	7
British Skipper Vain Trick (Victor Mattes vs. "Wabasha")	37	8
Case of Salvage, A ("Socony" vs. "Comet")	49	8
Cases of Interest to Seamen	47	8
Child Labor Law, Court Upsets	52	5
Compensation Laws for Seamen	5	1
Important Decision, An (S. S. "Benowa")	38	2
Interesting Settlement * (S. S. "Diablo")	17	6
Judgment Reversed (Frank Brandt vs. Schooner "George D. Edmons")	29	1
Legal Victory, A (Danielson vs. Sigsbee Humphreys Co.)	34	1
Maritime Workers, Status of	14	1
Perseverance Rewarded (J. Strelneck vs. "West Ivis")	24	7
Seamen's Accident Insurance	19	1
Seamen's Act, Sustains	23	2
Seamen's Right to Discharge	17	1
Seamen's Rights Sustained (Reading Railroad Company vs. Carl A. Berg)	45	8
"Superior" Claim, Sequel to	21	8
Supreme Court vs. Civil Liberty	49	2
Ten Thousand Dollar Verdict, A (Proper Medical Attention)	3	1
"The Seamen's Contract"	12	8
Watch Your Signing (George V. Cohan vs. British and South American Steam Navigation Company)	29	7
Court Scene in Texas	41	9

Title	No.	Page
D
Death of Miles Youngberg	20	5
Death of Mrs. Thomas A. Hanson *	1	7
Derelicts *	22	6
Difficult Task, A (Salvage of the S. S. "Laurentic")	37	2
Dimensions of the U. S.	2	10
Dirigible ZR-2 Wrecked	52	11
Disappearing Race, A *	14	7
Disaster, In the Wake of * (S. S. "Alaska")	52	7
"Dixie," Origin of the	6	11
Doings in Great Britain *	9	6
Dollar on the Job *	44	6
Don't Be a Tramp *	25	7
Do You Know Them? *	21	6
Drag Truth to Light * (S. S. "Alaska")	50	6
Dreams of the General Staff	3	8
Duplex Case	20	1
Duties Known and Fulfilled	23	7
Duty and Responsibility (by Andrew Furuseth)	19-7; 20-7; 23-7;	26-7
E
Earth's Total Population	51	3
"Eastland" Disaster, The	43	2
Economic Factors Analyzed	13	7
Economic Program of Chili	29	9
Economist, Gorgas as an	7	2
Education, Progress of Adult	12	1
Eight-Hour Day in France	46	3
Eight-Hour Day in French Ships	52	1
Election of the Delegates to the Twenty-first Annual Convention of the California State Federation of Labor	4	7
Electricity in Navigation	14	11
Emigrants Renig *	40	6
Employers Make Mistake *	48	6
"Empress of Canada," Launching of	1	5
Ericsson, To Honor	26	2
Eureka "Labor News" Wins *	31	6
Europe, Seeing Things in *	2	6
Explorer Returns, Noted (Capt. Roald Amundsen)	44	3
Ex-Service Ideas *	40	6
F
Fares and Employers ("The New Freedom's" Editorial Comment on Matson Company)	43	6
Farm, Back to the	13	2
Farmers' Fight Vindicated	45	10
Fate and Ideals (by J. P. Hayes)	45	2
Ferryboatmen, The *	16	6
Financing the I. W. W	18	2
Finland's Growing Fleet	34	2
Fisheries, Etc.—
Alaska Fishing Regulations	26	1
Alaska Fishermen's Contract	35	1
Atlantic Fishermen's Agreement	15	1
Fish, Hot and Cold	31	9
Nova Scotia Fishing	51	3
Salmon Prospects, Canadian	31	11
Seal Census, The	15	2
Whaling in Antarctic *	18	7
"Floating Fair," Another *	7	6
Food for Reflection (Incorporation Papers of the International Shipping Federation, Limited)	50	6
France, Labor Unions of	51	2
French Eight-Hour Day on Ships	52	1
Fuel-Saving Plan, Big	9	2
Furuseth, Andrew, Articles by, Etc.—
Duty and Responsibility	19-7; 20-7; 23-7;	26-7
Facts and Figures (Lockout Correspondence)	39	1
Message from Furuseth, A	48	6
Open Shop, The	30	1
Seaman Injured on Vessel, High School	46	8
G
Garibaldi," The Italian "Co-operative (by Captain A. Raimondo)	8	8
German Labor Laws	49	1
German Shipping Gains	36	7
German Swedish Trade	22	11
Germany's Argentine Trade	32	11
Gorgas as an Economist	7	2
Gosling's Presidential Address	47	3
Government Bars Unionists	43	5
Government, Molding the (by Charles M. Kelly)	37	9
Greek Shipping Expands	39	9
Greetings *	23	6
Gunning Manipulations *	45	6
H
Haiti Speaks	38	9
Harbors of the Golden Horn	4	8
Hatfield, Sid, Killed *	51	6
Health of a Nation, The	42	1
Hoover Will Investigate *	36	6
Hope and Faith (by Charles Martell)	49	8
Hours of Labor at Sea *	13	6
How to Measure a River	24	7
Hudson Bay Railway, The	9	2
Hurricane Warnings	3	9
I
Illustrated by Contrast *	35	6
Immigration—
Arriving at Ellis Island, Number of Immigrants	1	13
Emigrants Renig *	40	6
Emigration, Poverty Breeds (by Frederick C. Howe)	31	1
Head Tax	31	5
Immigrants Aided by Ship Officials	15	3
Immigration and Exploitation	25	3
Immigration, Canadian	31	2
Prohibiting Immigration	16	2
Proposal from Geneva	51	8
Time for Self-Appraisement *	42	6
Inchcape's Letter, Lord	26	9
Indiamen, More *	7	6
Industrial Democracy?, What Is	13	1
Injunctions—
Courts Usurp Power (by Hon. Walter Clark)	33	9
Injunctions Abused	45	5
Injunctions Based on Property	21	3
Injunction Dismissed	49	7
Injunctions Restore Feudalism	27	3
Labor and Injunctions (by Victor A. Olander)	50	1
Supreme Court Bars Boycott (Duplex Case)	20	1
Where Will It End? * (The Duplex Case)	20	1
Insurance, Health *	13	6
Insurance, Seamen's Accident	19	1
Insurance, Workmen's Health	4	2
International Seafarers' Federation—
Delegates' Report, The *	1	6
Forty-eight-hour Week, The	2	1
Forty-eight-hour Week, The * (Genoa Conference)	11	6
Furuseth, Report by	2	2
Owners and Seamen to Meet *	12	6
Pointed Comment *	5	6
Scharrenberg, Report by	2	2
Seamen in Conference, World's	1	1
Seamen's Code, An International	4	1
International Seamen's Union of America—
Blood Money *	15	6
Convention Call	33	7
Convention Call (I. S. U. of A.)	6	7
Convention Proceedings	21-1; 22-1; 23-1; 24-1;	25-1
Exploded Theory, An * (Pacific Mail Going Out of Business)	3	6
Facing the Inevitable	46	10
First Convention of the International Seamen's Union of America (by James H. Williams)	17	8
Injunction Dismissed	49	7
Jailed for Desertion *	51	6
Jones Act, Protest Against *	2	6
Jones Merchant Marine Act (Section 34)	8	8
La Follette Seamen's Act, Mr. Harding on the *	1	7
Language Test, The * (S. S. "Nanking" Case)	15	6
Lockout Facts Stated	36	1
Methods Differ *	22	6
Profits, Huge Shipping	37	7
Progress of the I. S. U. of A. *	11	6
Scott Bill (H. R. 3716)	43	2
Seamen, Canadian (Secretary Hanson's Report)	11	2
Seamen's Act, Attack (Scott Bill)	41	10
Seamen's Act Protects	32	7
Seamen's Case, The	38	8
Seamen's Law Attacked	36	3
Section Thirty-four	8	8
Seeking the Facts (Address by Senator La Follette)	48-1;	49-2
Twenty-fourth Annual Convention of the I. S. U. of A. *	17	7
International Shipping Federation (Ltd.) (Incorporation papers)	50	6
Intrigue Is International	21	6
Italian "Co-operative Garibaldi," The (by Captain A. Raimondo)	8	8
Italian Shipping Situation	31	11
Italy, Happenings in *	8	6
Italy, The Situation in	7	1
"It Doesn't Mean Anything" *	29	6
I. W. W., Financing the	18	2
J-K
Jailed for Desertion *	51	6
Japan, Harmony in *	19	6
Japanese as Fishermen *	9	6
Japanese in California *	10	7
Japanese Labor Awake	19	11
"Joker" in Gag Act Repeal	45	11
Jones Act, Protest Against *	2	6
Jones Merchant Marine Act (Section 34)	8	8
Journal's Birthday, The *	1	6
Juggling the Figures	37	11
L
Labor, Onward!, Men of	47	9
Labor, The Department of *	16	7
Labor, The Department of	28	1
Labor, Waste and	47	1
Labor and Injunctions (by Victor A. Olander)	50	1
Labor and the Churches *	19	7
Labor at Sea, Hours of *	13	6
"Labor Boss" Brindell	24	10
Labor Bureau, Inc., Report of the	40	1
Labor Conditions in Holland	33	2
Labor Conditions in Russia	5	7
Labor Day, History of	52	9
Labor Event, A Great	43	3
Labor for America, Coolie *	8	6
Labor Laws, German	49	1
Labor Laws, International	9	1
Labor Loses a Friend *	28	6
Labor Menace, Chief *	31	7
Labor Must Lead	49	9
"Labor Saturday," Municipal	4	9
Labor Union of France	51	2
Labor Unions or What?	14	9
Labor's Non-Partisan Campaign *	6	6
Labor's Strength, The Test of (by Walter Macarthur)	1	7
La Follette's Address on the Lockout Controversy, Senator (Seeking the Facts)	48-1;	49-2
Lake's District Active, Great	43	2
Language Test, The *	15	6
Latvia's Commercial Fleet	36	7
Law and Order *	10	6
Lawyers Fight in Trial (S. S. "City of Norvich")	39	9
League of Nations *	10	7
League of Nations at Work	10	7
Legal Mind, Views of (by Silas B. Axtell)	52	8
Legion Is Tabbed	46	2
Legislation, Necessary *	26	6
Let Vision Be Wide *	30	6
Light Where It Is Needed *	47	6
Living Standards Held Low	38	1
Lloyd's World's Shipping Statistics	2-7;	7-6
Locking the Stable * (S. S. "Alaska")	50	6
Lockout, Etc.—
Address Delivered in the United States Senate on the Lockout Controversy (by Senator Robt. M. La Follette)	48-1;	49-2
Admiral, How They Fooled the	42	8
Against Stacked Decks	36	10
Agreement, Renewed	40	9
"American Plan," The	46	9
Atta Boy! Atlantic *	40	7
Benson's Bombast, Admiral	37	1
Benson's Changed Attitude *	37	6
Benson's Resources Operate *	42	6
Conciliation (?)	37	7
Cotter States Case, Joseph	39	9
Dishonorable Methods	42	11
Facts and Figures (by Andrew Furuseth)	39	1
Honor to Our Dead	40	8
Injunction Dismissed	49	7

CO
v.34

Title	No.	Page
Is Benson Fair?	35	7
Learn by Experience *	48	6
Lockout—See Strikes.
Lockout Affects (Panama) Canal	47	7
Lockout Declared at an End	48	7
Lockout Effects Revealed *	41	6
Lockout Facts Stated	36	1
Lockout Items	45	9
Looking Forward (by Charles Lesse)	50	8
More Than Fifteen Per Cent *	38	6
Notice of Restraining Order (Injunction Advertisement) in Marine Lockout	41	13
Seamen Are Solid	38	10
"Shipping Register's" Venom *	38	6
Shipowners Aggressive	40	10
Ships and American Plan *	47	7
Squall Breaks, The *	35	7
Stand by Top'sl Hl'yds! *	34	6
Strikebreakers, Government Aids	41	11
Strikebreakers, U. C. Students *	39	6
Tie-up of Shipping	37	7
Times Have Changed (by Fred Holtzberg)	47	8
Transport Workers Awake *	46	1
Truth and Warning (by Charles Martell)	38	8
Victims of Greed (Funeral of Axel H. Ohman)	43	1
Why Certainly! *	39	7
Lumber in Africa	16	10

M

Macarthur's, Walter, "The Seamen's Contract"	12	8
"Mayflower" Relics	4	9
Meeting Called, Important *	30	6
Membership Rights Defined	50	7
Merchant Fleet, Denmark's	16	2
Merchant Marine, Our Growing *	7	6
Metal Lighter Than Aluminum	2	10
Mexican Constitution Upheld	43	7
Mexican Policy, A. F. of L	44	7
Mexico and Union Labor	50	9
Miners Defend Mountaineers	22	11
Miners Give Warning	36	6
Munchausen Groggy *	46	6
Mutinous Crew Sinks Ship (S. S. "Huttaita")	32	2
Mystery of the Sea, A ("Carroll A. Deering")	27	11

N

Navigation, Electricity in	14	11
Navy Boys Are O. K. *	29	7
Navy Seizes Fuel, U. S	2	5
Negro Boy Honored	18	2
North Dakota, Good for Nothing *	13	6
North Dakota, Wealth of	46	9
Novel Experiment, A	46	3

O

Observe Your Morals *	20	6
O. B. U. Stock, Big Slump in *	6	6
Ocean Buried Treasures	32	9
Ocean Secrets	30	8
Oceans Shrinking?, Are the	3	8
Ocean's Only Insects	20	9
Ocean's Tide, Would Stop	2	10
One Touch of Nature * ("Brocky Alec" in Golden Gate Park)	29	6
Organize *	26	6
Organize Right *	44	7
Organized Labor Procrastinates	27	2
Origin of Long Island	40	7
Original Experiment, An *	23	6

P

Pacific Coast Oil *	4	7
Panama Canal Services	26	2
Panama Canal, The *	5	6
Paper vs. Lumber *	10	6
People's League, Probing	46	2
Place the Responsibility * (Wreck of the S. S. "Alaska")	49	6
Planes vs. Dreadnaughts	29	2
Poetry—
A Famous Victory (by Robert Southey)	43	9
At Your Own Terms	45	7
Benson's Golden Rule	42	7
Cruise of the "Western Sea" (by Bill Hart)	41	8
Down to the Sea (by Eugene W. Simmonds)	31	9
Labor Omnia Vincit (by James H. Williams)	35	8
Meditation	47	10
"Old Summertime" (by James H. Williams)	38	8
Shanghaied Sailors	50	8
Song of the Wage Slave (by Robert W. Service)	45	10
The Angel of Discontent (by Sam W. Foss)	27	7
The Codfisherman's Lament	21	7
The Liberty Lady (by Arthur Nannestad)	43	8
The Menace	9	2
The Sailor's Life (by Frank X. Sparks)	26	7
Under Tropic Skies (by B. Allison)	52	9
Polar Expedition, Capt. Amundsen's	4-5;	12-5
Production vs. Consumption *	12	6
Profiteering a Crime *	51	7
Profiteers Escape Under Sales Law (by James A. Frear)	30	7
Profits, Huge Shipping (Report of the Labor Bureau, Inc., to the International Seamen's Union of America)	37	7
Profits in Shipping	41	11
Public vs. Private Profit *	2	7

R

Radium's Use in Industry	11	7
Railroads' Methods Exposed	27	1
Rate Fixing *	15	6
"Rate of Exchange," The	7	2
Real Facts Needed (Trade Relations with Soviet Russia)	49	2
Reason for Complaint (by William T. Stark)	50	8
Reason for Suppression, A *	40	6
Reform Needed	46	8
Remedy Suggested	48	8
Report on Shipowners' Profits (by Labor Bureau, Inc.)	37	7
Research, Valuable ("Carnegie")	29	2
Red Cross, Seamen and the	10	2
"Rolph," Brutal Treatment to the crew of the *	42	6
Russian Labor Movement	50	3
Russian Recognition, Real	38	7
Russo-British Trade Agreement	32	1
Rustic Dream, A *	44	6

S

Sabotage in Rear Form *	22	6
Sabotaged, S. S. "Bakersfield"	40	5
Sailors' Union of the Pacific—
American Plan, The (Steam-Schooner Agreement)	46	9
Challenge Accepted, A *	31	6
Easy Interpretation, An *	34	6
Education in Seamanship *	18	6
Election of Delegates to the 24th Annual Convention of the I. S. U. of A.	15	7
Election of Officers	19	7
Getting Together *	45	6
Improvement Required, An *	36	6
Ingwardsen, R., Elected Assistant Secretary	49	7
Injunction Dismissed	49	7
Intelligent Effort *	46	6
Labor Omnia Vincit (by James H. Williams)	35	8
Lend a Hand *	20	7
Lockout Declared at an End	48	7
On the Job in San Pedro	43	9
Seeing the Light	44	9
Sixth of March *	27	7
Solidarity *	31	7
Spirit of Men *	45	6
Stand by Top'sl Hal'yds! *	34	6
Steam-Schooner Owners' Proposal	45	7
Such Is Life *	33	6
Teaching Seamanship *	14	7
To Our Readers *	20	6
Training School	13-7; 14-7; 17-7;	18-6-7
Valedictory (by Editor Scharrenberg)	19	6
We Cherish Autonomy *	21	6

DECEASED MEMBERS

Ackerson, Peter	2	7
Andersson, Carl Herman	37	7
Anderson, Chas. Theo. F	34	7
Anderson, Chas. Wilson	7	7
Anderson, Wilhelm	27	7
Andreasen, Hjalmar	52	7
Bastion, William Francis	18	7
Bengtsson, John	28	7
Bittner, Fred	9	7
Bredze, Cornelius A	50	7
Brizga, Michael	3	7
Bryning, William	16	7
Bohley, Harry	27	7
Burns, Thomas	43	7
Carson, Edward J.	28	7
Cassberg, Karl Gustaf A	9	7
Caputo, Salvatore	27	7
Chilberg, Bennie	48	7
Ehlert, August	41	7
Ellison, Isac	20	7
Erickson, Erick	2	7
Esch, Joseph N	45	7
French, Thomas	28	7
Gamber, Joseph	37	7
Gronos, John	2	7
Haederstrom, Torvil F	40	7
Hansen, Christian	7	7
Hansen, Johan Gerhard	7	7
Harvey, James	5	7
Hawkins, Edward	52	7
Howard, George W	45	7
Ibsen, Christian	8	7
Irmey, Feodor	51	7
Isacson, John	15	7
Jackson, William	34	7
Jensen, Ernest	18	7
Johansen, Harold W	40	7
Johanson, Oscar	28	7
Johnson, Harry	20	7
Johnston, Carl Theo	9	7
Jones, Richard I	2	7
Jonsen, Andreas	51	7
Juell, Ragwald E	30	7
Koffer, Alexander	48	7
Kolod, August	2	7
Larsen, Karl Sigfried	3	7
Lawrence, Wm.	17	7
Lax, Uno Edward	3	7
Leinen, John Wm	12	7
Lundberg, L.	42	7
Mathisen, Abraham	49	7
McKenzie, Wm.	23	7
Miller, Johan	37	7
Miller, Samuel	37	7
Mitshel, Alexander	48	7
Nielsen, Johannes Geo	15	7
Nogat, Ernest Geo	8	7
Olsen, Jacob	15	7
Olson, Peter	49	7
Olson, John	37	7
Peterson, John	21	7
Piehl, Peder	31	7
Post, Albert	20	7
Rauer, John R.	11	7
Richards, Clemens	29	7
Rocke, Gabriel	40	7
Roth, Sven T	29	7
Rouvi, Mikkel	29	7
Rutgerson, Oscar	31	7
Sandell, Carl	34	7
Sinclair, William A	24	7
Scrivens, William	12	7
Sorensen, Lauritz Aug	38	7
Stolzerman, Emil	21	7
Strandqvist, Louis	51	7
Trabaudt, Malte Wm. G	10	7
Tura, Alex	24	7
Ursen, Alvin	20	7
Varrio, Nestor	43	7
Wang, Julius	6	7
Wall, W.	42	7
Wiman, Ernest	43	7
Salvage, A Difficult	10	10
Salvage, Feats of Marine	32	2
Salving Gold Bars	15	2
San Francisco—
Attacking the Initiative *	19	6
Coming Home to Roost *	26	6
Disclosed by the Press *	35	6
Ferryboatmen, The *	16	6
Intelligent Effort *	46	6
Is Benson Fair? (Masters, Mates and Pilots' Association of the Pacific Ignored)	35	7
Justice Must Prevail *	24	6
Keeping Them Busy *	44	7
Legislation, Direct *	8	7
Library, Don't Forget the *	8	7
Marine Cooks and Stewards' Association of the Pacific	12	7
Mooney Case Won't Down	25	7

511147

Title	No.	Page
Mooney Frame-up Exposed	11	1
Peculiar Aspects *	24	6
Seafarers' Council, The *	14	6
Sea Power and Seamen *	17	6
Sinister Trail *	34	7
Six-Minute Ferry	15	5
Socialists and Mooney	45	10
"Star" Suspended, The *	16	6
Suppression a Failure *	46	7
Tenacity Rewarded *	30	6
Transport Workers Awake *	46	1
"Scab," Definition of a	41	6
Scott Bill (H. R. 3716)	43	2
Sea Level, Areas Below	9	2
Sea Power and Seamen *	17	6
Sea Service Bureau (Is This Americanism? By Julius Nelson)	48	8
Sea Training *	6	6
Seamanship and Efficiency	25	1
Seamanship, Education in *	18	6
Seamanship, Modern	28	8
Seamen, Fashionable *	31	6
Seamen, Hounding the	44	8
Seamen, Nationality of	35	9
Seamen's Accident Insurance	19	1
Seamen's Act—See International Seamen's Union of America; also Court Decisions.
Seamen and Discipline (by Silas B. Axtell)	51	1
Seamen and the Red Cross	10	2
Seamen in the War, British	14	2
Seamen Idle, British	46	7
Sedition Bill, Fight U. S.	42	7
Serious Revelations * (S. S. "Alaska")	50	6
Shipowners' Sequel	47	6
Shipping at Havre	40	2
Shipping Board—See United States Shipping Board.
Shipping Federation, Limited, Incorporation Papers of	50	6
Shipping Gains, German	36	7
Shipping Graft Disclosed	41	10
Shipping Profits, Huge (also see Profits)	37	7
Shipping, Progress of U. S	4	7
"Shipping Plot," The German	9	7
Ships Increase, American	49	8
Shop Committee, The ("Rockefeller Plan")	8	1
Soldiers, Effects of War on	44	1
Solidarity, For (by Ralph V. Chervin)	44	9
Sauce for the Gander *	28	6
Soviet Russia, Five Weeks in	14-7; 15-7; 16-7;	17-7
Soviets in Italy	4	2
Stand by Top'sl Hal'yds! *	34	6
Steamboat Inspection Service, The	16	1
Steel Trust's Weak Spot, The *	14	6
Stop It Now * (A. M. Arneson vs. "Rolph")	41	7
Strike, British Coal Miners' *	11	7
Strike, British Coal Miners' (Doings in Great Britain *)	9	6
Strike, The Ancient Hunger	9	1
Strike, The General	10	1
Strikebreakers, U. C. Students *	39	6
Subsidies, British Shipping	49	8
Subsidies, French	35	9
Suggestions, Worth While	2	7

T

Tale of Hard Luck, A	47	2
Tale of Terrorism, A (by Arne M. Arneson)	41	1
Tales from an Old Sea, Old	48	9
Taxation, Single Tax, Etc.—
Head Tax	31	5
Land Question, The Eternal (by Herbert Atkinson)	7	7
Sales Tax Is No Panacea	40	3
Single Tax, Scoffing at the	20	2
Tax, Big "Biz" Opposes Profits	39	3
Tax on Idle Land, No	2	10
Tax on Land Values	2	10
Taxes, Wars and	10	6
Teachers Awakening	33	7
Teredo, Fighting the	23	11
They Won't Stay *	44	6
Three Hundredth Anniversary, The (Landing of the Pilgrims)	3	8
Three-Shift System, The	23	2
Timber, Ownership of	17	2
Timber Workers' Union * (Law and Order *)	10	6
Time to Take Heed * (Senator Borah Assails American Legion)	52	6
Tipping Evil, The *	13	6
Tobacco Next?, Is	14	9
"Tonnage," Origin of the Term	24	7
Transport Workers Awake *	46	1

U

Unemployment *	32	6
Unemployment a Reward of Victory (by J. Ford)	52	2
Unemployment, Burden of (by Paul S. Taylor)	40	11
Unemployment Problems	11	2
Unionism, "Scientific" *	16	6
Unionism, Growth of Trade	33	1
Unionism "The" Remedy *	14	6
Unions, Old vs. "New Form"	18	7
Union or Bad?, Good (by George Soule)	42	2
Union Ship, A Real ("Brescia" of the Italian Garibaldi Line)	7	8
"Union Shop," The *	3	7
U. S. Navy Seizes Fuel	2	5
United States Shipping Board—
Admiral Benson's Appeal	13	2
Admiral Benson's Scalp, After *	7	6
Altering 25 Steamers	14	5
Benson Advises *	29	7
Damage to Shipments	13	5
Deficiency Appropriations *	13	7
Extensive Report, An (by Joseph N. Teale, Commissioner of Operations of the U. S. Shipping Board)	28	11
Japs Outwit Shipping Board	52	11
Laid-up Vessels at Southampton Bay	13-5;	14-5
Oil, The Demand for	12	7
Operating Expenses, Pacific	11	5
Shipping Board Muddle, The *	11	6
Squall Breaks, The *	35	7
Timely Resolve, A (International Mercantile Marine Company regarded by the U. S. Shipping Board as inimical to and not in harmony with policy of the United States of America	28	7

V

Valedictory (by Editor Scharrenberg)	19	6
Views from Aberdeen	49	9
Vikings, Shades of the *	25	6
Vocabulary, Some	12	2
Voyage, An Unusual	3	11

W

War Appropriations *	18	6
Warships, Clipper Bow on	46	9
Washington Letter, Our (by Laurence Todd)—See issues 1 to 52.
Waste and Labor	47	1
Watch Them Grow *	25	7
Water Power, The Use of	14	9
Weather Bureau, A Mid-Pacific *	10	6
Where Are We Drifting? *	34	6
Where Will It End? * (Duplex Case)	20	6
Where's the Normalcy? *	25	6
Widow's Right, A	46	6
Wireless Rules, British	12	2
"Wobblies," Perfidy of the	6	2
Women as Wage-earners *	17	6
Women Magistrates	20	9
Women Make Laws, Where	45	11
Women to End War, Working	52	9
Woodrow Wilson * (An Appreciation of the Man)	27	6
Work to Perform, A *	33	6
Workers Awake, Transport *	46	1
Workers, The Unorganized *	13	7
Working Hours, Portuguese	20	2
World's Debt, The	18	11
Would Exploit Misery	48	3
Wrecks—
Alaska	49	6
Arakan	1	5
Atlas	17	5
G. C. Lindauer	13	5
Governor	31	5
Inoa	16	5
Joan of Arc	12	5
Klamath	23	7
Mary E. Palmer	1	14
Newark	10	5
Prince Rupert	10	5
W. J. Pirrie	13	5

CD

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS LIBRARY

OCT 6 1920

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization

VOL. XXXIV, No. 1. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1920. Whole No. 1717.

WORLD'S SEAMEN IN CONFERENCE

Delegates Representing The I. S. U. of A. Submit Report

Secretary Hanson of the International Seamen's Union of America has supplied the Journal with a copy of the official report made by the delegates who have just returned from Europe after attending two international conferences of seamen.

The report is published in full, in this issue. Two supplementary reports, dealing with conditions of seamen and the status of seamen's organizations in certain northern European countries, will appear in next week's issue.

In perusing these reports it should be borne in mind—first, last and all the time—that the great fight for the freedom of seamen, carried on by the organized seamen of America for over twenty years before it was won, has now been made "the" fight for the seamen of the world.

Thomas A. Hanson, Secretary-Treasurer,
International Seamen's Union of America,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Comrade:

The report of the delegates elected by our recent annual convention to attend the biennial meeting of the International Seafarers' Federation must, for the sake of clarity, deal with three international conferences, namely:

1. The Open International Conference of Seafarers which met at Genoa, Italy, from June 10 to 14.

2. The International Labor Conference held under the auspices of the League of Nations to consider the problems of seamen. This conference met at Genoa, beginning on June 15.

3. The constitutional meeting of the International Seafarers' Federation which convened at Brussels, Belgium, on August 9.

A detailed report upon the Open International Conference of Seafarers was previously prepared and has been published in the issue of the Journal, dated July 21. Immediately following said conference came the meeting held under the auspices of the League of Nations. This gathering had to consider the following questions affecting seamen:

First. Hours of labor; (a) in inland navigation, (b) in ocean navigation.

Second. The employment of children on ships.

Third. The questions relating to seamen's employment, engagement and signing of shipping articles.

Fourth. The possibility of drafting a code for seamen to have equal application and force in all countries.

It should be noted that at this conference the method of representation had very serious disadvantages to the seamen. Each nation had four delegates, of which two were appointed by the government, one by the shipowners and one by the seamen. Thus the seamen had one vote out of each four.

This meeting had two ways of expressing the results of its deliberations. It could make recommendations to the different nations to enact legislation—but the nations were in no manner bound to act upon these recommendations. Again, the meeting could submit to the different nations a so-called "draft convention," i. e., a treaty made ready to be adopted by the nations. This treaty the nations are supposed to adopt as a duty.

On the question of the employment of children the meeting adopted a "draft convention" prohibiting the employment of children under the age of fourteen, but with certain rather sweeping exceptions.

Hours of Labor.

In the matter of "hours of labor" the meeting adopted a recommendation dealing only with hours of labor in inland navigation to the effect that those nations which have not yet provided by legislation for an eight-hour day and a forty-eight hour week should do so at the earliest opportunity.

Dealing with the hours of labor at sea the meeting drafted, but failed to adopt a "draft convention" because the two-third majority necessary to adopt were not obtained.

On the question relating to seamen's employment, etc., a "draft convention" was adopted providing for unemployment benefit if such unemployment results from "loss or foundering" of the vessel. In such cases the benefit is not to exceed two months' wages. This benefit is to be obtained from "the owner or person with whom the seaman has contracted." The expression here used indicates a purpose to change the old and now existing rule of contracting with the vessel and to adopt in its place a contract with the owner to go in any one of the owner's vessels.

In addition to the foregoing a recommendation to the different nations was adopted that each "should establish for seamen an effective system of insurance against unemployment arising out of shipwreck or any other cause."

The Employment Shark.

Finally a "draft convention" was adopted regulating and prohibiting "the business of finding employment for seamen" under penalty of criminal punishment. There is, however, no criminal or other penalty against the operation of blacklisting employment agencies such as have from time to time been maintained by shipowners. (This question was dealt with later at the Brussels conference of the International Seafarers' Federation.)

If the two last named "draft conventions" and the recommendation relating to unemployment should be accepted, shipowners would have more complete control of seamen while on shore than they now have over seamen while at sea. Employment offices such as those conducted by the Lake Carriers' Association and the International Shipping Federation, Limited, would be the only places through which the seaman could find employment. While it is true that the "draft conventions" guarantee freedom of choice of vessels the unemployment benefit would by its very nature compel men to go on vessels or "contract with owners," not as a matter of choice but from sheer necessity. It might be harsh to say that such is the underlying purpose, but the conference had many members who knew the seamen's life in all its aspects and who have given years of effort to attain such control over seamen while on shore.

An International Seamen's Code.

On the question "consideration of the possiguilty of drawing up an International Seamen's Code" the meeting decided in the affirmative and made the following recommendation:

"In order that, as a result of the clear and systematic codification of the national law in each country, the seamen of the world, whether engaged on ships of their own or foreign countries, may have a better comprehension of their rights and obligations, and in order that the task of establishing an International Seamen's Code may be advanced and facilitated, the International Labor Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labor Organization undertake the embodiment in a seamen's code of all its laws and regulations relating to seamen in their activities as such."

As a preliminary step in the drafting of an International Code the different nations had reported upon existing penalties for disobedience and violation of contract. After a study of these reports the representatives of the Norwegian seamen submitted the following resolution:

"Whereas: The International Labor Office report on the Seamen's Code exposes two vital and important facts; first, that in all countries represented at this Conference the seamen's status is little better than that of the serf, and second, that none of these countries seem to be prepared, at this Conference, to change this ancient status; and

"Whereas: The information furnished by the different countries indicates that the contract of the seamen is in a moral sense no contract, because neither the obligations nor the penalties for their violations are the same upon the two contracting parties—the penalty upon the shipowner being one of regulated damages, the penalty upon the seamen one of compulsion to continue to labor against his will, or, penal servitude, the duration of which is likewise regulated by law, and

"Whereas: Such great inequality before the law cannot be tolerated in a world that has been 'made safe for democracy'; therefore be it

"Resolved: That this commission recommend to the various Governments that seamen be placed upon the same legal level as shipowners, through the repeal of all laws and the abrogation of all treaties under which the seaman may be compelled to labor against his will when the vessel is in safety, or suffer incarceration for refusing to fulfil a civil contract to labor.

"Genoa, 24th June, 1920.

"(Signed) Oscar Nilsen,
"(Signed) Hji. Johannessen,
"(Signed) H. Michelsen."

The foregoing resolution was discussed in committee and finally came into the conference as a minority report. Mr. Colmo (Argentine) directed attention to the absence of principles to guide the commission entrusted with the writing of the code. Mr. Nolens (Netherlands) indicated very plainly that he was desirous of having the substance of the resolution adopted. There were sundry efforts to prevent consideration of the minority report, but all failed. There were several strong expressions of disapproval, especially of the word "serf" in the Norwegian resolution.

An Historic Address.

Mr. Johannesen of Norway, through Mr. Thorsen then submitted the following remarks:

"Gentlemen: A resolution like the one we Norwegian Seamen's representatives have put before you was adopted in Norway 15 months ago by a meeting of the several ratings of seamen—representatives and members.

"This resolution was submitted to the Norwegian Government and the Premier, Mr. Gunnar Knudsen, who is one of Norway's greatest shipowners, said that he could not see any good reason for continuation of the old status under which seamen live and labor. He said that he hoped to see it abolished before the sitting Parliament adjourned.

"Norway, Denmark and Sweden have now sitting a joint commission whose duty it is to propose to the three countries such changes in the present law as shall bring the law into harmony with modern ideas.

"The foreman of the Norwegian section of the joint commission submitted the resolution to a meeting of the Commissions in September 1919. On a later meeting held in Sweden the leader of the Norwegian section again called attention to the resolution and expressed the hope that the principle in the resolution would be made the guiding idea in the framing of the new law.

"On pages 69, 70 and 71 of Report 4, on the Seamen's Code we find that the Government of France already in 1914 as a result of a Conference between representatives of the Government, the shipowners and the seamen had submitted a proposal to the French Parliament the effect that the seamen's status be changed. The proposal is that the seaman may terminate his contract in any safe harbor upon giving notice which, in accordance with the safety of the vessel and the passengers, is from two to twelve hours.

"As bases for our resolution we have taken the reports from the different nations as the reports appear in Report No. 4. In this report we find that the seaman (nobody is a seaman until he has signed the shipping articles) who does not render himself on board at the time set, can, if the master so desires, be taken on board by force with or without police assistance. We find also that if the seaman has deserted or escaped from the vessel (it is only prisoners, serfs and seamen who escape, others simply quit their work), the master may cause him to be arrested, brought before a court and to be sentenced to imprisonment. We find further that these laws do not exist for the protection of seamen as a body or for the protection of society as such, but for the protection of such shipowners as may desire to use them.

"Well, gentlemen, the seaman's status and the penalties he incurs in seeking to withdraw himself from the service of the vessel are as follows: he is compelled to labor against his will or to suffer imprisonment if he seeks to break or does break his contract to labor; but the master as representative of the owner may cancel the contract at any time or place by paying as civil damages to the seaman from one to three months' wages and he can do this although he can find no legal ground under which the seaman may be dismissed and if the damages are not paid there is no prison penalty for either the master or the owner of the vessel. I respectfully submit this to the gentlemen present and ask them, if this be equality before the law.

"I ask the representatives of the different nations if these laws are based upon democratic principles and if it be in this manner that they are going to fulfil the promises which were given to the seamen when he freely gave his life for the world's freedom and to bring food to the hungry during the late world war? We cannot believe that this Conference, which is called for the protection of seamen, can vote against this resolution.

"I feel will be those who protest strongly against the word in the resolution—the word serf. If you can find another word, which gives an accurate definition of the seaman's status, another word may be used, but I again appeal to the jurists to tell the meeting the legal difference between the man who could not leave the master's estate and the seaman who cannot leave the vessel in a safe harbor? What is the difference if there be one between the penalties imposed upon the disobedient serf or the escaped serf and those imposed upon the seamen who fail to obey in the safe harbor? There are many who seem to think that we seamen cannot understand and feel our status—that we cannot feel the difference in the law as it exists between us and the shipowners. With reference to this point permit me to say that it might have been true many years ago: but since I have sailed I have often heard men say 'I have again sold myself' in place of saying 'I have shipped again.' This I think is a sufficient answer. There are especially amongst shipowners men who say: 'Yes, but you do not need to sign the contract if you do not like to.' To this I answer that when Esau came from the hunt and was hungry and he asked his brother for food the brother answered: 'Yes; if you will give to me your right as the firstborn.' Esau was hungry and the bargain was transacted. Thus did Esau become his brother's serf.

"Finally I beg to remind you that the evidence of the serf was of no value as against his master unless it was corroborated either through the testimony of others, or through facts which came out during the trial. The evidence of a seaman against the vessel, the shipowner or the master is sometimes about of the same value. We know this from our experience before consuls and courts.

"These laws which compel the seaman to work against his will must be repealed and the seaman must be treated as other men when the vessel is safe. Anything less than this will gradually make it impossible to get self-respecting men to serve at sea."

Mr. de Rousiers (France) offered the following motion on the subject:

"Criminal procedure shall only be resorted to with a view to upholding public regulations which govern the articles of agreement of seamen, and shall only be entered upon at the request of officials of the public authorities; civil procedure only shall protect agreements freely entered into between seamen and the representatives of the ship on which they have embarked."

Mr. Colmo (Argentine) complimented the minority upon having the courage of its convictions. He could not agree with Mr. de Rousiers.

Mr. Giglio (Italy) then offered the following motion:

"This Conference, after hearing the conclusion of the minority, emanating from the commission for the study of an International Seamen's Code, affirms the principle of the most complete equality on the judicial and social ground between the rights of the seamen and the rights of the shipowners."

The Secretary-General after some remarks moved that the motions offered by Mr. de Rousiers and by Mr. Giglio be adopted and referred to the drafting committee to combine the two and submit a report. This was agreed to.

Later the drafting committee submitted the following:

Text of the Drafting Committee.

"This Conference recognizes that the contracts of engagement of seamen in all countries contain two kinds of clauses:

(1) clauses of a public character, inserted in the public interest;
(2) clauses of a private character, inserted in the private interests of shipowners or seamen or both.

"The Conference affirms the principles

(1) that so far as possible the clauses of a public character in seamen's contracts should be the same in the different countries;
(2) that the legal rights and obligations of seamen and shipowners, inter se, arising out of the clauses of a private character, should be placed upon a footing of strict equality;
(3) that violations of provisions in contracts of engagement between seamen and employers should not be dealt with as criminal offenses, unless they be violations of the clauses of a public character maintaining public policy as distinguished from private interest, and even then only at the instance of public authorities.
(4) that violations of provisions in contracts of engagement should be made the subject of procedure in civil courts only where such contracts have been freely entered into on both sides.

"The Conference therefore invites the International Labor Office, in its investigations preparing for the establishment of an International Seamen's Code dealing with contracts of engagement and discipline, to keep in view the application of the foregoing principles, and to embody them so far as possible in any drafts of an international code on either of these subjects which it may place before future meetings of the International Labor Conference."

When the revised draft was reported to conference Mr. Barlow (Great Britain) stated that he had not seen the document before, that it referred to very important questions of violations of contract, and that he would therefore vote against it.

The revised draft, as submitted herewith, was then adopted with only one dissenting vote.

Before disposing of the subject matter Mr. Colmo (Argentine) submitted the following for adoption by the conference:

"Violation of provisions in contract of engagement can never be considered as a criminal offense, nor can the abandonment of the vessel in a foreign port be considered as desertion, and therefore can not be punished as crime."

This declaration was approved by 41 in favor, 7 against.

The foregoing briefly tells the story of the conference under the auspices of the League of Nations at Genoa.

Call for Brussels Meeting.

When it became fairly well understood that the meeting would be a failure on very important questions, such as the hours of labor at sea, the need for a meeting of seamen to voice seamen's thoughts upon the actions of the Genoa meeting, was felt to be imperative. As a result of this feeling the President and Secretary-Treasurer of the International Seafarers' Federation issued the following call to meet at Brussels:

Genoa, 22nd June 1920.

Dear Sir and Brother:

A Secretariat meeting of the International Seafarers' Federation will be held at Brussels on August 5th at 11 a. m., and on August 9th a Congress will be held at 11 a. m.

At the Secretariat meeting on the 5th only those who are on the Secretariat will be present. On the 9th there will be a full Congress of the delegates representing the different Unions.

Should you desire to submit any resolutions to the Congress would you be good enough to send such resolutions at your earliest possible convenience.

Yours fraternally,
C. DAMM,
General Secretary,

After waiting some time for the final action of the Conference on the Norwegian proposal we made arrangements to have same sent to Norway and we left Genoa to visit and confer with the different Unions in Belgium, Holland, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Norway pending and in preparation for the meeting in Brussels. Germany, Holland and Belgium were by agreement allotted to Comrade Scharrenberg and he will report separately thereon. Denmark and Sweden to Carlson and Furuseth. Norway to Furuseth. A supplementary report is submitted on these missions.

The Brussels Convention.

In accordance with the official "Call" the International Seafarers' Federation was called to order in regular biennial convention at Brussels, Belgium, on August 9, 1920. The sessions were held in the banquet hall of the Metropole Hotel located in the heart of the city.

Monsieur Wauters, Minister of Labor of Belgium, and Monsieur Pierrard, representing the Minister of Marine of Belgium, delivered addresses of welcome. President Havelock Wilson responded in appropriate terms.

The Committee on Credentials reported 45 delegates entitled to seats in the convention, as follows:

National Sailors' and Firemen's Union of Great Britain and Ireland, (15 votes) R. Breckenridge, J. H. Borlase, G. Jackson, C. Bellem, J. Cone, D. Flett, W. R. Spence, M. Tearle, T. Chambers and E. Cathery.

National Union of Ship Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, (5 votes) Jos. Cotter, A. Despres, W. R. Smalles, T. Donnelly and E. Vernlinden.

Hull Seamen's Union, (2 votes) G. W. McKee and John Atkinson.

United Kingdom Pilots' Association, (2 votes) M. Joyce.

French Seamen's Federation, (5 votes) A. Rivelli, Louis Reaud, Eugene Ehlers, Leon Baudoin, Augeste Montagne, Oscar Decouter, Francis Mouilli and Simon Mattei.

International Seamen's Union of America, (12 votes) Andrew Furuseth, Paul Scharrenberg and Oscar Carlson

Belgian Seamen's Union, (3 votes) J. Chapelle, C. Mahlman, H. Dillen and W. Schonkerem.

Seamen's Union of Holland, (3 votes) D. L. Wolfson, D. Litzau and L. Verhagen.

Norwegian Sailors' and Firemen's Union, (3 votes) Conrad Stensrud, Gerhard Johansen and Idar Hansaas.

Stewards' Union of Bergen, (2 votes) Olaf Andersen and Sigvard Olsen.

Swedish Firemen's Union, (2 votes) Sven Lundgren.

Swedish Sailors' Union, (3 votes) Erhard Griph

Danish Firemen's Union, (2 votes) Richard Jensen

Danish Cooks and Stewards' Union, (2 votes) K. Spliid.

President Havelock Wilson in his opening ad

(Continued on Page 10.)

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Edison Is Advised

Hugh V. Reilly, late editor of the Newark Ledger, advises Thomas Edison, electrical wizard, to study industrial conditions in his own factories in this vicinity before he criticizes workers and gives advice to them.

Recently Mr. Edison declared that if the industrial worker could be made to understand "what capital and management are doing for him it would go a long way to cure this so-called unrest."

"The press accounts of the address," says Labor Editor Reilly, "agree that it was delivered for Mr. Edison and not by him.

"Perhaps it was not written or dictated by him, because the thought expressed is unworthy of a great man. It bears all the characteristics of hired management misrepresentation. Several months ago we spoke of the long established practice of the West Orange plant of hiring workmen in a large field. We said at the time that almost invariably the future founder of a hyphenated-American family would get the job. There have been other instances when the Edison management have made a more direct appeal for foreign workmen in preference to the native born, as was the case during the Polishers' strike several years ago. At that time the strike-breaking advertisements distinctly stated that Greeks were preferred for the strikers' places.

"And now Mr. Edison wonders why the industrial worker does not understand his employer. Many workmen in our large industrial establishments are incapable of understanding their employers for the same reason that the steel trust experienced in their strike last fall—the employer didn't want workmen who can understand. The fact is, the American workman understands his employer far better than the latter understands him. The workman is seeking through the agency of collective bargaining to make that understanding all embracing, but many employers (the Edison companies included) have given repeated evidences that they do not want it.

"The attitude of these companies indicates they desire the very opposite of understanding—oppression. Oppression never develops that full, hearty co-operation necessary to a better world.

"Mr. Edison should study the industrial conditions in his own factories before he criticizes the workmen of today."

Public Has Duties

"Before the public has a valid claim for the full recognition of its rights on the part of labor, it must have previously assumed its responsibilities and have done its part in preventing conditions of labor which are not only intolerable to labor, but which are a menace to the stability and welfare of the Nation itself," says John P. Frey, editor International Molders' Journal.

"The public," says this trade unionist, "manifested little interest in the long hours and low wages of street car employes, until one morning it was forced to walk down town because the street car employes would no longer endure the intolerable conditions of their employment.

"The miners have received such small wages that they could not support their families in decency. They have been prevented from organizing by bands of hired mercenaries whose existence has been permitted by the authorities; their members and their organizers have been killed in cold blood, but the public took no adequate steps to prevent these outrageous and un-American conditions.

"But the public, which had so effectively evaded and ignored its responsibilities, clamored for legislative and administrative relief the moment the miners went on strike.

"The public, in respect to its rights, is very much like many employers who are keenly conscious of their rights, but overlook or waive aside the reciprocal rights of their employes.

"The foundryman who expects the molders and coremakers to work for him with the spirit of good will must have indicated a spirit of fairness and good will towards his employes, for there are no rights enjoyed by men which do not carry with them equivalent obligations and responsibilities."

Mr. Wood Predicts

William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, predicts a drop in the price of men's clothing. He wants it understood that he means "clothing," and not "cloth." His concern manufactures cloth and the price of this commodity will not be lowered. He says the company's mills have been closed because of a lack of orders, and he can not say when they will be opened.

There was nothing in the interview to indicate that the workers are not producing enough, and that this is the cause for high prices. Now he blames the dealer. The dealer, of course, will blame the woolen trust.

The New York World makes this editorial comment on the statement by President Wood of the American Woolen Company that the price of clothing will be reduced, but that the price of cloth will not be reduced:

"Thick-headed consumers have supposed that the price of clothing bore some relation to the price of cloth. If they are not now convinced of their delusion it is not the fault of the president of the wool trust."

Railroads Now Favor Economy

Since railroad rates have been increased rail managers and financial oracles have changed their tune.

Before the advance the public was assured that higher rates were necessary to save the roads from the junk pile. In a public statement President Gompers declared that the solution was not in increased rates, but rather in a return to the

(Continued on Page 9.)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD.

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA.

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia.
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford St., Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg., Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward St., Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Bundaberg, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN.

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway St., Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM.

Internationale Seemansvereeniging, St. Pietersvliet 2.

GERMANY.

Internationale Transportarbeiter - Federation. Engelufer, 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE.

Federation National des Syndicats des Inscripts, Maritimes des France, 33 Rue Grange aux-Belles, Paris.
Federation Syndicale des Agents du Service General a Bord, 3 Rue Scudery, Havre.

NORWAY.

Nörsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads, 5, Kristiania.

SWEDEN.

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.

DENMARK.

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening Nyhavn 17, Kobenhavn.

HOLLAND.

Centrale Bond van Transportarbeiders, Hoofdbestuur, 's Gravendykwal 111 te Rotterdam.
Vakgroep Zeelieden, Pelikaanstraat 25, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA.

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY.

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN.

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY.

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA.

Federacion Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL.

Associacão de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barão de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregados em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro

SOUTH AFRICA.

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

Premier Lloyd George stated in the House of Commons that the Government was expecting much unemployment during the coming winter and was considering precautionary measures.

A strike of Montreal organized barbers followed the refusal of employers to accept a wage rate of $25 a week and 50 per cent. of earnings when they exceed $35 a week.

Steam engineers employed by the Dominion Power and Transmission Company have secured wage increases. The new rates range from 66 to 84 cents an hour for a 60-hour week, as against former ranges of 40 to 65 cents.

The Canadian Trades and Labor Congress will hold its annual convention in Windsor, Ontario, beginning Monday, September 13. The congress is a legislative body and is composed of trade unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Labor exchanges established by the British government is a source of complaint by the workers. It is stated that the men in charge of these exchanges, and who deal with workers seeking employment, have no grasp of industrial conditions nor sympathetic understanding of the men and women with whom they have to deal.

The Khilafat committee, chief organ of the radical workers in India, has sent out a manifesto urging a general strike and a boycott against Great Britain. The manifesto points out the great need of enlisting the peasants in the movement before there can be any hope of success—India being almost exclusively an agricultural country.

A conflict has arisen between the theatrical impresarios of Madrid and the members of the orchestras, actors and other employes of the theaters. The impresarios decline to recognize the theatrical employes' syndicate, of which nearly all those connected with the theaters are members. One theater has been without an orchestra for several nights. In the event that the managers maintain their determined attitude against the actors' syndicate, many theaters will be compelled to close and the coming season's success is menaced.

A widespread strike of railway workers on the Northwestern Railway has paralyzed traffic in Northern India. Approximately 20,000 men are out, including skilled and unskilled workers. Principal centers affected by the strike are: Karachi, Multan, Amritsar, Ferozepur, Ljudhiana, Wazaribad, Lyallpur, Lala Musa and Lahore. The general public is showing sympathy with the strikers, but big business interests such as the Timber Merchants' Association, a lumber trust of Ilelum and similar organizations, have requested the government to intervene. Strikers have shown their international vision by cabling to London, asking the support of the National Union of Railwaymen and requesting British railway workers to Parliament. The demands of strikers are as follows: 1. Recognition of their union. 2. Reinstatement of all men on strike in their original appointments. 3. Formation of conciliation boards. 4. Railway authorities to guarantee as a minimum an increase of 71 per cent in wages.

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS UNION — UNION STAMP — Factory
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

IS INDEPENDENCE YOUR GOAL?

If you spend less than you earn, and save the difference, you are on your way to independence.

WORK AND SAVE

must be part of the plan—safe investment another

INVEST YOUR SAVINGS
in
GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES

PRICES IN JUNE

Thrift Stamps at Twenty-five Cents

$ 5	Government Savings Stamps for.....	$ 4.17
$ 100	Treasury Savings Certificates for.....	83.40
$1000	Treasury Savings Certificates for.....	834.00

FOR SALE AT BANKS AND POST OFFICES

GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
SECOND FEDERAL RESERVE DISTRICT
120 Broadway - - - New York

INFORMATION WANTED

Will H. Peterson and G. Johnson, formerly winchmen of S. S. "Carmel" to communicate with J. T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 9.8.20

INFORMATION WANTED

A. Jacobsen, formerly winchman, Steamer "Phyllis." Please communicate with J. T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market Street, San Francisco. 8.18.20

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth
This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE
will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.
Send in your order today.
$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

Honolulu Letter List

Andersen, Aug.	Lambert, Ed.
Aho, Jack	Leison, William
Bergsen, Bert	Lemmel, H. C.
Bradley, Ed.	Mulligan, Ed.
Buck, Harry	Nystrom, Uno
Caldwell, John	Nystrom, Frank
Campbell, Ed.	Olsen, Olof A.
Clausen, J.	Olsen, Tom
Danielsen, Adolf	Obolin, Kris
Egenes, Nils	Pierson, A.
Ettersen, Ward	Porter, Jack E.
Elms, E. O.	Rier, Earl W.
Erikson, Hilmar	Sandel, F. S.
Fuller, G. E.	Solberg, B. P.
Harms, Ed.	Stewart, R. T.
Holm, J. H.	Vhatton, H. R.
Hendriksen, J.	Veneker, Chas.
Josephson, William	Walby, M.
Larsen, John	Wolters, Lloyd

INFORMATION WANTED

Members of crews of Barge "Ohio" and S. S. "Gulfcoast" will kindly communicate with this office regarding their salvage claims against the Standard Oil Barge No. 1 between Mobile and Port Arthur about May 18th. I represent a member of the crew and have already taken up the matter of a salvage award for him. Silas B. Axtell, New York, N. Y. 7-14-20

TO MY CLIENTS

Please look over our legal reports on file in every Union Hall on the coasts whenever you are in port. Notice of commencement of all actions, their appearance on the calendar for trial, trials, judgments and settlements effected are published in all cases whether for wages, salvage or personal injury. Law Office, Silas B Axtell, 9 State Street, New York.

Pacific Coast Marine

All traffic records since the opening of the Panama Canal were broken during August. Three hundred ships passed through the waterway, the tolls being $936,209.

The G. M. Standifer Construction Company of Portland, Ore., has been awarded a contract for the building of two 8800-ton oil tankers for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Work will begin on the vessels immediately, according to advices from Portland.

Seattle's water-borne commerce, domestic and foreign, totaled $399,346,761 in value the first seven months of the year, according to statistics made public by Port Warden Fred M. Lathe. Domestic imports aggregated $67,701,201 and domestic exports $46,818,439. Foreign imports totaled $187,586,733 and foreign exports $87,-140,388.

The Shipping Board has devised a scheme to distinguish a craft belonging to the American merchant marine, according to word from Washington. A shield bearing the stars and stripes will be placed on the bow of every Shipping Board vessel, to distinguish it from the crafts of other nations. More than 500 of these emblems have been ordered and will be supplied to each vessel as fast as they are turned out.

The Pacific-Caribbean-Gulf Steamship Line of San Francisco announced that it has established a new service from Elliott Bay and other Pacific Coast ports to the Caribbean sea, Cuba and New Orleans, with A. M. Gillespie, Inc., of Seattle as Puget Sound agents. Four ships each of 5000 deadweight tons or 4000 tons cargo capacity have been ordered into the new service. Two others will be added later.

California cargoes totaling 90,000 tons will be moved to the East Coast during the next few months by the Luckenbach Steamship lines, it is announced. In addition to their own steamers, the Luckenbachs have secured several Shipping Board craft. Two of these are the "Hannawa," recently turned out at the Union Iron Works, and the "Archer," which has been operating under the Pacific Mail flag.

Flying the French ensign, the first seen in San Francisco fluttering from the masthead of a French clipper ship since the outbreak of the war, was sighted during the week when the ship "Edouard Bureau" sailed through the Golden Gate. The vessel made the run from Marseilles in 152 days, via Balboa seventy-three days. The craft arrived here in ballast and has been chartered by Strauss & Company th carry grain from the Pacific to Europe.

All steamship companies operating lines from the Atlantic Coast to the Pacific Coast via the Panama Canal have decided to fall into line with the railroads in advancing their rates 33 1-3 per cent., and to make the advance effective on September 4, according to advices received from the East by General Freight Agent F. A. Hooper of the European Pacific line (Williams Dimond & Co.), San Francisco. As described by Hooper's advices, the new rates generally "are to be 85 per cent. of the transcontinental rail rates in effect prior to August 26, or before the railroads made their advance of 33 1-3 per cent."

The Shipping Board announces that it has entered into a contract with the Midwest Refining Company, under the terms of which the oil company is to deliver 3,421,875 barrels of Shipping Board specification fuel oil during the fifteen months commencing July 1, 1920 and ending October 1, 1921, at the rate of 7,500 barrels per day at San Francisco or San Pedro or San Luis, California, in exchange for which the Shipping Board is to deliver to the Midwest Refining Company 2,161,230 barrels of Wyoming crude oil derived from the Government's royalty oil in the State of Wyoming, which oil the Shipping Board has contracted to purchase from the Government at the current market price prevailing at the wells at the time the oil is delivered.

Fourteen wooden hulls, built during the war by the United States Shipping Board in the shipyards of the Portland district, are available for sale in the general campaign now being conducted by the Government to dispose of unfinished ships. Originally there were nineteen unfinished ships in Portland, but five have been sold. The hulls which have been disposed of include the "Acarmen," 3500 deadweight tons; the "Egeria," 3500 deadweight tons; the "Abantis," schooner, 3500 deadweight tons, and the "Meriden," steamer, 3500 deadweight tons. The "Acarmen" is to be converted bp her new owners into a barkentine. The "Egeria," purchased by H. W. Pennell and associates, is to be converted into a steam schooner. W. L. Haskins is the new owner of the "Abantis," and the "Abderia" and the Wilson Steamship Company has purchased the "Meriden."

Admiral Benson, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, has issued orders to district agents and other officials of the Board that no more vessels under the operation of the Shipping Board would be chartered for the export coal trade at the prevailing low rates. Shipping officials who have made inquiries have been informed that all charters must be approved by the chartering agent before they become operative. It is stated that the chartering agents will withhold the vessels at the present rates quoted, and that meanwhile vessels amounting to 1,200,000 deadweight tons will be diverted to other trades such as the movement of grain and cotton. In the event that there is not enough demand for the vessels in this service the steamers will be tied up. According to shippers not many of the vessels withheld from the coal-carrying trade will be tied up for long, as the movement of grain and cotton is constantly increasing.

Resolutions dealing with scientific exploration and recommending survey of the shore-line and coastal waters of the Pacific were adopted at the recent Pan-Pacific Conference of Scientists held in Honolulu according to E. A. Beales of the local weather bureau, who arrived from Honolulu during the week, and William Bowie of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. Bowie passed through San Francisco on the way to his post in Washington, D. C. The seventy scientists in attendance, who represented the United States, Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, Canada, Japan, Australia and New Zealand, discussed problems in anthropology, botany, zoology, geology, oceanography, surveying and mapping. It was said at the conference that maps of the survey of the shore line and coastal waters, physical oceanography and magnetic survey of the Pacific would have "great economic value to the shipping, fisheries and other marine interests," and that the cost of the surveys for the collection of data is relatively insignificant. Authorities stated that the great loss involved through wreckage owing to the incompleteness of charts would be abolished if this coast survey were made.

Details were received recently stating that on August 17, last, the palatial liner "Empress of Canada" was launched in the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company at Govan. The vessel was built under contract for the Canadian Pacific Ocean Service, Limited. The vessel was especially built for the trans-Pacific service running from British Columbia to the Orient. The "Empress of Canada" has an overall length of 653 feet, 77 feet in width and 53 feet in depth to the bridge deck; she has a straight stem and a cruiser stern, three funnels and two-pole masts. A feature of the craft is her promenade and boat decks, the former extending the full length of the vessel. The "Empress of Canada" has a tonnage of about 22,000 tons and has accommodations to carry 490 first cabin passengers, 106 second, 238 third and will be manned by a crew of 547 men. The speed of the vessel will be 21 knots and when placed in operation will be the finest passenger vessel afloat on the Pacific. The vessel is installed with telephones connecting with a central exchange, a passenger elevator and a large swimming pool. Throughout the vessel special attention is everywhere given to the fact that the "Empress of Canada" is to serve in a semi-tropical climate.

The Java-Pacific steamer "Arakan," which ran ashore in a thick fog off Point Reyes just north of San Francisco, on Aug. 29, was floated on Sept. 1 after three days of unrelaxing labor on the part of her crew, a flotilla of wrecking craft and several hundred men. Slightly leaking, where her hull buckled under the stokehold, and with crippled engines the steamer slowly made port under tow. Small craft and an army of men from miles along the coast swooped down upon the jettisoned cargo in such numbers that the ship's agents sent a hurry call to Marin county authorities to rush men to protect the jetsam. Contrary to expectations of the crew and marine underwriters, most of the $1 000 000 cargo of tea, rubber, sugar and copra, aboard the "Arakan," was saved. Early in the day on Sept. 1 it was decided to jettison the entire cargo and confine all efforts to saving the ship, in itself representing an investment of $1,000 000. Stevedores who were hurried to the stranded vessel from San Francisco threw overboard 700 tons of copra cake, the least valuable of the cargo. A portion of this is expected to be salvaged. Extreme difficulty was experienced by the wrecking ship "Homer" and smaller tugs in their attempts to get lines aboard the ship. A strong southeast gale enhanced the hazards, and troubles were overcome only at the cost of smashing a launch from the "Homer." The final and successful attempt to save the "Arakan" was made at high tide shortly before noon. The lines from the tugs tautened in one mighty effort, and, straining and trembling, the huge ship floated out into deeper water.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco. Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
802-804 South Broadway Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
206 Moravian Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....H. COOK, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF
Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
New York Branch.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RODEN, Agent
433 Court Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....DAVID COOK, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
132 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....W. ROSSI, Agent
49 Market Street
Sub Agencies:
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....MORRIS KRAIN, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....CHAS SULLIVAN, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC
Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION
H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....816 River Street

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION
D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal
Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER..... Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office. Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1920.

THE JOURNAL'S BIRTHDAY

With this issue the JOURNAL enters upon the thirty-fourth year of its existence.

Measured by the life of stars, thirty-three years is but a flash—a mere twinkling of the eye. But in the life of man and in the life of a newspaper, that length of time is in most instances more than sufficient to denote success or failure.

Has the JOURNAL been a success?

The answer to this question is best supplied by the records. Anyone sufficiently interested can go through the files of the JOURNAL and then make a mental comparison with publications issued avowedly as purely commercial ventures for individual profit.

The JOURNAL was never meant to be a commercial venture. Yet it has paid more handsome profits to the men who own it than the best paying periodical in all the world. It has paid dividends and brought returns far beyond the hopes and dreams of its founders.

Higher wages, shorter hours, better living and working conditions aboard ships, are just a few of the tangible returns. In a large measure they have been made possible through the general and systematic dissemination of useful knowledge among seamen. But the public, too, has had its education through the publication of plain facts regarding that poetic "life on the ocean wave" which has never been as pictured.

As the direct sequence of it all has come the remodeling of the American maritime law and the general elevation of the craft to a higher level.

In its thirty-three years of existence the [illegible] has [illegible] a single issue. Hard times or good times, the message of hope and cheer to the seafaring people has gone forth every week—fifty-two times a year.

Truly, it is a proud record, for as far as known the JOURNAL was the first newspaper published exclusively in behalf of those who live upon the waters, part of the globe. To-day fully a dozen publications in nearly as many maritime nations are devoted to the cause in which the American seamen's paper blazed the way. All are doing great work. And what is better still, right now there is more team work, more pulling together to advance the cause of those who earn their livelihood upon the waters, than at any time in the history of seamen's unionism.

Therefore, the JOURNAL deems this birthday a particularly happy one and looks forward into the ever uncertain future with perhaps greater confidence than has been voiced at any time in its long and eventful career.

THE DELEGATES' REPORT

The report of the delegates who represented the organized seamen of America at important conferences in Europe is published in this issue and speaks for itself.

It is not an easy task to present an editorial summary of the lengthy report because each point dealt with at the different conferences in Europe is more or less complicated and easily subject to misunderstanding unless exhaustively reviewed. An effort will be made to do this in succeeding issues of the JOURNAL.

The outstanding feature of the Genoa conference, held under the auspices of the League of Nations, is the "progressive" attitude toward some of the principal points in the much-maligned La Follette Seamen's Act. Poor old Captain Dollar, and others of that type, who have never been quite happy since that great charter of freedom was enacted now find themselves totally isolated. For several of the alleged "impossible theories" in the La Follette Act have been pronounced "O. K." in a conference composed of official representatives from the maritime nations of the world. Moreover, the seamen of America who had inspired all the commotion over the right to quit, etc., were not represented at all in that meeting. At least not "officially."

Even more gratifying is the subsequent unanimous endorsement of the American proposals submitted for consideration to the conference of the International Seafarers' Federation.

The organized merchant seamen of the world are now on record, formally, officially and, as stated, unanimously for these basic principles:

1. The repeal of all laws under which seamen are or may be arrested and imprisoned for violation of the shipping articles when a vessel is in a safe harbor.

2. The abrogation of all treaties under which seamen are arrested, detained and surrendered back to the vessel from which they have deserted.

3. To place seamen upon the same level with shipowners, i. e., to make the violation of a contract to labor a civil instead of a criminal offense; and

4. To at all times exempt the Seamen's clothes from attachment by the vessel or the master.

With both conferences on record upon these vital points—and on record in language that can scarcely be misunderstood, the seamen of America have scored a distinct and clear-cut victory. No one conversant with general conditions had expected such a decision so soon. But since it has been made a unanimous vote, so far as the seamen are concerned, there is every reason for all around congratulation.

It is to be regretted that the Genoa conference acted decidedly unprogressive on other important questions.

On the proposals to reduce the hours of labor, the meeting adopted a "recommendation" dealing only with the hours of labor in inland navigation to the effect that those nations which have not yet provided by legislation for an eight-hour day and a forty-eight hour week, should do so at the earliest opportunity. Dealing with the hours of labor at sea the meeting drafted, but failed to adopt a "draft convention" because the two-thirds majority necessary to adopt were not obtained.

Naturally this attitude of the conference has aroused a great deal of bitterness among the seamen of Europe who had expected much in this regard. Voicing this dissatisfaction, the official paper of the British Seamen's Union, speaking for some 125,000 merchant seamen, says in its current issue:

> There were present at the conference two Government delegates from Siam. We are not aware of the extent of the mercantile marine of that country, but we have an ill-defined impression that it is not much more important than that of Switzerland. Anyhow, there were no representatives present either of the shipowners or the seamen of Siam. Yet these two Siamese Government delegates voted solemnly and solidly with the British Government representatives all the way through. If Siam could have been eliminated from the conference there would have been two votes less against the forty-eight-hour week and we should have had the necessary two-thirds in favor instead of the fractional majority against.

The foregoing is merely a paragraph from considerable spicy comment on that subject. But it will suffice to show that Siam furnished the votes to shelf the forty-eight hour week for the world's merchant seamen.

On at least two other matters acted upon by the Genoa conference, there is cause for serious apprehension on the part of seamen. To be sure America is not a member of the League of Nations, and therefore free to act as it chooses. Nevertheless, there is ground for alarm. And this alarm was voiced by the Brussels Seafarers' Federation meeting through the unanimous adoption of a resolution protesting against the "draft convention" relating to employment agencies.

The other question acted upon at Genoa which is likely to prove very objectionable are the steps taken to pay unemployment benefit to seamen.

Andrew Furuseth, in particular, has expressed grave fears that the two last-named proposals instead of being helpful and advantageous to seamen, are likely to have the very opposite effect. Furuseth fears that men who know exactly what they are about have laid the ground work for new chains to be securely fastened to all merchant seamen when ashore. The chains in question will be the rules and regulations which are to govern seamen under the brand new beneficiary schemes launched at the Genoa conference under the League of Nations auspices.

That Furuseth's apprehensions in this respect are largely justified by events of the past, goes without saying.

Fortunately, the seamen of the world, in and out of the League of Nations are acting, and in a large measure, thinking together over these very problems. Therein lies the hope and, it may be said, the guarantee that nothing will be put over in inner councils of statesmen or politicians to take from the seamen one single right or advantage won through years of collective effort.

The seamen of the world are determined to move forward—not backward. This steady onward move will be made with the sanction of the League of Nations, if possible. But, if necessary, progress can, will, and must be made without such sanction. Yes, even in the face of opposition.

CALIFORNIA'S PROBLEM

It is a shame that California politicians continue to exploit the Japanese problem for the purpose of lining up the votes—for themselves.

Just as long as this is the case folks in other parts of America are skeptical. They want to be shown by others than mere politicians. And that is truly unfortunate for California, because the State has a real, serious problem on its hands.

Board of Health statistics recently published show that the total number of white births in California in 1919 was 51,316. Of births other than white there were 5,205, and of that number 4,458 were Japanese, and the balance, 747, divided among all the other races represented, Chinese, negroes, Indians, etc. That is to say, among the races other than white in California the Japanese are furnishing six times as many births as all the others combined!

In 1908, after adoption of the gentlemen's agreement, the Japanese births numbered 455. Their annual births have multiplied since then tenfold, and still steadily increase.

Does that furnish food for reflection to Americans who realize the danger from an overwhelming flood of a non-assimilable race, superior in economic competition?

The JOURNAL regrets to report the death of Mrs. Thomas A. Hanson, the wife of Comrade Hanson, Secretary-Treasurer of the International Seamen's Union of America. Mrs. Hanson died at the family home, in Chicago, on August 24, after a brief illness. She leaves behind a sorrowful husband and four disconsolate daughters. To all of these the JOURNAL, on behalf of the seamen of America, extends heartfelt sympathy—

To die is landing on some silent shore,
Where billows never break nor tempests roar,
Ere well we feel the friendly stroke 'tis o'er.

It is a genuine pleasure to note that candidate Harding is not on the fence as far as the La Follette Seamen's Act is concerned. In an Associated Press dispatch, dated September 1, the Republican candidate for a four-year berth in the White House is quoted as saying that he thinks "the La Follette Seamen's Act represents the conscience of America." Good enough, Mr. Harding. Both of the old political parties are in agreement upon that issue. So there is no need for further comment. All is well that ends well!

Organized labor too often commits the common error of neglecting its friends in order the more sedulously to cultivate its enemies.

THE TEST OF LABOR'S STRENGTH

Gems of Truth and Wisdom from the Pen of Walter Macarthur, Former Editor of The Journal

Walter Macarthur, United States Shipping Commissioner of San Francisco, and for many years editor of The Seamen's Journal, is the author of a splendid Labor Day sermon, published in "Organized Labor" of San Francisco, from which the following paragraphs have been selected:

The labor movement is the expression and embodiment of the human impulse toward a higher plane of life, a manifestation of that "intelligent discontent" which is said to be the mother of progress. Consequently, the labor movement registers in its history the force of the impulse to which it owes its existence, progressing or declining in proportion as that impulse is strong or weak.

Considering the world events of the past few years, we should expect to find the labor movement of to-day in a position of greater power and potency than ever before. Judging by external appearances alone, this is exactly what we do find.

The membership of the American Federation of Labor has increased threefold during the last ten years. During last year the increase of membership was 872,672, making a total of 4,078,740. These figures, of course, are exclusive of the large numbers of organized workers as yet unaffiliated with the Federation.

So far, then, as numerical strength may be taken as a criterion, the labor movement of to-day measures up to the needs of the times and to its responsibilities as a factor in the life of the Nation.

It goes without saying, however, that mere numbers do not imply a corresponding degree of strength. On the contrary, a great increase of numbers may involve an actual loss of strength, by weakening the bond that unites the whole membership. All depends upon circumstances.

A body composed of four million trade-unionists—that is, of men and women who are grounded in the principles of trade-unionism and who recognize the limitations as well as the powers of the trade-union—may be regarded as invulnerable. On the other hand, a body the members of which are held together by mere instinct—the gregarious instinct, so to speak—but who are lacking in true conception and clear understanding of the purposes and methods of the trade-union, is predestined to failure, and the larger the body the more certain and disastrous the failure.

During a period of normal growth in the labor movement the work of education keeps pace with the increase of members. The judgment and experience of the older members predominates over the enthusiasm of the novitiates. By a process of action and reaction a balance is maintained between the cautious and the venturesome, with the former ever in control.

As a result of the rapid growth of the labor movement during the past few years the balance between caution and enthusiasm has been disturbed. Some recently organized unions seem to be actuated by enthusiasm rather than by judgment, and even the oldest trade-unions are not immune from the spirit of unrest and adventure.

These manifestations of impatience and daring, of a willingness, if not determination, to unduly enlarge the activities of trade-unionism, to divert that institution to objects that lie beyond its proper sphere, constitute a menace to the stability of the labor movement.

The real strength of the labor movement consists in its devotion to certain clearly defined objects. The proof of its strength consists in its ability to adhere to these objects and to withstand pressure from within its own ranks designed to force it into the pursuit of other objects.

In some cases the test will be severe, but it can be met with absolute confidence in the outcome, provided the character of the trade-union be understood and accepted for what it is, instead of being misunderstood for something entirely different.

The trade-union, as a body of working men or women, united for the purpose of regulating the conditions of employment in the trade, is the strongest medium for such purpose. Such a body combines all the elements of cohesion, namely, common understanding of conditions, common agreement as to methods, and mutual confidence in the plan of action. Thus formed and conducted, the trade-union is capable of achieving material results.

To the extent that the activities of the labor movement shall be limited to reform in the conditions of labor, that movement will succeed in the future as in the past. To the extent that the labor movement shall be diverted to other objects, no matter how worthy or urgent in themselves, that movement will fail.

With a clear conception of the nature and functions of labor organization, and with unwavering fidelity to purpose, the labor movement may face the future with perfect confidence in its own stability. The rapid increase of membership that marks the present period of our history is to be welcomed, in the assurance that growth in numbers is accompanied by a proportionate growth of understanding and true comradeship in the common cause.

OFFICIAL.

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 7, 1920.
A synopsis of the meeting of the above date will be published in the next issue.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.
Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium.

P. B. GILL, Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects fair.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping fair; members scarce.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Aug. 23, 1920.
Shipping and prospects fair.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 26, 1920.
Shipping fair.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Aug. 19, 1920.
Shipping fair.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 514. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Aug. 19, 1920.
No meeting. Scarcity of members.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

Work of outfitting the tug "Sea Monarch" will be completed within sixty days, according to J. D. De Brettiville of San Francisco.

Stanley Dollar of San Francisco has purchased the Monarch Lumber Mills, located on the Columbia River, for a figure in excess of $1,000,000, L. W. David, owner, announced at Portland, Or. The mills have a capacity of 250,000 feet a day.

The snagboat "Bear," now under construction at the Schulz yards in South City for the United States Engineering Reclamation Service for operation on the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, will be ready for her engine installation shortly, according to De Brettiville.

At high water in the morning of Sept. 2 the tug "Sea Scout," last of the four tugs building for the Red Stack Tug Boat Company, slid from the ways at the Frank Stone yards in Oakland. The vessel was towed to China Basin to have her engines and other equipment installed by the Main Iron Works.

Radio inspectors of the Department of Commerce, stationed at San Francisco, have been unable to locate the wireless operator who insisted on testing his apparatus while the steamship "Arakan" was trying to send out an S. O. S. call. The testing was heard at the Department's office in the Custom House, but there was no clew to the operator.

United States Lighthouse Inspector H. W. Rhodes arrived at San Pedro during the week and announced that Frank Vanderlip had tendered a deed for the land to be used for a lighthouse at Point Vicente. The price is said to have been nominal. This is the land over which there was an uproar when the owners, several years ago, asked what the Government declared was an exorbitant price.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

A TRAITOR TRAPPED

Excerpts from the Minutes of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf Headquarters, 12 South Street, New York City, Aug. 4, 1920.

New Business—President stated that ex-member C. H. Thompson, who has been for some time engaged in an attempt to get control of this Union and its finances, has been caught with the goods. The following affidavits and a confession by Thompson after he saw he was trapped, will be self-explanatory:

State of New York,
County of New York—ss.

Irving Weiss, being duly sworn, deposes and says. That he resides at No. 262 South 4th Street, Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York; that on or about the 15th day of June, 1920, he was called on at his said home by one Constantine Hector Thompson, where the said Thompson made a proposition with deponent to help send Henry P. Griffin and W. L. Cartledge, the President and Secretary-Treasurer, respectively, of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf, to jail in which event said Thompson would get control of the said Association and promised deponent a position in the Association besides a certain sum of money. After considering the matter deponent decided to inform said Griffin and Cartledge of the unscrupulous methods and unlawful acts of said Thompson to send them to jail. That after informing said Griffin and Cartledge of the methods of Thompson, they instructed me to keep in with said Thompson and give him rope enough and he would hang himself. On the thirty-first day of July last past and at my house said Thompson tried to induce some men to go to court and make a false accusation against said Griffin and Cartledge, of getting money from them for the job and giving them no receipt for the same and keeping the money for their own use. Deponent said this matter had gone far enough, and there being in the adjoining room a man from a Detective Agency and two officers of the Union who overheard the attempt of Thompson to get these men in the dining room to swear falsely against Griffin and Cartledge.

Deponent asked the officers of the Union if said Thompson should be arrested there and then and that said Thompson pleaded for mercy and said he would make a written statement confessing the whole plot and Mr. Donals took down his statement and Thompson signed the same.

IRVING WEISS.

Sworn to before me this 2nd day of August, 1920.

GUS P. MACIAS,
Notary Public,
New York County, No. 12.

City of New York,
County of Kings—ss.

Marty Fern, Benjamin Miller, Wm. Kalison, Michael Yoches, all being residents in the County of Kings, each for himself being duly sworn deposes and says, that all of them were in the premises at 262 South Fourth Street, in the residence of Irving Weiss, on the 31st day of July, 1920, when one Constantine Hector Thompson came into the said residence and in the presence of all of the above deponents offered each of them a sum of money to falsely swear that they had paid $5.00 to one Griffin, the President, and W. L. Cartledge, Secretary of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, in cash for the purpose of securing a job on a steamship and the said Constantine Hector Thompson asked all of the deponents herein to perjure themselves and swear out a warrant for the arrest of the two men, namely Henry P. Griffin and W. L. Cartledge, and if they, the said deponents will succeed in getting the said two officials arrested, he the said Constantine Hector Thompson, will pay to the said deponents to each of them the sum of money they may name.

Deponent saith for himself and says that they refused to accept any money from the said Constantine Hector Thompson on the ground that they knew the request by the said Thompson [illegible] deponents for making the affidavit for the purpose of getting the matter clear in the event that the said Constantine Hector Thompson would have obtained such illegal affidavit of somebody who was willing to perjure himself for the money received.

MARTY FERN,
343 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn.
[illegible]
148 So. 4th St., Brooklyn.
WILLIAM KALISON,
116 So. 1st St. Brooklyn.
[illegible]
217 So. 3d St., Brooklyn.

Sworn to before me this [illegible] day of August, 1920.

[illegible]
Notary Public,
Kings Co. 77.

State of New York,
County of New York—ss.

Ralph J. Donals, John J. Kelly and John J. Lamport, being duly and severally sworn, depose and say: That at the request of H. P. Griffin, President of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf, they went to 262 South Fourth Street, Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, the residence of Irving Weiss, to listen to a conversation that was to take place there. Weiss secreted deponents with one Morris in a bed room adjoining the dining room and the transom being open and the door slightly ajar deponents recognized Constantine Hector Thompson when he arrived in the dining room and notes were made of the following conversation:

On July 31, 1920, when said Thompson came into the room with six men and said Thompson said: "What I want you men to do. Did any of you men work around the first of the month? The men answered no. Then said Thompson said Mr. Griffin had expelled him from the Union, but the members are all willing to admit him but Mr. Griffin said to throw me out. Now in order for us to win we have got to prove that Griffin took graft from you men. Three of you men I want to swear that Griffin took money from you and to swear that on some date around the first of the month you three men went to Mr. Finnett's office and that you did not know how to go about it to get a job and you asked some of the men around there and they told you that you would have to go to No. 12 South Street and join the Union and I want you to say that when you went over there to the Union that Griffin and Cartledge were there and they took Five Dollars apiece from each of you men and when you asked for a receipt you were told by Griffin that when you make a trip and come back and pay the balance you would get the Union book, and then you men are to say that you could not get a job and were told you would have to hang around about two weeks. And when you went back to the Union office to get your money you were told to get out, that you would not get the money. If I get this sworn statement that Griffin took the money I will sue Griffin and then you men are to say that you met Mr. Thompson and were advised by him to go to court and get a summons for the one who took the money and get a warrant for Griffin and Cartledge.

You will not get money just now, but we are sure to win. I mean I have not got money now but we will get money if we win and you will be well taken care of."

At this point Weiss threw open the door saying this thing has gone far enough. Deponents then stepped into the dining room and Weiss asked Kelly and Lamport if said Thompson should not be arrested there and then.

Said Thompson pleaded for mercy and stated "that he would make a written confession" which he did and said confession was taken down in writing by Ralph J. Donals and was signed by said Thompson and three witnesses.

R. J. DONALS.
JOHN J. KELLY.
JNO. J. LAMPORT.

Sworn to before me this 2nd day of August, 1920.

GUS. P. MACIAS,
Notary Public, No. 12,
New York County.

July 31, 1920.

I, Mr. Charles Constantine Hector Thompson, hereby certify that the following statement is the truth, and hereon to that effect sign my name.

The statements I issued about the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf and the officials of this Association was untruthful and financed by a certain few individuals who led me to believe that I was to make a certain sum of money.

I hereby certify that the untruths were told about the purchase of a house and that all statements made by me detrimental to the Association and its officers was a false fabrication.

CONSTANTINE HECTOR THOMPSON.

I hereby sign my name.

Witness: Jno. Lamport,
Stenographer R. J. Donals,
Marty Fern.

We have two more affidavits of a similar kind at Headquarters.

Thompson was admitted to the meeting and apologized to the officers and members for his unworthy conduct, admitted that the facts as above were true and pleaded that he now knows that he was a tool and begged to be reinstated. He was asked to sign a written statement just the same as he was making verbally, but refused, saying that he was advised to sign nothing. There being a supreme quorum present, his request for re-admittance to the Union was put to the vote. The vote resulted as follows: None in favor of re-admittance to membership; 160 opposed.

Moved and seconded that the Executive Board be instructed to summons before a regular meeting, Thompson's colleagues. Carried unanimously.

Good and welfare was discussed by members and officers and on motion, meeting adjourned at 1:10 p. m. 225 members present at close.

Respectfully submitted.

W. L. CARTLEDGE,
Secretary-Treasurer.

The foregoing affidavits and declaration are faithfully reprinted from the minutes of the regular meeting of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf, held at Headquarters, No. 12 South Street, New York, August 4, 1920.

The purport of the documents is obvious and their language self-explanatory. We therefore respectfully commend their text to the earnest perusal and sincere consideration of every Union seaman in the United States.

The aim and object of Thompson was obviously and unquestionably inspired by a lingering desire for revenge, and was the culmination of a low-lived plot, formulated in a diseased and treacherous mind, to expel, disgrace and imprison Mr. Harry P. Griffin, president and founder of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, on perjured testimony, and then get control of the Association and its resources for his own aggrandizement.

Back of all this commotion appear certain facts which may be cited to clear away some of the smoke thereby engendered.

"Thompson" of the many titles is a mysterious and unnaturalized alien, although he has resided in the United States for many years. The surname under which he navigates is also suspected as an alien.

He is likewise a cripple, wearing a leg the carpenter made. For this reason he always considers himself privileged to do and say things an able-bodied man with a complete set of original spars would not dare even to think of. The worst criminals always adopt the commonest names, and "Thompson" is one of those in English; and the most hopeless cripples are often the boldest malefactors because of their presumed immunity from man-handling.

"Judas" Thompson was for some time a member of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association. Having thus wiggled himself into recognition as a bona fide member of an honorable and reputable division of the International Seamen's Union of America, he proceeded to use it forthwith as a foundation for the fulmination of his own diabolical scheme to destroy the organization by poisoning the minds of loyal but thoughtless members against their chosen leaders.

There has been a Judas Iscariot, a Brutus or a Benedict Arnold in every great movement among human kind, and there always will be until the end of time.

Old Iscariot was the prince and daddy of them all, but he at least had the decency, when the enormity of his offense had been revealed to him, to go out and hang himself.

Some of the other cowardly wretches have waited for their swindled or deceived victims and comrades to rise up in righteous indignation and hang them. But this cowardly and depraved villain, after being detected and fully exposed, confesses his guilt and then, pleading penitence like a miserable craven, has the monumental nerve to ask for reinstatement in the organization he had sought to destroy, and at the hands of the very men he had sought to ruin.

We did not happen to be present at the meeting when the vote was taken on Thompson's reinstatement, but judging from the record, the members present must have had in mind the fable of the serpent which the kind-hearted farmer brought home to his fireside among his children on a cold night to let the poor thing warm itself.

Exit Thompson. Now what was his motive? What was the underlying impulse which inspired and animated him throughout all his devilish plots?

In his single confession Thompson alleges that he himself had been made the pliant tool of certain conspirators who had led him to believe that by carrying out their wishes he was to "make a certain sum of money."

The only confederate Thompson ever had in these mischievous proceedings were the devil and "Tom Pepper." The devil tempts all men, but an idle man tempts the devil. Thompson was weary of work and was fishing for suckers.

One day some time ago he went up to the hall of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, bringing with him a quantity of brass and tinsel jewelry—brass watches, copper rings, glass diamonds, fire-gilt chains, earrings, etc.—which he spread out in glittering array upon a reading table.

When a crowd had gathered around to discuss this fascinating cheap Jack layout, the wily imposter produced a simple pocket edition of a peculiar gambling outfit, probably of his own devilish contrivance, and inducted them into a new game of gambler keeps all.

Meanwhile a few observant old-timers, witnessing his designing scheme, promptly carried the tidings of his presence and doings into the office. Whereupon Comrade G. H. Brown, business agent, and a couple of husky delegates promptly bore down on Mr. Thompson and hustled him unceremoniously into the street, heaving his Jerry junk and paraphernalia after him.

Comrade Brown then wrote a letter to Comrade W. L. Cartledge, Secretary of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, informing him of what had occurred and reminding him that the hall of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association was not a gambling resort.

Upon receiving Comrade Brown's letter Mr. Cartledge called Thompson into his private office, and after reading the letter to him demanded to know what he meant by attempting to make a gambling hell of the Sailors' Hall.

"Oh," exclaimed the cornered rat, "them damn Dutchmen up there are all grafters!"

That was a-plenty for the irate secretary and he promptly ejected the wily weasel with more force than piety, bum leg and all.

At the next meeting Mr. Cartledge preferred formal charges against Monsieur Thompson, and he was fined by the Union and ordered to apologize to the offended officers.

This he subsequently did and was reinstated with the result described.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

genius of railroading. The oracles and wise men laughed at the trade unionist.

Rates were increased and now the public is told that the railroads will order new equipment sparingly and that every attention will be paid to repairing worn cars and locomotives, to scientific car loading and to speeding up the movement of freight cars that now average less than one hour a mile during the year.

Equipment will not be purchased, it is stated, because of foreign competition which increases prices.

The public is urged to be patient if service is not forthcoming as a result of a billion and a half rate raise.

In short, the railroads will return to "the genius of railroading."

Mexican Laborers

Agitation by Arizona trade unionists has resulted in improved working conditions for Mexican laborers employed in the Salt river valley cotton fields, following an investigation by a commission composed of State officials, Mexican officials and trade unionists. The commission sustains the organized workers by recommending that wages and working conditions of the Mexicans be improved.

The objectionable policy of the cotton growers was defended by special interests in this State, who saw in the wholesale importation of laborers an opportunity to crowd the cities with workers who would accept lower living standards.

Officers of the Arizona State Federation of Labor are now investigating the claim that frequent deportations are taking place. The Mexican workers charge that those being deported are invariably men who have taken an active part in organizing workers in the Salt river valley district.

"This condition," says the Arizona Labor Journal, "is creating an ugly spirit among the men and if not discontinued may result seriously.

"If the officers and members of the Arizona Cotton Growers' Association will get closer to their employes and treat them more like human beings than beasts of burden, they will soon find a more contented and better working force of men and the cotton industry will not be injured. Conferences and adjustments of the many grievances which have been ignored all along with a raise of wages, will accomplish all of this and more."

U. S. Needs Houses

Approximately 25,000,000 persons in this country are now living in temporary, crowded and sometimes unsanitary quarters, according to officials of the United States Housing Corporation.

"The nation is short more than 5,000,000 dwellings and apartments," said one official. "All hopes of improvement must be deferred until next spring. Building now has virtually stopped. It will take the country five years to catch up. The housing situation now is more acute than it was at the close of the war, when virtually all building had been halted for years."

Want Compensation Bill

The annual convention of the North Carolina State Federation of Labor instructed the legislative committee to prepare a new compensation bill. The present law has a "contributory negligence" clause, which permits employers to take many cases to the courts.

There were more than 400 delegates present and the convention was declared to be the most successful in the history of the North Carolina movement. President Moody and Secretary Worley were re-elected, and High Point was chosen as the next convention city.

Co-Ops. Prosper

The report of the Central States Wholesale Co-operative Society for the first six months of this year shows sales totaled $1,068,636.25. The co-ops. paid a 5 per cent. dividend or returned savings of $2,450 to the original plan Rochdale stores that traded with them.

During the last six months the society has bought its own building, which is also used for office headquarters. They have four floors, side tracks, etc., and are equipped to expand business to two or three million dollars a month, which is predicted within the next year.

The union label protects the trade union against attack by constituting the purchaser the real employer.

Labor's Economic Platform

Following is the Economic Platform adopted by the American Federation of Labor:

1. The abolition of all forms of involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime.
2. Free schools, free text books and compulsory education.
3. Unrelenting protest against the issuance and abuse of injunction process in labor disputes.
4. A work day of not more than eight hours in the twenty-four hour day.
5. A strict recognition of not over eight hours per day on all Federal, State or municipal work, and not less than the prevailing per diem wage rate of the class of employment in the vicinity where the work is performed.
6. Release from employment one day in seven.
7. The abolition of the contract system on public work.
8. The municipal ownership of public utilities.
9. The abolition of the sweat-shop system.
10. Sanitary inspection of factory, workshop, mine and home.
11. Liability of employers for injury to body or loss of life.
12. The nationalization of telegraph and telephone.
13. The passage of anti-child labor laws in States where they do not exist and rigid defense of them where they have been enacted into law.
14. Woman suffrage co-equal with man suffrage.
15. Suitable and plentiful playgrounds for children in all cities.
16. The Initiative and Referendum and the Imperative Mandate and Right of Recall.
17. Continued agitation for the public bath system in all cities.
18. Qualification in permits to build of all cities and towns, that there shall be bathrooms and bathroom attachments in all houses or compartments used for habitation.
19. We favor a system of finance whereby money shall be issued exclusively by the Government, with such regulations and restrictions as will protect it from manipulation by the banking interests for their own private gain.

WORLD'S SEAMEN IN CONFERENCE

(Continued from Page 2.)

dress briefly reviewed the work of the Federation. He referred to the unsuccessful strikes in Holland and Denmark and analyzed the reasons for their failure. President Wilson replied to certain criticism of the Federation and its executive officers for alleged shortcomings in supporting the above mentioned strikes. This originated a discussion but in the end the President's address was adopted with scarcely a dissenting vote.

Secretary Damm's financial report together with a summary of the last Secretariat meeting, as well as certain recommendations to the convention were available in type-written form, as follows:

Report of Secretary Damm.

"To the convention of the International Seafarers' Federation:

"At the Secretariat meeting at Antwerp, January 23rd, it was decided that inquiry should be made into the position of the seamen's organizations in Holland. Consequently the President, myself and one of the members of the Secretariat, Mr. E. Cathery, General Secretary of the N. S. and F. U. of Great Britain and Ireland, proceeded to Rotterdam. The Officials of the Dutch Seamen's Union Eendracht, at once placed all their books at our disposal, but the officials of the other Unions were not quite as willing. We made very exhaustive inquiries and came to the conclusion that there was no reason why the Union Eendracht should not be affiliated, which they have done to the extent of 4,000 members.

"On February 14th, 1920, the agreement between the Dutch shipowners and seamen terminated, and the seamen together with the dockers came out on strike. Of this I notified all affiliated Unions in previous reports.

"Hardly had the Dutch seamen lost their strike, before the Cooks, Stewards, Sailors and Firemen in Denmark were led into a strike, which was doomed to fail before it ever started—first of all because the strike was illegal, the agreement entered into on June 1st, 1919, not having terminated, and secondly because there exists in Denmark a Trades Disputes Court, which, at any time can make it illegal to strike. The Owners availed themselves of this Court as soon as the seamen had declared their determination to obtain better conditions, and the Court imposed a fine on the three Unions of one million kroner, which was more than the funds held by the Unions. As soon as I got knowledge of this strike, I at once appealed to the different Unions for help for our Danish comrades, and from the International Seamen's Union of America, I obtained permission to send $500. The Belgian Seamen's Union granted 10,000 francs, and the N. S. and F. U. of Great Britain granted them £1,000. The Unions in Sweden and Norway have also made grants of large sums of money—I do not know how much, as the Unions in Sweden and Norway sent their contributions direct to Denmark and not through the Federation. But whatever money that would have been sent would have been of very little value as the Owners had been able to obtain all the necessary labor from Germany and from all parts of Denmark. blackleg organizations, called National Help Associations, had been started everywhere. up. The shipowners' clerical staffs together University men, and people of all classes went on board ships where navigating and engineering officers assisted them to carry out the work so that the export trade could be kept up. The shipowners clerical staffs together with all kinds of people loaded and discharged the ships and consequently the strike caused very little inconvenience. Had the leaders of the Unions in Denmark notified the Federation as soon as the strike broke out, there may have been some hope of stopping some of the ships manned by blacklegs from loading or discharging in foreign ports, but as three or four weeks had been allowed to pass before notifying us, nothing could be done in foreign countries. All this resulted in the men being compelled to return back to work without having gained anything, in fact much was lost, such as the three shifts on deck which was [illegible] further refused to negotiate with the men or to establish a new agreement. On receipt of a telegram from Denmark I proceeded there, and, together with Mr. Furuseth of the American Seamen's Union, had several conferences, first with the Union officials, and later with the Owners. And before I left Copenhagen, I was given to understand that negotiations would be started at once.

I have been away from Antwerp a lot during the seven months since the Secretariat Meeting. I have attended several meetings and deputations in England, visited Holland several times, both before and during the strike, and as you know at each conference was left at Genoa went to the conference called by the League of Nations. It may be said that the seamen did not obtain much of value at the last mentioned conference, but I am of the opinion that the conference helped all seamen to see the necessity of combining in a strong Seafarers' Federation. Inquiries have been received from Finland, Spain, Greece, Argentine, Cheko-Slovakia, Canada, and Japan, and although there are some leaders of Seamen's Unions who would advocate that the Seafarers' Federation should become part and parcel of the International Transport Workers' Federation, I have no hesitation in saying that the International Seafarers' Federation has a larger number of seamen now than were ever in the old Transport Workers' Federation. It has been stated by some of the leaders of the Transport Workers' Federation that they would not recognize the Seafarers' Federation. I trust a day may come when the two Federations may be able to dork in harmony for the benefit of their members, but I shall always maintain that seamen must be allowed to mind their own business. No workingman on shore is able to manage seamen's affairs.

"It has been suggested to me that in future a monthly report should be sent out to all Unions affiliated. I hope this suggestion will meet with the approval of all delegates and that the conference will provide for the necessary staff so that all information of importance can be sent out at once.

"Owing to my frequent absence from Antwerp and shortage of staff, it has been impossible for me to have the accounts ahdited by a chartered accountant. I am, therefore, only able to render to you a summary financial statement. Same will, however, be duly audited as soon as this conference is over and will be forwarded to you.

"Faithfully yours,

"C. DAMM.

"Brussels, August 9, 1920."

Secretary's Financial Report
For six months, ending December 31, 1919.

Income

	£. s. d.
Balance on hand last Acct	638- 4- 4.
United Kingdom Pilots' Assn	13-15- 0.
Belgian Seamen's Union	31- 0- 0.
Hull Seamen's Union	12- 0- 0.
Nat. Sailors' and Firemen's Union of Gt. Britain	541-13- 4.
Nat. Union of Cooks, Stewards, Gt. Britain	83- 6- 8.
Swedish Firemen's Union	12-10- 0.
Bergen Stewards' Union	2- 1- 8.
Swedish Stewards' Union	5-16- 8.
Sailors' Union, Denmark	25- 0- 0.
Firemen's Union, Denmark	16-13- 4.
Sailors' Union, Sweden	29- 3- 4.
Norwegian Sailors and Firemen's Union	46- 7- 4.
Inter. Seamen's Union of America	416-13- 4.
Danish Cooks and Stewards	9- 0- 0.
Gibraltar Officers and Seamen	6- 5- 0.
	1,889-10- 0.

Expenditure

	£. s. d.
Postage, Telegrams, Telephone	41-12- 7.
Printing, Stationery	288- 4- 0.
Passport Expenses	11-13- 6.
Fares, Secretary and family	134-12- 8.
Hotel Expenses	183-16- 0.
Moving Expenses, Secretary and family	64-18- 0.
Office Furniture	68- 5- 0.
Auditor's Fee (last account)	4- 4- 0.
Organizing Expenses with foreign ships, London	16- 0- 0.
Clerk's Salary	42-10- 0.
Office Rent	26- 0- 0.
Secretary's Salary, six months	250- 0- 0.
Loss on Exchange	39- 4- 3.
Balance in Bank	718-10- 0.
	1,889-10- 0.

Financial Report
For six months ending June 30, 1920.

Income

	£. s. d.
Balance on hand last Acct	718-10- 0.
United Kingdom Pilots' Assn	9- 3- 4.
Hull Seamen's Union	12- 0- 0.
Nat. Sailors' and Firemen's Union of Gt. Britain	541-13- 4.
Nat. Union of Cooks, Stewards, Gt. Britain	83- 6- 8.
Inter. Seamen's Union of America	416-13- 4.
Belgian Seamen's Union	52- 3- 4.
Seafarers' Fed., Italy	83- 6- 8.
Dutch Seamen's Union, Eendracht	50- 0- 0.
Swedish Seamen's Union	25- 0- 0.
Swedish Firemen's Union	20-16- 8.
Norwegian Sailors' and Firemen's Union	40- 0- 0.
Bergen Stewards' Union	2- 1- 8.
	2,054-15- 0.

Expenditure

	£. s. d.
Postage, Telegrams, Telephone	66- 6- 7.
Passport Expenses	7-18- 0.
Fares for Secretary	61- 8- 0.
Hotel Expenses	106- 0- 0.
Printing, Stationery	41- 9- 6.
Office Furniture	92-10- 0.
Meeting Expenses	1,105 16 7.
Rent	26- 0- 0.
Clerk's Salary	91- 0- 0.
Secretary's Salary, six months	250- 0- 0.
Loss on Exchange	74-11- 4.
Balance in Bank	131-15- 0.
	2,054-15- 0.

Outstanding

France, Seafarers' Federation, 2 half years	167- 0- 0.
Danish Firemen's Union, last half year	16-13- 4.
Danish Seamen's Union, last half year	25- 0- 0.
Danish Cooks and Stewards, last half year	9- 0- 0.
	217-13- 4.

Secretary Damm's report was adopted and the financial statement referred to the certified accountants and auditors who have regularly examined the financial affairs of the Federation.

Various affiliated organizations had submitted proposals for discussion in writing. These had been typewritten and copies of the entire agenda were before each delegate at the convention.

The Shorter Workday.

First on the list was the question of establishing an international eight-hour workday, or rather the 48-hour week, upon which the Genoa conference under the auspices of the League of Nations had failed to reach an agreement.

After a very lengthy debate the following resolution (introduced by the delegates from Belgium) was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved: That steps be taken immediately for an international agitation to force the various Governments to grant our demands by legislation; and an international campaign be started at once with the object of establishing internationally a 48-hour week at sea and a 44-hour week in port."

Immediately following the adoption of the foregoing resolution the delegates from France introduced a more detailed course of action upon the same subject. A rough translation of the French proposal follows:

"Whereas: The peace conference has adopted a working day of eight hours and a working week of forty-eight hours as an ideal to be attained, and

"Whereas: The labor conference held at Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the League of Nations, has declared that the principle of the eight-hour day and the forty-eight-hour week should be applied to the seamen of nations that are members of the League of Nations, and

"Whereas: This point of view has been contested by the shipowners at the Genoa conference, such shipowners maintaining that the seamen alone should be outside this social reform; therefore, be it

"Resolved: By the International Seafarers' Federation in convention assembled at Brussels, Belgium, that we adopt the Belgian resolution (quoted above) and decide:

"1. To name a delegation with the mandate to call upon the director of the International Labor Office and demand that he organize an arbitration between the shipowners and seamen;

"2. In case such arbitration should not take place the International Seafarers' Federation is to organize an international manifestation by declaring a strike of 48 hours in all ports;

"3. If, following this first movement, the shipowners and governments still remain obstinate a strike committee, selected by this conference, shall meet in order to fix the date of a strike without limitation and to make all arrangements necessary to carry the strike to a successful conclusion."

This resolution was adopted without opposition, except that the American delegates, having no authority to commit their Union to a general strike, refrained from voting.

Delegate Lundgren, representing the Swedish Firemen, thereupon introduced still another resolution on the establishment of the forty-eight-hour week, as follows:

"Resolved: That the President and Secretary of the International Seafarers' Federation notify all seafarers' organizations, who took part in the Genoa conference, of the decision arrived at here with a view of getting them to adopt the policy of the Federation so that shortly after the next Secretariat meeting the necessary steps can be taken to enforce our demands in such countries where the matter has not been settled by legislative enactments."

The Swedish resolution was also adopted and Secretary Damm, together with delegates Rivelli (France) and Chambers (Great Britain) were elected as the committee to call upon the director of the International Labor Office, as provided in the French resolution. It was also decided that the members of the Secretariat should constitute the strike committee if it should become necessary to resort to a general strike.

The American Proposals.

The American delegates had placed five points on the agenda. Four of these points dealt with well known and related subjects. To quote from the agenda:

"1. A request to the separate nations to repeal all laws under which seamen are or may be arrested and imprisoned for violation of the shipping articles when a vessel is in a safe harbor.

"2. The abrogation of all treaties under which seamen are arrested, detained and surrendered back to the vessel from which they have deserted.

"3. That the seaman shall be placed upon the same level with the shipowner, i. e., that violation of a contract to labor shall be a civil in lieu of a criminal offense.

"4. That the seaman's clothes shall at all times be exempt from attachment by the vessel or the master."

These four points were considered jointly and adopted without a dissenting vote. By their adoption the merchant seamen of the world have formally and officially placed themselves on record for the basic principles contained in the American Seamen's Act. The seamen of Italy and Japan, who were unfortunately not represented at the Brussels conference, had already placed themselves on record for the American proposals at the Open Seafarers' Conference held during June, in Genoa, Italy. Thus the principal object of the American delegates' journey to Europe has been accomplished.

Transfer of Membership.

The fifth point placed on the agenda at the instance of the American delegates dealt with the interchange of membership cards between the different organizations affiliated with the Seafarers' Federation. After discussion it was agreed "that a member of any affiliated union joining a vessel of another nationaliy, oher than that of the union of which he is a member, he should be permitted to sail for three months, or one voyage if longer than three months, without being compelled to transfer. At the end of three months or at the end of the voyage, such member be requested to transfer, but without payment of entrance fee. All contributions due to be the property of the union to which he is ransferred.

The question of an international standard rate of wages was discussed at some length. Owing to the constant change in the rate of exchange between the different countries it has become exceedingly difficult to make true and correct comparisons between rates of wages paid in the various countries of Europe. Thus, if the wages of all the seafarers in Europe were placed on the same level today there would probably be a material difference tomorrow because of the ever-changing exchange value of each country's unit of money.

It was finally decided to refer the question of an international standard rate of wages to the Secretariat with the understanding that the highest rate paid in Europe be the standard rate.

"Draft Convention" on Employment.

On this subject Delegate Furuseth introduced the following resolution:

"Whereas, The 'draft convention' about employment of seamen prohibits employment of seamen except (a) through an office maintained jointly by shipowners and seamen with an independent chairman, or (b) through an office under the sole control of the nation's government; any violation to be punished for imprisonment; and

"Whereas, There is nothing to hinder the shipowners from establishing offices to find men for their vessels; and

"Whereas, This 'draft convention' is very dangerous to the seamen and their organizations because the latter will in all probability be classified as illegal employment agencies; therefore be it

"Resolved, That this conference of the International Seafarers' Federation protest against said 'draft convention' and pray that it be rejected by the separate nations."

The Furuseth resolution was adopted unanimously.

Opposition to War.

The delegates from France, Belgium and Holland introduced the following resolution:

"Whereas, The people and not the governments always have borne the brunt and burden of wars; and

"Whereas, The seamen, among the workers, are the most exposed to the perils of war; and

"Whereas, More than anyone else in the world, they hate armed conflicts and have the indomitable will to prevent in the future the recurrence of frightful human slaughter;

"And now, expressing its international solidarity with workingmen and confronted with the renewed threats of war now striking humanity, the International Congress of Seamen, meeting in Brussels, therefore declares, following the stand of the Congress of Miners, which met in Geneva, that a general strike shall be ordered in case of any new attempt to begin war; and further

"Resolved, To emphasize the importance of this declaration, to refuse immediately to allow the transportation of soldiers and of war ammunition to the countries at war with each other at the present time."

The resolution was adopted.

The question of admitting the newly organized German Seamen's Union to the International Seafarers' Federation was discussed and incidentally the entire situation in Germany, so far as the seamen are concerned, came up for review.

It was finally decided to reject the application for affiliation made by the new German Seamen's Union and instead urge the two unions to get together in one organization and then apply for affiliation with the International Seafarers' Federation.

Amendments to Constitution

Having in mind recent events in Europe, the conference amended the constitution of the Federation by the adoption of the following resolution:

"Resolved, That any organization affiliated with the Federation, which without consultation and agreement with the other affiliated organizations, begins a strike, shall have no claim to assistance from the Federation."

Since there was no end of trouble about credentials of delegates, the following was added to the constitution:

"Resolved, That no person or representative shall be seated with voice and vote in the meetings of the Federation unless he has credentials properly issued by his organization.

"No proxies shall be permitted."

The constitution was also changed as regards the number of men who compose the Secretariat (Executive Committee). Formerly each affiliated organization was entitled to one representative on the Secretariat. Under the amended constitution only one delegate from each country will be seated in the Secretariat. In a country where there is more than one Seamen's Union affiliated with the Seafarers' Federation the organizations concerned will have to agree upon a joint representative.

The question of affiliation with the International Transport Workers' Federation was discussed and it was finally agreed to refer that matter to the Secretariat.

The resolution favoring compulsory pilotage, as passed at the London conference a year ago, was reaffirmed.

A number of proposals from the Seamen's Union of Holland relating to accommodations aboard ship and the safety, health and comfort of the crew were approved.

President Havelock Wilson and Secretary-Treasurer Chris. Damm were unanimously re-elected to their respective offices.

Geneva, Switzerland, was elected as the next convention city—to take place in August, 1922. The reason Geneva was selected is because there is the headquarters of the International Labor Office, organized under the terms of peace treaty and the League of Nations.

Upon adjournment of the Brussels conference your delegates returned to America without delay. While waiting for the sailing date of the "Olympic," which brought us back to New York, we were taken to the magnificent Convalescent Home for Seamen recently opened at Limpsfield under the auspices of the National Sailors' and Firemen's Union of Great Britain and Ireland. For the opportunity of inspecting this splendid, living and serviceable monument to merchant seamen, and for many other courtesies and acts of kindness, we are greatly indebted to the executive officers of the British Seamen's Union.

In concluding, we desire to express our appreciation for the great honor conferred upon us in being chosen to officially represent the organized seamen of America at these international conferences of merchant seamen.

The unanimous endorsement finally given by the regularly elected representatives of the world's merchant seamen to the American seamen's proposals, as set forth in this report, will without doubt hasten the coming of the day when the great fundamental principles of the La Follette Seamen's Act will be written in the codes of every maritime nation on earth.

Fraternally,
ANDREW FURUSETH,
OSCAR CARLSON,
PAUL SCHARRENBERG.

Dated, New York, August 25, 1920.

SUB-CONSCIOUS

It is often interesting to see how professional high authority explains ordinary human acts. For instance, Prof. Gilbert Murray of Oxford, addressing a London audience, said that he took the use of bad language to be due to a slight nervous convulsion, momentarily destroying self-control and releasing sub-conscious interests which are normally suppressed.

According to the Federal Bureau of Education, high schools of this country will be short 20,000 teachers when the fall term opens. Salaries below the bread line is the cause. Organization will be the remedy.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175

BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588

CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842

MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street

TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666

SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue

CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer

Branches:

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W

SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131

CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666

TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823

CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866

MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543

CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary

Branches:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street

Branches:

VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214

SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street

Agencies:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street

Branches:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG .....Alaska
UNGA .....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205

STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

B. C. COAST STEWARDS

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....347 Pender Street W.

Labor News

The Oregon conciliation board, acting as arbitrators, have reaffirmed a wage award that employing barbers asked them to review. The award raises rates to $28 a week. Where journeymen's receipts are in excess of $40 a week they shall be paid 60 per cent. of same.

Profits of United States Rubber Company for the first six months of this year were $2,559,690 larger than during the same period in 1919. Net sales were $129,588,986 in the last six months, an increase of more than $30,000,000 over the corresponding period last year.

Higher wages and improved working conditions for members of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union are reported by officers of that organization. These gains are not localized, but extend to every section of this country and Canada.

Warning to all members of organized labor, and all citizens generally, to register according to local laws is being sent broadcast by the executive committee of the A. F. of L. national non-partisan political campaign committee. It is urged that all voters at once ascertain the registration requirements in their districts or States and comply fully in order that all may be qualified to vote.

Census of the least populous county in the country, Cochrane, Tex., was announced recently. It has just 67 people, two more than enumerated ten years ago, making its growth more than 3 per cent. Cook county, Ill., including Chicago, probably is the most populous county. Its population is expected to exceed 3,000,000. Cochrane has an area of 869 square miles, with one person to approximately every thirteen square miles. The county is located in northwestern Texas. It is unorganized and has not even a postoffice.

The Michigan Workmen's Payment Act of 1913 has been declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court. The act required certain corporations to make final settlement with every discharged employe on or before the next regular pay day following his discharge or pay to the employe an amount equal to his original wages with an additional 10 per cent. for each day's wages after the regular pay day. In reversing a lower court the Supreme Court said the law is "class legislation of the most objectionable kind" because it only applies to certain corporations. The penalty clause, the court avers, is "confiscatory and unreasonable."

Reorganization of the Immigration Bureau was ordered by Assistant Secretary Post of the Labor Department, following an investigation said to have disclosed conditions indicating "utter disorganization" of the service. The shake-up, it was said at the Department, included not only the office of Commissioner General Cammetti, but also the coastal stations and the field service. Labor Department officials said the conditions which led to the investigation were of long standing. The situation was called to the attention of Cabinet by Secretary Wilson and the solicitor of the Labor Department, before whom had been presented instances which they believed proved the disorganized state of the immigration service.

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson. Jack
Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Bergiund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liiquest, Rudolf
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Nellson, O.
Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Richardson, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Rubr, Hans
Sale, John
Saund, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Stekman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Heritz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplorc, J
Prinz, Carl
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M van
Smith, C. J
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L.
Sohnn, M.
Sorens, S
Sobel, R
Steendoch, J
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M.
Svenson, Thure
Sverdrup, Walter
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash, Letter List

Anderson, Fred
Anderson, John (registered)
Anderson, E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Brandt, H.
Berke, C.
Barton, M.
Brun, Mattias
Bedford, A.
Bradsbery, Geo.
Carlson, Oscar
Forsman, Niels
Hansen, Johan G.
Hansen, H. O.
Hanson, Halvor
Halvorsen, Halvor
Halvorsen, Hans
Janson, John
Johanesen, Alf.
Johnson, Karl
Johannesen, Jonas
Johanson, Emil
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Kinnunnen, Ant.
Olsen, Alf
Petersen, Hans
Roneld, P.
Randmets, Mike
Risenius, Sven
Saro, W. R.
Smith, Carl Johan
Toren, Gustaf
Tourela, Erick
Vejvorda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Andersen, Oscar
Anderson, Hilding
A. L. N.
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Carlson, Gust
de Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob
Erickson, John
Groth, J.
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Hakanson, Ingvar
Isakson, Erick
Jacobsen, Jack
Johansen, F. C.
Johansen, Karl W.
Johnson, John
Karlson, George
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Leskinen, Fred
Levele, Ed.
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lauren, William
Lund, Frank
McNeill, Daniel
Ross
Moxnes, Chris.
Mikelsen, P.
Newton, A. B.
Olofson, Charles
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olsen, George
Peterson, Frank
Rasmussen, Peter
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Witt.
Svenson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Wamsa, August
Peter
Registered Letters
Cranzzi, Rosolino
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rasmussen, P.
Smith, R.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of John B. Isaacs will please notify Chas. F. Bullock, Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, 321 Twentieth street, Galveston, Texas. Matter of great importance. 3-31-20

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R.	$22.50
Eugene, John	22.50
Makinen, K.	22.50
Mattson, Geo. J.	22.50
Rehnstrom, A.	26.25
Sjoholm, J. W.	22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Rudolf Knutsson is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of his brother, J. Harvid Knutsson, a native of Trellerborg, Sweden, age 20, last heard from in New York in April, 1918. Please address his brother, care Sailors' Union of the Pacific, 59 Clay street, San Francisco, Calif. 1-7-20

Albert Nord, a native of Sweden, is inquired for by his brother, David Nord, General Postoffice, Brisbane, Australia. 5-19-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

INFORMATION WANTED

Any one knowing the whereabouts of Karl Reese, age 30, last heard of in Iquique, Chile, October, 1916, bark Herbert," will please notify George Zimera, Sailors' Union, P. O. Box 65, Seattle, Wash. 1-21-20

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Cronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgall, Mikel
Person, Fritz.
Leonard
Rahlhard, H
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

Portland, Or., Letter List

Ahren, Wm.
Andersen, A. C.
Andersson, Axel
Andersson, Carl
Anderson, A. B.
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Anderson, Gunnar
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakaihn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsic, Karl
Bach, Soren
Backman, Peter
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Gust
Bohm, Franz
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Davison, Jim
Diez, H.
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. E.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Enberg, Einar
Fogelberry, Harry
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gilkison, A. F.
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Gronbeck, H.
Gruber, J.
Halley, W.
Hanson, August
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Hoiland, E. A.
Heino, Gust
Henrikson, Geo.
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Irmey, Feodor
Jacobs, Fulton
Jernberg, Alfred
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Jones, E. L.
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kauko, Axel
Kelly, Norman
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Krause, Frank
Kristiansen, Wm. A.
Laine, A. A
Laine, John
Larsen, Hans
Larsson, Ragnar
Larson, C. J. -1632
Leisig, John
Lindner, John P.
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank E.
Malkoff, Peter
Matson, R. M.
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLeod, Angus
McLean, M. R.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Moyer, Geo. E.
Neilsen, H. J.
Nelson, Nels
Nelsson, C.
Neuling, G. A.
Nilsen, Christ
Norberg, John E.
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peterson, Mauritz
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Preston, E.
Pyne, J. W.
Raanes, Johan
Rader, Allen
Rautio, Jack
Reiman, Tovo H.
Rier, Earl W.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Saine, Arthur A.
Salonen, Victor
Salin, Toivo H.
Sandvik, S. G.
Scott, M.
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sutse, Michel
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Thomson, Henry
Thorsen, Chas.
Tinstrom, A. R.
Tuhkanen, John J.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wikstrom, Carl
Willis, Samuel
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Frsd L.
Worn, Otje

San Pedro Letter List

Aho, Jack
Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, C.
Andersen, C.
Anderson, Sven
Arentsen, John
Arnesen, Isak
Aspe, Theodor
Belmont, Joe
Bentley, Clifford
Bengtsson, Sigfried
Bergeson, B.
Berglund, Emil J.
Bergstrom, J
Brast, Sjomans
Braden, W. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Brown, Irving W.
Bye, Kristian
Burge, Larence
Cage, Tom
Carlsson, Chas.
Carlera, Peter
Carr, R. W.
Craig, Thomas
Cowan, Wm. L.
Church, C. E.
Davis, Orville
Daw, Walter
Deaver Alvin
Desmond,, Albin
Doty, Erwin
Daunt, C.
Dreger, Jack
Dragich, Peter
Drennan, W. N.
Eliasen, John
Ek, William
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Evensen, Alex
Farrell, H. D.
Feeder, Geo.
Fickle Omer
Fottinger, Karl A.
Folvik, Ludvig
Forde, Alfred
Frair, Enoch
Freiberg, P.
Franzell, A. H.
Freitag, F.
Gayton, H. L.
Grasseen, Ike
Gronthal, Arthur
Golden, Roy
Gunnerud, Ulrik
Hansen, Olaf
Hellsten, G.
Hermanson, Carl
Holland, Jonnie
Hermanson, Carl
Hey, Ben.
Hickey, John
Hogstedt, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Hurley, Michael
Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Jacobsen, Tom
Janofy, Axel
Jensen, Marius
Jensen, Kristian
Jeeden, George
Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Johansen, Johan W.
Johansen, Carl
Johansen, J. -1432
Johnson, Georg
Johansen, J. -2314
Johnson, P. -2313
Johnson, Waldron
Jonassen, Johannes
Keel, Jewell
Kelty, Peter
Kenrich, Richard
Ketelsen, Freak.
Keegan, J.
Klieman, Otto
Klementsen, Alf
Kootz, Fred
Knudsen, Andrew
Kruse, Henry
Kristoffersen, Hans
Laine, John
Landborg, Chas.
Larsen, Johan -1542
Lauritzen, Ole
Levine, Carl
Lindholm, Chas.
Lill, Karl
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lowrey, John R.
Lodersen, John
Lorgeman, Fred
Lobeles, Jose
Lund, F. V. -2010
Lucander, Hjalmar
Maahs, Willy
Magnussen, John
Martinson, J. -1147
Mato, Alexander
McNeill, John
McGhee, E. J
McRae, Jack

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

Books for You While at Sea

ADVENTURE — SEAMANSHIP
ROMANCE—HISTORY—TRAVEL
SCIENCE—GREAT MEN'S LIVES

Books to Help You Spend Idle Hours in a Pleasant and Worth While Way

For a Free Crew's Library Exchangeable at Any Time

Apply to

American Library Association

34 Sacramento Street San Francisco

Phone Sutter 6985

Or to other A. L. A. Agencies in Almost Any American Port

These books are provided free for your use by the people of the United States through the American Library Association.

When you have finished with them, they may be exchanged for another collection at any office of the American Library Association, or they may be exchanged for any A. L. A. collection on board another boat.

In fairness to the men on the next ship receiving this collection you should take reasonable care to prevent loss or damage to any book.

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO

Mize, J. H.
Mehrtens, Carl
Moor, Peter
Monson, Edvin
Moritz, W.
Murphy, Francis J.
Nauta, H.
Nankinen, Fred
Nelson, Ernest
Nelson, Charlie
Nelson, Gus
Nilsson, Edward
Ogren, Victor E.
Olofsen, O. A.
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Harold
Olsson, Otto
Pett, Dick
Petersen, Hugo
Peterson, August
Raaum, Harry
Rasmussen, Swend
Roberts, Bob
Roberts, J. W.
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred C.
Rod, Halfdan
Rossdam, Harry
Rohman, Pete
Runge, R.
Rueter, Amandus
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Sanders, Chas.
Sandberg, N. A.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Salin, Henry
Schladen, H.
Scalparry, Jacob
Schaumberg, W.
Scottol, Andrew
Scrivers, W.
Seland, Hans
Smith, Carl Johan
Soder, Paul
Strehle, F.
Strauss, Walter
Steen, Ivar
Stensland, Paul
Strom, Oscar
Stenberg, Alfred
Sterndock, John
Steffensen, Hans
Sundquist, Walter
Sunde, O.
Sullivan, Jack
Swindells, William
Swanson, Mr.
Swanson, Eric K.
Thomsen, Thomas
Treiberg, Peter
Veckenstedt, W.
Viscarra, Oscar
Voth, Gus
Wennerquist, Anton
Wilhelmson, Karl
Winkelman, Otto
Wilson, John
Woods, Claude F.
Wrobluvski, Paul
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

Packages

Hansen, Oscar W.
Nahinen, Fred
Roberson, Ole
Erickson, E. R.
Nanhinen, Fred.
Peters, J. M.
Pinnington, H. D.
Young, William
Zoerb, Walter

INFORMATION WANTED

The Centrale Bond Van Transportarbeiders have placed in my hands claim of the father and mother of L. Verhoef, seaman who met his death on the S. S. "Balosaro" April 29, 1920. An old spring line broke, curled around Verhoef's left leg and yanked him on to the winch while he was operating it. Before it could be stopped his leg was taken off. He died two hours later at the hospital. Will members of the crew please report here promptly. The master has made an entry in the log book to the effect that the deceased met with his death through intoxication, which statement we believe to be utterly false. I am acting for the dependent relatives. It is the duty of seamen to tell the truth Your dependents may be in the same position some day.—S. B. Axtell.

8-25-20

Home News

Captain W. W. Gilmer, naval Governor of Guam, who recently issued an order making whistling on the island punishable by a $5 fine, has been relieved and Captain John C. Wettengel appointed. Secretary Daniels said the whistling order had no bearing on the action taken.

"The famine price of white paper" has forced the American Red Cross to discontinue publication of the Red Cross Magazine. "Further publication would involve either considerable increase in the subscription price or a subsidy from the general funds of the society, which deems either course inexpedient." The October number will be the last.

A sharp drop in wool consumption, amounting to approximate 17,000,000 pounds in June, as compared with the average consumption for the preceding months of this year, was announced by the Department of Agriculture's bureau of markets. The drop was due, the bureau said, to the curtailment of operations in the textile manufacturing industry, resulting from lack of orders, cancellations and deferred shipments.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics has announced the death at Big Laurel, Madison County, N. C., of Miss Dorcas Griffin, aged 117. She was born on March 20, 1803, according to the family Bible record.

A nation-wide drive to round up draft deserters will be inaugurated by the War Department within the next few weeks with the publication of a slacker list containing, according to the present records, 173,911 names.

More than 5000 immigrants are arriving daily at Ellis Island, the Department of Labor announced. Despite unfavorable conditions, approximately 800,000 immigrants arrived during the twelve months ended June 30, as compared with 141,132 during the corresponding period the year before, and the record of 1,285,389 in 1907. Foreign steamships have reported all available accommodations for a year in advance have been booked.

Development work is being pushed steadily on at the Wilshire gold mine, Bishop, Cal., with the purpose of furnishing the mill a steady supply of ore at the rate of 150 tons a day by October 1. At present sixty men are employed. Ore development is reported by President Gaylord Wilshire to continue favorable. with a continuous ore body on second level, 420 feet long by 15 feet wide, with ore in both faces. Gold values average about $11 to the ton.

Wholesale prices of commodities declined approximately 2½ per cent. during July, according to a report by the Department of Labor. The decrease in clothing and clothing materials was the most notable shown in the department list of index numbers, amounting to 5½ per cent., while foodstuffs declined 4 per cent. and farm products 2.9 per cent. At this point, the department reported, prices were still above levels of July, 1919, food articles having increased during the year 24.1 per cent., clothes and clothing 12.4 per cent. and fuel and lighting 47.4 per cent. Fuel and lighting materials increased by 2 1-3 per cent. during July, 1920, making their current level the more disproportionate to other commodities.

Domestic and Naval

Japanese ship owners told the United States Shipping Board representative in a conference at Kobe that the Japanese would accept the proposal to raise freight rates to the American level.

The American four-masted schooner "Mary E. Palmer" is reported in a dispatch from Casa Blanca, Marocco, to have run aground on the African coast. All members of the crew are said to be safe. The "Mary E. Palmer" sailed from Galveston May 26 for Tunis. The vessel is of 1377 tons.

The following ocean-going vessels entered the port of Montevideo during May, according to the port statistics: British, 90; Italian, 25; American, 18; Norwegian, 14; French, 13; Brazilian, 12; Spanish, 7; Japanese, 5; Dutch, 4; German, 4; Uruguayan, 3; Belgian, 3; all others, 27. This made a total of 225 vessels for this port, excluding river boats plying between Montevideo and adjacent cities.

Agitation for a line of French steam packets connecting South Africa with Marseille and other European ports is making great headway, according to a dispatch from the "Cape Argus," South Africa. M. Jore, French consul to South Africa, strongly advocates such a scheme, and states that it would open up commerce with the rich unexploited regions of Africa to such an extent that Marseille could undoubtedly regain the mercantile supremacy it lost to Hamburg through the aggressive German merchant marine system.

During the first five months of 1920 there were entered at the port of Nantes 329 vessels engaged in the foreign trade, of which 15 were sailing vessels and 314 steamers. Of the 15 sailing vessels, 12 were of French nationality, 2 Norwegian and 1 American. Of the 314 steamers, 85 were French, 84 British, 65 Norwegian, 14 interallied, 12 Danish, 9 Greek, 8 Belgian, 7 American, 7 Swedish, 6 Dutch, 4 Spanish, 5 Brazilian, 3 Rumanian, 3 Russian, 1 Chilean and 1 Japanese. The 329 vessels entered discharged at Nantes 731,473 tons of cargo, of which 198,734 tons were brought in British vessels, 190,290 tons in French vessels, 142,606 tons in Norwegian, 29,673 tons in Brazilian, 28,676 tons in Danish, 27,914 tons in Greek, 27,738 tons in interallied and 16,939 tons in American vessels.

Recommendations have been made to the Government by a specially appointed commission relative to improving the harbor and docks at Kingston, Jamaica. The proposed improvements would include dredging a channel 500 feet wide to depth of 40 feet below mean of ordinary spring tides, suitably buoyed from the existing ship channel near Fort Augusta to Pier No. 1; lengthening Pier No. 1 by 300 feet and widening the west side to give access for locomotives and railway wagons to the new pier head and driving steel sheet piling alongside the pier to permit dredging; and erecting a new transit shed. It is estimated that this work will cost $630,000, divided as follows: New channel, $110,000; lengthening Pier No. 1, $140,000; widening Pier No. 1 and putting down sheet piling, $60,000; new transit shed, [illegible]

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manager, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Adolfsson, John
Allison. Beniamin
Almon, L.
Altonen, Carl
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Andersen, N. F.
Andersen, S. P.
Andreasen, H. - 1477
Andersen, H.
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Anderson, Frank
Anderson, Ingmar
Anderson, Johan
Andersson, C. -2001
Andersson, C. J. -2185
Andersson, G. A.
Andersson, G. S.
Anderson, John
Anderson, Julius
Andersson, O. L. -1363
Andersson, C. B. -797
Arneson, Aug.
Aso, Gustav
Attaberry, Clarence
Augustin, H.
Aylward, Ja

Backe, C. V.
Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Bandel, Curt
Bang, Oscar
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Behni, W. A.
Bendixen, Hans
Bergstrom, G. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Bews, James
Bjorklund, Gotfrid
Blair, Frances
Block, Paul
Blomgren, C. A.
Blomgreen, A.
Bloom, Pete
Boerner, P. F.
Borgeson, Hilding
Botsford, R. D.
Boyland, O. J.
Bratt, A. W.
Brander, Wm.
Brauner, C. A.
Broman, Karl
Broomhead, R.
Broshear, A. O.
Brown, H. W.
Bryning, Wm.
Bryning, Walter
Buckner, Chas. W.
Burgraff, Alb.
Burke, Gunnar

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, August
Carlson, Gustaf
Carlson, John
Carlson, Axel
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Magnus P.
Carlson, O. -1839
Carlson, Peter
Carlsson, J.
Carlsson, John -861
Carpenter, Harold
Cavanaugh, H. E.
Chaplin, Eddie J.
Chillott, Geo.
Christensen, C. D. -1042
Christian, Jim
Christen, Bruno
Christensen, Jorgen -1731
Christensen, Martin
Clarke, Matthew
Clausen, Louis
Clever, Hugo
Clug, Fredrick
Cook, Ralph H.
Coleman, J.
Conley, Irwin
Cooper, C. E.
Cordsen, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dahlgren, Wm. A.
Davis. Warren
DeGuire, Ray
DeMario, Thos.
Demorest, C. E.
Delaney, G.
Dell, E. O.
DeMar, Tho.
Dietz, Arnold
Dittman, Rudolf
Domke, Willi
Donnelly, George F.
Drange, F. S.
Drennen, W. N.
Dommelen, G. J.
Dreyer, Jack O.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Dumas, C.
Dunwoody, G.
Dushane, Matt

Eaton, Lawrence
Eckleberry, H.
Eide, B.
Eide, W.
Ekeland, I.
Eklof
Ellingsen, Harold
Ellis, F. L.
Endemann, M.
Ennus, Pito
Erlandson, K. B.
Even, Frank
Evensen, Andrew

Fagerberg, Ivan
Fagerly, O.
Farevoog, C. M.
Farrell, Bernand
Fellman, Geo. E.
Fick, Max
Fjellman, George
Fletcher, Jos.
Freese, Paul
Fredricksen, O.
Fredricksson, F. O.
Frost, Peter
Fuller, Geo. E.

Ganser, Joe
Gardell, Joe
Gardes, F. J.
Germenis, Socrates
Gonzales, O. J.
Graham, Ray
Grainge, Arnold
Graham, Thos.
Grady, Will. A.
Granberg, Fred
Gregory, M. N.
Green, Lawrence
Griffin, J. R.
Grinfelt, Geo.
Gullaksen, Hans
Gunderson, H. T.
Gutmann, Paul C.
M. -1123

Hagemeyer, Gus
Hagen, Horace
Halder, Henry
Hale, Kingsley
Hallit, Frank
Halvorson, Erling
Halvorsen, Isak
Hammond, Robert
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, Antonius
Hansen, Hans M.
Hansen, H. O.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Knud
Hansen, Harold
Hansen, S. P.
Hansen Carl
Hanschman, Wm.
Hanson, Olaf
Harbst, J. D.
Hartwig, Walter
Harris, T. L.
Harvey, Earl S.
Haunt, C.
Hein, M.
Hess, C. L.
Hels, J. S.
Heblal, Trygve
Helden, H. van
Hessin, B.
Heaps, James
Herold, J. M.
Hellikson, H.
Heyen, Horace
Heywood, D. L.
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hobbs, Frank M.
Hoffman, Ferdinand
Hoglander, Martin
Homminell, Geo.
Hollkamp, C.
Holbrook, G. A.
Holdaway, C. G.
Hood, Alex
Huberts, Emil
Huter, Chas.
Huber, C. L. -2846
Hunter, Ernest
Huggins, P. A.
Hughs, Tom

Ibsen, Christian
Ireland, H.
Isakson, Karl

Jacklin, Charles
Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jacobsen, Herman
Jahnke, Paul
Jahnke, Richard
Jakullis, John
Jansson, A. L.
Jansson, Fred.
Janson, John A.
Jansson, Hj.
Jansson, John
Jarvinen, Johan
Jenni, Jack A.
Jens, Otto
Jensen, E. -1987
Jensen, Chas. Chr.
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jensen, A. J. -2708
Jensen, Pete
Jespersen, M.
Jewell, Al. M.
Johannsen, Carsten
Johansen, Eilert
Johansen, F. -880
Johannesen, Johannes
Johansen, Anton
Johannesen, J. -1441
Johnsen, H. -2213
Johanson, E. -2715
Johanson, H.
Johansson, Gustav
Johnson, A. Emil
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johnson, Edw.
Johnson, E. L.
Johansson, Bernad
Johnson, Walter
Jonsson, J. H. -2951
Jorgensen, Johannes
Jorgensen, F.
Josephson, Ben
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William
Juniper, Foster P.

Kaaveland, T.
Kaernbach, Hugo
Kallio, F.
Kallio, Frank
Kallio, F. A.
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlsson, E. -1739
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Keinast, Mike
Kenansky, Adam
Keller, Wm.
Kierne, G. H.
Kihlman, Gunnar
Kine, Conrad
King, Allan
Kinnie, E. J.
Kirby, Geo.
Klanke, Kenneth
Klemmetsen, Alf.
Klemmensen, Eddy
Klimon, Otto
Kluge, Martin
Knutsen, B. R.
Knuttson, Rudolf
Kolustow, A.
Kooistram, Sam
Kraal, J.
Krausem, Wm.
Kristofferson, A. B.
Kron, A. H.
Kruger, G. -934
Kruse, Einar
Kuron, Hemming

Laine, Arthur A.
Laine, Kasper
LaMadrid, R.
Lange, Henry
Langmann, Wm.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen, Lambert
Larsen, Sigruid
Larsen, G. -2297
Larsen, John -2012
Larsen, G. B.
Larsson, L. H.
Larrsson, Jack
Lau, Gustav
Leegaard, Rasmus
Lefter, John A.
Lehtonen, Hj. O.
Lema, Angel
Leskinen, F. A.
Lewis, Albert M.
Liesen, W.
Lind, C.
Lindegrantz, Fred
Lindquist, Chas. S.
Lindroos, Fred
Locke, James E.
Locwende, Nickolas
Lofgren, R.
Lohne, Edw.
Loland, B. L.
Loning, Herman
Lund, A. A.
Lundquist, Ralph A.
Lych, H.
Lydersen, Peder

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Makares, S. J.
Mannonen, Niels
Mandmetz, Michael
Manzano, Luis
Marker, Andrew
Marshall, Ira
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattos, Mario P.
Mahaffey, Cecil
Mathisen, Hans
Mattson, Hilding
Mattson, Victor
McCoy, J. L. -2904
McEvoy, Peter
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McCarthy, Harood
McManus, Peter
Melander, Gustaf
Meyers, J. E.
Midgette, Frank W.
Mikelsen, Bern.
Miller, R. E.
Millert, Carl
Moberg, Alf.
Mol, J. W.
Molier, Fritz
Moonan, Thomas
Moritz, W.
Morris, Francis
Moore, H. L.
Morris, Jimmie
Morrison, Donald
Moulas, Nicholas
Murray, E. J.

Nannestad, Arthur
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, Jerome
Nelson, Nils E.
Nelson, Steve
Nelson, C. -302
Nelson, C. R.
Nesson, Ralph
Neumann, H. 4123
Neveau, Thomas
Newton, A.
Nickerson, Phillip
Niklasson, Justus
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nilsson, Emil
Nilsson, Edward
Nielsen, Jens
Nilsen, Hans L.
Nilsson, John
Nilsson, K. L. -80
Nolen,
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordquist, Otto
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nordgren, Ragnar
Nordlund, Albert
North, Jesse I.
Nummelin, Arthur
Nuter, Alex

Oad, John
O'Brien, Larry
Ohlsson, Hj.
Ogren, V. E.
O'Leary, Patric
Olsen, Fred
Olsen, Magnus
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Svedrup B.
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsen, Alf
Olsen, C. -1412
Olsen, Eugene
Olson, Harald
Olson, Ed.
Onno, Tobias
Ostlund, John
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Ozolin, Jan

Page, J. N.
Paksis, T.
Parker, Bert
Parrish, Arthur L.
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, Lewis
Pedersen, L. M.
Perrson, Albert
Permin, Jens
Petersen, Axel L.
Petersen, Bjarne A.
Petersen, Jens
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Pilkinton, Homer
Post, Albert
Potter, E. R.
Price, Arthur
Prusch, A.
Publicatus, A.
Punis, Tony

Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Rasmusen, Rudolpf
Rasmussen, Aksel
Rasmussen, Emil
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Reese, Luois
Richardson, Edwin
Rillukka, John
Rier, E. W.
Rogers, Thos. G.
Rollo, R.
Rommel, Andrew
Ronn, E.
Rose, J.
Ross, H. E.
Rosenberg, L. F. K.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Rutter, Amandus
Ryan, Patrick

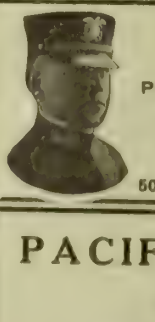
Saarinen, K.
Saharoff, John
Sampson, Carl
Samuelson, E. -2888
Samuelson, Mentor
Sanders, Oscar
Sanne, Rudolf
Sanjer, Sajer
Saunders, Dewey A.
Scanlon, David P.
Schmees, Herman
Schmidt, E. H.
Schneidau, Heinrich
Schreff, Paul
Sederholm, J. R.
Seiffert, John
Seivert, Albert
Selenski, Frank
Sexton, Harry J.
Shipley, A. M.
Siems, Lewis
Sigrist, George
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Skogman, W.
Sjoberg, Silas
Skaar, Oskar M.
Slattery, Harry
Small, E. R.
Smedsvig, O. B.
Smith, John H.
Smith, Geo. B.
Smith, A. G.
Solberg, Bernt P.
Soneson, Wilhelm
Sorensen, Jorgen H.
Sovdsnes, O. Petersen
Spence, O. L.
Stanford, Harry
Steinberg, John
Stensland, Paul
Sterchy, Jack
Stone, Mervyn
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Strurh, O.
Stang, A.
Stenensen. A.
Stewart, William
Stone, Wicktor
Strandberg. O.
Svengard, J.
Swinka, Albert

Tacie, John
Tallaksen, Arthur
Tandberg, Einar
Takkis, John
Taylor, Sam C.
Tellefson. Emil
Thomas, Johnie
Thomas, Nelson
Thomasen, Olaf
Thompson, Clifford
Thomsen, Chr.
Thorn, Arvid
Thomas, Frank
Thomas, Fred
Thomphson, James
Thompson, J. W.
Tillman, Chas.
Timmers, H. P.
Tingstrom. A. R.
Tjersland, Sverre
Tohtz, R. C.
Torson. Andrew
Touzel, R.
Trykin, Gustaf
Tucker, Harold J.
Tufty, C. J.
Turner, W. A.

Vargas, Martina
Vierr, W.
Vitek, Edward
Vitol, A.
Wapper, John

PACKAGES.

Allison, Ben
Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Cornelisen, M.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Egan, John
Engstrom, Edw.
Frizzell, Riley
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Goodman, Tony
Griffin, J. R.
Halvorsen, Isak
Henrikson, Ernst
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Jansonu, C. J. W.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kaining, P. G. -1342
Ketelsen, Fred
Kraiser, R.
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Lundquist, Ralph
Malmin, T.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Mortensen, K. A.
Mortensen, Bjarne
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Perks, Fred
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Sternica, Carl
Stranberg, P.
Tillsten, Jack
Travers
van Vlcet, F. B.
Wahtje, W. H.
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.



FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

CHRISTENSEN NAVIGATION SCHOOL — ESTABLISHED 1906 — SAN FRANCISCO — S.F. CAL.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

19 East Street, Foot of Ferry Bridge
Wholesale—OUTFITTER—Retail
Everything for the man that goes to sea
SEAMEN AND FISHERMEN
GEO. A. PRICE
IS RIGHT
U. S. Navy Tower's
Sea Boots Flannels Oil Skins

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

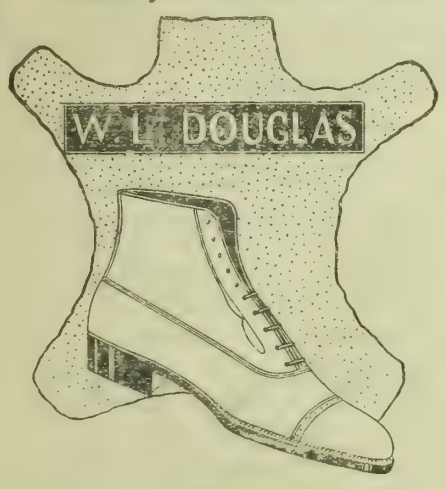
Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
723 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SAVE MONEY ON YOUR SHOES
Would you walk one-half block from Market Street to



Save $1 to $3?
We are located at 58 Third St., San Francisco.
We are agents for—
W. L. Douglas
Just Wright
Walk Ease
Strong & Garfield
We can positively save you money by buying your SHOES from us.
Our low rent and small expense make it possible for us to sell cheaper than the Market Street stores paying six times our rent.
We are showing a most exclusive and large stock of men's shoes. We can fit any foot and suit any fancy.
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET
Between Market and Mission
San Francisco, Cal.

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
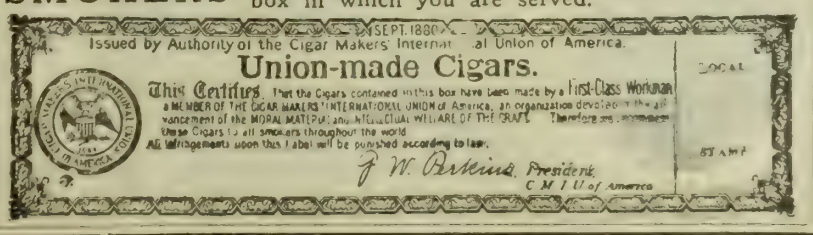
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.



News from Abroad

A dispatch from San Jose, Costa Rica, says Congress has passed a law giving the right of suffrage to all citizens, including women.

The Chilean Government has bought the battle-ship "Canada" and four light cruisers from the British Government, and it is rumored that six British destroyers of the 900-ton type are to be purchased.

All leading Moslem religious authorities in Anatolia have approved a proclamation, dated August 3, which has been sent broadcast in Anatolia, declaring the principles of bolshevism are identical with Islamism, because "based on democracy." It calls on all good Moslems to accept the tenets of bolshevism.

A large number of the Royal Irish Constabulary at Dublin informed the commandant that they were unwilling to be used to suppress political opinion, says the Dublin correspondent of the Central News. They took off their uniforms and left the depot in civilian clothing.

Recall by the Japanese Government of all Japanese who have emigrated to the United States has been suggested by prominent citizens of Tokio as a means of solving the Japanese problem in America, says a Tokio cablegram to Nippu Jiji, vernacular newspaper in Honolulu. The cablegram adds that the Tokio press is supporting the proposal.

Representatives of all shipping lines operating out of Japanese ports, in conference at Yokohama, have decided that the standard freight rate for ocean traffic will be 20 per cent. higher than at present. R. O. Baker, representing the United States Shipping Board, proposed a fifty per cent. increase, but Japanese delegates refused to agree.

The Japanese military authorities at Nikolaevsk, on the left bank of the Amur river, in Asiatic Russia, have issued an announcement that all Russian fisheries in the estuary of the Amur have been taken under Japanese control, according to a Vladivostok dispatch to the Russian News Agency. Russians desiring to lease fisheries must comply with Japanese demands, it is added.

Polish emigrants for America to the number of 750 have been stopped by the Danzig authorities on the Polish frontier on the pretense that many of them were of military age and might be used in the warfare against the Bolsheviki, says a Berlin dispatch to the London Times. Two hundred of the party are children under 10, and there are many women in the group. The Berlin dispatch says there is much suffering among them.

Newspapers of Petrograd publish a speech by Nikolai Lenine, Soviet Premier, in which he expressed an uncompromising policy toward foreign countries, say advices. He declared Russia must continue to foment revolution in all countries until she achieves her aim, an international "proletarian Soviet republic." Asia and the East are the chief present hope, Lenine continued, and it is there Russia must show her strength. He declared that in England the worst foe was the opportunist aristocratic working class, and Soviet Russia's aim should be to strengthen the communist minority against this class.

With the Wits

"They say now that there must be a law passed for the arrest of parlor Bolshevists."

"Who's to do the arresting—the kitchen police?"—Wichita Eagle.

Sid Doun—Why are silk shirts a luxury?

Stan Dupp—Because you pay $10 for them and your coat and vest cover all but a nickle's worth.—California Pelican.

"Who's the Congressman who looks so important?"

"He's an obstructionist who makes a point of order on anything that looks like progress."—Detroit Free Press.

"You say he's an old-fashioned citizen?"

"Yes."

"In what respect?"

"He still thinks the Constitution of the United States is sacred."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"The doctor has prescribed physical exercise for Reggie." "My word, old top! Has he joined a gym?" "No; he discharged his valet, and is learning to dress himself."—Manchester Guardian.

Mrs. Henpeck—If you marry Dick you need never expect me to come to see you.

Daughter—Just say that into the gramophone, won't you, please?

Mrs. Henpeck—What for?

Daughter—I want to give the record to Dick as a wedding present.—Tit-Bits.

Auntie (to small John, who is wistfully munching bread and butter on the back steps)—Too bad your little dog died, John. I suppose you miss him.

John—'Deed I do. Now I never know quite what to do with my last bite.—Life.

Kloseman—Let me give you a piece of advice.

Knox—What's the matter with it?—Life.

Schoolmaster—Jones, spell 'weather.'

Jones—W-e-t-t-h-e-r.

Schoolmaster—Well, Jones, that's certainly the worst spell of weather we've had for some time.—Tit-Bits.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of cloth, Woven trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving?

James H. Sorensen

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's Good Goods

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am

"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell

UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

31.805

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS LIBRARY

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization

VOL. XXXIV, No. 2. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1920. Whole No. 1718.

THE FORTY-EIGHT HOUR WEEK

Text of Defeated "Draft Convention" Limiting Working Hours

The report of the American Delegates to the convention of the International Seafarers' Federation, published in last week's Journal, referred to the determination of the organized seamen in Europe to establish the eight-hour day and the forty-eight hour week.

It will be recalled that the International Conference, which met at Genoa under the auspices of the League of Nations, failed by a very small margin to adopt the "draft convention" which would have established the shorter workday by treaty, or international agreement. The defeated treaty is published herewith.

It is highly significant that just a fraction less than the required two-thirds of the delegates present at the Genoa conference voted for the "draft convention."

The General Conference of the International Labor Organization of the League of Nations,

Having been convened at Genoa by the Governing Body of the International Labor Office on the 15th day of June, 1920, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the "Application to seamen of the Convention drafted at Washington, last November, limiting the hours of work in all industrial undertakings, including transport by sea and, under conditions to be determined, transport by inland waterways, to 8 hours in the day and 48 in the week, consequential effects as regards manning and the regulations relating to accommodation and health on board ship," which is the first item in the agenda for the Genoa meeting of the Conference, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take this form of a draft International Convention, adopts the following Draft Convention for ratification by the Members of the International Labor Organization, in accordance with the Labor Part of the Treaty of Versailles of 28th June, 1919; of the Treaty of St. Germain of 10th September, 1919; of the Treaty of Neuilly of 27th November, 1919; and of the Treaty of the Grand Trianon of 4th June, 1920.

In view of the declaration in the Treaty of Versailles of 28th June, 1919, that all industrial communities should endeavor to adopt, as far as their special circumstances will permit, an eight-hours' day or a forty-eight hours' week as the standard to be aimed at, where it has not already been attained, which declaration is hereby recognized as applying to seamen, the International Labor Conference adopts the following Draft Convention:—

ARTICLE 1.

For the purpose of this Convention.

(a) The term "working hours" shall include only effective working hours, that is to say, the time during which a person on board a vessel is engaged, under the orders of the master, outside of the quarters which serve as his accommodation on board the vessel;

(b) The term "vessel" includes all ships and boats, of any nature whatsoever, engaged in maritime navigation, whether publicly or privately owned, and whether employed in commerce or for purposes of technical instruction or otherwise; it excludes ships of war;

(c) Each Member of the International Labor Organization will determine for itself what is maritime navigation as distinguished from inland navigation, and will communicate its determination to the International Labor Office.

ARTICLE 2.

The working hours of all persons without distinction of nationality or race, employed on board any vessel, excluding masters and supervising officers who do not keep a watch, shall be limited either to eight hours in the day or to forty-eight hours in the week, or to a maximum not exceeding eight hours in the day or forty-eight hours in the week for periods of time other than a week, subject to the provisions and exceptions contained in the following Article.

ARTICLE 3.

On mechanically propelled vessels of 2,000 tons gross and over, the working hours at sea shall not exceed forty-eight hours per week for all ratings. Work on Sunday shall be continued by the crew, who will receive compensatory rest or remuneration, unless extra hands have been shipped for the purpose of providing one day's rest in seven for the whole crew.

On these vessels, when in port, the working hours for all ratings shall not exceed forty-eight per week or a less number where already in force, subject to regulations which may be made in each country limiting the working hours on its own ships in port, provided that such regulations shall not allow more working hours than those fixed for industrial undertakings on shore by the Draft Convention on hours of work adopted by the International Labor Conference at Washington in November, 1919.

Overtime which may be ordered by the master on arrival and sailing days, or for other necessity, not including overtime ordered by reason of the circumstances described in paragraph (a) of Article 8 of this Convention, shall not exceed fourteen hours per week or sixty hours per month; and extra hours worked shall be paid for, or shall be compensated by time off.

On such vessels the three-watch system shall be maintained in the deck and engine-room departments, where the nature of the work is such as to require a system of work by watches.

ARTICLE 4.

The manner in which the principles laid down in this Convention for mechanically propelled vessels of 2,000 tons gross and over are to be applied, shall be determined by regulations made after consultation with organizations of shipowners and organizations of seamen in each country.

ARTICLE 5.

The regulations as to working hours on all classes of vessels other than those covered by Article 3 shall be made after consultation with organizations of shipowners and organizations of seamen, and shall be on principles similar so far as circumstances will permit to the principles to be applied under Article 3 to mechanically propelled vessels of 2,000 tons gross and over.

ARTICLE 6.

Regulations as to the working hours of Indian seamen shall be made after consultation with organizations of shipowners and organizations of Indian seamen. These regulations shall provide for a reduction in the present working hours of Indian seamen.

ARTICLE 7.

The contract of engagement for service on any vessel shall in every case contain a statement of the hours to be worked, and such statement shall form an essential part of the contract.

The national law shall provide that seamen shall be able to sue the master or owner of the vessel for redress, if this part of the contract is not carried out.

ARTICLE 8.

(a) The limit of working hours provided for in this Convention may be exceeded in the following circumstances, of which the master shall be the sole judge:—

(1) When the safety of the vessel, or of the life of any person on board, is threatened by fog, stranding, fire, or other emergency; or

(2) When it is necessary for the salvage of another vessel, or for the purpose of saving life.

(b) The limit of working hours provided for in this Convention may also be exceeded when, as a result of sickness or physical injury or other such cause during the course of the voyage, the crew of the ship has been reduced and cannot be completed immediately by the engagement of other seamen.

ARTICLE 9.

Any changes in accommodation which may result from additions to crews or increased manning scales following the reduction in hours as provided for in this Convention shall not diminish the hygienic protection of the seamen employed, and no derogation shall be made from the standards now established by law.

Each member which ratifies this Convention shall communicate to the International Labor Office full information concerning the accommodation provided for seamen on its vessels.

ARTICLE 10.

The provisions of this Convention do not apply to persons employed as Wireless Operators.

The provisions of this Convention do not apply to persons employed as cattle-men.

ARTICLE 11.

Each Member of the International Labor Organization which ratifies this Convention agrees to make an annual report to the International Labor Office on the measure which it has taken to give effect to the provisions of this Convention, and these reports will be communicated by the International Labor Office to all other Members of the International Labor Organization.

ARTICLE 12.

Each Member of the International Labor Organization which ratifies this Convention engages to apply it to its colonies, protectorates, and possessions which are not fully self-governing:

(a) Except where, owing to the local conditions, its provisions are inapplicable; or

(b) Subject to such modifications as may be necessary to adapt it provisions to local conditions.

Each Member shall notify to the International Labor Office the action taken in respect of each of its colonies, protectorates, and possessions which are not fully self-governing.

ARTICLE 13.

The formal ratifications of this Convention, under the conditions set forth in Part XIII. of the Treaty of Versailles of 28th June, 1919; of the Treaty of St. Germain of 10th September, 1919; of the Treaty of Neuilly of 27th November, 1919; and of the Treaty of the Grand Trianon of 4th June, 1920, shall be communicated to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations for registration.

ARTICLE 14.

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labor Organization have been registered with the Secretariat, the Secretary-General of the League of Nations shall so notify all the Members of the International Labor Organization.

ARTICLE 15.

This Convention shall come into force at the date on which such notification is issued by the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, but it shall then be binding only upon those Members which have registered their ratifications with the Secretariat. Thereafter this Convention will come into force for any other Member at the date on which its ratification is registered with the Secretariat.

ARTICLE 16.

Subject to the provisions of Article 15, each Member which ratifies this Convention agrees to bring its provisions into operation not later than one year after its ratification, and to take such action as may be necessary to make these provisions effective.

ARTICLE 17.

A member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of five years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the Secretariat.

ARTICLE 18.

At least once in ten years the Governing Body of the International Labor Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention, and shall consider the desirability of placing on the Agenda of the Conference the question of its revision or modification.

ARTICLE 19.

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

SUPPLEMENTARY REPORTS

The two supplementary reports submitted by the American delegates to the recent convention of the International Seafarers' Federation in Brussels, Belgium, are published herewith, in full:

REPORT BY FURUSETH

After consultation between the three of us, and as a result of information obtained concerning the Danish situation, a cable was sent from Genoa requesting that $1,000 be sent to Andrew Furuseth in care of the American Consul, Copenhagen.

On arrival of Carlson and Furuseth at Copenhagen, it was ascertained that the $1,000 were at the American Consul's office, as requested.

In looking over the situation in Copenhagen, we found that the sailors and firemen were on strike in a body, that the money shared between them and the stewards would be of no value. They had become involved in an illegal strike, together with the general labor movement of Denmark. They had entered into a strike which in its essence was political, and grew out of the question about following the King had dismissed his Advisors, as the strikers considered, illegally. The seamen struck at once, immediately prior to the Easter holidays. The employers on shore declared the strike, but inasmuch as there were five holidays, no real strike was entered upon, except by the seamen, because a settlement was obtained before the holidays were over. The seamen continued the strike, which now, from their point of view, became economic, that is for improved conditions. Their agreement had yet two months to run, the strike was therefore, plainly illegal. The shipowners appealed to the Courts, and the sailors, firemen, and harbor workers were sentenced to pay one million kroner, as damages. This was manifestly impossible, but was hanging over their heads, and any money which they received might be taken from them. Mr. Richrd Jensen, the regularly elected President of the firemen, had been compelled to resign, but had claims for a year's wages, due him under the Danish law, so if it did not go to the Court, it would go to Jensen. The President of the sailors was dismissed by the meeting, and one, Bjelgrove Pedersen, was elected President on promise that he would furnish money. The stewards were not involved in the fine, but they had no money with which to pay current expenses, and it was first thought that the money would be best used by being delivered to them. It was, however, decided that we did not know sufficiently about the situation, to act in that way, and therefore turned the money over to Mr. C. Damm, Secretary-Treasurer, International Seafarers' Federation, to be used by him where it would do most good. He turned 2,000 kroner over to the firemen, and the remainder, a little over 4,000, to the stewards, with the understanding that they should under certain conditions, share it with the sailors. Furuseth and Damm had an interview with Mr. A. O. Anderson, Vice-President, Shipping Federation, and Commercial Director of the United Shipping Company, and from him we obtained a definite understanding that if the sailors and firemen would select men as officers who could be trusted to see that an agreement entered into would be kept, the sailors and firemen would get the same agreement that had been entered into in Norway, and the damages would be held in suspense, to fall away completely when the agreement entered into had been completed.

We further discussed the question of seamen's legislation with Mr. Anderson. The proposed new Scandinavian law contains a provision, under which seamen may be brought on board the vessel by police, if no other men can be obtained, and the vessel thereby delayed. We submitted to Mr. Anderson that this provision should go out of the proposed law, because plainly while it was inserted to protect the vessel, it was in reality a real and serious danger to the vessel. A man brought on board against his will might easily and without risk of discovery, so damage the engines that the vessel would become helpless at sea, and have to be towed in. Mr. Anderson seemed to understand, and said that this aspect will be carefully considered.

We could not see any of the members of the Scandinavian Commission, because they were absent from Copenhagen. We then proceeded to Goteborg and consulted there with the officers of the sailors, firemen, and stewards. They would be at Brussels. The situation in Sweden seemed to be all right, and it was likely to so remain unless improvements beyond the Norwegian and Danish were insisted upon. From there we went to Stockholm. We interviewed the officers there, and same to the same conclusion. Together with Roth and Olson, Furuseth saw one of the most influential of the Swedish shipowners, and there placed before him the same reasons for striking out the paragraph in the proposed law, described above, as was given to the Danish shipowner. He seemed to appreciate the importance of this possible sabotage, and said that they would give serious consideration to the same. Here Carlson and Furuseth parted, Furuseth proceeding to Norway, where he found the situation, so far as the Unions were concerned, favorable, with prospects that they would last as an agreement had already been entered into. This agreement was a considerable improvement on the previous one. Furuseth found that the full meaning of the proposed law was not realized except by a few of the officers. Proposal for the law had been referred to the Unions, however, for their opinion, and they had selected their Committee to go through the whole proposal, and to submit to the Governments their conclusions thereon. In Christiania, Furuseth saw two of the most influential shipowners, and went over the same ground with them that had been covered in Denmark and Sweden, with the same result, that the question of keeping in, or striking out of the law, the right to take men on board against their will, was to be seriously considered.

Attorney Bredal, the Chairman of the Norwegian Commission, was seen and expressed the opinion that when the shipowners realize the possible danger of what might happen to the vessel through compelling a man to remain on the vessel against his will, or to take him aboard against his will, they would consent to the striking out of the section in question.

The time of leaving for Brussels having arrived, Furuseth left Norway, together with Birkeland, going through Sweden, Denmark, and Germany, in order to arrive at Brussels in time to attend the meeting of the Secretariat.

Under the rules of the International Seafarers' Federation, the expenses of the members of the Secretariat to and from the meetings, are to be paid by the Federation, and therefore the expenses of Furuseth from New York to Brussels and return to New York, will be paid by the Federation, and this bill agreed upon by the Secretary, is submitted to our Secretary-Treasurer to be subtracted from the first levy upon the International Seamen's Union of America to pay the expenses of the Federation.

Respectfully,

ANDREW FURUSETH.

Referring to Denmark and Sweden I find this correct.

OSCAR CARLSON.

REPORT BY SCHARRENBERG

As per agreement with Delegates Furuseth and Carlson, I proceeded from Genoa direct to Hamburg.

For some time past there have been two seamen's unions in that country. There is the old organization, which is a part of German Transport Workers' Union, with Paul Muller as the leading personality. Then there is a new independent seamen's union organized at the end of the war.

Naturally, the officials of these two unions are very bitter toward each other. Both organizations publish a weekly paper and the editors are not at all backward in using strong language. This, of course, does not help the seamen of Germany—even though it furnishes considerable entertainment for employers.

The union wages of German seamen (sailors and firemen) were raised to 560 marks about the middle of the year. Prior to that time monthly wages were only 460 marks. At the pre-war rate of exchange 560 marks would be approximately $135.00 per month—a very good wage indeed. But the exchange rate of a German mark has dropped from 24 cents to less than 2 cents, U. S. coin.

This makes the actual union wage of German seamen less than $12.00 per month. Even at that rate there are any number of men available at short notice. In fact, unemployment, together with hunger, misery and want, is so general and widespread in Germany that any job which provides three meals a day is considered desirable.

I had no difficulty in arranging a conference with the officers of the "independent" union. Harry Cremer, Hamburg agent of the British Sailors' and Firemen's Union, very kindly assisted in arranging for this conference and personally participated in it. We discussed in detail the difference in the rate of wages paid to German seamen with the schedule prevailing in other European countries and in America. The executive officers of this union (one of whom had been in attendance at the Open Seafarers' Conference in Genoa) readily agreed to respect and to do all in their power to maintain the schedule of wages paid on foreign vessels touching at German ports. In other words, they promised that the members of the independent union would sign on foreign vessels only for the prevailing wages, i. e., the standard pay received in other ships under the same flag.

They also expressed a keen desire to become affiliated with the International Seafarers' Federation and to have the maritime laws of Germany revised so as to bring them in harmony with the American Seamen's Act of 1915.

The pre-war laws and regulations affecting German seamen are still in full force and effect, although the constitution of the land has been entirely re-drawn and liberalized. However, a commission is now at work to revise the laws and regulations governing seamen. When this commission has completed its task it will report to the Reichstag (Parliament) and the process of changing existing law will then be formally completed. Of course, I had this in mind in conferring with the representatives of German seamen.

It was not altogether a simple matter to arrange a conference with the executive officers of the old Seamen's Union. It should be understood that the old union is by far the strongest numerically. Besides, it is the only union of seamen recognized by the German labor movement which, with over eight million members, is all-powerful in industrial affairs. In those circles the independent union of seamen is always referred to as a dual organization, without standing or influence.

In order to arrange for an official interview with the authorized spokesmen for this organization I finally found it necessary to go to Berlin, where the headquarters of the Transport Workers' Union are located. Here I got in touch with Carl Legien, president of the German Federation of Labor, who prior to the war visited America as the representative of the German trade-unions. Mr. Legien brought about a meeting with Herman Jochade, formerly secretary of the International Transport Workers' Federation. Through the kindness of these two men I was then enabled to arrange a formal conference, at which where present Messrs. Schuman and Doring, president and vice-president of the German Transport Workers, also Messrs. Muller and Lorenz of the seamen.

The wage differential was discussed and I was again assured that German union seamen signing on foreign vessels in German ports would always insist upon the wages paid on other ships of the same nationality. President Schuman, in

(Continued on Page 11)

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Freight Cars Idle; Shortage Not Real

The Illinois Agricultural Association has completed a survey of the alleged freight-car shortage and Secretary Thompson of the association says:

"This survey shows pretty clearly to the farmers of Illinois the excuse of 'car shortage' is largely camouflage, given to cover up some real, deeper reason for the present transportation inefficiency. And to search for that reason will be the next job of the farmers' business organization."

Members of the association made daily records of the car initials and numbers of all cars at 494 stations located in 46 different counties for seven consecutive days. Of these 494 stations, 146, or 29.5 per cent., reported some of the same cars on tracks the last day of the count as were on the tracks the first day of the count.

"At all stations," says Secretary Thompson, "9,294 cars were listed the first day, and of these cars 938 out of 9,294 cars had not been moved from the country point for seven consecutive days. This is just a little over 10 per cent. of the cars at such points.

"It is very moderate when we say that the total number of new cars which the railroads say they need to meet the transportation requirements of the present moment is not a patch to the total of immobile cars now idling by the weeks and months in terminal yards and on side tracks at country points.

"Mine operators say they were forced to idleness many days each week, leading to the strike of the miners, which recently tied up the mines just when the farmers were needing coal for thrashing. At this same time before the strike in Christian county, at Clarksdale and at Willeys, two trains of coal cars, totalling 53 cars, were reported empty at both first and last days of the count."

Postal Czars Revive "Gag" Order

The rights of postal employes continue to be flouted and the Roosevelt "gag" order is revived by petty czars in charge of the Postoffice Department.

In Chicago the officers of the Postal Clerks' Union are charged with having printed statements in newspaper advertisements that reflected on the postal service. There was nothing new in the statements, which had previously been made before Congressional committees. An appeal has been made to the President against this violation of the Lloyd-La Follette law of 1913. This act was intended to set aside President Roosevelt's "gag" order that no Government employe could petition Congress for a redress of grievances or make protest against these grievances without the consent of their department chief.

Postmaster Selph, of St. Louis, Mo., has created a new mark for postal autocracy by his threat to stop the mails of that city if the postal clerks do not oust the president of their Union. Selph said that he would dismiss 300 clerks if they did not hold a new election. The clerks refused to act and are awaiting the postmaster's next move. The clerk's president has sued Selph for $50,000 damages for slander.

In a joint statement President Hyatt and Secretary-Treasurer Flaherty of the National Federation of Postal Clerks say that acts of Congress, intended to be beneficial to the postal employes, are being used by Postmaster General Burleson to the disadvantage of these employes.

Under the law employes are entitled to 10 days' sick leave each year. This has been construed to mean ten-twelfths of a day a month. This nullifies the intent of the law, unless an employe gets sick one day a month and recovers in that period, per the Burleson schedule.

Another ruling by the department that ignores every element of justice is shown in the order that employes return wages paid for work done on Sundays. The last Congress changed the rule that time should be paid for Sunday work to time off on another day of the week. Now the department takes advantage of an interval between the passage of the act and the time it became effective and has ordered all employes who received wages for Sunday work to return this money. The department, however, refuses time off to employes who worked on Sundays, in spite of the obvious fact that they are entitled to either one or the other.

Publicity Blocked by Coal Owners

Because coal owners have failed to live up to to their promise to supply cost of production and other figures, the Federal Trade Commission announces the possible suspension of its monthly bulletin, which informed the public on coal industry costs and production.

The commission states that attorneys for the National Coal Association notified coal owners last January that the commission has the lawful power to collect this information. The commission was given a copy of this opinion. Later the coal association changed its policy and it was agreed with the commission that the coal owners would start four test suits, covering all phases of the issue. Instead, the coal owners started one suit on questions which were more favorable to them and the other three suits have not been started. In the one suit the commission was enjoined from enforcing penalties where reports were not made. The commission then invited voluntary co-operation and the responses have become fewer and fewer.

The coal owners' action is in line with its policy of proclaiming that the public should be informed on all the facts—and then block every attempt to make this boast a reality.

In the recent wage hearing on wage demands of bituminous miners at Scranton, the coal owners succeeded in stopping the miners from putting in the record a series of statistics that would show exorbitant profits of coal owners, their production costs, and their monopolistic policies.

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD.

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA.

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia,
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford St., Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg., Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward St., Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Bundaberg, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN.

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.

Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway St., Hull.

National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM.

Internationale Seemansvereeniging, St. Pietersvliet 2.

GERMANY.

Internationale Transportarbeiter - Federation. Engelufer, 18, Berlin S. O. 16. Germany.

FRANCE.

Federation National des Syndicats des Inscripts, Maritimes des France, 33 Rue Grange aux-Belles, Paris.

Federation Syndicale des Agents du Service General a Bord, 3 Rue Scudery, Havre.

NORWAY.

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads, 5, Kristiania.

SWEDEN.

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.

DENMARK.

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.

Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.

Dansk So-Restaurations Forening Nyhavn 17, Kobenhavn.

HOLLAND.

Centrale Bond van Transportarbeiders, Hoofdbestuur, 's Gravendykwal 111 te Rotterdam.

Vakgroep Zeelieden, Pelikaanstraat 25, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA.

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY.

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN.

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY.

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA.

Federacion Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL.

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.

Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.

Centro Marittimo dos Empregados em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18. Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA.

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

Iron molders in Edmonton, Alberta, suspended work to enforce an eight-hour day and a wage rate of 92½ cents an hour. The old rate was 75 cents and a nine-hour day.

The Spanish General Union of Workers, the Socialists and Trade Unionists have decided to continue attachment to the second Internationale of Amsterdam by 110,000 votes to 17,000.

Striking Edmonton, Alberta, iron molders have broken opposition to their demand for wage increases by securing an agreement with the Coutts Machinery Company. Wages are advanced to 92½ cents an hour.

The refusal of the British government to raise miners' wages and cheapen the price of coal has stimulated the demand for nationalization of mines. The increase of railroad rates has had the same effect toward transportation.

"There is a world of difference," says the Cotton Factory Times of Manchester, England, "between a healthy and honest discussion of the present-day political trickery and the mischievous idea that politics in itself is an evil and something that we, as trade unionists, should not tamper with.

Zittan, Saxony, a city of between 25,000 and 30,000 population where labor troubles recently occurred, has been since August 1 in the hands of radical workers, according to a diswatch to the Zwoelfuhrblatt. The message adds a committee of fifteen composed of independents, socialists, communists and syndicalists, has assumed authority over the city.

Officers of the New Brunswick Federation of Labor reported to the annual convention that they succeeded in amending the workmen's compensation act, as ordered by the last convention, despite opposition from the Manufacturers' Association. The amended law provides for full medical, hospital and skilled nursing attendance from date of accident, increases the amount allowed for funeral expenses to $100, and increases compensation for permanent partial disability. The federation officials also reported that the minister of public works promised that the words "union or prevailing wages" shall hereafter be included in all government contracts.

More than 16,000 members of organized building trades have associated with the London building guild. The guild movement was started by Manchester building tradesmen last January, following the failure of various schemes to relieve the housing situation. Guild membership includes workers, administrators and technicians, and is managed by a committee composed of representatives of these various elements. Surplus earnings will not be distributed, as is customary in business, but will be used to guarantee workers' wages when unemployed, and in improving service and equipment. No financial guarantee for the performance of contracts will be given, but the guild pledges itself to carry out the work it undertakes, and supports this pledge with a roll of members who have promised to do this work. The guild declares that this is the most effective guarantee that can be devised.

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

Wilson Asks All to Save

President Woodrow Wilson says that this country is undergoing the greatest crisis in its history. He urges upon all the necessity of saving.

Are you on the tidal wave of prosperity?

If you are, conserve some of your resources by depositing them in bank.

Save! Save! Save!

This applies to the business man as well as the day laborer.

There is no greater way to save than planning to place a certain amount in the bank regularly.

ANGLO-CALIFORNIA TRUST COMPANY BANK
COMMERCIAL - SAVINGS - TRUST
"The Personal Service Bank"
MARKET & SANSOME STREETS
San Francisco
POTRERO BRANCH Third and Twentieth
MISSION BRANCH Sixteenth and Mission
FILLMORE BRANCH Fillmore and Geary

INFORMATION WANTED

Will H. Peterson and G. Johnson, formerly winchmen of S. S. "Carmel" to communicate with J. T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 9-8-20.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of the brother of August W. Strasdin, will please communicate with B. I. LaSelle, 924 Crocker Bldg., San Francisco. 9-15-20

INFORMATION WANTED

Members of crews of Barge "Ohio" and S. S. "Gulfcoast" will kindly communicate with this office regarding their salvage claims against the Standard Oil Barge No. 1 between Mobile and Port Arthur about May 18th. I represent a member of the crew and have already taken up the matter of a salvage award for him. Silas B. Axtell, New York, N. Y. 7-14-20

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth
This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE
will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong — on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life
Send in your order today
$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

Honolulu Letter List

Bergesen, Bert	Lame, Pat.
Bradley, Ed.	Leison, Will.
Buck, Harry	Lind, Gust.
Caldwell, John	Matson, Rolf.
Campbell, Ed.	Mulligan, Ed.
Danielsen, Adolph	Nickols, Henry
Dant, B. C.	Sandel, T. S.
Ettersen, Ward	Stromberg, Pet.
Harns, Ed.	Stewart, A. J.
Johnsen, Hilding	Solberg, B. P.
Larsen, John

INFORMATION WANTED

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of George Mace Monroe, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, last heard of at Charleston, S. C., March, 1916, will please communicate with his mother, Mrs. Alice Monroe, 918 Spruce street, Seattle, Washington. 6-9-20

TO MY CLIENTS
Please look over our legal reports on file in every Union Hall on the coasts whenever you are in port. Notice of commencement of all actions, their appearance on the calendar for trial, trials, judgments and settlements effected are published in all cases whether for wages, salvage or personal injury. Law Office, Silas B. Axtell, 9 State Street, New York.

Pacific Coast Marine

A fire which raged for more than an hour in one of the forward compartments of the superdreadnaught "California," under construction at the Mare Island Navy Yard, caused damage estimated at $10,000 and for a time threatened to spread to other sections of the giant vessel.

British ships, and ships bound for British ports that call at San Francisco, will be picketed by Irish sympathizers in an effort to tie up English shipping until Great Britain changes her Irish policy and removes her army of occupation from Ireland, according to announcement from San Francisco headquarters of the Women's Irish Educational League.

The California Macaroni Company, 956 Bryant street, San Francisco, one of the leading enterprises of its kind in the West, has begun operating under a receivership appointed by Judge of the Superior Court Bernard J. Flood. Behind the story of the receivership lies, according to Robert M. Light, one of the attorneys, a story of an attempt to wreck the company.

En route for Melbourne, the schooner "Oregon Pine" has put in at Sydney. The vessel went into port with a jury rig. The steeering gear of the craft was lost on August 20, according to a telegram received by Grant, Smith & Co. from Captain Daniel P. Wall. The vessel left the Pacific July 4 and reached Sydney after a sixty-six-day trip. The time required for the passage is considered good, even without a handicap.

Lieuenant-Commander Charles S. Root of the Coast Guard cutter "Earp," now at San Diego, received a commendatory letter from Commodore Commandant William Reynolds for the excellent engineering performance of the Eagle type boat on its recent voyage from Norfolk to San Diego. The "Earp" steamed 1800 miles, from Norfolk to Balboa, without a stop on less than 100 tons of fuel. The "Earp" is to sail for Honolulu October 1.

The steamship "Jugoslaven Prvi," which passed through the Panama Canal recently bound from Newport News to Africa with a cargo of 4025 tons of coal, is the first vessel flying the flag of Jugoslavia to pass through the Canal. She is reported by her agents as due at Balboa on her return voyage. She is a ship of 3125 gross and 2034 net registered tons, 326 feet long by 40 feet beam, and carries a crew of 27.

Admiral Hugh Rodman, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, in a speech before the Commercial Club of Honolulu, declared that plans were being developed in Washington to make a navel base of Kanoeha Bay, on the windward side of Oahu. He said the trio, Honolulu harbor, Pearl harbor and Kanoeha harbor, would accommodate any size fleet that would ever be stationed at Hawaii. Pearl Harbor, it was expected, he said, would be made the permanent base of a flotilla of destroyers.

The total value of the export and import business of the San Francisco customs district during last July was $47,958,480, according to figures compiled by the Chamber of Commerce. The import business amounted to $27,737,749, and the exports were valued at $20,180,731. The Seattle customs district, according to the Chamber of Commerce, handled a total of $25,422,145 in exports and imports. Of this amount $16,078,990 represents exports, and the remainder, $9,343,153, imports.

Bringing sealskins valued at $2,000,000, the season's catch on the Pribyloff Islands, the naval radio steamer "Saturn" has arrived on Puget Sound. The seals were killed by representatives of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, and the proceeds of the sale will go into the United States Treasury. Since the lease of the Pribyloff Islands to the Alaska Commercial Company was canceled, the Bureau of Fisheries has taken over the islands to protect the seals from extinction. Since that time the herds have increased and are bringing in a big revenue to the Government.

The defense won the first legal clash in the case of the Grays Harbor Motorship Corporation, charged by the Government with fraud in evidence of reports by Captain Robinson tracts, when Judge Jeremiah Neterer of the Federal District Court ruled against admission in evidence of reports by Captain Rbinson Ridley, hull inspector for the Shipping Board, to show that work on hull 1060 at the Grays Harbor Motorship plant was not delayed, as the defense claims, by failure of the Emergency Fleet Corporation to deliver struts and shaftings.

The performance of the Rolph tugs "Storm King" and "Hercules" in successfully towing nine drydock pontoons from Seattle to San Francisco without a single mishap resulted in a letter of commendation being sent by Captain A. F. Pillsbury to Captain Clem Randall, port captain of the Rolph concern. The dry docks were part of those purchased by local shipyards from the Skinner & Eddy Company. During the work of transporting the tows stormy and foggy weather were in evidence all along the Washington, Oregon and California coasts, but the work was completed by the two tugs without a single mishap or delay.

While unearthing 104 bottles of Scotch whisky in an ammonia tank of the liner "Sonoma," which arrived at San Francisco from Honolulu during the week, Customs Inspector George Williams was overcome by the fumes and had to be removed to his home. Other searchers found another 100 bottles concealed in various parts of the boat, much of it being under the false bottom of a closet in the linen locker. Nineteen bottles of liquor were found on the steamer "Archer," from Hongkong, and twenty-three egret feathers in the assistant engineer's room of the steamer "Joan of Arc," from Guayaquil.

The Panama Canal completed six years of operation at the close of business on August 14, 1920, having been opened to commerce on August 15, 1914. During the six years the total number of commercial ships making the transit was 10,573. Their aggregate net tonnage, according to the rules of measurement of the Panama Canal, was 34,540,266. The cargo they carried totaled 40,313,629 tons of 2240 pounds. This traffic was made up of 4934 ships, of 16,145,434 net tons, carrying 16,576,778 tons of cargo from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and 5639 ships, of 18,394,832 net tons, with 23,736,-851 tons of cargo from Pacific to Atlantic.

Robert Dollar is back at his desk in San Francisco after an absence of several months, during which time he inspected the London offices of his company and other shipping centers of Europe. Dollar stated that the United States Shipping Board will have to reduce the prices of the 12,000 ships that they have placed on the market for sale if they wish to dispose of them. He stated that the slump of freight rates and the large number of cargo ships lying idle in ports of the world will force lower prices than asked by the Shipping Board for their vessels. England, said Dollar, is our chief competitor in the shipping world, and the freight rates will topple to a much lower level than they are at present as competition for the commerce of the world increases.

The important harbor improvements entailing expenditures running into millions of dollars will be carried out by the Dominion Government in Vancouver, according to announcement of Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who spent last week in Vancouver. Already the Government has appropriated $5,000,000 and has under construction a great pier to cost between three and four millions. The Northern Construction Company has now been awarded the contract for the superstructure at about $3,500,000. A chief feature of Mr. Ballantyne's announcement included his declaration that the Government is now endeavoring to buy in England suitable passenger liners for the Pacific and expects to have them operating within a year. He also said that all of the eighteen freight ships already launched or under construction for the Canadian Government merchant marine on this Coast will be used to develop trade from ports on the Pacific. Passenger accommodations for commercial travelers will be provided on these freighters. Within the last year the Canadian Government was forced to take over two transcontinental lines of railway, the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk.

Two thousand barrels of fuel oil were seized during the week by the United States Navy from the Martinez, Cal., plant of the Shell Oil Company. Other than the force necessary to break six chains, no violence accompanied the seizure, and employes of the oil company offered no resistance to the sailors who did the work necessary to place the oil aboard the Navy barge that early arrived at the oil company's plant from Mare Island. The oil seized was desired to enable several destroyers to proceed to San Diego. It was announced by Captain Charles Conrad, U. S. N., supply officer at Mare Island, that more oil will be seized this week if the company persists in its refusal to voluntarily supply the Navy at the $2 price fixed by the Navy Department. The seizure of the oil came as the culmination of a long controversy between the Navy Department and the Shell Company concerning the price to be paid for 112,000 barrels of oil, which the department has fixed as the quantity the Shell people shall supply the Navy. It had been hoped by Navy officials that the company would accede to the demand for oil at $2 a barrel, but late last Friday the company officials sent word that the oil would not be furnished at this price. It was then that the Navy officials announced that the seizure would be made unless the oil was supplied on demand to be made at the Martinez plant.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco. Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street

Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
802-804 South Broadway Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
206 Moravian Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....H. COOK, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841

Branches:
New York Branch.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RODEN, Agent
433 Court Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....DAVID COOK, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
132 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....W. ROSSI, Agent
49 Market Street

Sub Agencies:
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976

Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue

Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....316 River Street

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION

D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal
Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER..... Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1920.

PROTESTS AGAINST JONES ACT

Practically every maritime nation of any importance, at one time or another, submitted a protest against the La Follette Seamen's Act.

It is most fortunate for America that these purely selfish and ill-advised protests were not heeded. In a very few years the world has become reconciled to the principles contained in the La Follette law. In fact, if the seamen of the world have the courage of their convictions, several of the maritime nations of Europe will soon enact similar legislation. All of which proves up on an old adage revised to meet the occasion, i. e., that the test of time is more reliable than the pessimistic predictions of reactionary shipowners.

Today America is again in receipt of protests from the same sources. This time it is the so-called Jones Merchant Marine Act that seems to contain sufficient worthwhile matter to inspire those lusty "kicks" from abroad.

It is, of course, wholly unnecessary to state that the efforts in this direction are truly significant. They indicate with powerful emphasis that the Jones Act will be an effective measure in maintaining an adequate American merchant marine. Certainly, if the statements of foreign shipping interests are taken at their face value, the new law will be all that its advocates claim for it. In other words, here we apparently have another statute by virtue of which the United States will step a little nearer to the place among nations to which it is entitled.

To fully understand this protest against certain features in the Jones Act it is necessary to look backward into an earlier statute, namely the Underwood tariff bill. This measure contained certain discriminating duty provisions favoring American ships. But while Congress was giving much oratory to these proposals, the foreign shipping interests merely abided their time knowing that under a number of innocent appearing commercial treaties to which the United States was a party, these sections of the bill would be about as effective in encouraging American shipping as a resolution passed by a young ladies' debating society. The Jones Act, however, seeks to amend or repeal these commercial treaties so that the five per cent. discriminating duty in favor of American ships will become effective. To this our neighbors object. Moreover, there are intimations of retaliatory measures.

Our friends and neighbors also submit the claim that American railways must make the same rates to the ships of all nations. If the various foreign governments press this claim, section 28, which is the feature of the Jones Act relating to railroad rates, will be in the spotlight of the shipping world as much as section 10 of the peace treaty has been in the discussion of the League of Nations. Advocates of merchant marine legislation frankly regard it as the heart of the Jones Act. In fact, Admiral Benson states if the government departments have not sufficient authority to enforce it against foreign shipping interests, the Shipping Board will go to Congress for additional legislation.

Because of the prominence that section 28 may acquire in the discussion, the vital paragraph of it is published herewith:

> That no common carrier shall charge, collect, or receive, for transportation subject to the Interstate Commerce Act of persons or property, under any joint rate, fare, or charge, or under any export, import, or other proportional rate, fare, or charge, which is based in whole or in part on the fact that the persons or property affected thereby is to be transported to, or has been transported from any port in a possession or dependency of the United States, or in a foreign country, by a carrier by water in foreign commerce, any lower rate, fare or charge than that charged, collected, or received by it for the transportation of persons, or of a like kind of property, for the same distance, in the same direction, and over the same route, in connection with commerce wholly within the United States, unless the vessel so transporting such persons or property, is, or unless it was at the time of such transportation by water, documented under the laws of the United States.

Stripped of its legal verbiage this paragraph means that only such freight and passengers as come to American ports on American ships shall be privileged to reduced rates on American railroads.

Naturally this will give an advantage to American ships. And therefore the protests from abroad. Well, here's prophesying that the latest foreign objections to an American shipping policy will be more futile than the onetime raps against the La Follette Act.

Incidentally, it should be said that the Jones Act contains a few well-worded paragraphs patching up the holes that have been shot in the La Follette Seamen's Act by various court decisions.

So as a whole, it is a mighty fine piece of constructive legislation!

The "declaration of an American shipping policy" (as written into Section 1 of the Jones Act) needs no apology from any American. It is plain, logical and to the point. To quote:

"That it is necessary for the national defense and for the proper growth of its foreign and domestic commerce that the United States shall have a merchant marine of the best equipped and most suitable types of vessels sufficient to carry the greater portion of its commerce and serve as a naval or military auxiliary in time of war or national emergency, ultimately to be owned and operated privately by citizens of the United States; and it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage the maintenance of such a merchant marine."

"To do whatever may be necessary" is indeed an emphatic and meaningful declaration. But why should not America do whatever is necessary to maintain a real merchant marine? Have not certain other maritime nations done so almost continuously ever since they had enough stamina to give expression to a national policy?

SEEING THINGS IN EUROPE

Right at close of an optimistic review of Italy, Mr. Otto H. Kahn, an American financier, who has recently returned from Europe, gives his impressions of the European labor situation as follows:

> The labor situation in the European countries I visited is not very different from our own. It presents one of the most urgent and complex problems of the day, but neither there nor here do I look upon the attitude of labor as being actuated to any serious extent by Bolshevist or kindred motives.
>
> Public opinion in those countries, as here, has shown itself decisively opposed of late to unwarranted strikes and pernicious agitation. Justice, reason, enlightenment through education, the inexorable force of the actualities of life and the pressure of public opinion on both capital and labor, may, I hope, be relied upon to bring about surcease from the ever-recurrent industrial conflicts which have characterized the past eighteen months to the great detriment of all the people.

In the light of current press dispatches from Italy one is inclined to marvel at Mr Kahn's sources of information. It is decidedly unfortunate for the thinking American public that so many travelers in Europe secure most of their information and many of their impressions in and about the lobby of first-class hotels.

The man who talks about the "pressure of public opinion on both capital and labor" would be up against it if he had to define that mysterious force vaguely referred to as "the public."

If the public of Europe is that comparatively small element in society which neither toils nor spins, then it cannot exert enough pressure to hurt a fly, much less prevent strikes. Justice is indeed the only effective remedy for so-called unwarranted strikes and pernicious agitation. But what is the meaning of justice? And what is pernicious agitation? Does it mean that the toilers of Europe must, without complaining, live in poverty and squalor now that the world has been made safe for democracy? Does it mean that workers living in semi-starvation who finally venture on a strike are to be condemned by visitors from abroad who live in the best hotels and have never in their lives experienced hunger or want?

No. Such deductions are neither just nor reasonable, and it is a crying shame that American financiers who glibly talk about "ever-recurrent industrial conflicts" in Europe cannot or will not look beneath the surface. Having in mind only the opportunities for safe and profitable investment, they regard the working people as mere milk cows placed on earth to produce and reproduce for the benefit and profit of the investor from across the Atlantic.

Truly, it is a blessing for mankind that the workers of all countries in Europe have positively declined to play the part assigned to them. In Italy, in France, in Germany and in England the toilers are just beginning to realize the possibilities of organized effort. They will make blunders as of old. But they will never again calmly and tamely submit to scientific exploitation by financiers.

PUBLIC VS. PRIVATE PROFIT.

According to reports just received from Australia the building of the new capital city for the Commonwealth, which had been interrupted by the war, has been resumed. The new city is located in the center of a federal district having an area of 900 square miles. The plans include a number of magnificent public buildings, wide streets and fine parks. The architect is an American, whose plans were accepted after a competitive test participated in by architects throughout the world. These details are interesting, but the most interesting as well as the most important feature of the work is not included among them. This feature is the fact that the Australian Commonwealth intends to avoid a serious mistake committed by the United States when the city of Washington was planned.

The Commonwealth of Australia will not allow any of the lands within the federal district to become private property. Individuals may lease whatever lands they wish to use, but none can be purchased. Lessees may build or make other improvements, and these buildings or improvements will be the property of the individuals and be free of taxation, but the building sites will remain the property of the Commonwealth. The rental value of all land within the district will go into the public treasury to pay communal expenses.

It is so different in Washington, D. C. For here nine-tenths of the land is privately owned and all revenue from rents, etc., goes into private coffers.

Australia is wise in adopting a different policy. And it is not too late for the United States to profit by the example. Congress need but legislate so as to abolish taxation of labor within the District of Columbia and to tax land values sufficiently to put the entire rental values in the treasury. Progressive Australia has won the credit for leadership in applying common sense to the land policy of its new federal district.

The returns of Lloyd's Register for June 30, 1920, which cover vessels of 100 gross tons or over show that on that date the world's merchant shipping comprised 31,595 ships of 57,314,065 gross tons, compared with 29,255 ships of 50,919,273 gross tons on June 30, 1919, and 30,836 ships of 49,089,552 gross tons on June 30, 1914. So it appears that notwithstanding the German's submarine warfare and all the other losses of the war there were afloat on June 30, 1920, more ships and more tonnage than just prior to the war. The actual increase in ships over 1914 is 759; and the growth in tonnage over 1914 is 8,224,513.

The strength of organized labor lies in its weakness. That which it lacks in power of compulsion it gains by appeal to rational human ambition and intelligent perception of right and wrong. Right enjoined by force becomes wrong, and therefore fails.

WORTH WHILE SUGGESTIONS

American Publicist Sets Forth What He Deems Necessary to the Maintenance of a Merchant Marine

A well known American publicist, who prefers to keep his name anonymous, was recently asked to reply to the following:

"What do you suggest as necessary to the upbuilding of the permanent American Merchant Marine?"

Here is his answer.

I consider that the first essential to the upbuilding of the American Merchant Marine is to put it on an equal, even a better, footing than that enjoyed by any other merchant marine.

I do not believe in subsidies or any other form of special privilege. I do believe in equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

I believe that the so-called Seamen's Law, if thoroughly enforced will equalize the wages of all seamen coming to American ports.

I would give even the Chinaman, the Lascars, or any other cheap labor on foreign ships, the right to leave their ships in any safe port.

I believe that for every Chinaman who comes ashore, some other Chinaman or some sailor of some other race must take his place when the ship goes to sea, thus leaving the population of this country the same in numbers as it was before, so that the argument of overrunning the country with cheap labor would not hold in a case like that.

I believe that it would be impossible to hire men to make up that crew for less than the wage paid on our clean, splendid American ships.

I believe that this theory has worked out already as predicted by Andrew Furuseth, and I understand that practically all American shipowners now acknowledge the facts.

I further believe that all American ships should be relieved of taxes. I believe that ships are desirable, as well as necessary things.

I believe in making it easy to get necessary and desirable things.

I believe that the higher we tax these things, the harder we make them to get.

I believe that if a man makes or buys a ship, it is his, because he bought it or made it.

There are some things that no man made, but which men are permitted to buy and keep, many times out of use.

I refer to land, which no man ever made. The Creator presumably made the land for all of his creatures.

Under the present system we permit a few of the creatures to own it and to charge other creatures for the privilege of using it.

This, to my mind is our greatest special privilege.

Some people say that there is lots of government land even yet, subject to settlement, but, I believe that the land you can get for nothing is the dearest land you can buy. The unimproved value which attaches to land is clearly a community made value.

If all of the population should move away from the community, the land would cease to have any value.

They could move their furniture, their horses, sheep or cattle with comparatively small loss, to some other location, but they could not move their land.

They might even move their houses, or perhaps a whole town, as they have recently done at Hibbing, Minn.

If then the value which attaches to land is a community made value, why not take that value for community purposes?

In amount it would be sufficient and far more than sufficient to pay all of the present expenses of any existing government.

If so, why go on taxing ships and other useful things?

We can tax shoes so high that men, women and children would have to go barefooted. We can tax food so high, that they would have to go hungry. But, we can tax land up to its full annual rental value, and we would have no less land. We might in reality have more, for land held out of use for speculative purposes, is leaving us just about as bad off as if it did not exist at all. If we want more ships and better ships, we should not fine the men for their enterprise who build ships and operate them.

Men who own idle land and hold it for a rise are the barnacles which gather on the Ship of Civilization. They impede its progress and they retard its movements.

If so, they are clearly an undesirable feature of our existence. If that is true, we should get rid of them as soon a possible.

When dogs become too thick in a community we raise the tax and thin them out. Perhaps if it works on the dog, it might work on the idle landlord, who keeps his land idle, while men go hungry for what that land would produce.

Now perhaps none of this is new to you. It is the philosophy of the late Henry George, of whom I have been a disciple for more than

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL.

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 7, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., C. F. May presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; plenty of members ashore.

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 13, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Ed. Andersen presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium, a good number of members ashore. Balloted for delegates to the California State Federation of Labor.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL. Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects fair.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping fair; members scarce.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Aug. 31, 1920.
Shipping and prospects fair.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 11, 1920.
Shipping Medium. Prospects fair.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 2, 1920.
Shipping fair. Good for Cooks.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 514. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 2, 1920.
No meeting; no quorum. Shipping good. Men scarce.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

Richard T. Jones, No. 2528, a native of England, age 58. Died at Vancouver, B. C., September 2, 1920.

Erick Erickson, No. 784, a native of Sweden, age 33. Drowned from schooner "Camalo" at Port Townsend, Wash., August, 1920.

Peter Ackerson, No. 100, a native of Denmark, age 69. Died on board S. S. "Northwestern," September 7, 1920.

John Gronos, No. 1321, a native of Finland, age 30. Drowned at Lokonak, Alaska, this summer.

August Kolod, No. 1076, a native of Germany, age 35. Drowned at Lokonak, Alaska, this summer.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

AN INTERESTING MEETING

An interested and enthusiastic crowd of able Seamen attended the regular meeting of The Eastern and Gulf Sailors Association, held at Headquarters, 67-69 South St., New York, on Monday evening, Aug. 30th, 1920, to hear the report of President Andrew Furuseth, concerning the outcome and results of the International Seamen's conferences at Genoa, Italy and Brussels, Belgium, whence he has just returned, together with his co-delegates, Comrades Oscar Carlson, Secretary of the Marine Firemen Oilers and Watertenders Union, and Paul Scharrenberg, Editor of The Seamen's Journal.

Comrade Furuseth always attracts a large audience among seamen, but on this occasion, he fairly outshone himself.

It was certainly a record meeting and the big audience hall at our new headquarters was packed to capacity with an expectant crowd of seafaring men, all eager to hear at first hand the report of our veteran president and learn just how far the gospel of Seamen's Emanicipation had progressed among the European nations.

Comrade Charles Thorsen presided at the meeting, and among those present was Comrade Harry P. Griffin, president of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association and Mr. E. V. Roren, business agent of the Scandinavian branch of the same organization.

The meeting was called to order at 6 P. M., and continued in session until after 10 o'clock.

After the routine business has been disposed of Comrade Furuseth was given the floor and made an Address lasting about one hour.

But inasmuch as his report and the report of the entire delegation is to appear in The Journal presently we will not presume to dwell upon it here.

Certain points were made clear, however, in President Furuseth's address.

The League of Nations, its signatory powers and the European shipowners all favor the perpetuation of contract slavery in the sea-service and will concede nothing to the freedom and enfranchisement of seamen except under compulsion.

The European seamen, on the other hand, while still to some extent wedded to ancient ideals are becoming awakened to the principle of American Inpedendence and individual prerogative as embodies in the La Follette Law, and reasserted in the Jones Act. The principle, we believe, will ultimately prevail in Europe as well as in the United States, for the campaign of education already established there by the International Seamen's Union of America will continue to persist and persevere until the European seamen are emancipated, or the European powers dethroned.

In addition to Comrade Furuseth's report several very important subjects were discussed at the last meeting, and some of them finally disposed of.

The most important of all these was the decision to begin a campaign of education along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

The educational work will proceed in three separate and distinct forms.

The first of these will consist of a course of interesting and instructive discourses to be delivered and continued indefinitely from branch to branch, and port to port among all classes of seamen, both union and non-union throughout the Atlantic and Gulf Coast.

The purpose of these discourses will be to instruct the rising generation of Seamen in regard to their duties and obligations to the Merchant Marine, and its officers, to their country as well as to their Union and towards each other, and in regard to their own rights and privileges as American seamen under the Constitution and laws of the United States.

This is a course of instruction of which the great majority of present-day seamen stand badly in need, and one which neither the Government, The Shipping Board, the Shipowners, nor the Sea-Service Bureau, or roof garden instructors have ever found time to adopt.

For the purposes of disseminating the doctrines of Unionism, true seamanship, loyal citizenship and lawful obedience among American seamen, it is now proposed to inaugurate a co-operative campaign of oral instruction along our coasts, to be conducted by our most capable and best qualified expounders under the joint and collective auspices and jurisdiction of the Sailors', Firemen and Stewards' Unions of the Atlantic and Gulf.

For the prosecution of this difficulty and exacting duty, the Sailors have unanimously and inequivocally declared in favor of Mr. G. H. Brown, former business agent of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association at New York, and the Stewards will, in all probability cast a similar mantle upon the broad shoulders of Mr. H. P. Griffin, president of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf.

Those acquainted with the wonderful and courageous records of these two gentlemen in their respective organizations will not wonder at the choice made by their admiring comrades.

Their long, loyal and oft times desperate experiences as organizers and leaders, their consummate knowledge of Maritime and industrial affairs, their broad-minded wisdom, integrity, honesty, determination and practical sense, as well as their well known oratorical powers and convincing logic, all stamp Comrades Griffin and Brown as the first and famous choice among their fellows as expounders of truth.

The second plan in our program of education, which was likewise introduced and outlined by President Furuseth, is entirely practical and technical in purpose and character.

This is to give to our younger and less experienced members thorough and explicit instruction in all the arts, mysteries and principles of practical seamanship as developed and applied to nautical science, since the days of old Jonah, and long before.

The Sailors have now acquired their own property at 67-69 Front st., New York, where their permanent headquarters are established. On the top floor of the building is a very large vacant floor, with large windows front and rear and a very lofty roof with great skylights open to the light and air of Heaven. This space, not now in use, would make an ideal sail or rigging loft.

For some time past, the Sailors have been debating how best to utilize or profitably dispose of it.

It has now been decided to remodel and equip it as a first-class nautical school, or academy, if that sounds better—where young seamen can acquire by demonstration and practice the technical and constructive knowledge, now so badly lacking, and so sorely needed in the safe and expert management of the American Merchant Marine.

Long experience has shown and numerous deplorable incidents have demonstrated both the wisdom and necessity of such a course of instruction.

No steamer ever made a sailor, neither did a training ship. Young men emerging from the Navy are worse than useless in the Merchant Marine, until they have undergone a special course of nautical training in sailing ship methods. Neither the training ships, the recruiting camps, or the Sea-Service Bureau ever do, or ever can impart such instruction.

The boys are not to blame. They are being recruited from all walks of life and the public schools to the Merchant Marine without regard to their previous inclinations or personal fitness.

All they learn in the training ships is what they learn from each other—usually not creditable, either to themselves or their preceptors.

In the Navy they learn that everything on earth must be gained by fighting, and they enter the Merchant Marine, determined to fight or bluff their way through, and collect their wages, rations and overtime, whether they are able to earn it or not. Such a state of affairs, as now exists in the American Merchant Marine in regard to efficiency, loyalty and discipline is positively dangerous and detrimental to all concerned, and disgraceful to the service.

In order to correct these abuses, therefore; to elevate the service, to creat respect for real seamen, and true seamanship, to inspire loyalty, devotion and honor among those dedicated by nature to the service of Neptune, and to uphold the American flag upon the high seas and thooughout the world, The Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association will establish this school for the selective training of American youth and the Maritime honor of our country.

The nautical school will be opened as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed and the requisite gear, tools, machinery and other equipment procured.

The school will be open to all members free of charge, and will be under the immediate supervision of competent and practical seamen instructors. Here will be a splendid opportunity for ambitious young men to learn the secret artifices of their chosen craft, and one we believe of which they will eagerly avail themselves.

Boys and young men intending to qualify for officers certificates, should be among the first to enroll in our nautical school, for to send a man to the bridge without practical instruction, is like sending a student to college without elementary education.

If the plan proves successful in New York, as doubtless it will, it can be easily extended to other large ports of the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, so that all our young members may be given a chance to qualify and excel in their chosen vocation.

A similar project is now on foot in the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Associations also, and we believe it will be realized in the not distant future.

This organization has been desirous of establishing a practical cooking school for the benefit of its members for some time past, and only the present congested and overcrowded condition of its building at headquarters has prevented the plan from coming to fruition.

The Stewards are now negotiating, however, for the purchase of a suitable building of their own, and as soon as it has been acquired the establishment of a complete and commodious cooking school will be one of the first orders of business.

Bad cooking, bum seamanship and base manners have been the three worst banes of the American Merchant Marine for the last five years.

They have constituted the principal causes of all the ill-feeling, quarrels and discontent that have developed on shipboard, between man and man, and between mates and men in the new Merchant Marine.

It is now proposed, therefore, by the Seamen's Unions to eliminate these evil conditions and malicious tendencies by the intensive and practical instruction, and moral elevation of our own members at our own expense.

The Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders' Union have not as yet had time to act upon these programs, but that they will do so at a very early date is beyond doubt. That the men in the engine room department need education in regard to their duties, and instruction regarding their rights as well as men in other branches of the service is obvious, and that the Firemen's Union need a general organizer in the field as well as the Sailors' and Stewards' Unions, is also indisputable. It is more than likely, therefore, that the organized firemen of the Atlantic and Gulf will soon elect a special organizer to co-operate with those chosen by the Sailors' and Stewards' in their campaign of education along the Coast.

The third branc hof education to be launched by the Seamen's Unions will be literary and military and will be conducted through the columns of The Seamen's Journal. To instruct American seamen in the rights, duties and obligations of seamen; to teach all seamen under the American flag the rights, duties and obligations of American citizenship and to repeal and dispel and truthfully counteract the evil and malicious propaganda inspired by shippressed upon the public and political minds of the country by five years of relentless and malicious propanda inspired by shipowners, both native and foreign, and disseminated by well-paid prevaricators and intellectual prostitutes of all stripes, against the Seamen's Unions and the Seamen's Act.

The only effective way to defend and preserve the Seamen's Act is to tell the truth about it, and exploit the actual conditions of sea-service obtaining in the Merchant Marine, both before and subsequent to its enactment.

Truth is mighty and must prevail, but the propagandists have always scrupulously avoided facts, or else belied them in discussing the LaFollette Law for public perversion.

The pig that keeps still sucks the most swill and the paper that stands pat and gobbles the most lies without squirming likewise gets the corporation advertising.

The high-browed, but low minded publishers are well aware of that, so they will gag at nothing with a golden husk on it.

It is up to us old sailors, therefore, with long experience and everlasting memories to set the public right as to facts, and confound the prevaricators as to fabrications.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

PROGRESS AT PORT ARTHUR

An interesting communication from Comrade William Miller, agent of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association at Port Arthur, Texas, is at hand.

The chief topic of Comrade Miller's letter is the clearing of the American full-rigged ship "Marion Chilcot" from Beaumont, Texas, for Aalborg, Denmark, with a full union crew from first mate to cabin boy.

"This," says Comrade Miller, "is the first time in the history of the port that a square-rigger ever got away without paying tribute to the crimps The money and time saved," he adds, "is considerable."

That the cost of engaging a crew at Port Arthur through the crimps would have been "considerable," is an indisputable fact. Like all parasites the crimp is out for blood, and he will suck his victim white every time he gets hold.

When a crew is wanted for a square-rigger at Port Arthur the head crimp will take a vacation at the expense of the ship. He will travel all over the Gulf, to Galveston, New Orleans, Mobile, and sometimes as far as Savannah, Ga., ostensibly looking for seamen, and incidentally squandering the ship's money on fun and riotous living.

Then, when his vacation and rioting are over he comes back with a bunch of hoboes trailing behind him, and their expenses as well as his own are charged up to the ship, and sometimes whacked up with the captain.

Crimps all over the world regard square-riggers as their own peculiar graft and will fight to the last ditch to retain control of them.

The prohibition of advances to seamen staggered them for a while and most of them disappeared from the business, but the more crafty and persevering among them soon learned that many masters and owners of sailing ships would rather pay graft or accept bribes than conduct their business honorably through the fair and square medium of the Seamen's Union.

The organized seamen at Port Arthur refuse to ship through the crimps, and most of the narrow-visioned shipowners would rather deal with the devil (which they usually do) than allow the seamen to control their own labor.

It is a reasonable proposition to assume that no honest, right-minded shipowner would deal with Crimp & Co. at ruinous and riotous expense, when he could have capable seamen ready to hand with no expense at all, if there were not an ulterior purpose in his act.

Whenever the master of a sailing ship complains that he cannot get men except through the crimps, it is an open-face assurance that the agent of the Seamen's Union refuses to pay bribes or accept graft. The owners are usually willing to pay the tall water charges of Crimp & Co. and spread their losses over the public in order to escape the just demands of union seamen.

The master and owners of the "Marion Chilcot" have set a good example at Port Arthur in this instance and one we hope will be followed by their competitors.

Comrade Miller informs us that the "Marion Chilcot" was engaged for many years in the oil trade between San Francisco and the Hawaiian Islands, and that her skipper, Captain Anderson, is well known on the Pacific Coast. The ship, which was formerly owned by the Associated Oil Co. of California, has

(Continued on Page 11)

Labor's Economic Platform

Following is the Economic Platform adopted by the American Federation of Labor:

1. The abolition of all forms of involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime.
2. Free schools, free text books and compulsory education.
3. Unrelenting protest against the issuance and abuse of injunction process in labor disputes.
4. A work day of not more than eight hours in the twenty-four hour day.
5. A strict recognition of not over eight hours per day on all Federal, State or municipal work, and not less than the prevailing per diem wage rate of the class of employment in the vicinity where the work is performed.
6. Release from employment one day in seven.
7. The abolition of the contract system on public work.
8. The municipal ownership of public utilities.
9. The abolition of the sweat-shop system.
10. Sanitary inspection of factory, workshop, mine and home.
11. Liability of employers for injury to body or loss of life.
12. The nationalization of telegraph and telephone.
13. The passage of anti-child labor laws in States where they do not exist and rigid defense of them where they have been enacted into law.
14. Woman suffrage co-equal with man suffrage.
15. Suitable and plentiful playgrounds for children in all cities.
16. The Initiative and Referendum and the Imperative Mandate and Right of Recall.
17. Continued agitation for the public bath system in all cities.
18. Qualification in permits to build of all cities and towns, that there shall be bathrooms and bathroom attachments in all houses or compartments used for habitation.
19. We favor a system of finance whereby money shall be issued exclusively by the Government, with such regulations and restrictions as will protect it from manipulation by the banking interests for their own private gain.

DIMENSIONS OF THE U. S.

The gross area of the United States is 3,026,789 square miles. The land area amounts to 2,973,774 square miles, and the water area—exclusive of the area in the Great Lakes, the Atlantic, the Pacific, and the Gulf of Mexico within the three-mile limit—amounts to 53,015 square miles. These and other data determined or compiled by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, to show the limits of the continental United States contain some interesting facts.

The southernmost point of the mainland is Cape Sable, Fla., which is in latitude 25° 07′ and longitude 81° 05′. The extreme southern point of Texas is in latitude 25° 50′, and longitude 97° 24′. Cape Sable is therefore 49 miles farther south than the most southern point in Texas.

A small detached land area of northern Minnesota at longitude 95° 09′ extends northward to latitude 49° 23′.

The easternmost point of the United States is West Quoddy Head, near Eastport, Maine, in longitude 66° 57′ and latitude 44° 49′; the westernmost point is Cape Alva, Wash., in latitude 48° 10′, which extends into the Pacific Ocean to longitude 124° 45′.

From the southernmost point in Texas due north to the forty-ninth parallel, the boundary between the United States and Canada, the distance is 1,598 miles. From West Quoddy Head due west to the Pacific Ocean the distance is 2,807 miles. The shortest distance from the Atlantic to the Pacific across the United States is between points near Charleston, S. C., and San Diego, Calif., and is 2,152 miles.

The length of the Canadian boundary line from the Atlantic to the Pacific is 3,898 miles. The length of the Mexican boundary from the Gulf to the Pacific is 1,744 miles. The length of the Atlantic coast line is 5,560 miles and that of the Pacific coast line is 2,730 miles. The Gulf of Mexico borders the United States for 3,640 miles.

Nearly all maps of the United States show the parallels of latitude as curved lines and are likely to lead the ordinary observer to believe that certain eastern or western States are farther north than some of the central States that are actually in the same latitude. For this reason, one who is asked which extends farther south, Florida or Texas, is very likely to say "Texas," but, as stated, the mainland of Florida is nearly 50 miles farther south than the southermost point in Texas. For the same reason, when we consider the geographic positions of countries south of the United States we find that errors are likely to be made in estimating position or extent in longitude. Few realize that the island of Cuba, for example, if transposed directly north would extend from New York City to Indiana, or that Habana is farther west than Cleveland, Ohio, or that the Panama Canal is due south of Pittsburg, Pa., or that Nome, Alaska, is farther west than Hawaii.

METAL LIGHTER THAN ALUMINUM

The lightest metal now known that remains comparatively unaltered under ordinary atmospheric conditions is magnesium, which is only two-thirds as heavy as aluminum. Magnesium is a beautiful silvery-white metal that has been made in the United States only since 1915 and is now made at but three plants. It is known to comparatively few people and to most of those few chiefly as a silvery powder used for making flash lights in photography. It was imported from Germany for this use for many years. During the world war large quantities of powdered magnesium were made in the United States for use in star-shells designed to illuminate battle fields at night, as well as in special shells designed to show in the daytime exactly where the shells containing it exploded. The white cloud by day and the brilliant white pillar of fire by night—both striking features of the battle fields of the world war—were produced by the combustion of magnesium.

Magnesium in massive form, as sticks or rods, is used to deoxidize other metals in foundries and is a constituent of alloys. More magnesium is now used as a deoxidizer or scavenger in metallurgy than for any other purpose, but its employment in alloys is increasing and may eventually become the largest one. An alloy of magnesium and aluminum is used in making castings for aircraft engines and parts of airplanes. The skeleton of the British airship R-34, the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, is an alloy of aluminum and magnesium, and the yacht Resolute, the defender of the America's cup in the races in July, 1920, as well as the alternative defender the Vanitie, carried gaffs made of this alloy.

The demand for metallic magnesium has slackened since the war, however, and in 1919 its production in the United States amounted to 127,465 pounds, valued at $247,302, a decrease of 55 per cent in quantity and 60 per cent in value from 1918. A report on the magnesium industry in 1919, by R. W. Stone, can be obtained free on application to the Director, U. S. Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

TAX ON LAND VALUES

Opposition to the Ralston-Nolan bill for a 1 per cent tax on land values is fostered by big interests and "professional" farmers, says the Farmers' Open Forum, bulletin of allied farmers' organizations that maintain legislative headquarters in this city.

The bill exempts land values up to $10,000 and the Open Forum cites statistics to show that this measure will not affect bona fide farmers, whose land values average much less than $10,000.

The Open Forum refers to the 1907 official report of the New York City tax commission, which stated that the assessed value of the land of six square miles in the neighborhood of Central park (the most exclusive part of the city) is greater than the assessed value of all the real estate of the state of Missouri.

"In the New York Times of May 13," says the Open Forum, "is displayed on the front page the story of a $40,000,000 real estate deal. The project is the improvement of two city blocks by buildings to cost $25,000,000. The land is to be leased—not sold—for 21 years, at an aggregate rental of $15,000,000 or an average of over $700,000 a year.

"If any farmer will take a little time to figure what the value of these two city blocks is that can command a bare land value rental of $700,000 a year, estimated on any reasonable interest return basis, he will get a pretty clear idea of what is meant by land values, and where the great bulk of land values is to be found."

WOULD STOP OCEAN'S TIDE

Vice Chancellor Backes of Newark, N. J., has received enough publicity to qualify for the "movies" because of his decision that a union-shop contract "has found no judicial sponsor," and that a strike to enforce a union shop contract is illegal.

"In whatever form organized labor has asserted it (the union shop), the judiciary of the country," said the chancellor, "has responded uniformly that it is inimical to the freedom of individual pursuit guaranteed by the fundamental law of the land and contravenes public policy."

After the chancellor delivered this awesome verdict in an attempt to stop the ocean's tide he retired from the center of the stage while the various units of the trade union movement continue signing union shop agreements in increasing numbers.

The chancellor's wrath was directed at structural iron workers who refused to work for Donnell-Zane company, sub-contractors, on a building in this city, because they employed non-union iron workers on a job in New York city. The firm attempted to employ non-unionists on its Newark job, but the architect informed them that the contract called for union men. The sub-contractors refused to recognize that part of the contract and the architect notified the main contractor that the contract would be cancelled if union men were not used.

NO TAX ON IDLE LAND

"One of the curious things in connection with our war taxes," says the taxation press bureau, "is the fact that no federal tax has been laid upon idle land. Taxes have been laid upon incomes, upon profits and upon all manner of business, but not one cent does the federal government get from those who own the unused lands of the country, which have increased in value so enormously.

"This ownership represents a stupendous sum. The committee of manufacturers and merchants on federal taxation with headquarters at Chicago, estimates that between $50,000,000,000 and $60,000,000,000 worth of vacant land pays no taxes at all to the federal government. This leaves the whole war burden upon business and upon those who do the work of the country.

"To correct this evil the Ralston-Nolan bill, now pending in congress, lays a tax of 1 per cent on land values, without improvements over $10,000. This includes urban, agricultural, coal, oil, mineral, timber, water power lands, etc. The tax would return to the government about $1,000,000,000 and permit the remission of that amount from taxes on industry that enter into prices and increase the cost of living."

ATLANTIC COAST AND GULF

(Continued from Page 9)

recently been sold to George W. McNear of San Francisco.

Comrade Miller further reports that the four-masted bark "Falls of Clyde," owned by the same concern, has just arrived at Port Arthur to load for Denmark. We hope that her skipper will be equally successful in obtaining a crew through the Seamen's Union.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

AN EVENING AT HOME

For the first time since their new clubhouse and branch headquarters was opened on June 15, 1920, at 260 President street, Brooklyn, the Scandinavian section enjoyed the privilege of entertaining President H. P. Griffin, Secretary W. L. Cartledge and Business Agent David Grange of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf, at a special supper and fraternal and social gathering on the evening of August 20.

The event of the evening was the regular weekly meeting of the branch, which preceded the social functions. The meeting was largely attended by an intensely interested and highly enthusiastic audience of youthful Scandinavians, many of whom are still serving, though for American wages and practically under American conditions, in ships flying their own national flags.

All listened attentively and decorously to the stirring and illuminating addresses made by the visiting officials, lustily applauding every point scored by the speakers.

The English language was so well understood by the audience that no interpretation of the speakers' remarks was necessary.

After the meeting the house party and guests adjourned to the spacious mess-hall, where an elegant but substantial supper was served, and was highly enjoyed by all assembled.

After supper the entire company repaired to the meeting hall on the first floor, which had been cleared for action and set in order meanwhile.

So the auspicious evening ended with music, dancing, new stories and old songs, and social diversions and felicitations of the happiest kind.

To make the festivities more enjoyable and sociable, President Griffin and Secretary Cartledge brought some members of their families along to grace the affair. With Mr. Griffin was his son Harry, Jr., a well-grown lad of 15, who is now attending the high school and intends to learn all he can in order to become a prominent and successful union advocate like his daddy some day.

With Mr. Cartledge were Mrs. Cartledge and their youngest daughter, Ruth, aged nine.

Our combined business meeting and house party provided a most suitable and auspicious initiation of the Scandinavian Branch, which has been a unit of the International Seamen's Union of America just one year, having affiliated on August 30, 1919.

After the entertainment our guests were shown over the spacious and comfortable premises and expressed themselves as highly pleased and deeply impressed with all they saw. And Business Agent and Mrs. E. V. Roren were showered with well deserved and unstinted plaudits of praise and encouragement for their very efficient and unselfish services, both to their fellow countrymen and the International Seamen's Union.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

REPORT BY SCHARRENBERG

(Continued from page 2)

particular, expressed confidence that there would be no cause of complaint on that score.

On the question of revising the German seamen's law we had a long and interesting discussion. Paul Muller, for many years past the editor of the Seamen's official paper and the chief executive of the seamen's section of German Transport Workers' Union, had on previous occasions opposed the American proposals for "the right to quit," etc. It developed, however, that there had been an all-around misunderstanding upon the main points in the American program. At any rate, Paul Muller stated that since 1892 he, personally, had favored the abolition of imprisonment for desertion.

Altogether, the conference was a decided success—because it removed misunderstanding and on the issues of most vital importance to the world's seamen it resulted in a virtual agreement by the men who guide the destinies of the German Transport Workers' Union.

As regards the affiliation of this union with the International Seafarers' Federation it was said that they would not "beg to be admitted," but would consider an invitation to join.

Subsequently, at the Brussels meeting of the International Seafarers' Federation, the application for affiliation made by the independent German Seamen's Union was rejected.

Then, on motion of one of the delegates from the British Seamen's Union, the two factions of German seamen were urged to get together in one union and then come into the Federation.

I did not find it necessary to visit the Seamen's Union of Holland because there were ample assurances that the union would be ably represented at the Brussels conference. It should be noted that the representatives of the Holland seamen voted with the American delegates in the Genoa meeting.

The Belgian Seamen's Union, with headquarters at Antwerp, is an organization with several sections, as follows: Sailors and firemen, cooks and stewards, etc., boiler-scalers, ship-painters, and fishermen. Nearly all their officers speak several languages and I had no difficulty in making their acquaintance. It will suffice to say that delegates from the Belgian Seamen's Union changed their attitude toward the American proposals and voted for them at the Brussels conference.

Antwerp is one of the busiest ports on earth. It is now the starting point of 89 navigation companies, many of the lines going to all parts of the world. It is also the calling point of 40 foreign lines. This is in striking contrast to the cemetery-like aspect of the port of Hamburg.

Fraternally,

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.

WORTH WHILE SUGGESTIONS

(Continued from Page 7)

twenty-five years. I was also a personal friend and admirer of that grand man who has recently "Crossed the Bar". The late Hon. James G. Maguire, the author of the Maguire Act, the first law which went toward making the American Sailor free. If he had been permitted to have his way, he would have made the ships free too.

I believe that ships, and the movements of ships, are very much hampered by unnecessary red tape. I believe with Franklin K. Lane that, "The place for red tape is in the furnace."

In short, I believe in free trade. However, also quoting from the theory of Henry George, I would not only free trade from the exactions of the tax gatherers at our international borders, but I would free it from the exactions of the tax gatherers at home.

I believe in the same freedom for men that the birds enjoy—freedom to come—freedom to go—freedom to do as they please, provided—always provided, that they do not interfere with any other man's rights.

If I were a sea gull, sojourning at Santa Barbara say, living on sardines and other fish, and fish happened to get scarce, and I flew down the coast to San Pedro, where fish were more plentiful, would any other sea gull say, "Hold on there! You can't fish there unless you give me one third, or one half of what you catch!"

No, only man is foolish enough to tolerate such a system as that.

If you really want to encourage ships and shipbuilding, I beg to suggest that you ask the tax gatherers to get off of their backs.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175

BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588

CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842

MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street

TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666

SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue

CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:

Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer

Branches:

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W

SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131

CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666

TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823

CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866

MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543

CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:

Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary

Branches:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street

Branches:

VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214

SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street

Agencies:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street

Branches:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG .....Alaska
UNGA .....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205

STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

B. C. COAST STEWARDS

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....347 Pender Street W.

Labor News

In an appeal to members to pay their dues, the Fort Smith, Ark., Business Men's Club states that some of the receipts were used in the non-union shop campaign. These low wage advocates say. "Mr. Business Man, are you contributing your funds to fight the people who make it possible for you to be in business?"

The Wyandotte County District Court has set aside that portion of the Kansas "can't-strike" law which makes it illegal for one person to urge another person to strike. The court discharged a worker who was charged with "influencing." Opponents of the law say the decision is a body blow to the Peonage Act, as the court's ruling hits one of the most important provisions of the Allen plan. The State will papeal the decision.

In his report to the convention of the International Broom and Whisk Makers' Union, General Secretary-Treaasurer Boyer stated that during the past year "100 per cent. of our members have secured increased wages and improved conditions of employment through the organization, in most instances without a strike or any lengthy controversy. Practically all of the large broom centers are organized and in most of these places we have working agreements."

The average rice exports of the entire United States during the period from 1910 and 1914 were less than 20,000,000 pounds a year; today they run from 30,000,000 to 60,000,000 pounds a month. Last year California rice mills handled $21,000.000 worth of grain. The first commercial rice field in the State was planted in the Sacramento valley in 1912. The California rice growers prophesy they "will show the American people that rice is one of the finest foods in the world."

In a report issued by the Canadian Department of Labor this reference is made to affiliates of the A. F. of L.: "In Canada the international trade unions have a total membership of about 200,000; their policies are well known. In the industrial field they endeavor, by crafts, to negotiate agreements with employers by direct conference or arbitration, a strike always being a last resort."

Several shipbuilding and ship repair shops in Mobile, Ala., have declared for the non-union shop. Recently metal workers struck for higher wages and improved working conditions and now the yards declare for individual bargaining. They will employ union men, they say, but they want it understood that not enough will be employed to make effective any change in working conditions. This system is what the employers call the "American" plan.

Strikes in the coal industry are not affecting production, according to the United States Geological Survey. During the week ending August 28 bituminous coal mined totaled 11,174,000 tons. This is an increase of nearly 500,000 tons over the preceding week. Anthracite production totaled 1,200,000 net tons for the week ending August 28, an increase of 207,000 tons over the preceding week. During this period there were several thousand anthracite miners on strike in the Pittston (Pa.) district.

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson, Jack
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George

Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.

Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling

Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry

Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38

Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor

Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar

Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.

Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.

Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.

Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liiquest, Rudolf
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.

Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James

Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.

Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.

Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E.
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplorc, J.
Prinz, Carl

Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van

Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Simnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H.
Smith, C. J
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, F. L.
Sohnn, M
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R
Sternbach, J
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M
Svenson, Thure
Sverdrup, Walter
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash., Letter List

Anderson, Fred
Anderson, John (registered)
Anderson, E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Brandt, H.
Berke, C.
Barton, M.
Brun, Mattias
Bedford, A.
Bradsbery, Geo.
Carlson, Oscar
Forsman, Niels
Hansen, Johan G.
Hansen, H. O.
Hanson, Halvor
Halvorsen, Halvor
Halvorsen, Hans
Janson, John
Johanesen, Alf.
Johnson, Karl
Johannesen, Jonas
Johanson, Emil
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Kinnunnen, Ant.
Olsen, Alf
Petersen, Hans
Roneld, P.
Randmets, Mike
Risenius, Sven
Saro, W. R.
Smith, Carl Johan
Toren, Gustaf
Tourela, Erick
Vejvorda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Andersen, Oscar
Anderson, Hilding
A. L. N.
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Carlson, Gust
de Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob
Erickson, John
Groth, J.
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Hakanson, Ingvar
Isakson, Erick
Jacobsen, Jack
Johansen, F. C.
Johansen, Karl W.
Johnson, John
Karlson, George
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Leskinen, Fred
Levele, Ed.
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lauren, William
Lund, Frank
McNeill, Daniel Ross
Moxnes, Chris.
Mikelsen, P.
Newton, A. B.
Olofson, Charles
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olsen, George
Peterson, Frank
Rasmussen, Peter
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Witt.
Svenson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Wamsa, August Peter

Registered Letters

Cranzzi, Rosolino
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rasmussen, P.
Smith, R.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of John B. Isaacs will please notify Chas. F. Bullock, Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, 321 Twentieth street, Galveston, Texas. Matter of great importance. 3-31-20

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R.	$22.50
Eugene, John	22.50
Makinen, K.	22.50
Mattson, Geo. J.	22.50
Rehnstrom, A.	26.25
Sjoholm, J. W.	22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Rudolf Knutsson is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of his brother, J. Harvid Knutsson, a native of Trellerborg, Sweden, age 20, last heard from in New York, in April, 1918. Please address his brother, care Sailors' Union of the Pacific, 59 Clay street, San Francisco, Calif. 1-7-20

Albert Nord, a native of Sweden, is inquired for by his brother, David Nord, General Postoffice, Brisbane, Australia 5-19-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

INFORMATION WANTED

Any one knowing the whereabouts of Karl Reese, age 30, last heard of in Iquique, Chile, October, 1916, bark Herbert," will please notify George Zimera, Sailors' Union, P. O. Box 65, Seattle, Wash. 1-21-20

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Grondund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgail, Mikel
Person, Fritz.
Leonard
Rainhard, H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thuysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

Portland, Or., Letter List

Ahren, Wm.
Andersen, A. C
Andersson, Axel
Andersson, Carl
Anderson, A. B.
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Anderson, Gunnar
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakaihn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsic, Karl
Bach, Soren
Backman, Peter
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Gust
Bohm, Franz
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Davison, Jim
Diez, H.
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. E.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Enberg, Einar
Fogelberry, Harry
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gilkison, A. F.
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Gronbeck, H.
Gruber, J.
Halley, W.
Hanson, August
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Holland, E. A.
Heino, Gust
Henrikson, Geo.
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Irmey, Feodor
Jacobs, Fulton
Jernberg, Alfred
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Jones, E. L.
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kauko, Axel
Kelly, Norman
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Krause, Frank
Kristiansen, Wm. A.
Laine, A. A
Laine, John
Larsen, Hans
Larsson, Ragnar
Larson, C. J. -1632
Leisig, John
Lindner, John P.
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank E.
Malkoff, Peter
Matson, R. M.
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLeod, Angus
McLean, M. R.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Moyer, Geo. E.
Neilsen, H. J.
Nelson, Nels
Nelsson, C.
Neuling, G. A.
Nilsen, Christ
Norberg, John E.
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peterson, Mauritz
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Preston, E.
Pyne, J. W.
Raanes, Johan
Rader, Allen
Rautio, Jack
Reiman, Tovo H.
Rier, Earl W.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Saine, Arthur A.
Salonen, Victor
Salin, Toivo H.
Sandvik, S. G.
Scott, M.
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sutse, Michel
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Thomson, Henry
Thorsen, Chas
Tinstrom, A. R.
Tuhkanen, John J.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wikstrom, Carl
Willis, Samuel
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Fred L.
Worn, Otje

San Pedro Letter List

Aho, Jack
Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, C.
Andersen, C.
Anderson, Sven
Arentsen, John
Arnesen, Isak
Aspe, Theodor
Belmont, Joe
Bentley, Clifford
Bengtsson, Sigfried
Bergeson, B.
Berglund, Emil J.
Bergstrom, J
Brast, Sjomans
Braden, W. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Brown, Irving W.
Bye, Kristian
Burge, Larence
Cage, Tom
Carlsson, Chas.
Cariera, Peter
Carr, R. W.
Craig, Thomas
Cowan, Wm. L.
Church, C. E.
Davis, Orville
Daw, Walter
Deaver, Alvin
Desmond,, Albin
Doty, Erwin
Daunt, C.
Dreger, Jack
Dragich, Peter
Drennan, W. N.
Eliasen, John
Ek, William
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Evensen, Alex
Farrell, H. D.
Feeder, Geo.
Fickle, Omer
Fottinger, Karl A.
Folvik, Ludvig
Forde, Alfred
Frair, Enoch
Freiberg, P.
Franzell, A. H.
Freitag, F.
Gayton, H. L.
Grasson, Joe
Gronthal, Arthur
Golden, Roy
Gulbrand, Ulrik
Hansen, Olaf
Hellsten, G.
Hermanson, Carl
Holland, Jonnie
Hermanson, Carl
Hey, Ben.
Hickey, John
Hogstedt, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Hurley, Michael
Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Jacobsen, Tom
Janofy, Axel
Jensen, Marius
Jensen, Kristian
Jeeden, George
Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Johansen, Johan W.
Johansen, Carl
Johansen, J. -1432
Johnson, George
Johansen, J. -2314
Johnson, P. -2313
Johnson, Waldron
Jonassen, Johannes
Keel, Jewell
Kelty, Peter
Kenrich, Richard
Ketelsen, Frede.
Keegan, J.
Klieman, Otto
Klementsen, Alf
Kootz, Fred
Knudsen, Andrew
Kruse, Henry
Kristoffersen, Hans
Laine, John
Landborg, Chas.
Larsen, Johan -1542
Lauritzen, Ole
Levine, Carl
Lindholm, Chas.
Lill, Karl
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lowrey, John R.
Lodersen, John
Lorgeman, Fred
Lobeles, Jose
Lund, F. V. -2010
Lucander, Hjalmar
Maahs, Willy
Magnussen, John
Martinson, J.-2647
Mato, Alexander
McNeill, John
McGhee, E. J
McRae, Jack
Mize, J. H.
Mehrtens, Carl
Moor, Peter
Monson, Edvin
Moritz, W.
Murphy, Francis J.
Nauta, H.
Nankinen, Fred
Nelson, Ernest
Nelson, Charlie
Nelson, Gus
Nilsson, Edward
Ogren, Victor E.
Olofsen, O. A.
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Harold
Olsson, Otto
Pett, Dick
Petersen, Hugo
Peterson, August
Raaum, Harry
Rasmussen, Swend
Roberts, Bob
Roberts, J. W.
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred C.
Rod, Halfdan
Rossdam, Harry
Rosenthal, N.
Rohman, Pete
Runge, R.
Rueter, Amandus
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Sanders, Chas.
Sandberg, N. A.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Salin, Henry
Schladen, H.
Scaharry, Jacob
Schaumberg, W.
Scottol, Andrew
Scrivers, W.
Seland, Hans
Smith, Carl Johan
Soder, Paul
Strehle, F.
Strauss, Walter
Steen, Ivar
Stensland, Paul
Strom, Oscar
Stenberg, Alfred
Sterndock, John
Steffensen, Hans
Sundquist, Walter
Sunde, O.
Sullivan, Jack
Swindells, William
Swanson, Mr.
Swanson, Eric K.
Thomsen, Thomas
Treiberg, Peter
Veckenstedt, W.
Viscarra, Oscar
Voth, Gus
Wennerquist, Anton
Wilhelmson, Karl
Winkelman, Otto
Wilson, John
Woods, Claude F.
Wrobluvski, Paul
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

Packages

Hansen, Oscar W.
Nahinen, Fred
Roberson, Ole
Erickson, E. R.
Nanhinen, Fred.
Peters, J. M.
Pinnington, H. D.
Young, William
Zoerb, Walter

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

Books for You While at Sea

ADVENTURE — SEAMANSHIP
ROMANCE—HISTORY—TRAVEL
SCIENCE—GREAT MEN'S LIVES

Books to Help You Spend Idle Hours in a Pleasant and Worth While Way

For a Free Crew's Library Exchangeable at Any Time

Apply to

American Library Association

34 Sacramento Street San Francisco

Phone Sutter 6985

Or to other A. L. A. Agencies in Almost Any American Port

These books are provided free for your use by the people of the United States through the American Library Association.

When you have finished with them, they may be exchanged for another collection at any office of the American Library Association, or they may be exchanged for any A. L. A. collection on board another boat.

In fairness to the men on the next ship receiving this collection you should take reasonable care to prevent loss or damage to any book.

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST.

SAN FRANCISCO

INFORMATION WANTED

The Centrale Bond Van Transportarbeiders have placed in my hands claim of the father and mother of L. Verhoef, seaman who met his death on the S. S. "Balosaro" April 29, 1920. An old spring line broke, curled around Verhoef's left leg and yanked him on to the winch while he was operating it. Before it could be stopped his leg was taken off. He died two hours later at the hospital. Will members of the crew please report here promptly. The master has made an entry in the log book to the effect that the deceased met with his death through intoxication, which statement we believe to be utterly false. I am acting for the dependent relatives. It is the duty of seamen to tell the truth. Your dependents may be in the same position some day.—S. B. Axtell.

8-25-20

Home News

President Wilson has officially invited former Premier Orlando of Italy to visit the United States.

Railroads were authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce new freight rates and passenger fares until November 1 without observing the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act.

One hundred and fifty-one convictions have been obtained in the campaign of the Department of Justice against profiteering. Since the campaign was instituted 1854 arrests have been made and 1499 indictments returned.

An offer of $160,000 for the naval ordnance plant at Dayton, O., submitted by John F. Ohmer of Dayton, is being considered by the Navy Department. The plant was purchased during the war for the manufacture of fire control instruments.

Contingents of the United States Army are being maintained in ten widely separated sections of the world. Out of a total strength of 203,870, units in continental United States comprise 153,000; in the Philippines, roughly 20,000; Germany, 15,690; Hawaii, 4600; Panama, 4350; Porto Rico, 1500; China, 1500; Alaska, 890; France, 138; and England, 13.

Retail sugar prices will not drop before January 1, and they may increase, John B. Floyd, special agent of the Department of Justice "flying squadron" of profiteer hunters, announced after a conference with officials of three large refining companies and representatives of wholesale grocers. The possibility of a greater sugar shortage than was felt last year also was indicated by Floyd.

During the first six months of 1920, 57,080,740 pounds of rice were exported from San Francisco to foreign ports, the Dutch East Indies, Chile and Canada taking most of the shipments. In addition, a quantity of rice imported into San Francisco from China and Siam were re-exported to Colombia and other southern countries. It is bought by Chinese, who decline to eat Japanese or American rice which is of the Japanese type.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has assumed jurisdiction over the Mackay companies, known as the Postal Companies and the Commercial Cable Company, and ordered them to file annual reports beginning from 1917 and to make full statements of their books and records. The Mackay companies had refused to report to the Commission, but afterward a stipulation was signed admitting the Commission's jurisdiction only over the lines of the companies situated within the United States.

Tentative plans for the construction of a large dirigible hangar at the Naval aviation base on North Island, San Diego, Cal., was announced by Secretary Daniels. Although the Army, which also makes use of the island as an aviation base, has offered some objections to the project, the Secretary said he believed these could be overcome through agreement of the joint aeronautical board. The projected hangar would be 1000 feet long and 100 feet high, and would be used to house the first Navy dirigible assigned to the Pacific Coast.

Domestic and Naval

Bitter denunciation of the Denver daily press because of its treatment of the street car men's strike in that city marked the convention proceedings of the State Federation of Labor. A strong agitation for a daily newspaper, controlled by organized labor, was developed.

The ship "Montauk," 1366 tons, en route from Cebu, Philippine Islands, to Auckland, New Zealand, went ashore seven miles northeast by east of Line Island in Manning straits, Solomon group, August 4, and is believed to be a total loss. Captain B. L. McGrath and a crew of about fifteen men were saved.

The advance of $1.50 a pound in the price of net twine is a serious matter for the fishermen of British Columbia, as the fishing industry is one of the most important in the Province. The advance brings the price of nets to $3.40 and $3.50 per pound, which means that a net costing $300 before the rise will cost $450. In 1915 net twine sold at $1.63 to $1.70 per pound.

Extensive harbor improvements have been planned for the two chief ports of the Canary Islands, Las Palmas (Grand Canary) and Santa Cruz (Teneriffe). These projects, which have been approved by the government at Madrid, include new wharves, warehousing facilities and everything needed by a modern port with a large maritime traffic. It is estimated that the execution of the plans will cost about $10,000,000 for each place.

Great Britain has initiated diplomatic conversations with the American government as to the liability of the United States for expenditures necessitated by the detention in American ports of the seven former German liners allocated to this country for the homeward movement of American troops. The ships were held up by the Shipping Board after their surrender by the War Department, but finally were delivered to England.

The Shipping Board announces that it has entered into a contract with the Atlantic Gulf Oil Corporation for supplying crude and fuel oil to be delivered over a period of one year beginning on or about January 1, 1921, in cargo lots at the supplier's terminal, Tecomate, Mexico, as follows: 6,000,000 barrels of fuel oil of a minimum gravity of 15° Beaume, at $1.25 per barrel, including taxes; 9,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum of a minimum gravity of 20° Beaume, at $1.25 per barrel, including taxes. The Shipping Board is to provide the tank steamers to transport the oil.

Japanese fisheries in South Saghalien and the Russian maritime province unmolested by the Bolsheviki have been able to make good profits. Fishing activities in that region are in the hands of the Russo-Japanese Fishery Company, which is engaged in catching cod, herring and salmon. There are thirteen fishing grounds in Saghalien, operated by approximately 3,000 fishers of this company. Thirteen steamers of over a thousand tons each operate in this region and five others in Kamchatka, while five canneries are run in both districts. Herring fishing shows a decrease this year, but that of crabs and salmon promises to be highly satisfactory.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manager, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Adolfsson, John
Allison. Beniamin
Almon, L.
Altonen, Carl
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Andersen, N. F.
Andersen, S. P.
Andreasen, H. -1477
Andersen, H.
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Anderson, Frank
Anderson, Ingmar
Anderson, Johan
Andersson, C. -2001
Andersson, G. A.
Andersson, G. S.
Anderson, John
Anderson, Julius
Andersson, O. L. -1363
Andersson, C. B. -797
Arneson, Aug.
Aso, Gustav
Attaberry, Clarence
Augustin, H.
Aylward, Ja

Backe, C. V.
Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Bandel, Curt
Bang, Oscar
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Behni, W. A.
Bendixen, Hans
Bergstrom, G. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Bews, James
Bjorklund, Gotfrid
Blair, Frances
Block, Paul
Blomgren, C. A.
Blomgreen, A.
Bloom, Pete
Boerner, P. F.
Borgeson, Hilding
Botsford, R. D.
Boyland, O. J.
Bratt, A. W.
Brander, Wm.
Brauner, C. A.
Broman, Karl
Broomhead, R.
Broshear, A. O.
Brown, H. W.
Bryning, Wm.
Bryning, Walter
Buckner, Chas. W.
Burgraff, Alb.
Burke, Gunnar

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, August
Carlson, Gustaf
Carlson, John
Carlson, Axel
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Magnus P.
Carlson, O. -1839
Carlson, Peter
Carlsson, J.
Carlsson, John -861
Carpenter, Harold
Cavanaugh, H. W.
Chaplin, Eddie J.
Chilcott, Geo.
Christensen, C. D. -1042
Christian, Jim
Christen, Bruno
Christensen, Jorgen -1731
Christensen, Martin
Clarke, Matthew
Clausen, Louis
Clever, Hugo
Clug, Fredrick
Cobb, Ralph H.
Colman, J.
Conley, Irwin
Cooper, C. E.
Coulyou, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dabls, Ogden
Dahlgren, Wm. A.
Davis, Warren
DeGuire, Ray
DeMario, Thos.
Demorest, C. E.
Delaney, G.
Dell, E. O.
DeMar, Tho.
Dietz, Arnold
Dittman, Rudolf
Domke, Willi
Donnelly, George F.
Drange, F. S.
Drennen, W. N.
Dommelen, G. J.
Dreyer, Jack O.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Dumas, C.
Dunwoody, G.
Dushane, Matt

Eaton, Lawrence
Eckleberry, H.
Eide, B.
Eide, W.
Ekeland, I.
Eklof
Ellingsen, Harold
Ellis, F. L.
Endemann, M.
Ennus, Pito
Erlandson, K. B.
Even, Frank
Evensen, Andrew

Fagerberg, Ivan
Fagerly, O.
Farevoog, C. M.
Farrell, Bernand
Fellman, Geo. E.
Fick, Max
Fjellman, George
Fletcher, Jos.
Freese, Paul
Fredricksen, O.
Fredricksson, F. O.
Frost, Peter
Fuller, Geo. E.

Ganser, Joe
Gardell, Joe
Gardes, F. J.
Germenis, Socrates
Gonzales, O. J.
Graham, Ray
Grainge, Arnold
Graham, Thos.
Grady, Will. A.
Granberg, Fred
Gregory, M. N.
Green, Lawrence
Griffin, J. R.
Grinfelt, Geo.
Gunderson, H. T.
Gutmann, Paul C. M. -1123

Hagemeyer, Gus
Hagen, Horace
Halder, Henry
Hale, Kingsley
Hallit, Frank
Halvorsen, Erling
Halvorsen, Isak
Hammond, Robert
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, Antonius
Hansen, Hans M.
Hansen, H. O.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Knud
Hansen, Harold
Hansen, S. P.
Hansen, Carl
Hanschman, Wm.
Hanson, Olaf
Harbst, J. D
Hartwig, Walter
Harris, T. L.
Harvey, Earl S.
Haunt, C.
Hein, M.
Heis, G. L.
Heis, J. S.
Heldal, Trygve
Helden, H. van
Hessin, B.
Heaps, James
Herold, J. M.
Hellikson, H.
Heven, Horace
Heywood D. L.
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hobbs, Frank M.
Hoffman, Ferdinand
Hoglander, Martin
Hommilnell, Geo.
Hollkamp, C.
Holbrook, G. A.
Holdaway, C. G.
Hood, Alex
Huberts, Emil
Huter, Chas.
Huber, C. L. -2846
Hunter, Ernest
Huggins, P. A.
Hughs, Tom

Ibsen, Christian
Ireland, H.
Isakson, Karl

Jacklin, Charles
Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jacobsen, Herman
Jahnke, Paul
Jahnke, Richard
Jakullis, John
Jansson, A. L.
Jansson, Fred.
Janson, John A.
Jansson, Hj.
Jansson, John
Jarvinen, Johan
Jenni, Jack A.
Jens, Otto
Jensen, E. -1987
Jensen, Chas. Chr.
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jensen, A. J. -2708
Jensen, Pete
Jespersen, M.
Jewell, Al. M.
Johannsen, Carsten
Johansen, Eilert
Johansen, F. -880
Johannesen, Johannes
Johansen, Anton
Johannesen, J. -1441
Johnsen, H. -2213
Johanson, E. -2715
Johanson, H.
Johansson, Gustav
Johnson, A. Emil
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johnson, Edw.
Johnson, E. L.
Johansson, Bernad
Johnson, Walter
Jonsson, J. H. -2951
Jorgensen, Johannes
Jorgensen, F.
Josephson, Ben
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William
Juniper, Foster P.

Kaaveland, T.
Kaernbach, Hugo
Kallio, F.
Kallio, Frank
Kallio, F. A.
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlsson, E. -1739
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Keinast, Mike
Kenansky, Adam
Keller, Wm.
Kierne, G. H.
Kihlman, Gunnar
Kine, Conrad
King, Allan
Kinnie, E. J.
Kirby, Geo.
Klanke, Kenneth
Klemmetsen, Alf.
Klemmensen, Eddy
Klimon, Otto
Kluge, Martin
Knutsen, B. R.
Knuttson, Rudolf
Kolustow, A.
Kooistram, Sam
Kraal, J.
Krausem, Wm.
Kristofferson, A. B.
Kron, A. H.
Kruse, Einar
Kuron, Hemming

Laine, Arthur A.
Laine, Kasper
LaMadrid, R.
Lange, Henry
Langmann, Wm.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen, Lambert
Larsen, Sigruid
Larsen, G. -2297
Larsen, John -2012
Larsen, G. B.
Larsson, L. H.
Larrsson, Jack
Lau, Gustav
Leegaard, Rasmus
Lefter, John A.
Lehtonen, Hj. O.
Lema, Angel
Leskinen, F. A.
Lewis, Albert M.
Liesen, W.
Lind, C.
Lindegrantz, Fred
Lindquist, Chas. S.
Lindroos, Fred
Locke, James E.
Locwende, Nickolas
Lofgren, R.
Lohne, Edw.
Loland, B. L.
Loning, Herman
Lund, A. A.
Lundquist, Ralph A.
Lych, H.
Lydersen, Peder

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Makares, S. J.
Mannonen, Niels
Mandmetz, Michael
Manzano, Luis
Marker, Andrew
Marshall, Ira
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattos, Mario P.
Mahaffey, Cecil
Mathisen, Hans
Mattson, Hilding
Mattson, Victor
McCoy, J. L. -2904
McEvoy, Peter
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McCarthy, Harood
McManus, Peter
Melander, Gustaf
Meyers, J. E.
Midgette, Frank W.
Mikelsen, Bern.
Miller, R. E.
Millert, Carl
Moberg, Alf.
Mol, J. W.
Moller, Fritz
Moonan, Thomas
Moritz, W.
Morris, Francis
Moore, H. L.
Morris, Jimmie
Morrison, Donald
Moulas, Nicholas
Murray, E. J.

Nannestad, Arthur
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, Jerome
Nelson, Nils E.
Nelson, Steve
Nelson, C. -302
Nelson, C. R.
Nesson, Ralph
Neumann, H. 4123
Neveau, Thomas
Newton, A.
Nickerson, Phillip
Niklasson, Justus
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nilsson, Emil
Nilsson, Edward
Nielsen, Jens
Nilsen, Hans L.
Nilsson, John
Nilsson, K. L. -807
Nolen,
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordquist, Otto
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nordgren, Ragnar
Nordlund, Albert
North, Jesse I.
Nummelin, Arthur
Nuter, Alex

Oad, John
O'Brien, Larry
Ohlsson, Hj.
Ogren, V. E.
O'Leary, Patric
Olsen, Fred
Olsen, Magnus
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Svedrup B.
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsen, Alf
Olsen, C. -1412
Olsen, Eugene
Olson, Harald
Olson, Ed.
Onno, Tobias
Ostlund, John
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Ozolin, Jan

Page, J. N.
Paksis, T.
Parker, Bert
Parrish, Arthur L.
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, Lewis
Pedersen, L. M.
Perrson, Albert
Permin, Jens
Petersen, Axel L.
Petersen, Bjarne A.
Petersen, Jens
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Pilkinton, Homer
Post, Albert
Potter, E. R.
Price, Arthur
Prusch, A.
Publicatus, A.
Punis, Tony

Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Rasmusen, Rudolpf
Rasmussen, Aksel
Rasmussen, Emil
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Reese, Luois
Richardson, Edwin
Rillukka, John
Rier, E. W.
Rogers, Thos. G.
Rollo, R.
Rommel, Andrew
Ronn, E.
Rose, J.
Ross, H. E.
Rosenberg, L. F. K.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Rutter, Amandus
Ryan, Patrick

Saarinen, K.
Saharoff, John
Sampson, Carl
Samuelson, E. -2888
Samuelson, Mentor
Sanders, Oscar
Sanne, Rudolf
Sanjer, Sajer
Saunders, Dewey A.
Scanlon, David P.
Schmees, Herman
Schmidt, E. H.
Schneidau, Heinrich
Schreff, Paul
Sederholm, J. R.
Seiffert, John
Seivert, Albert
Selenski, Frank
Sexton, Harry J.
Siems, Lewis
Sigrist, George
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Skogman, W.
Sjoberg, Silas
Skaar, Oskar M.
Slattery, Harry
Small, E. R.
Smedsvig, O. B.
Smith, John H.
Smith, Geo. B.
Smith, A. G.
Solberg, Bernt P.
Soneson, Wilhelm
Sorensen, Jorgen H.
Sovdsnes, O. Petersen
Spence, O. L.
Stanford, Harry
Steinberg, John
Stensland, Paul
Stone, Mervyn
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Struth, O.
Stang, A.
Stenensen, A.
Stewart, William
Stone, Wicktor
Strandberg, O.
Svengard, J.
Swinka, Albert

Tacie, John
Tallaksen, Arthur
Tandberg, Einar
Takkis, John
Taylor, Sam C.
Tellefson. Emil
Thomas, Johnie
Thomas, Nelson
Thomasen, Olaf
Thompson, Clifford
Thomsen, Chr.
Thorn, Arvid
Thomas, Frank
Thomas, Fred
Thomphson, James
Thompson, J. W.
Tillman, Chas.
Timmers, H. P.
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tjersland, Sverre
Tohtz, R. C.
Torson, Andrew
Touzel, R.
Trykin, Gustaf
Tucker, Harold J.
Tufty, C. J.
Turner, W. A.

Vargas, Martina
Vierr, W.
Vitek, Edward
Vitol, A.
Wapper, John
Ware, T. F.
Waterman, J. K.
Weber, C. W.
West, Frank
Whitesel, C. W.
Wilks, J.
Willmann, Wm.
Wink, Peter
Wittenburg, D.
Woods, Dick

PACKAGES

Allison, Ben
Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Corneliusen, M.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Egan, John
Engstrom, Edw.
Frizzell, Riley
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Goodman, Tony
Griffin, J. R.
Halvorsen, Isak
Henrikson, Ernst
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Jansonu, C. J. W.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
Ketelsen, Fred
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Lundquist, Ralph
Malmin, T.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Mortensen, K. A.
Mortensen, Bjarne
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Sternica, Carl
Stranberg, P.
Tillsten, Jack
Travers
van Vleet, F. B.
Wahtje, W. H.
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN. Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

19 East Street, Foot of Ferry Bridge
Wholesale—OUTFITTER—Retail
Everything for the man that goes to sea
SEAMEN AND FISHERMEN
GEO. A. PRICE
IS RIGHT
U. S. Sea Boots | Navy Flannels | Tower's Oil Skins

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

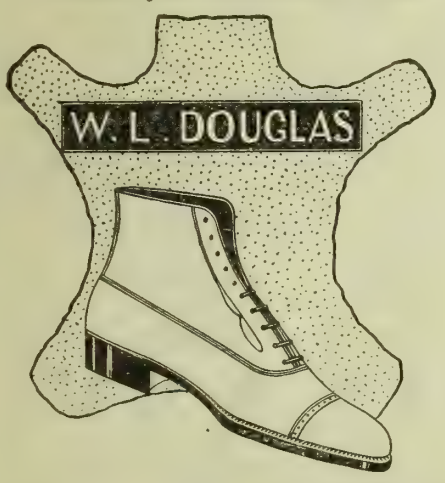
Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
733 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SAVE MONEY ON YOUR SHOES
Would you walk one-half block from Market Street to



Save $1 to $3?
We are located at 58 Third St., San Francisco.
We are agents for—
W. L. Douglas
Just Wright
Walk Ease
Strong & Garfield
We can positively save you money by buying your SHOES from us.
Our low rent and small expense make it possible for us to sell cheaper than the Market Street stores paying six times our rent.
We are showing a most exclusive and large stock of men's shoes. We can fit any foot and suit any fancy.
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET Between Market and Mission San Francisco, Cal.

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
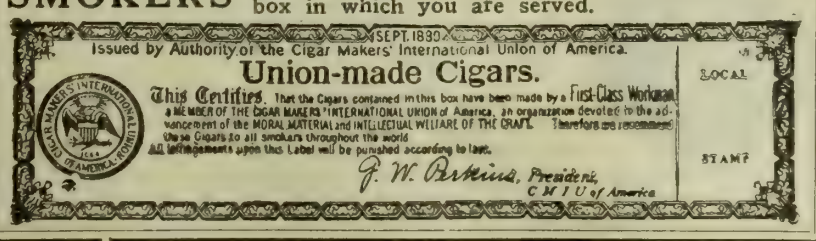
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.



News from Abroad

Advices from La Paz, Bolivia, say Great Britain has recognized the new Bolivian Government.

A preliminary peace treaty has been concluded between the Russian Soviet Government and Armenia.

British and American associations of Peking have presented a resolution to British Minister Eliot opposing renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Prohibition is not making great headway in Sweden, judging from figures of membership of the various temperance organizations, which show that the organizations and societies lost last year over 10 per cent. of their members.

Spanish custom officials are instructed by an order issued by the Ministry of Finance to take possession of flour mills, which the Government will in future control, in order that flour may be properly distributed.

An agreement has been reached between the Prague, Belgrade and Bucharest governments, called the "little entente," for the self-protection of Czecho-Slovakia, Serbia and Rumania against Russia or enemies in the Balkans, according to the Giornale d'Italia.

Twelve million children in Europe lost one or both parents during the war, it is shown by compilations gathered by the representatives of the American Red Cross in eighteen countries. Russia leads with 4,000,000, Germany follows with 3,000,000, and France has 1,000,000.

Oil has been struck by the Imperial Oil Company just within the Arctic circle, north of the Great Slave lake, and close to the Mackenzie river, according to an announcement. The flow is small, about ten barrels a day, and possibly cannot be made use of economically.

President Irigoyen has instructed Dr. T. A. Le Breton, Argentine Ambassador at Washington, to sign the reciprocal treaty relative to commercial travelers recently agreed on between the United States and Argentina. Salesmen of alcoholic beverages are excluded from the provision of the pact.

As a result of the shortage of fuel in French Guiana, arrangements are being made for two freight-carrying aeroplanes to travel fortnightly between the above-named colony and British Guiana to transport certain supplies to Cayenne; to obviate the necessity of depending entirely on steamer services.

The total losses in killed and missing suffered by the German army and navy in the great war were set recently for the first time at 2,243,364, in an announcement of semi-official nature. Of this number 500,000 men were termed "missing and most likely dead." Fatalities in the army were said to number 1,718,608 and in the navy 24,756.

Newfoundland is demanding better steamship facilities for transatlantic trade than are available at present. Before the war Newfoundland was served by both the Allan and Furness Lines, but the Allan line—which has been absorbed by the Canadian Pacific—no longer calls at Newfoundland, while the Furness Line service is limited to the SS. "Digby" and "Sachem," the latter a somewhat old boat.

With the Wits

"Does Cholly live on the avenue?" "No, Cholly lives on his father, who lives on the avenue."—New York Globe.

Doctor—And has your husband had any lucid intervals, Mrs. Smith?

Mrs. Smith—'Es 'ad nothin' except what you ordered him, doctor.—Tit-Bits.

"Look here, sir," exclaimed the maiden lady, "I want you to take back that parrot you sold me. I find that it swears very badly." "Well, ma'am," replied the dealer, "it's a very young bird; it'll learn to swear more perfectly when it's a bit older."—Stray Stories.

"This furniture is antique?" "Yes." "Did you inherit it?" "In a way. My grandfather bought it from a man on the installment plan, and I took over the payments."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Gentleman to see you." "Tell him I'll see him in about half an hour." "He says he won't wait a minute." "Show him in instantly then. He must be worth seeing."—Toledo Blade.

Daughter—Marry that old Mr. Roxley? Why, I'd die first!

Mother—Nonsense, child! You'd outlive him forty years at least.—Kansas City Star.

Pauline—What's that second umpire doing behind the pitcher?

Paul—Why, he keeps his eye on the bases.

Pauline—Oh, I see—and when he isn't looking the players try to steal the bases?—Buffalo Express.

Young Wife (in the country)—This is a nice place you've brought me to. We've been here for four months and I haven't seen a new face.

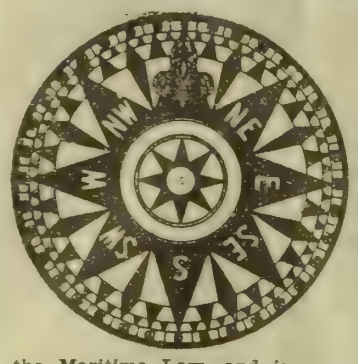
Hub—No new face! Why, my dear, we've changed our help eight times.—New York Globe.

He—If I stole a kiss would you scream for your parents?

She—No, not unless you wanted to kiss the whole family.—Nebraska Awgwan.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888



Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Original Size

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big losses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Goods, Woolen from mills and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving?

James H. Sorensen Pres. and Treas.

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked In Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's GOOD GOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am "YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization

VOL. XXXIV, No. 3. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1920. Whole No. 1719.

A TEN THOUSAND DOLLAR VERDICT

Seamen Entitled to "Proper Medical Attention"

In damage suits against vessels injured or incapacitated American seamen usually find themselves on the losing side. At any rate, it is but very seldom that amounts are awarded in any degree commensurate with the suffering and the nature of the injury sustained.

With considerable pleasure the Journal therefore submits herewith the court record of an exceptional case. In this instance a poor, friendless Porto Rican messman, not even able to clearly express himself in the English language, was awarded $10,000 because of the ship's failure to furnish that "proper medical attention" to which each member of the crew is entitled. Of course, considering the fact that this man practically lost the use of his right hand, the amount in question can scarcely be called excessive. It is merely unusual.

MAISONETT vs. MUNSON S. S. LINE

Charge to the Jury

The Court (Grubb, J.)—Gentlemen of the jury, the plaintiff originally had four different causes of action which he presented in his written complaint, but the case under the evidence, as I see it, has been reduced to that presented by one cause of action, and probably it would be well for me to eliminate the other three, so as to make it clear in your mind as to what the plaintiff's cause of action is, although I have no doubt that it is clear.

One of the causes of action, the first, was that the ship was rendered unseaworthy because it had no bin for the storage of potatoes. I have construed that as a matter of law that it did not make the ship unseaworthy, as to this plaintiff.

As I understand it, the potato bin was rather for convenience than for the safety of the seamen, and therefore its absence, as I see it, could not be said to make the ship unseaworthy or unsafe as to the seamen or cooks, so that cause of action is eliminated from your consideration, and the fact that he hurt himself by scraping his finger with a nail would not entitled him to recover in this case, if that was all there was to it.

Another cause of action was that the ship had no doctor. That is, that the ship did not carry a doctor on it. The law prescribes that all ships that carry passengers other than cabin passengers, in excess of fifty, must have a doctor on the ship, but the evidence in this case, without conflict, and the plaintiff concedes it, did not show that there were fifty or more passengers other than cabin passengers on this trip, and therefore, the law did not apply to this particular trip of this ship, and the fact that the ship had no doctor would not entitle the plaintiff to recover damages in this case, so that cause of action is also eliminated from your consideration.

The third cause of action was one for the expenses of the plaintiff's maintenance from the time he was hurt up to the time he was cured, or such part of it as the ship did not furnish him, and also for his hospital and doctor's expenses if he had had any, and for his wages up to the time he was cured.

It is conceded that he received his wages during the time the rule allowed him, and he received them on account of his injury, and also that his hospital bills were paid by the shipping company, or at least not by him, and that he incurred no liability for hospital bills, and there is no evidence sufficiently definite to entitle him to his maintenance and up to the time of his cure, so I instruct you there is no cause of action made out based on the expenses and maintenance—that is, of his keep, while he was disabled, so that the last cause of action is also eliminated from the case.

Now, those three are eliminated, and just one is left, the one I am going to state, and it is based on the idea of the obligation of the ship to furnish an injured man, no matter how he was injured, with proper surgical or medical attention while he was on board the ship.

In other words, in this case the cause of action is alleged to be that the defendant or the ship failed to furnish the plaintiff proper surgical or medical attention for this scratch which he received while he was taking potatoes out of the barrel, and the law is that if the ship negligently failed to furnish him proper medical or surgical attention for an injury received while on board the ship, and while one of the crew, and his injury was aggravated by the fact, that he would be entitled to recover damages for that aggravation to his injury.

You see that cause of action would present these questions of fact which you must consider, under the evidence in this case, and resolve in favor of the plaintiff if you find for the plaintiff.

The burden is on the plaintiff to reasonably satisfy you that his cause of action is made out as he alleges it, and that requires him to reasonably satisfy you from the evidence of the different propositions that are necessary to prove his cause of action.

This last cause of action that I will not mention is, namely, the alleged negligence to furnish proper surgical or medical attention to the plaintiff after he was injured, and the first proposition on that would be that he would have to reasonably satisfy you that he did not get the medical attention or treatment which he needed, other than that which he received while on the voyage from Antilles to New York and thereafter.

In the second place, he would have to reasonably satisfy you on the evidence that the ship or the captain or the chief steward had notice that the plaintiff needed medical attention other than that which was in fact furnished to him on the voyage, and in the third place, the evidence would have to reasonably satisfy you that the ship or the captain or the chief steward received that intimation as to the plaintiff's need for further medical attention other than the ship could afford him, while there was a reasonable opportunity to get such medical attention for him, and while he was still suffering from the injury, and whether they gave him the medical attention he required, if he did require any other, than that which they gave him, and in the last place, that the defendant failed to furnish him with that medical attention which it had notice of, and that the plaintiff's injury was aggravated by that failure.

Those are the propositions you are to resolve, in favor of the plaintiff in order to entitle the plaintiff to damages in this case; also that the defendant had notice of the plaintiff's need for that medical attention, and that he failed to get it, and that that failure aggravated the plaintiff's injury.

The plaintiff's injuries consisted of a scratch on the back of his hand, which of course would be inconsequential if there was no danger of infection. That is, it concededly would have required no medical attention but for the danger of infection, caused by the fact that the scratch was caused by a rusty nail, and we all know that that would require some medical treatment to avoid the danger of infection, and the question would be whether he got the treatment that a reasonably prudent person would have furnished him for such an injury.

He did receive medical treatment on the ship, not from the doctor, but from the chief steward, as you all heard. There is no dispute about that. He says so, and the steward says so, and there seems to be little dispute about the character of the medical attention that was furnished him.

The steward says he gave him a bichloride tablet to dissolve, and told him to bathe his hand in that solution, and to paint his hand with iodine, and bandage it up, and that is what I understand, in effect, the plaintiff himself said the chief steward did.

The plaintiff produced Dr. Hammell, and asked him what was the proper medical treatment for such an injury. That is, a scratch that was caused by a rusty nail, and he said that his treatment would have been to have bathed it in carbolic acid, and I think in alcohol, and that if he knew the nail was rusty he would have injected tetanus virus, so as to inoculate him against lockjaw.

It would be for you to say, taking all the testimony in the case, whether you believe the plaintiff received from the ship the kind of medical treatment that would have been sufficient in the eyes of a reasonably prudent person, for the character of injury that he received, and that he showed to the chief steward of the ship when he submitted his hand for treatment.

If you believe the treatment was proper and sufficient that he did receive, then he has no complaint, because whether he got a doctor or not, because if he was receiving the kind of treatment that was suitable and proper, or that a reasonably prudent person would have considered proper for the injury which he received.

and that was given by one other than a doctor, that would make no difference, if the treatment was proper, that would be all he was entitled to, and therefore he would have no cause of action.

If on the other hand you believe that, considering the character and nature of his injury, and the cause of his injury, and the knowledge that the ship had or should have had of the character and cause of his injury, additional treatment was necessary in order to furnish a proper security against an infection or against an aggravation of his injury from lack of treatment, and if you believe that that treatment that was furnished by the chief steward was not the proper treatment, then of course there would have been a failure to furnish him with the proper medical attention that the ship was obligated to do, and in that case you would have to inquire further to see whether the plaintiff had a cause of action.

Of course, as I have said to you, if the treatment given him was proper, for an injury such as he had, and if you find that the treatment accorded to him by the chief steward was such as a reasonably prudent person would have furnished him under all the circumstances, by a person skilled in those matters, then he has no complaint, because even though that treatment was not furnished by a doctor, if it was the right kind of treatmnet, he has no complaint and cannot recover.

If it was not the proper kind of treatment that a reasonably prudent person, skilled in such matters would have given him, if the treatment given him was not that which would have been furnished by a reasonably prudent person, you would have to inquire further, because in that case he might have a cause of action, for the neglect to furnish him proper treatment, and your next inquiry would be whether the ship or its authorized officers and the chief steward would be authorized to act for the ship in this matter and had notice of the injury, and of his need for additional treatment in addition to the treatment which the chief steward himself furnished.

I do not think it would be necessary that the plaintiff should call on the chief steward for a doctor. If the chief steward examined his hand, and as a reasonably prudent person, after making such an examination, might have understood or believed that a doctor was necessary for the seaman's safety, then it would not be necessary that the seaman should call on or ask the chief steward for a doctor and the obligation to furnish medical service would arise in the absence of any request, if the injury was so presented to the steward, that a reasonably prudent person, who was skilled in the matter of medical treatment would have considered that a doctor was necessary, and that treatment such as a layman could give was not sufficient and it would be for you to say as a question of fact, what notice was given, and when it was given.

That is, notice not only of the state of the injury, but of the need of additional treatment for that injury, additional to that which the chief steward himself could have given.

Now of course, that notice would have to have been received while there was yet time and opportunity for the ship or the duly authorized officers of the ship to have procured that medical attention for the plaintiff.

There is evidence tending to show, as I recollect, that the notice of the injury was given either to the chief cook or to the chief steward. It is conceded that the notice was given Friday, to the chief steward, that he was injured, and that his hand was exhibited to the chief steward, and that was before the ship left Antilles.

It would be for you to say whether the character of the plaintiff's injury at the time he exhibited it to the chief steward was such as to put the chief steward on notice that the man ought to have a doctor, and that the chief steward, with his layman's remedies, would be insufficient to protect the safety of the plaintiff against infection.

If you believe that when he exhibited his injured hand to the chief steward, on Thursday or Friday, or whenever it was, or both, if you believe that a reasonably prudent man such as the chief steward, skilled as the chief steward was, or as he should have been, in such matters, if you believe that such a man should have known that it was not safe for him to continue treatment of the hand, but that the man required the services of a doctor, then that would have been notice to the ship that the plaintiff ought to have been furnished with medical attention. That is, with the services of a doctor.

There is evidence that there were doctors at Antilles, but you would have to find that issue as a question of fact, or whether there were no doctors there, none could be found. If there were doctors there, he would have had the opportunity at Antilles, if he had notice of the need, and if there was a need, in fact, before it left the port of Antilles, and if a doctor could have better treated the plaintiff's hand; that is, if he could have furnished some remedy that the chief steward did not have, or could not furnish, and that remedy was necessary, and would have availed to save the plaintiff's hand from its present condition, that would show that there was neglect on the part of the chief steward to perform his obligation from the ship in the matter of medical attention.

Of course, if the doctor at Antilles could have done no more than the chief steward, then there would be no recoverable failure on the part of the defendant as to the chief steward not procuring the doctor, but if you believe the doctor at Antilles could have furnished some remedy which the chief steward could not, or if you believe that a doctor could better have treated the plaintiff's hand, with better results, then there would be damage resulting to the plaintiff from not being furnished with a doctor.

Of course, it is conceded that there was no doctor furnished until the ship arrived in New York.

If you find then that the plaintiff needed a doctor, or needed medical attention and services, other than those which the chief steward gave him, and if you believe that that need was made known to the ship to the chief steward at the time when it was possible and reasonable for the chief steward or the captain to have procured a doctor, and if you believe that the failure to do that caused the injury to the plaintiff's hand to be aggravated, and in a substantial way, other than it would have been if he had received proper medical treatment, then the plaintiff would have a cause of action for such damages as resulted from that failure to furnish him medical attention.

The burden is on the plaintiff to show those things, and if he reasonably satisfies you from the evidence in this case, as to that, he is entitled to recover damages, and if he fails to reasonably satisfy you as to any of them, he cannot recover.

If he does recover, if you deem that he is entitled to recover, his damage of course is not the damage caused by the original injury, the scratch, but it is the damage caused by the neglect or failure to furnish proper medical attention to cure the scratch, and the injury that he would be entitled to recover for would be that aggravation if any which there was in the history of his injury, due to the fact that he did not get the proper medical attention, not the injury itself, but the aggravation of the injury, if any there was, due to the fact, if it be a fact, that he did not get proper medical attention from the ship.

You have seen the condition of his hand at the present time, and it will be for you to determine, if you find for the plaintiff, how much of that condition is due to a neglect to furnish proper medical attention, and to the extent that his injury has been aggravated by that failure, he would be entitled to compensation.

The damage that the law awards in a case like this would be measured by what you believe would be reasonable compensation for the aggravated amount of his injury, the reasonable compensation to be judged by the evidence in the case.

One of the elements of that compensation would be the pain and suffering, both mental and physical that were caused to him, or that he suffered from, by reason of not having received medical attention, if you believe that to be so, that he would not have suffered from, had he received proper medical attention; also the inconvenience caused him by his crippled hand, so far as that inconvenience was brought about by the failure to furnish him with proper medical attention on the part of the ship.

He would also be entitled to recover reasonable compensation for his diminished earning capacity, because of his injuries, so far if at all as that diminished capacity comes about from the aggravation to his injuries that was brought about by the failure to furnish him with proper medical attention on the ship's part.

If you believe that to be true, that is, if you believe he could have earned during the period from his injury up to the present time, and in the future—for his injury is permanent, apparently though there is some evidence that an apparent loss of motion might be remedied, in his present condition, then it would be right for you to allow him what would be a reasonable compensation for the diminished earning capacity for the time that you believe it will remain. Not necessarily the difference in his wages, but a sum that would represent what his unimpaired earning capacity would be worth to him as compared with his diminished earning capacity, or such part of it as is due to any failure on the part of the ship to furnish him with proper medical attention.

Those would be the elements of damage, the pain and suffering, and the inconvenience of being in a crippled condition, and any loss of earning capacity that you may believe he suffered by any neglect to furnish him with proper medical attention.

Mr. Allen—I ask your Honor to charge the jury that the ship was not responsible for an error of judgment on the part of its officers, if their judgment is conscientiously exercised, with reference to conditions existing at the time.

The Court—That is true, gentlemen. If there was no negligence if the officers of the ship, the chief steward in this case, exercised in good faith his best judgment, upon conditions as presented to him by the plaintiff at the time he showed him his hand.

Mr. Allen—I ask your Honor to charge the jury that the defendant, through its agents, and servants, administered such care and attention as was reasonably proper, so far as the circumstances of the injuries were concerned, and if the plaintiff's injuries became aggravated because of his removal of the bandage repeatedly thereafter, that if we are liable, we are liable only for what he has suffered by way of the improper original treatment.

The Court—I do not recall any evidence of the removal of the bandage myself.

Mr. Allen—Mr. McLain said he went to him a number of times, and took the bandage off.

The Court—If you find that to be true I will allow it.

Mr. Axtell—I do not recall any such evidence. I think it is an error to talk about such a thing, because there was no substitute provided for this man. There was no extra man on the ship, and I understood the evidence to be to show that he insisted upon trying to do his work, long after he should not have been working.

Mr. Allen—Mr. McLain said that he did remove it a number of times.

The Court—If the jury finds the fact, you can apply the principle of law. If there is no such evidence, the principle has no application to this case at all. It is only if there is evidence present that he removed the bandage when he should not have done so.

Mr. Allen—I ask your Honor to charge the jury that the master or steward or any of the officers were not required to exercise the skill of a doctor or surgeon, but only that of a reasonably prudent man from the conditions existing at the time.

The Court—That is true, gentlemen of the jury.

Mr. Allen—I ask your Honor to charge the jury that if there was nothing in the conduct or appearance of the plaintiff's hand to give warning that there was likely to be infection, and if that was the case, if it was not likely that there would be serious consequences from his injury, that the ship was not liable for the steward's failure to procure a physician until the vessel reached New York.

The Court—That is right. If there was nothing to indicate the likelihood of infection, there would be no use in getting a physician, but whether that is true or not, is for you to say and not me.

Mr. Allen—I ask your Honor to charge the jury that the question of the condition of the man's hand at the time it was exhibited to the chief steward, is entirely a question of fact for the jury to determine, upon this evidence.

The Court—Yes.

Mr. Axtell—In view of the fact that the Court has eliminated cause of action No. 1, I move to amend cause of action No. 2 as compared to damages, in the sum of $25,000.00, and there being no cause of action No. 3 proven, as to maintenance, that will eliminate itself, but it was our idea that the case would be submitted to the jury, and that they would have an opportunity to find for the plaintiff in the sum of $25,000.00 on these two causes of action.

The Court—So that on the cause of action that is remaining, you claim the sum of $25,000.00?

Mr. Axtell—Yes, and I make such a motion, if your Honor please.

The Court—Allowed.

Mr. Allen—I ask your Honor to charge the jury, in view of the statement just made, that the fact that the claim is made in the complaint for a certain sum of money, is no indication that the jury should return a verdict in that sum.

The Court—No, it is only what the plaintiff claims, but of course you cannot allow him more than he claims.

Mr. Allen—I wish to except to the amendment at this time.

The Court—Yes.

The jury thereupon retired.

The jury returned and announced a verdict in the sum of $10,000.00.

Mr. Allen—If your Honor please, the defendant moves that the verdict be set aside, and asks for a new trial, on all of the grounds stated in Section 999 of the Code of Civil Procedure, except the ground of insufficient damages and upon all the exceptions taken at the trial. I think, if your Honor please, that I should be permitted to submit a memorandum on the case. I think the verdict is excessive.

The Court—I do not think so. He has suffered the loss of the use of his right hand. Motion denied.

Mr. Allen—Exception.

That science and modern inventions can and will replace cheap labor is becoming more and more evident. For example, in India it costs but 6 cents a day for men to wave fans to keep the air circulating in houses. Yet, even these men are gradually being replaced by electric fans as cheaper and more reliable.

The union label constitutes recognition of the union by making certain the recognition of union products.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Trade Union's Value Seen by Medical Men

Organized labor is bringing into line those employers who cannot see that sodden drudges are not as desirable as workers who have leisure for recreation, for study, for health, says the New York Medical Journal.

This publication declares that "the duty of the scientist is clear."

"To humanize working conditions, to reassert the value of the individual, to study all ways of releasing in work the best energies of the worker, instead of as now, so prodigiously wasting them, this should be the practical role of science in industry."

"England was one of the first countries to conduct scientific investigations into the question of fatigue and hours of work. England tried to speed up her munitions workers until she discovered that they were breaking under the strain; then studies of the munitions industry were made, with the result that hours of work were shortened and both the health and effectiveness of the workers were increased. Now comes our own public health service with a report proving the superiority of the eight over the 10-hour day. The findings are based on a comparison of an eight and a 10-hour plant, each a huge industrial establishment prominent in the metal working industry. Superiority of the eight-hour day was proved from the economic standpoint—that is, in respect to maintenance of output, lost time, and labor turnover. But the eight-hour day was also proved more beneficial to the workman, and this in a way that the employer could appreciate because it touched his pocketbook—it was found to reduce the rate of industrial accidents."

Basic Income Urged for Employing Class

If it is logical for the Government to probe the living necessities of workers and set a wage on this basis, why can't this system be applied to the employing class, asks the Westralian Worker, which demands the appointment of a basic income commission to investigate the needs of those outside the working class that their incomes may be based accordingly.

At the present time the intests of the workers are "protected" by a basic wage commission, arbitration and conciliation courts, wages boards and a necessary commodities commission.

"Here is a list of functional bodies," says the Westralian Worker, "which are employed ascertaining what it costs the worker to live, what minimum (usually maximum) wage shall be paid, ascertaining what clothing he shall wear, or what he may be permitted to eat. The scale of wage is thus based upon the barest of necessities, and the sequel is the same old story—with a raise in wages up go prices, and incomes of the land, finance and trading fraternity reach out for an added percentage at each turn.

"The day has now arrived when the workers should apply the method of ascertaining what is a reasonable basic income.

"Are stock exchange boodlers, land value jugglers, interest money lenders and food gamblers to be regarded as above the law? Is it for them to arrogate both in the matter of what they should pay and what they should receive?

"Labor is, by every rule of logic, entitled to demand a basic income commission."

High-Toned Anarchy

Business interests that are aiding the street car company in its attempt to smash the Street Car Men's Union are exhibiting a brand of high-toned anarchy to organized labor of Colorado. The employes asked for higher wages and the company imported strikebreakers, staged riots and lashed the people into a frenzy through newspapers it controls. Many people have been killed and injured.

In an effort to break the strike an injunction judge ordered officers of the Union to call off this movement. The officers obeyed, but the men refused to return to work and then the officers were jailed. The trade union movement is behind the car men in a fight which revolves around higher wages, but which is really an attempt by industrial black hands to smash Denver trade unionism.

Holder Reappointed

The President has reappointed Arthur E. Holder as the labor member of the Federal Board for Vocational Education. The appointment must be acted upon by the Senate prior to its next adjournment when, if concurred in, the appointment will carry for a period of three years, or until July, 1923.

The appointee is a member of the International Association of Machinists, and for years served as legislative representative of the A. F. of L.

Vast Sums for War; Starve Efficiency

In a recent speech Dr. Edward B. Rosa, chief physicist of the United States Bureau of Standards, showed that statesmen, editors and publicists who continually shriek efficiency have not protested when the last Congress ignored efficiency, education, public health and research in the appropriations, which total over $5,000,000,000.

The scientist shows that 92.8 per cent. of the five billion dollars are for expenses connected with recent and previous wars and for the army and navy.

But 1 per cent., or a total of $57,093,561 of the $5,000,000,000, was appropriated for governmental research work, for education, public health, women's and children's bureaus, the geological survey, the bureau of mines with its life saving and other important activities, for the bureau of standards, bureau of fisheries, all activities in agriculture, bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, vocational education, colleges for agriculture and mechanical arts, library of Congress and the Smithsonian institution.

Of the $5,000,000,000, the recent and pre-

(Continued on page 10)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD.

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA.

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia,
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford St., Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg., Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward St., Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Bundaberg, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN.

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.

Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway St., Hull.

National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM.

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersoliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY.

Internationale Transportarbeiter - Federation. Engelufer, 18, Berlin S. O. 16. Germany.

FRANCE.

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY.

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads, 5, Kristiania.

Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN.

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25. Goteborg, Sweden.

Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK.

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.

Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.

Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, L. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND.

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA.

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste. Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY.

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN.

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY.

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA.

Federacion Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL.

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.

Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.

Centro Marittimo dos Empregados em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18. Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA.

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

The Spanish Socialist party has decided by 8000 to 5000 votes in favor of conditional adhesion to the Third International.

All private enterprises not operating upon a purely co-operative basis have been closed as the first step by Moscow authorities in a vigorous fight against speculation.

Street car men in Winnipeg, Manitoba, have raised wages 10 per cent through a conciliation board. The award dates back to May 1 and back pay aggregates $70,000.

A sweeping Communist victory has taken place in the Serbian municipal elections, says a report from Belgrade. The Communists elected a Burgomaster and 30 out of 40 Councillors.

Treasurer Gasca of the Mexico City Federation of Labor has been appointed governor of the federal district by President de la Huerta. The federal district includes the republic's capital. The appointment to this important post was opposed by employers on the ground that "being a labor man, Gasca's sympathies would always be with the workers." The official organ of the Federation of Labor replies that the unionist "was appointed to that post to see that justice is done where justice is due, and we are sure that the workers will be pleased to see that Governor Gasca adheres to that principle."

Plans for a law providing for the collaboration of workmen in the management of industrial plants in Italy, which will be presented at the next session of the Italian Parliament, have been placed in the hands of a commission appointed by Socialist members of the House of Deputies. Unionists declare that occupation of plants throughout Italy will continue until employers' privileges are suppressed and the new rights of labor acknowledged. While a majority of employers strongly resist the workmen's scheme for assisting in the work of management, there is an important section which supports a suggestion that the men's scheme be accepted on general lines, in order that the conflict going on at present may be ended.

The new British Unemployment Insurance Act, which received the Royal Assent on August 9, 1920, will come into operation on November 8 next. The Act will extend compulsory insurance to substantially all persons for whom Health Insurance contributions have now to be paid, except outworkers and persons employed in agriculture and private domestic service. A distinction from Health Insurance is that [illegible] people over 70 will be insurable except in the case of Old Age Pensioners, who are excluded both as regards contributions and benefits. It is anticipated that the Act will bring into insurance against unemployment an additional 8,000,000 persons, making the total number insured about 12,000,000 persons, including non-manual workers in receipt of remuneration not exceeding in value £250 a year. It is expected that about 2,000,000 will be insured under the general scheme, and that ultimately about 4,000,000 will come under special schemes which may be set up by industries which contract out of the general scheme.

M. BROWN & SONS

SAN PEDRO

Clothing and Furnishing Goods

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots

See them at M. BROWN & SONS

109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL

529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.

Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.

TERMS ARE REASONABLE

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our

Voluntary Arbitration Contract

OUR STAMP INSURES:

Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities

As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.

BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION

246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

IS INDEPENDENCE YOUR GOAL?

If you spend less than you earn, and save the difference, you are on your way to independence.

WORK AND SAVE

must be part of the plan—safe investment another

INVEST YOUR SAVINGS

in

GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES

PRICES IN JUNE

Thrift Stamps at Twenty-five Cents

$ 5	Government Savings Stamps for.....	$ 4.17
$ 100	Treasury Savings Certificates for.....	83.40
$1000	Treasury Savings Certificates for.....	834.00

FOR SALE AT BANKS AND POST OFFICES

GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
SECOND FEDERAL RESERVE DISTRICT
120 Broadway - - - New York

INFORMATION WANTED

Will H. Peterson and G. Johnson, formerly winchmen of S. S. "Carmel" to communicate with J. T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 9-8-20.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of the brother of August W. Strasdin, will please communicate with B. I. LaSelle, 924 Crocker Bldg., San Francisco. 9-15-20

INFORMATION WANTED

Members of crews of Barge "Ohio" and S. S. "Gulfcoast" will kindly communicate with this office regarding their salvage claims against the Standard Oil Barge No. 1 between Mobile and Port Arthur about May 18th. I represent a member of the crew and have already taken up the matter of a salvage award for him. Silas B. Axtell, New York, N. Y. 7-14-20

Navigation School

License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

S. G. SWANSON

Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

EUREKA, CAL.

— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S

The Old Reliable

CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth

This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE

will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other men in public life.

Send in your order today.

$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted

La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

Honolulu Letter List

Bergesen, Bert	Lame, Pat.
Bradley, Ed.	Leison, Will.
Buck, Harry	Lind, Gust.
Caldwell, John	Matson, Rolf.
Campbell, Ed.	Mulligan, Ed.
Danielsen, Adolph	Nickols, Henry
Dant, B. C.	Sandel, T. S.
Ettersen, Ward	Stronberg, Pet.
Harns, Ed.	Stewart, A. J.
Johnsen, Hilding	Solberg, B. P.
Larsen, John

INFORMATION WANTED

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of George Mace Monroe, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, last heard of at Charleston, S. C., March, 1916, will please communicate with his mother, Mrs. Alice Monroe, 918 Spruce street, Seattle, Washington. 6-9-20

TO MY CLIENTS

Please look over our legal reports on file in every Union Hall on the coasts whenever you are in port. Notice of commencement of all actions, their appearance on the calendar for trial, trials, judgments and settlements effected are published in all cases whether for wages, salvage or personal injury. Law Office, Silas B Axtell, 9 State Street, New York.

Pacific Coast Marine

The Canadian Pacific Railway is reported to have placed an order with the Wallace Shipyards, Victoria, B. C., for a coasting steamer of about 330 feet length and 17-knot speed.

Eleven German sailing vessels still remaining at Santa Rosalia have been ordered to North Pacific ports to work grain cargoes for the United Kingdom, according to information from Portland, Ore.

The "Blaatind" (Nor. m. schr.), built at Seattle in 1919, and owned by the Amerikanake Motorskonnert Aktier, Norway, has been sold by auction, by order of the U. S. District Court, at Seattle, to the Scandinavian-American Bank, Seattle, for $100,000.

The Shipping Board hull "Egeria," 3500 tons, which has been tied up in the Portland district, has been purchased by northern operators and will be converted into a steamer. The "Acarmen," another of the hulls recently sold, is to be converted into a barkentine. Other sales from the fleet include the "Abantis" and "Abderia," bought by W. L. Haskins of Portland.

The San Francisco and Portland Steamship Company will inaugurate a five-day service between San Francisco and Portland beginning November 1, it was announced by Frank Shafer, manager of the company. This schedule will be made possible through the charter of the Alaska Steamship Company's liner "Alaska," which has been plying between Seattle and the ports of Southeastern Alaska.

Dr. W. T. Christensen has been appointed to the Seattle Port Commission as its delegate to the annual convention of the National Association of Port Authorities to be held in Chicago, September 30 and October 1 and 2. The National Association convention will be followed by the annual gathering of the Pacific Coast Association of Port Authorities, which will be held in Seattle this year. It will convene October 14 for a three-day session.

Advices received by the United States Shipping Board from the Hog Island Shipyards stated that two of the vessels allocated to the Pacific Mail Company had been launched. The names of the two vessels are "Empire State" and "Golden State." They are two of five similar crafts allocated to the company for the transpacific passenger carrying trade and the above named boats are expected to arrive the first of the year.

Silver sand for use in making bottles and glass formed the principal part of the cargo of the Norwegian motorship "George Washington" of the Norway-Pacific Line, which arrived at San Francisco during the week. The shipment amounts to 9100 tons. Other items in the motorship's manifest are 852 bundles of baskets, 342 packages of machinery and 400 bales of hops. The "George Washington" is discharging on the Oakland side under the direction of Captain C. F. Klitgaard.

The new pier now being completed by the city of Seattle, which is to be especially fitted up as a terminal for ocean-going liners, is declared by the Port Commissioners to be the largest commercial pier in the world. It is 2,580 feet long and 367 feet wide, having an area of 946,860 square feet, compared with 876,000 square feet for the new municipal pier at Chicago, which is not primarily a commercial terminal. The structure in Lake Michigan is 3,000 feet long and 292 feet wide.

The largest and most complete merchant marine cargo training ship in the world, the 8800-ton steel steamship "Hollywood" of the Recruiting Service of the United States Shipping Board, sailed from Seattle recently, beginning her maiden voyage. It is to be operated on regular schedule as a cargo training ship between Seattle and Hawaii and San Francisco by the Recruiting Service of the United States Shipping Board. Freight for the vessel will be furnished by Alexander & Boyle, agents for the Matson Navigation Company.

Advices received by the marine department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce stated that repairs have been begun on the schooner "Spokane." The vessel was previously reported at having arrived at Sydney in tow, after losing her rudder while en route from the Australian port to Iquique. The vessel sailed from Sydney on July 15 last for the Chilean port. The "Spokane" will not be forced to go into drydock for the necesssary repairs, and it is expected that she will be able to sail for Iquique shortly.

The trial trip of the transport "St. Mihiel," one of twelve vessels constructed at the Hog Island shipyards for the acccount of the United States Government's transport service, was held last week. The report showed that the craft developed a speed of 16.75 knots on four trial runs. Five of these vessels have been allocated by the Government to the transport service out of San Francisco for the Transpacific troopship service between that port and the Philippines and Hawaiian islands. The main dimensions of the crafts are: Length, 448 feet; beam, 58 feet; draft, loaded, 28 feet. The transports, which are all of the same type, are equipped with 6000-horsepower marine-geared turbine.

At the St. Helen's Lumber Company in Oregon, owned by the Charles R. McCormick Company of San Francisco, there has been placed in operation for the first time in any lumber mill of the world the Greenlee timber perforating machine, an invention for the preservative treatment of wood with creosote. Charles R. McCormick, president of the company, returned yesterday from St. Helens and stated that after viewing the work of the invention it would revolutionize the present method of inoculating timber with creosote for prevention against teredoes and other elements that have created havoc with timber in the past. To Edmund M. Blake, production engineer for Charles R. McCormick and the St. Helen's Creosoting Company, is due credit for perfecting the machine.

Construction of the two 14,000-ton freighters building at the Moore yards for the Matson Navigation Company, is progressing rapidly, according to officials of the company. The vessels are expected to be ready for service by the first of the year. The vessels, the "Manulani" and the "Manu Kai," have been designed especially to meet the requirements of the Hawaiian trade. Specially designed cargo booms and winches for rapid discharge and loading are features of the new craft. The vessels are equipped with six large cargo hatches, six large sliding ports and a similar number of small ports. The deck equipment for handling cargo also will be extensive. Over each of the two larger hatches amidship there will be a steel boom, with a lifting capacity of fifty tons. Each cargo hatch will have two winches.

The Union Steamship Company has made arrangements for placing the steamer "Maunganui," 13,500 deadweight tons, in their passenger and freight carrying service between Wellington, Raratonga, Papeete and San Francisco, according to Captain B. M. Aldwell, master of the steamer "Marama," now at San Francisco. The "Maunganui" during the war served the New Zealand Government as a troopship. After the war the vessel was placed in the drydock at Wellington and completely overhauled. The fuel consumption during this period has been changed from coal to oil. The company had planned to place the vessel in service this month, but were prevented by the acute oil shortage prevailing in New Zealand ports at present. When the "Maunganui" is placed in commission she will be the finest steamer in this service, according to Captain Aldwell. Captain L. C. H. Worrall, formerly commander of the "Marama" has been appointed skipper of the "Maunganui."

For the purpose of insuring safe entrance of vessels through the Golden Gate during thick fogs submerged cables to act as pilots for the crafts may be laid by naval and harbor officials, it was stated during the week. The device has been successfully tested in New York harbor, where vessels are guided in and out of that harbor by electrical soundings via these cables during unfavorable weather. Secretary Daniels has been informed by officers in charge of the experiment that a destroyer has been steered through Ambrose channel in thick weather by means of the submerged cable stretched for a distance of sixteen miles in the harbor of New York. Protection is afforded the cables by armor and send-off electrical currents which are received on board ships sailing in and out of the channel. By means of these signals an operator on the ship can ascertain when the steamer is off her course. As long as the signals can be heard by the operator on board the captain knows that he is in safe waters and on a direct course.

Aerial operations on a scale never before attempted on the Pacific Coast, according to Navy officers, have been planned as a part of a spectacular night attack which will be made on battle-ships and destroyers off San Pedro September 30, Captain Harry Henry Mustin, commander of the air force, Pacific fleet, announced. The aircraft maneuvers are in a way preliminary to the interfleet battle operations which will be staged in the Panama roads next January. At the San Pedro maneuvers it will be the object of the fleet air forces to find, bomb and "destroy" battle-ships and destroyers bent on a night attack on the San Pedro fortifications. Three divisions of the F-5-L type seaplanes, a division of torpedo planes, the aircraft tender "Aroostock" and two submarine chasers will leave San Diego for San Pedro September 27. On the night of September 30 they will be joined by the two large dirigibles from North Island. The aircraft will then head out to sea to intercept and attack the five battleships and eighteen destroyers steaming in battle formation from Hawaii. The fleet will use searchlights and anti-aircraft batteries against the air forces.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco. Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
802-804 South Broadway Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
206 Moravian Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....H. COOK, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF
Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
New York Branch.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RODEN, Agent
433 Court Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....DAVID COOK, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
132 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....W. ROSSI, Agent
49 Market Street
Sub Agencies:
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC
Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION
H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....816 River Street

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION
D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER..... Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1920.

ANTI-WAR RESOLUTIONS.

Several months ago the JOURNAL referred editorially to the efforts of Australian seamen to prevent war.

Since that time the executive council of the Federated Seamen's Union of Australia has launched a movement for an international conference of representatives of all maritime unions throughout the world, "with a view to preventing future conflict." A circular letter signed by the general president, H. J. Murray, is said to have been dispatched to maritime bodies in Great Britain, Germany, France, Denmark, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Canada, United States, Argentina, Japan, India, Africa and other countries, calling for a referendum on a meeting-place and the date of the world conference.

The union's letter says, in part:

> As men we cannot evade our responsibilities toward the world and towards humanity. Without our consent and co-operation the calamity of war cannot again fall upon the world. We call upon you seamen of the world, to organize a conference somewhere in Europe, where we can meet without regard to country, race or creed.
>
> Upon us the future of civilization, indeed the very existence of hundreds of millions of our fellow creatures, depends. But for us the richest and most prosperous and populous cities would be desolate, and empires, supported though they may be with colossal wealth and innumerable military forces, would crumble into ruins.

The efforts of our Australian comrades are highly commendable. But while their circular letter was being written a conference of the world's merchant seamen was actually in session and the only seamen's organization of any size not represented was the one in Australia.

Both the Genoa and the Brussels conference of the International Seafarers' Federation considered the proper attitude of the world's seamen toward future wars.

In Brussels the seamen's delegates from France, Belgium and Holland introduced this resolution:

> WHEREAS, The people and not the governments always have borne the brunt and burden of wars, and
>
> WHEREAS, The seamen, among the workers, are the most exposed to the perils of war, and
>
> WHEREAS, More than anyone else in the world, they hate armed conflicts and have the indomitable will to prevent in the future the recurrence of frightful human slaughter;
>
> And now, expressing its international solidarity with workingmen and confronted with the renewed threats of war now striking humanity, the International Congress of Seamen, meeting in Brussels, therefore declares, following the stand of the Congress of Miners, which met in Geneva, that a general strike shall be ordered in case of any new attempt to begin war; and further
>
> RESOLVED, To emphasize the importance of this declaration, to refuse, immediately to allow the transportation of soldiers and of war ammunition to the countries at war with each other at the present time.

The resolution was adopted although but few of the forty-five delegates present had authority to commit their union to a strike. Certainly, the delegates from America had no such authority. Strikes in America are declared by a vote of the membership—not by officials.

As regards the refusal to transport soldiers and ammunition most of the delegates interpreted the resolution to mean that their respective organizations would co-operate with the workers ashore in any joint efforts to tie up transports. But it was emphatically stated and distinctly understood that the seamen alone could not and would not act in this matter. When munitions of war are manufactured by union men, hauled to the docks by organized railroad workers and loaded on the vessel by union longshoremen it is surely a case of "passing the buck" in expecting the seamen alone to go on strike.

In matters of this kind the seamen have always done more than their share. The trouble has been, of course, that usually the seamen are expected not merely to do their share—but to do it all! That this is unfair and unreasonable need scarcely be stated. But, having had much bitter experience along these lines, our friends in Australia will doubtless understand all this. At any rate, the seamen's representatives who met in Brussels last month did understand. And the 300,000 merchant seamen represented by them may be depended upon to co-operate with the workers of the world in carrying out to the letter any equitable program that may be agreed upon to stop further war.

The workers everywhere are opposed to war because war is opposed to the interests of labor and to the interests of the world's civilization. Labor fights in all wars. Labor suffers and perishes in all wars. Labor never profits from any war. Labor never profits from militarism. Labor's interest is the interest of the common people of all nations, who for centuries have been the poor, betrayed pawns of the rulers and the ruling classes. When the power of labor is sufficiently established wars will cease, because there will be no more soldiers to fight in them.

For notwithstanding all the hatred and bitterness engendered during the late war, it is still to the interest of labor—and, again, to the interest of civilization—that the working men of all nations shall recognize one another as brothers, and shall peaceably join in the common task of advancing the welfare of all working people everywhere. There are no frontiers in the labor movement.

In sympathy with other commodities used by mankind, the price of salt has been mounting upward. Yet, the volume of the salt in the ocean, according to the United States Geological Survey, is enough to cover the entire surface of the United States to a depth of 8,500 feet.

AN EXPLODED THEORY.

Tell an untruth often enough and a great many people will accept it for gospel truth!

This is the case even with certain journalists and others who ought to know better because of available facilities for getting correct information. For example, Mr. George J. Duraind, an accomplished publicist, has been writing a series of highly interesting articles for the San Francisco Chronicle, all relating to ocean transportation, sea power and kindred subjects. In trying to work up a case for ship subsidy Mr. Duraind weakens his entire argument by trying to prove too much. Time after time the alleged reason for the retirement of the old Pacific Mail Company from the trans-Pacific trade has been exploded. Nevertheless, Mr. Duraind picks up that stale old yarn about the La Follette Seamen's Act having compelled th Pacific Mail Co. to go out of business. He says:

> For ten years the Southern Pacific carried the Pacific Mail at a loss. So low had the Pacific Mail sank that the Japanese came very near absorbing it in toto. It was known that the ships of the Pacific Mail were in the market in 1912, and the Japanese made an offer for them.
>
> The Pacific Mail was continued to be carried at a loss, when the passage of the La Follette bill increasing operating costs, gave the dying the final shove-off. Evidently the Government thought that the best way to further a merchant marine was to make it impossible for the ship operators to make a dollar out of their ships, or rather that the more that was lost the more vessels would be put in service. At the same time the same Legislators were handing out millions to increase shipping on our great navigable streams without any results at all.

This, the JOURNAL's readers will recall, is the same old story as originally told by Mr. R. P. Schwerin, once Vice-President and Manager of the Company. Unfortunately for Messrs. Schwerin and Duraind there is some earlier testimony on that subject. And the man who gave it is none other than Mr. Schwerin.

Speaking before the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, on February 1, 1913 (two years before the Seamen's bill was enacted into law), Mr. Schwerin made it perfectly clear that his company was going out of business because of the Panama Canal and the legislation connected therewith.

The so-called Panama Canal Act, approved August 24, 1912, prohibits vessels owned by the railroads from passing through the Canal. The majority of the stock of the Pacific Mail was owned by the Southern Pacific Company, and vessels owned by that company were therefore excluded.

Naturally this had greatly discouraged Mr. Schwerin. Thus it came to pass that Mr. Ayres, a member of the before-mentioned committee, asked him why he felt so gloomy about the future of the American merchant marine. Well, here is Schwerin's answer, duly recorded in print and never refuted by the gentleman himself:

> Mr. Schwerin. If you had struggled for twenty years as I have, taken a line that was a million and a quarter in debt, and practically in the hands of a receiver, doubled that line up by slow, hard process, until you had gotten into Korea and Siberia, which you were told would be your graveyard, and then you got Mongolia and Manchuria, and were told that would settle it; and then, against all the better judgment of your associates and friends, you raised $12,000,000 to build four 37,000-ton ships to put in the trade from New York to the Philippine Islands, and a million and a half to change these four ships to the latest modern types, and you were defeated by Congress—prohibited by Congress from building those ships—I think you would be a little discouraged. I want to say that I am done with the American flag forever. I would not raise my hand to raise a dollar for the American flag. My interest in this business before this committee to-day, gentlemen, is absolutely because I am practically subpoenaed here. I have no interest in the shipping business. I am about to retire. I have given twenty years of my life, morning, noon and night—slept and breathed with it—to see that flag on the ocean, and I am just as certain as I sit here that if those four ships had been built, I would have had four more for the coast of South America, and four more equal to the "Imperator" that is going to run to Europe, all under the American flag.

Considering the foregoing confession, it is respectfully submitted, that there does not appear to be any cause or occasion to blame the Seamen's Act for the sale of the five vessels, which had been in the trade to the Orient. The Pacific Mail quit on account of the Panama Canal and the changed trade route. The Canal was built to open up a cheaper trade route. When the Canal was ready the railroads went out of the shipping business because being forbidden to use the Canal they could no longer regulate rates by competing with themselves. All of which is respectfully submitted to Mr. Duraind.

THE "UNION SHOP."

The principle of the Union Shop, often misnamed the "closed shop," is accepted in everyday business life.

The dealer will agree with the manufacturer to handle only a certain kind of goods. This is considered perfectly legitimate.

Why then may not an organization of workingmen similarly make a bargain with an organization of employers? Why does it seem unconstitutional when precisely the same arrangement is entered into between the employer and his employes?

The labor union says to the employer: "We will agree to furnish you with competent men at so much per day. We can control the men in our organization. They will abide by the contract that we shall make. We cannot control the men who are outside of our organization, so we ask you to employ only our men, thus making your shop a union shop. If these outside men will agree to make the same contract with you that we have made we shall be glad to have them come into our organization, thus giving them the same privilege that we enjoy."

The average employer who fights so strenuously for the "God-given right" of the non-union workingman to exercise his privilege of remaining out of the union if he so desires, declaring that his shop must be an "open shop" for free men, will usually blacklist the man who exercised the same God-given right by becoming a member of the trade-union. So, to all practical purposes the boasted "open-shop" policy usually means a "closed shop" to the unionist.

One does not have to be a Socialist to feel intensely gratified over the re-election of the five New York Assemblymen who were expelled from the State Legislature last spring for no other reason than their belief in socialism. Elected as socialists, these men were deprived of their seats because the majority had the power to do so. Talk about the rights of minorities! Well, it would be a sad day for representative government if this practice were put into general operation. Representative government would simply cease to exist. And those who in the name of patriotism resort to such tactics are doing more to destroy the people's faith in popular government than all the bomb throwers and anarchists on earth.

DISSECTING "ARTICLE X."

United States Senator Borah, in an Address at Dayton, O., Analyzes Article X of the League of Nations.

What is the "principle" which we find embodied in Article X? Whose creed is it? It is an old and familiar principle, this doctrine of territorial integrity. There has not been a despot in Europe in five hundred years who in the height of his success has not been in favor of territorial integrity. On the other hand, there has not been an oppressed and downtrodden people who have not opposed it and for the sake of liberty defied it. It is a great creed for those who are dominant, for those who enjoy unchallenged power, but it is anguish and travail for those who are governed against their will and who are seeking liberty. One of the main objects of the Holy Alliance was to preserve the territorial integrity of all members of the league. Now after the Versailles conference had divided the earth and remade the map of the world, after their combined scepter had been established "Over veteran legions and subject realms" there is evoked this principle—the principle of the victors, plucked from the creed of the Vienna Congress, of territorial integrity. And we are to underwrite and guarantee it all. Under Article X it would be impossible for any people anywhere to ever secure their liberty except by the unanimous consent of the dominant powers of the League. A more autocratic combination of power has never been conceived.

My friends—and I say this with the utmost personal consideration for those who hold a different view—the standard set up in this League is all wrong. Democracies will never subscribe to it. The people will never accept it. It is the standard of the 17th century. It is the standard of the old Vienna Congress. It is the supreme tenet from despotism's revolting creed. Territorial integrity, regardless of how the territory was acquired or the wants and aspirations of the men and women who occupy it—can you conceive of a standard more at war with human progress—more unjust toward subject peoples?

Territorial integrity—that would have covered the thirteen colonies and would have executed Sam Adams and John Hancock as traitors. That would have covered Cuba and held her in bondage until the last child had perished of hunger and the last mother had been murdered by the petty slaves of remorseless tyrants. That standard will cover Egypt, Korea, Ireland and Shantung—titles founded in fraud and force and broken pledges, titles sustained against the hopes and prayers of millions petitioning through decades and centuries for their freedom, petitions which no democracy could deny and live. Such a rule denies fruition to those passions and hopes without which the human family would sink into loathsome bestiality.

Suppose Germany had won this fight. What rule would she have invoked? Territorial integrity! Would she not have declared that her conquered dominions should henceforth be protected—that territorial integrity should hereafter forever be the standard to which all peace-loving nations should adhere? It would have been her creed. Germany having failed and the Allies having won, we now invoke the rule. Japan holding Korea and Shantung—which is another name for the dismemberment of China; France holding her possessions in China, Syria and Africa; England holding one-fourth of the inhabitable globe—in other words, with the world's territory satisfactorily divided and distributed—we now, against all subject peoples and in the face of the most solemn pledges of freedom and independence, invoke the rule of territorial integrity. It is autocratic, it is despotic, it is unconscionable. It is un-American! It is a soulless, conscienceless task from which the American people turn with unconcealed aversion as the hideous thing unfolds. It means oppression! It means injustice! It means war!

If the League of Nations could have been built upon the principle which the President promised and upon which no doubt he intended it to be built before he went to Europe—upon the rights of small nations and the principle of self-determination—the doctrine of territorial integrity would have been tolerable in theory though, I think, impossible in practice. But Europe would have none of these principles. She rejected them one by one. Now with this league built upon the wrongs of small nations and the denial of the principles of self-determination—Shantung, Korea, Syria, Egypt and countless other instances—with new wrongs established and old wrongs left unrighted, with all these things wrought into the very texture and being of the league—the principle of territorial integrity becomes a hideous conspiracy against millions of downtrodden and oppressed people—the most gigantic scheme of imperialism, guaranteed and nailed down, of which history furnishes any record. If the American Republic is to remain as the fathers made it—a Government based upon the maxims of liberty and not

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 20, 1920.
Regular weekly meeting called to order at 7 p. m., Ed. Andersen presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; many members ashore.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 13, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Sept. 13, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 13, 1920.
Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL. Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Sept. 13, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Sept. 13, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 13, 1920.
Shipping fair; members scarce. Herman Skippman was elected agent pro tem. during two-weeks' absence of Harry Ohlsen.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Sept. 7, 1920.
Shipping and prospects poor.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 16, 1920.
Shipping quiet. Nominated delegate to California State Federation of Labor convention to be held at Fresno, Cal., October 4, 1920.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 9, 1920.
Shipping quiet.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 514. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro, Sept. 8, 1920.
Shipping fair.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

Karl Sigfried Larsen, No. 2389, a native of United States, age 23. Died in the U. S. Marine Hospital, Sept. 19, 1920.

Michel Brizga, No. 2443, a native of Russia, age 26. Drowned in Nushagak, Alaska, in July month, 1920.

Uno Edward Lax, No. 952, a native of Finland, age 38. Died in Koggiung, Alaska, in the spring of 1919.

Captain G. F. Peterson, master of the brigantine "Jeanette," operated by Wightman & Crane of San Francisco, was drowned at Newcastle, Aus., early last month, according to mail advices received by J. M. Daily, manager of the marine department of the Chamber of Commerce. His body was recovered. Captain Peterson evidently had fallen overboard from a gangplank at night. Captain Peterson was 57 years old and is survived by a widow and two daughters living in Alameda, Cal.

THE 300TH ANNIVERSARY.

The year 1920 is doubly significant, historically. It marks the 300th anniversary of two important events which led to the founding of the Republic of the United States of America. One is the signing of the Mayflower compact and the landing of the pilgrims; and the other is the meeting of the first American legislative assembly.

On November 11, 1620, in the cabin of the Mayflower, a tiny bark lying off the Massachusetts coast, a little band of liberty-loving men, from "Brittania," entered into what history has styled the Mayflower Compact. This agreement bound the forty-one adult males in the ship's company in a civil body politic for the better ordering, preserving and furthering of their mutual ends. And it provided for such just and equal laws and offices as should be necessary for the general good of the colony.

Ten days later, so records Dr. Charles W. Eliot's inscription on the Pilgrim Memorial Monument at Provincetown, Mass., "the Mayflower, carrying 102 passengers, men and women and children, cast anchor in this harbor sixty-seven days from Plymouth, England.

"This body politic, established and maintained on this bleak and barren edge of a vast wilderness, a State without a king or a noble, a church without a bishop or a priest, a democratic commonwealth, the members of which were straitly tied to all care of each other's good, and of the whole by every one.

"With long-suffering devotion and sober resolution they illustrated for the first time in history the principles of civil and religious liberty and the practice of a genuine democracy."

Meantime, uninformed of the Pilgrims, fellow-colonists of Captain John Smith had met at "James City" (Jamestown), Virginia, for the first American Legislative Assembly. On July 30, 1619, they had thus broken ground for the foundation of the present democratic form of government in the United States.

This year (in 1920) these events are being commemorated in the United States, in England and in Holland. In August the origin of the Pilgrim movement was celebrated in England. And early in September meetings were held in Holland in memory of the Pilgrims' sojourn in that country.

In September a "second Mayflower" will set sail from Southampton, England, to follow to the American shore the path taken by the original Mayflower. (But this second "Mayflower" will be modern, and therefore much more seaworthy than her smaller predecessor.)

This boat, carrying many prominent people of England, Holland and the United States, will anchor in Provincetown Harbor in late September. Its arrival will perhaps mark the crowning dramatic episode of the entire Tercentenary celebrations.

These events will not be celebrated in the United States by the citizens of Massachusetts and Virginia alone. Nor solely by the New England and South Atlantic States. Communities throughout America are planning to take this opportunity to review the foundation upon which the United States rest"—and to re-emphasize those principles which these ancestors established—and which their sons, their followers, and their followers' sons have handed down to us through our form of representative form of government.

America is appropriating, from national and State treasuries, hundreds of thousands of dollars to be used in plans for the commemoration. One plan is to erect, overlooking Plymouth Harbor, a colossal statue of Massasoit, the Indian chief, who befriended the Puritan pioneer. Another is to set the Plymouth Rock, which in 1741 was raised above the tide, in its original position.

Seventy American cities, including New York, Chicago and Boston, have started plans for their celebrations of the Tercentenary. The Sulgrave Institution and the American Mayflower Council have been active in co-ordinating these plans.

THE BREAD LINE "REMEDY."

Corporation psychology is disclosed by propaganda that is being circulated by the Pennsylvania and other railroads. Hundreds of thousands of pamphlets have been placed in the hands of employes and others directing attention to the increase of unemployment and warning workers that they soon will be in position where they will be compelled to bow to the dictation of the bosses.

If this movement to restrict operating forces becomes general, the statement says, our economic ills will be cured. Then "the world's woes will take wing." All that is required to restore peace and prosperity is to crowd the bread lines with hungry workers. It will warm the cockles of the hearts of proud corporation chieftains when they witness the spectacle of millions of men pleading for jobs that are theirs as a matter of right.

The Pennsylvania thinks the workers have been too prosperous—that high wages have gone to their head, like new wine, and made them do foolish things. They have been buying "too many silk shirts, $20 shoes, $75 suits." This has been "more than lots of workers could stand." Now they are to get back to hard pan. "The swanking and the swaggering will shortly be on the wane," the Pennsylvania hopes. "Workers will pay more attention to their jobs and less attention to agitators who fill no pay envelopes, but fill their followers only with wind."

The sinister phase of this propaganda is that it is being paid for with government funds. During the first four months of private control following the return of the railroads the Pennsylvania received from the Federal treasury nearly $27,000,000, of which something more than five millions covered the guaranteed return. Twenty-one and a half millions represented loss in operating revenue. In the corresponding months under Federal control, the Pennsylvania earned $7,491,093, two and a quarter millions more than the rental.

A considerable portion of the money taken by the Pennsylvania from the people was worse than wasted. It has financed propositions against the welfare of the public and its employers.

There is no new lesson in these revelations, unless it be that the railroad mind has not altered during the past five years. The average corporation official is just as arrogant, just as ignorant of what is transpiring in this world, as the Bourbon ever dared be.

DREAMS OF THE GENERAL STAFF.

It is not generally known, except in official circles, that the War Plans Division of the General Staff has just completed for Secretary Baker a "survey" of the army posts and cantonments to ascertain what changes, if any, would be required to adapt them

(a) to a system of universal military training, and

(b) to the care of an army of 7,000,000 men.

The report will be ready for Congress when the latter convenes in December for the so-called "short session."

It is about time, however, that somebody injected this little item into the presidential campaign. What stand do Messrs. Cox and Harding take on these two issues so obligingly outlined for them by the General Staff?

Lord Wolseley, the great British general, published a handbook some years ago strictly for soldiers. It is called "The Soldier's Pocket Book" and it is used to this day in the English Army. In that book General Wolseley sums up the character of General Staffs the world over: "The soldier must be taught to believe that his duties are the noblest which fall to a man's lot. He must be taught to despise all those of civil life. Soldiers, like missionaries, must be fanatics."

ARE THE OCEANS SHRINKING?

That the general sea-level of the world was once about twenty feet higher than it is now is asserted by Prof. Reginald A. Da'y, of Harvard, in a paper read before the National Academy of Sciences. Our quotations below are from a review by Raymond H. Torrey in The Evening Post (New York). The lowering that Professor Daly thinks is taking place is quite independent of the local rise and fall of shore-lines, due to warping of the earth's crust, and familiar to geologists in all parts of the world. Professor Daly believes it to be caused by variation in the size of the south polar ice-cap. Seven hundred feet more of ice piled on the mass covering the antarctic regions would take enough water from the ocean to lower its total level throughout the globe by twenty feet. If climatic changes in the future should meet the polar cap to some extent, this action might restore to the ocean the twenty feet that it has lost in past ages. Says Mr. Torrey in his review:

"It has long been known that the ocean shore-lines in various parts of the world have risen or fallen, even in historic times, and there is plenty of evidence that such changes are still going on. Our Atlantic coast has sunk in comparatively recent geological time, and is still sinking, though at the rate of only a few inches in a century.

"The Hudson for most of its length to Albany is a 'drowned' river in a prehistoric gorge invaded by salt waters when the land lowered. New York State has risen from one hundred to eight hundred feet, progressing from Long Island to the Canadian border, since the last glacial invasion, when the retreat of the ice to the north released its burden upon the land.

"But these changes, huge as they were in themselves, are local compared to the proposition of a general lowering of the ocean-level. Professor Daly calls such a movement eustatic—that is, general or world-wide. Among the possible causes which he lists are movements of the earth's crust whereby the capacity of the ocean basin is diminished or increased; the heaping up of material on the ocean floor by the deltas of great rivers or by material thrown up by submarine volcanoes; volcanic addition of new water to the ocean; subtraction of water which becomes chemically involved during the alteration of rocks; glaciation on land, lowering the amount of water in the sea, and consequently its level, by relocating it in land ice, and changes in the earth's center of gravity and in its speed of rotation.

"Professor Daly reports many recent observations of changes in sea-level which suggest the possibility of a sinking of general level of nearly twenty feet during the time of man.

"His attention was first called to the possibility of such a general sinking by observations on postglacial beaches in Labrador and Newfoudland as compared with others higher up in the Gulf of St. Lawrence in the neighborhood of Quebec. He found, as earlier geologists had done, higher strands which showed evidence of warping since they were abandoned by the sea which formed them. This warping has been accounted for by the relief from the burden of ice brought about when the continental ice-sheet melted at the close of the last glacial period.

"But below these warped beaches Professor Daly found the lowest emerged terrace along the shores of the gulf to be conspicuously level for three hundred miles below Quebec. The uniformity suggested that the strand had been abandoned by the waves because of a general sinking of sea-level. It was continuous at about twenty feet above present high tide. Similar evidence was found on the shores of Nova Scotia and the island of Anticosti."

Dr. A. G. Mayor, director of the marine laboratory of the Carnegie Institution in Washington, has reported similar data as to Samoa and Florida. On Tutuila, the largest island under American control in the Samoan group, he found wave-cut beaches eight feet above high tide, and large sea caves which were cut when the high-tide mark was nearly twenty feet higher than now. Similar beaches were found in other islands seventy-five miles away. Says Mr. Torrey:

"'The crests of the abandoned beaches were constant and level, and explanation by local uplift, through movements of the earth's crust, was held by Dr. Mayor to be improbable since uplift of such uniformity is unknown to geology.

"'Other records of the abandonment by the sea of old beaches have been found in the British Isles, the Atlantic coast of North America, south of New York, the West Indies, Brazil, Patagonia, Antarctica, New Zealand, and Australia. On the coasts of Georgia and Florida what geologists call the Pensacola-Satilla terrace runs for five hundred miles at a practically uniform set of levels, the highest about twenty feet.

"'Nearly a thousand miles of the eastern and northern coasts of Australia show a similar emergence of ten to twenty feet. Such extensive records of shifting sea-level are held by Professor Daly to preclude the explanation of warping of the earth's crust due to local changes.

"'That such changes are comparatively recent is held by Professor Daly to be proved by the fact that fossils on these abandoned shores are of animals similar to those now living in adjoining seas, or to those found in seas which were a few degrees warmer. Many geologists hold that the temperature of the sea was slightly higher in the period when these beaches might have been formed.

"'As to a probable explanation of the causes of a twenty-foot drop in the world-wide level of the ocean, Professor Daly says:

"'"The most promising idea appears to be that a few thousand years ago there was an increase in the volume of the existing, non-floating glaciers. If the antarctic ice-cap were thickened to the average amount of about seven hundred feet, an average sinking of sea-level to the extent of nearly twenty feet would be inevitable. In favor of this suggestion would be evidence of a world-wide oscillation of climate like that which seems to have affected the Christiania region (in Norway) in recent time. If the whole earth was a little warmer than now (in a period of a few thousand years ago), less water may have been taken from the ocean to constitute the ice-caps, and sea-level was a little higher than at present. The oscillation as a whole would be but an incident in a series of climatic and oceanic changes which began with the opening of the glacial period.'

"Professor Daly's hypothesis seems to imply that if for any reason the antarctic ice-cap were reduced, its contained water would be restored to the ocean, and unless other conditions intervened there might, in the course of thousands of years, be a rise of the world-wide ocean-level back to something like the point from which it has retreated."

HURRICANE WARNINGS.

The United States Weather Bureau is engaged in a determined effort to combat the danger of hurricanes in the Gulf of Mexico and South Atlantic regions by the adoption of a system of upper air observations at a number of stations in the West Indies and in the Southern States. The service will continue until the end of November, July to November being the period in which most West Indian hurricanes occur.

Observations will be made by means of balloons liberated in the upper regions of the air. These will be sent up twice a day and a record kept of their direction and rate of movement. Results will be telegraphed to the central office of the weather bureau at Washington, whence compiled information and warnings will be sent broadcast.

The general theory of the service is that the movement of the West India hurricanes up the Atlantic coast or farther westward into the Gulf of Mexico is largely determined by the trade and anti-trade winds. If this be true, it is thought that the direction and velocity of the upper air currents will enable the forecaster to determine their nature at any given time.

Stations at which the observations will be made are San Juan and Santo Domingo in the West Indies; Colon in the Panama Canal Zone; Leesburg, Ga.; Groesbeck, Tex., and Ellington and Kelly aviation fields, also in Texas.

The annual hurricanes in South Atlantic and Gulf sections have almost always been attended with enormous damage to shipping. Not only have many noble ships been destroyed and many hundreds of lives lost, but also transportation has been seriously interfered with because of caution necessitated by the advent of the hurricane season. If the weather bureau's latest plan proves helpful in enabling it to give warnings of hurricanes, the system will be of immense benefit to shipowners, shipmasters, passengers and freight shippers.—Salt Lake Tribune.

"So long as a man can be evicted and banished from the local community at the will of the landlord there can be no independence and no possible freedom of self-government worthy of the name. * * * By recognizing private property in land, the State has set up in its midst a number of petty lords more powerful than any government, and whose decrees, whatever injustice they may do or whatever misery bring to British subjects, no court of law or equity is able to reverse."—Alfred Russell Wallace.

Labor's Economic Platform

Following is the Economic Platform adopted by the American Federation of Labor:

1. The abolition of all forms of involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime.
2. Free schools, free text books and compulsory education.
3. Unrelenting protest against the issuance and abuse of injunction process in labor disputes.
4. A work day of not more than eight hours in the twenty-four hour day.
5. A strict recognition of not over eight hours per day on all Federal, State or municipal work, and not less than the prevailing per diem wage rate of the class of employment in the vicinity where the work is performed.
6. Release from employment one day in seven.
7. The abolition of the contract system on public work.
8. The municipal ownership of public utilities.
9. The abolition of the sweat-shop system.
10. Sanitary inspection of factory, workshop, mine and home.
11. Liability of employers for injury to body or loss of life.
12. The nationalization of telegraph and telephone.
13. The passage of anti-child labor laws in States where they do not exist and rigid defense of them where they have been enacted into law.
14. Woman suffrage co-equal with man suffrage.
15. Suitable and plentiful playgrounds for children in all cities.
16. The Initiative and Referendum and the Imperative Mandate and Right of Recall.
17. Continued agitation for the public bath system in all cities.
18. Qualification in permits to build of all cities and towns, that there shall be bathrooms and bathroom attachments in all houses or compartments used for habitation.
19. We favor a system of finance whereby money shall be issued exclusively by the Government, with such regulations and restrictions as will protect it from manipulation by the banking interests for their own private gain.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

vious wars will use $3,855,482,586, or 67.8 per cent. The army and navy will use $1,424,138,577, or 25 per cent.

Dr. Rosa shows that the cost of wars and the maintenance of war equipment means a tax of $50 per capita on each of the 110,000,000 people of this country, while the tax for efficiency, education, public health and research is about 50 cents per capita.

Non-Unionists "Cheeky" Says Official

Government employes who remain outside the Union, while enjoying benefits the Union made possible, were denounced by Attorney-General McTiernan of New South Wales.

Replying to a delegation of workers who were demanding certain governmental reforms, including preference to unionists, the Attorney-General said:

"I think it is most outrageous that any person should remain deliberately outside the ranks of a union and then have the 'cheek' to share the benefits the union has procured. It is arrogance and hide of a very high order, indeed. I am sure the Government will help industrial organizations of employes to prevent the recurrence of this sort of thing in the future."

The Australian Worker makes this comment on the law official's statement:

"Of course, Attorney-General McTiernan's observations have raised something of a sensation in the columns of the capitalist newspapers. They denounce it as autocracy of the worst form. Standing as they do for docile, groveling and servile non-union civil service, the idea that civil servants should be unionized is a nightmare too hideous for words."

Non-Unionists Routed

Organized labor in Tucson, Ariz., has defeated an attempt to establish the non-union shop and individual bargaining.

The antis have taken down their non-union shop "white cards" and have hoisted the white flag, and assure several sections of the trade union movement that "We never meant you." To this the unionists reply, "Dry your crocodile tears."

When the anti-union movement started large numbers of business and professional men enlisted. Organized labor refused to stampede, however, and the attack resulted in greater solidarity and a substantial co-operative movement that is backed by labor's purchasing power.

The result is shown in this statement by the Tucson Record, published by the Central Trades Council:

"At the inception of this movement, the non-union shop cards were as thick as fleas on an itinerant pup. Now count 'em. You will not be carried into higher mathematics in doing so."

Sell Dyed Water

Dyed water is being sold for orange juice, says the Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture.

These imitations, it is stated, are usually concocted of sweetened, artificially carbonated water, colored with a dye to imitate orange juice, and flavored with a little oil from the peel of the orange. While they may not contain ingredients injurious to the health of adults, they are imitations and lack the medicinal qualities of fruit juices, and should not be used in place of genuine orange juice, especially as a food for babies and young children.

Attention is called to the fact that the soft-drink industry is largely a local industry. Many of the bottled soft drinks are sold and consumed within the State where they are made. Such drinks are not subject to the Federal Food and Drugs Act, which apply only to food and drugs that enter interstate or foreign commerce or that are made or sold within the District of Columbia or a territory.

Strikers Jailed by Injunction Judge.

Justice Bailey of the Colorado State Supreme Court has declined to review the conviction of seven members of the Denver Street Car Men's Union, who were sentenced to three months in jail by District Court Judge Whitford for contempt of court when the street car men suspended work.

In their appeal to the Supreme Court, attorneys for the unionists submit these questions:

"Can a district court sitting as a court of equity in Colorado enjoin employes from striking and quitting the service of their employer for better working conditions or better wages? If such an injunction is disobeyed, can the employes be held in contempt and punished therefor?"

"To ask these two questions is to answer them," continue the attorneys. "The answer is 'no' to both questions. It is difficult to characterize the proceedings in the court below. It is still more difficult to calmly review them and comment upon them.

"Here is a judicial proceeding, an injunctive writ, for which there is no warrant in law, nor by statute, nor by common law, nor by any constitutional provision, nor by line, word or syllable of any decided case in the United States or of any State in the Union. The proposition is so novel that it would challenge our surprise if it were not so dangerous to the liberty of men."

The attorneys show that the Colorado law, section 3924, states that workers have the right to organize and to strike. The only restraint in this State now is the recently enacted "can't-strike" law, which makes it unlawful to strike until the State Industrial Commission acts. The workers complied with this law and the commission's award disposed of the case as far as the commission is concerned.

When the street car men struck Judge Whitford ordered the arrest of the seven unionists, denied them a trial by jury and put them in jail for 90 days. Attorneys for the convicted men appealed to the State Supreme Court to review the proceedings, but this has been denied.

In their petition to the State's highest court, the attorneys said:

"If a district court can hold citizens in contempt and send them to jail and actually imprison them for disobedience of an unlawful injunction in this case, then a district court sitting in Colorado can issue injunctions of any character and imprison citizens who disobey them. Where, then, are the liberties of the people of Colorado if this sort of a proceeding can be upheld?

"If a district court can enjoin men from striking for a day, it can enjoin them for a year or a century. If a district court can enjoin men from striking either for shorter hours, higher wages or better working conditions, then the working people of Colorado are bound in chains to their employers and can never again collectively assert their right to improve their standard of living or their lot in life.

"We assert that if this alleged principle of law is upheld we have reached a condition of involuntary servitude among the working people of Colorado, and involuntary servitude is prohibited by the Constitution of Colorado and of the United States.

"If a court of equity can enjoin men from striking, as has been done in this case, then we assert that fundamental constitutional provisions have been violated."

In denying the accused a trial by jury Judge Whitford violated another State law, which provides that where contempt is not committed in the presence of the court, the person arrested must be accorded a trial by jury when such demand is made.

Judge Whitford ignored still another section of Colorado law by refusing to grant the accused a stay of proceedings.

Burleson's Record 100 Per Cent. Anti.

Postmaster General Burleson has maintained his 100 per cent. opposition to an independent worker by his discharge of 11 officers of the Chicago Postal Clerks' Union.

In their publicity campaign the clerks used statements that were made at hearings before Congress and the 11 officials are dismissed on the ground of violation of law that debars employes from soliciting gifts. The union published a program of an entertainment in which advertisements were printed.

The average length of service of the victimized employes is 15 years, with one man nearly 25 years. These men are only qualified for the postal service, from which they are now debarred. They also lose their interest in the civil service pension.

The latest move by the postal autocrat is in accord with a policy that he has rigidly maintained. During the war when postal employes asked higher wages to meet advancing living costs, the Postmaster General declared that they were now getting three times the amount paid a soldier. He made no mention of his wage, however, which is over 30 times more than a soldier received.

He has opposed organization of employes that can not be controlled, he has opposed wage increases, he has recommended that the law providing that eight hours' work shall be done in a period of 10 be amended to eight in 12, and he has opposed time and one-half for overtime, despite the president's declaration for an eight-hour day.

Practically all of the officers of postal employes' national unions are men who have been dismissed by the Postmaster General because of their protests against servitude and their demands that postal employes be treated as Americans.

Building Guild Plan Gaining in England.

The Manchester Guardian, one of England's foremost liberal newspapers, states that at last the Government has the sense to acknowledge that the national building guild plan "has the roots of a solution" of the housing question.

This plan, says the Guardian, "cuts out the middleman, and it guarantees continuous employment to the operative. The government has learned both these lessons from the guild and is tardily making tentative experiments itself in both direct and continuous employment. It has even had the sense to acknowledge that the guild plan, as such, has the roots of a solution in it, and to encourage local authorities to adopt it."

The guild was started by organized building craftsmen. It includes these workers, technicians and administrators, who volunteer to erect houses and other construction. Profits are placed at the disposal of the guild to improve the service and to pay wages to workers who are unemployed or who are idle because of weather conditions. The guild has entered into contractural relations with the co-operative wholesale society for the necessary material and with the co-operative insurance society for the necessary insurance.

The guild plan has spread to London, where it has been approved by the district council of the National Federation of Building Trade Operatives.

AN UNUSUAL VOYAGE

It is not usual for three salvage cases to turn up on a ship's single voyage. But this very noteworthy thing has actually occurred. The whole crew of the "Eastern Glen," including the officers and captain, fifty men altogether, have placed in the hands of Attorney Axtell, of New York, salvage claims against three ships which they picked up and towed during the voyage of the "Eastern Glen" from Seattle to New York. At Acaquapulca, Mexico, they picked up the S. S. "Silverado" and towed her to Balboa, 1,700 miles. After coming through the Canal they received distress signals from the S. S. "Lake Fariston." She was drifting on the rocky Columbian Coast. Four days more towage placed her in safety at Colon. They then proceeded to New York. 1,000 miles southeast of Sandy Hook they found the S. S. "Andrew Jackson" in distress. They towed her to New York, successfully completing this remarkable voyage.

Arizona is provided with one of the few moated strongholds in the United States, possibly the only one of its kind. The Capitol building now is almost surrounded with a huge and permanent moat that is to be completed this winter and in full flood soon afterward. The moat is six feet deep and six feet wide and is to be equipped with a powerful pumping plant for lowering the water level in the big circular canal and at the same time irrigating the Capitol lawns, trees, and beds and flowers.

If one body of men have a right to quit work to compel a necessary improvement in the conditions of their lives, no other body of men can have a right to take their places. The court of morals takes no cognizance of the right to scab.

MORE POWER TO "THE CALL"

The victory of the New York Call over Postmaster-General Burleson must give a peculiar thrill of satisfaction to every newspaper and every individual that has had dealings with that official during the last few years. By withholding for nearly three years the Call's second-class mailing privilege, Mr. Burleson had every reason to think—and doubtless hoped—that he would ruin the newspaper or drive it out of business as he succeeded in doing with hundreds of other publications. By the courage and ability of its editors and managers, and the loyalty of its readers, who made the survival of the paper their daily business, the Call has not only lived, but has lived to get back its rights and to prove Mr. Burleson a law-breaker or at least a law-stretcher himself. But no mere restoration of its mailing rights can restore the enormous sums of money lost through the action of the Postmaster-General. Until the Call is adequately repaid for the almost incalculable damage inflicted by the Postmaster-General, until some recompense is made for his cold-blooded attempt to strangle it to death, the case should not be allowed to rest. The Call should take immediate steps to recover through the Court of Claims or by suing the Postmaster-General himself the full amount of its damage.—New York Nation.

DISSECTING "ARTICLE X."

(Continued from Page 7)

a Government of force—it will never pledge its sons to underwrite or police any such scheme.

One of the most serious objections to Article X is that it places the real power to foment war or to force war further than ever from the constraining control of the people. While it may be true that certain formalities will have to be observed, such as in some instances a declaration of war, the things which make war inevitable are under the absolute control of a conclave of European diplomats sitting behind closed doors at Geneva. No scheme for peace will ever be worthy of a people's confidence which does not place the power of peace or war in the control of those who must pay the taxes and fight the battles when war comes. If those who make war had to fight the wars there would be fewer wars. If I had my way about it I would write into the Constitution of the United States a provision that no war should ever be begun by our country except in absolute defense against invasion or actual attack until the question has been submitted to a vote of the people. If you want to stop war, take the power to foment war out of the hands of the munition makers and the diplomats and place it in the hands or under the control of those who must fight and DIE when the war comes. The President once very truly said: "The people do not make war." Rarely have they indeed done so except in defense of their own liberties.

The Council of the League, under Article X, could foment war at any time it should see fit to do so. Nine men representing the inhabitants of the earth could bring about a condition where the people, notwithstanding any provisions of their respective Constitutions, would be dragged or driven into war as they have been heretofore nine times out of ten. If the territorial integrity of some nation were violated or if there was threat of war somewhere, the Council would have a perfect right, according to the terms of the contract which we are asked to ratify, to call for a blockade or for troops. The fact that some Congress had to vote the troops would not protect the people at all if you had contracted in advance to vote them. Or if they called for the troops merely for police purposes, war would inevitably follow nine times out of ten. Suppose Shantung should throw off her false and immoral rule and China should assist her, as she would, and the Council would call on our President to send one hundred thousand men as our proportion to steady the situation or protect Japan's territorial integrity. How long would it be after our troops were there until the fighting would commence and war would be on—declaration or no declaration of Congress? Let the dead boys in Russia, sent there ostensibly to steady the situation or guard a railroad, answer.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175

BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588

CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842

MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street

TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666

SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue

CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer

Branches:

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W

SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131

CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666

TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823

CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866

MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543

CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary

Branches:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street

Branches:

VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214

SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street

Agencies:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street

Branches:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG .....Alaska
UNGA .....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

The wide field covered by the A. F. of L. is shown by the organization of rag sorters in Tacoma, Wash.

The Nashville, Tenn., street car company shows that all czars and kaisers do not live abroad. It has refused to negotiate a new agreement with its organized platform employes and these workers are now on strike.

With workmen's compensation laws enacted to date in 43 States and in Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, in addition to the model measure adopted by the Federal government for its half-million civilian employes, rapid progress is being made toward providing industrial accident insurance at cost through State funds, according to a statement issued by the American Asssociation for Labor Legislation. Association for Labor Legislation.

Treat your strikebreakers kindly and occasionally give them a small present, is the advice of officers of the Tennessee Manufacturers' Association to officers of the Nashville Street Car Company, which is attempting to establish the non-union shop. Nashville business men are urged to also pat the strikebreakers on the back and to assure these "independent" workers that their fight for non-unionism is appreciated by every low wage employer in this city.

In a speech to trade unionists in Chattanooga, Tenn., Secretary-Treasurer Birthwright of the Tennessee State Federation of Labor declared that big business was lined-up against the woman's suffrage amendment, which was adopted by the Tennessee Legislature. He said the Tennessee Manufacturers' Association, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and all other forms of privilege were on hand to force rejection of the amendment by the same methods that they always used in opposing labor legislation.

Clarence B. Miller, secretary of the Republican Committee, was scored by the Convention of National Federation of Federal Employes. Mr. Miller advanced a wondrous scheme in Washington a few days ago to reduce the cost of living by having the government dismiss 300,000 employes. In their resolution the unionists said: "The dismissal of 300,000 employes other than postal employes would leave but 40,000 employes for the entire federal service throughout the United States." Some of the delegates advised the politician to look for monopolists if such a course would not affect contributions to the campaign fund.

Several thousand youngsters from the steel district of South Chicago were recently entertained by the "good fellow club" of the Illinois Steel Company, and Editor Tracy of the Union Clay Workers recalls that this club or its president, who is superintendent of the steel mills, did not arrange any picnics for these children when their fathers were on strike a few months ago to secure improved conditions. "The corporation," says Editor Tracy, "had hundreds of thugs and gun men on the job ready to shoot down the striking steel workers on the slightest provocation, but that was during the time when they were forced to show their hand. Now that the strike is over, they ride and dine the children of these same strikers."

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson. Jack
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George

Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.

Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling

Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry

Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38

Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor

Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar

Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Heritz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.

Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.

Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.

Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liiquest, Rudolf
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.

Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muier, James

Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.

Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.

Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E.
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplore, J.
Prinz, Carl

Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van

Sale, John
Saard, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N.
Schurr, Harm
Scheleng, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H.
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L.
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R.
Sterndoch, J.
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M.
Svenson, Thure
Sverdrup, Walter
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash., Letter List

Anderson, Fred
Anderson, John (registered)
Anderson, E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Brandt, H.
Berke, C.
Barton, M.
Brun, Mattias
Bedford, A.
Bradsbery, Geo.
Carlson, Oscar
Forsman, Niels
Hansen, Johan G.
Hansen, H. O.
Hanson, Halvor
Halvorsen, Halvor
Halvorsen, Hans
Janson, John
Johanesen, Alf.
Johnson, Karl
Johannesen, Jonas
Johanson, Emil
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Kinnunnen, Ant.
Olsen, Alf
Petersen, Hans
Roneld, P.
Randmets, Mike
Risenius, Sven
Saro, W. R.
Smith, Carl Johan
Toren, Gustaf
Tourela, Erick
Vejvorda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Andersen, Oscar
Anderson, Hilding
A. L. N.
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Carlson, Gust
de Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob
Erickson, John
Groth, J.
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Hakanson, Ingvar
Isakson, Erick
Jacobsen, Jack
Johansen, F. C.
Johansen, Karl W.
Johnson, John
Karlson, George
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Leskinen, Fred
Levele, Ed.
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lauren, William
Lund, Frank
McNeill, Daniel
Ross
Moxnes, Chris.
Mikelsen, P.
Newton, A. B.
Olofson, Charles
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olsen, George
Peterson, Frank
Rasmussen, Peter
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Witt.
Svenson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Wamsa, August
Peter
Registered Letters
Cranzzi, Rosolino
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rasmussen, P.
Smith, R.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of John B. Isaacs will please notify Chas. F. Bullock, Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, 321 Twentieth street, Galveston, Texas. Matter of great importance. 3-31-20

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R.	$22.50
Eugene, John	22.50
Makinen, K.	22.50
Mattson, Geo. J.	22.50
Rehnstrom, A.	26.25
Sjoholm, J. W.	22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Rudolf Knutsson is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of his brother, J. Harvid Knutsson, a native of Trellerborg, Sweden, age 20, last heard from in New York, in April, 1918. Please address his brother, care Sailors' Union of the Pacific, 59 Clay street, San Francisco, Calif. 1-7-20

Albert Nord, a native of Sweden, is inquired for by his brother, David Nord, General Postoffice, Brisbane, Australia 5-19-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

INFORMATION WANTED

Any one knowing the whereabouts of Karl Reese, age 30, last heard of in Iquique, Chile, October, 1916, bark Herbert," will please notify George Zimera, Sailors' Union, P. O. Box 65, Seattle, Wash. 1-21-20

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Grondund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Mcgrail, Mikel
Person, Fritz, Leonard
Rahlhard, H
Reilly, Ralph
Redelins, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Swanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

Portland, Or., Letter List

Ahren, Wm.
Andersen, A. C.
Andersson, Axel
Andersson, Carl
Anderson, A. B.
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Anderson, Gunnar
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakaihn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsic, Karl
Bach, Soren
Backman, Peter
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Gust
Bohm, Franz
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Davison, Jim
Diez, H.
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. B.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Enberg, Einar
Fogelberry, Harry
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gilkison, A. F.
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Gronbeck, H.
Gruber, J.
Halley, W.
Hanson, August
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Holland, E. A.
Heino, Gust
Henrikson, Geo.
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Irmey, Feodor
Jacobs, Fulton
Jernberg, Alfred
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Jones, E. L.
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kauko, Axel
Kelly, Norman
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Krause, Frank
Kristiansen, Wm. A.
Laine, A. A.
Laine, John
Larsen, Hans
Larsson, Ragnar
Larson, C. J. -1632
Leisig, John
Lindner, John P.
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank E.
Malkoff, Peter
Matson, R. M.
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLeod, Angus
McLean, M. R.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Moyer, Geo. E.
Neilsen, H. J.
Nelson, Nels
Nelsson, C.
Neuling, G. A.
Nilsen, Christ
Norberg, John E.
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peterson, Mauritz
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Preston, E.
Pyne, J. W.
Raanes, Johan
Rader, Allen
Rautio, Jack
Reiman, Tovo H.
Rier, Earl W.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Saine, Arthur A.
Salonen, Victor
Salin, Toivo H.
Sandvik, S. G.
Scott, M.
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sutse, Michel
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Thomson, Henry
Thorsen, Chas.
Tinstrom, A. R.
Tuhkanen, John J.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wikstrom, Carl
Willis, Samuel
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Fred L.
Worn, Otje

San Pedro Letter List

Aho, Jack
Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, C.
Andersen, C.
Anderson, Sven
Arentsen, John
Arnesen Isak
Aspe, Theodor
Belmont, Joe
Bentley, Clifford
Bengtsson, Sigfried
Bergeson, B.
Berglund, Emil J.
Bergstrom, J
Brast, Sjomans
Braden, W. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Brown, Irving W.
Bye, Kristian
Burge, Larence
Cage, Tom
Carlsson, Chas.
Carlera, Peter
Carr, R. W.
Craig, Thomas
Cowan, Wm. L.
Church, C. E.
Davis, Orville
Daw, Walter
Deaver, Alvin
Desmond,, Albin
Doty, Erwin
Daunt, C.
Dreger, Jack
Dragich, Peter
Drennan, W. N.
Eliasen, John
Ek, William
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Evensen, Alex
Farrell, H. D.
Feeder, Geo.
Fickle, Omer
Fottinger, Karl A.
Fovik, Ludvig
Forde, Alfred
Frair, Enoch
Freiberg, P.
Franzell, A. H.
Freitag, F.
Gayton, H. L.
Grasson, Joe
Gronthal, Arthur
Golden, Roy
Gunderud, Ulrik
Hansen, Olaf
Hellsten, G.
Hermanson, Carl
Holland, Jonnie
Hermanson, Carl
Hey, Ben.
Hickey, John
Hogstedt, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Hurley, Michael
Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Jacobsen, Tom
Janofy, Axel
Jensen, Marius
Jensen, Kristian
Jeeden, George
Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Johansen, Johan W.
Johansen, Carl
Johansen, J. -1432
Johnson, George
Johansen, J. -2314
Johnson, P. -2313
Johnson, Waldron
Jonassen, Johannes
Keel, Jewell
Kelty, Peter
Kenrich, Richard
Ketelsen, Frede.
Keegan, J.
Klieman, Otto
Klementsen, Alf
Kootz, Fred
Knudsen Andrew
Kruse, Henry
Kristoffersen, Hans
Laine John
Landborg, Chas.
Larsen, Johan -1542
Lauritzen, Ole
Levine, Carl
Lindholm, Chas.
Lill, Karl
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lowrey, John R.
Lodersen, John
Lorgeman, Fred
Lobeles, Jose
Lund, F. V. -2010
Lucander, Hjalmar
Maans, Willy
Magnussen, John
Martinson J -2647
Mato, Alexander
McNeill, John
McGhee, E. J
McRae, Jack

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

Books for You While at Sea

ADVENTURE — SEAMANSHIP
ROMANCE—HISTORY—TRAVEL
SCIENCE—GREAT MEN'S LIVES

Books to Help You Spend Idle Hours in a Pleasant and Worth While Way

For a Free Crew's Library Exchangeable at Any Time

Apply to

American Library Association

34 Sacramento Street San Francisco

Phone Sutter 6985

Or to other A. L. A. Agencies in Almost Any American Port

These books are provided free for your use by the people of the United States through the American Library Association.

When you have finished with them, they may be exchanged for another collection at any office of the American Library Association, or they may be exchanged for any A. L. A. collection on board another boat.

In fairness to the men on the next ship receiving this collection you should take reasonable care to prevent loss or damage to any book.

Mize, J. H.
Mehrtens, Carl
Moor, Peter
Monson, Edvin
Moritz, W.
Murphy, Francis J.
Nauta, H.
Nankinen, Fred
Nelson, Ernest
Nelson, Charlie
Nelson, Gus
Nilsson, Edward
Ogren, Victor E.
Olofsen, O. A.
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Harold
Olsson, Otto
Pett, Dick
Petersen, Hugo
Peterson, August
Raaum, Harry
Rasmussen Swend
Roberts, Bob
Roberts, J. W.
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred C.
Rod, Halfdan
Rossdam, Harry
Rosenthal, W.
Rohman, Pete
Runge, R.
Rueter, Amandus
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Sanders, Chas.
Sandberg, N. A.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Salin, Henry
Schladen, H.
Scaharry, Jacob
Schaumberg, W.
Scottol, Andrew
Scrivers, W.
Seland, Hans
Smith, Carl Johan
Soder, Paul
Strehle, F.
Strauss, Walter
Steen, Ivar
Stensland, Paul
Strom, Oscar
Stenberg, Alfred
Sterndock, John
Steffensen, Hans
Sundquist, Walter
Sunde, O.
Sullivan, Jack
Swindells, William
Swanson, Mr.
Swanson, Eric K.
Thomsen, Thomas
Treiberg, Peter
Veckenstedt, W.
Viscarra, Oscar
Voth, Gus
Wennerquist, Anton
Wilhelmson, Karl
Winkelman, Otto
Wilson, John
Woods, Claude F.
Wrobluvski, Paul
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

Packages

Hansen, Oscar W.
Nahinen, Fred
Roberson, Ole
Erickson, E. R.
Nanhinen, Fred.
Peters, J. M
Pinnington, H. D.
Young, William
Zoerb, Walter

INFORMATION WANTED

The Centrale Bond von Transportarbeiders have placed in my hands claim of the father and mother of L. Verhoef, seaman who met his death on the S. S. "Balosaro" April 29, 1920. An old spring line broke, curled around Verhoef's left leg and yanked him on to the winch while he was operating it. Before it could be stopped his leg was taken off. He died two hours later at the hospital. Will members of the crew please report here promptly. The master has made an entry in the log book to the effect that the deceased met with his death through intoxication, which statement we believe to be utterly false. I am acting for the dependent relatives. It is the duty of seamen to tell the truth. Your dependents may be in the same position some day.—S. B. Axtell.

8-25-20

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST.

SAN FRANCISCO

Home News

California shipped 46,757 carloads of citrus fruits, valued at $81,200,000, in the season just ended, according to the report of G. Harold Powell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, rendered to the directors of that organization at their annual meeting.

Congressman John J. Esch, Republican, one of the authors of the Esch-Cummins railway bill, was defeated for renomination in the primary in the seventh district of Wisconsin by Joseph E. Beck, former State Commissioner of Labor. Esch's managers conceded Beck's nomination. Beck was supported by Senator La Follette.

The Colorado Bar Association will urge the next Colorado Legislature to establish cossacks in that State. The lawyers say that recent riots in connection with the local street car strike would be impossible if cossacks were on the job. The bar association makes no mention of the imported thugs and strikebreakers who staged the riots. Neither do the lawyers comment on the policy of certain local newspapers that create a mob spirit which was capitalized by the thugs.

Spirituous liquors received their final and complete divorce from the United States Navy in an order made public by the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery prohibiting their issue to naval vessels for medicinal purposes. Not only are medical supply depots prohibited from issuing whisky except to hospitals, but when their present supplies have become exhausted, the order states, "no further purchases will be made and whisky will be stricken from the supply table of the medical departmen of the Navy." It is estimated that the supply on hand will last not more than two or three weeks.

Coal owners in Mercer and McDowell counties, West Virginia, have failed to stop the unionization of their employes by thugs and machine guns and now call on the court to protect their "yellow dog" contracts. Miners are compelled to sign these contracts before they are employed. The contracts provide that the miner shall not join a union while in the company's employ. As the miner is miles from any other employment, and in most cases has a wife and family, he is compelled to waive his rights as a citizen. This contract has been sustained by the United States Supreme Court.

A mysterious explosion in Wall Street, New York, believed by Department of Justice and police to have been caused by an infernal machine, rocked the heart of New York's financial district at noon on September 16, leaving death and destruction in its wake. At least 31 persons were killed, more than 200 were injured, the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., the Subtreasury and the Assay Office were partially wrecked and property damage estimated in excess of $1,000,000 was caused. Thomas W. Lamont of the J. P. Morgan firm, expressed the belief, however, that the explosion was purely an accident caused by a collision between an explosive-laden wagon and another vehicle. The firm had received no threats of any kind he said, and there was no real reason for the planting of a bomb outside the firm's office.

Domestic and Naval

Mexican laborers in Dallas, Texas, have become weary of exploitation and have organized.

A co-operative cigar factory which will sell its products by mail order to union customers has just been opened under the direction of the Union Cigarmakers' Co-operative Society of New York. The venture has been incorporated for $20,000 and will have a capacity for fifty workers, who will be chosen by lot from among the members of the society, all of whom are union members.

Organized Washington timber workers employed by the National Lumber Company defeated an attempt to change the eight-hour day to 10 hours. Some members of the company's "union," known as the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen, joined the strike. After the bona fide unionists saved the eight-hour day Loyal Legion officers condemned the company. Then the company admitted its "mistake."

A 44-hour week is one feature of an agreement between metal trades workers and contract shops in Savannah, Ga. Wages are advanced 10 cents an hour, or to an hourly minimum of $1, for mechanics. Apprentices covered by the agreement will be paid 40 cents an hour to start with, and an additional 5 cents an hour every six months until the completion of apprenticeship.

The Washington state safety board is attempting to reduce the number of accidents in the building industry in this state which totaled, last year, 388 non-fatal and 83 fatal accidents. In a circular to the various affiliates of organized labor, Martin J. Flyzik of the State board, announces the issuance of general safety standards and urges all workers and employers to become acquainted with these rules.

Co-operatives in Tucson, Ariz., have bought a drug store for $10,000 and have added another link to their intended chain of stores. The co-op. movement is backed by organized labor and now conducts a first-class grocery store and drug store. The co-ops. declare their dream for a bank, a clothing house, butcher shop and a restaurant will come true. Opponents of the co-ops. still insist "it can't be done."

The Actors' Equity Association has secured a contract from the Touring Managers' Association which assures the actors many of the conditions prevailing in theaters in New York. The Touring Managers' Association is composed mainly of producers who send one-night attractions on the road. The Actors' Equity Association includes some of America's leading stage stars and is affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Through a misunderstanding of a decree issued by Judge Augustus Hand in the Federal District Court of New York in the matter of money awarded the crew of the steamer "Westmoreland," which salved the U. S. Shipping Board vessel "Mulpua," it was stated that $40,956 was to be divided among the crew. S. B. Axtell, No. 9 State street, attorney for a majority of the crew, informs the Journal that the decree apportions only one-fifth of that sum, or $8,191, to the crew. The owners, he states, gets the balance. Mr. Axtell had asked for one-fourth

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. M.
Adolfsson, John
Almon, L.
Altonen, Carl
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Andersen, N. F.
Andreasen, H. -1477
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, Edvin
Anderson, Frank
Andersson, C. -2001
Andersson, G. A.
Andersson, G. S.
Anderson, John
Andersson, C. B. -797
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Aso, Gustav
Attaberry, Clarence
Augustin, H.
Aylward, Ja

Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Bandel, Curt
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Bendixen, Hans
Bergman, J. L.
Bergstrom, G. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Bjorklund, E.
Blomgren, C. A.
Blomgreen, A.
Bloom, Pete
Boerner, P. F.
Bolstad, Hans
Bond, H. J.
Borgeson, Hilding
Botsford, R. D.
Boyland, O. J.
Bourman, Jack
Brauner, C. A.
Broomhead, R.
Broshear, A. O.
Brown, H. W.
Bryning, Wm.
Bryning, Walter
Buckner, Chas. W.
Bye, Krist.

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, John
Carlson, Axel
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Peter
Carlsson, J.
Carlsson, John -861
Carpenter, Harold
Cavanaugh, H. E.
Chilcott, Geo.
Chavez, Mariano
Christensen, Jorgen -1731
Christensen, Martin
Cherry, Arthur
Chipps, Eric
Christensen, H. C.
Clausen, Louis
Clug, Fredrick
Cobb, Ralph H.
Colman, J.
Conley, Irwin
Cooper, C. E.
Coulyou, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dahl, Otto
Dahl, Oskar
Dalds, Ogden
Dahlgren, Wm. A.
Davis, Warren
Daunt, C.
Deising, Ernst
DeMarlo, Thos
Delaney, G.
Derberg, M.
Dockensen, T.
Domminell, G.
Domke, Willi
Donnelly, George F.
Drange, F. S.
Drennen, W. N.
Dommelen, G. J.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Dumas, C.
Dunwoody, G.

Eaton, Lawrence
Eckleberry, H.
Eide, B.
Eide, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Ellingsen, Harold
Ellis, F. L.
Engstrom, Ed.
Endemann, M.
Ennus, Pito
Erickson, -997
Ernst, E.

Fagerberg, Ivan
Farevoog, C. M.
Farrell, Bernand
Fletcher, Jos.
Freese, Paul
Fredricksen, O.
Freierbach, C.
Fuller, Geo. E.

Gallery, R. B.
Gaynor, Ambrose
Geletneky, Hans
Germenis, Socrates
Graham, Claude
Graham, Ray
Grainge, Arnold
Granberg, Fred
Gregory, M. N.
Green, Lawrence
Griffin, J. R.
Gunderson, H. T.
Gutmann, Paul C. M. -1123

Hagemeyer, Gus
Hagen, Horace
Haider, Henry
Hale, Kingsley
Hallit, Frank
Halvorsen, Isak
Hallowes, L. N.
Haka, Ed.
Hansen, -2010
Hansen, -3190
Haugen, H. C.
Hammond, Robert
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, Hans M.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Hansen, S. P.
Hanson, Olaf
Harbst, J. D.
Harvey, Earl S.
Hauptman, F.
Hawkins, L.
Hellsten, G. A.
Henniques, L. O.
Hessin, B.
Heaps, James
Hereld, J. M.
Heyen, Horace
Heywood, D. L.
Higgins, P.
Hobbs, Frank A.
Houlak, John
Hobbs, Frank M.
Hoglander, Martin
Hollkamp, C.
Holdaway, C. G.
Hood, Alex
Huter, Chas.
Huber, C. L. -2846
Hunter, Ernest

Ibsen, Christian
Ireland, H.
Isakson, Karl

Jacklin, Charles
Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jacobsen, Herman
Jahnke, Paul
Jakullis, John
Janson, John A.
Jansson, Hj.
Jansson, John
Jens, Otto
Jensen, Martin
Jensen, E. -1987
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jensen, A. J. -2708
Jernberg, Alf.
Jeppsen, Chris.
Jespersen, M.
Jewell, Al. M.
Johannesen, Ole
Johanssen, Klaus
Johansen, Ellert
Johannesen, Johannes
Johansen, Anton
Johnsen, H. -2213
Johnston, Edw.
Johanson, E. -2715
Johnson, A. Emil
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johnson, E. L.
Johansson, Bernad
Johnson, Walter
Joiner, Jack
Jonsson, J. H. -2951
Jorgensen, Johannes
Jorgensen, F.
Josephson, Ben
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaaveland, T.
Karlgren, -644
Karlsson, E. -1738
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Katkin, Ed.
Kessell, Harry
Keegan, Joe
Kierne, G. H.
Kihlman, Gunnar
Kine, Conrad
Kinnie, E. J.
Kirby, Geo.
Klemmetsen, Alf.
Kluge, Fred
Kluge, Martin
Knudsen, Ragnval
Knutsen, B. R.
Kolustow, A.
Kraal, J.
Kristofferson, A. B.
Kruse, Einar
Kuckens, B.

LaMadrid, R.
Lambert, Jos.
Lange, Henry
Langmann, Wm.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen, Alfred
Larsen, H. -2280
Larsen, Sigruid
Larsen, John -2012
Laurence, Bruno
Leeder, W. -2287
Leegaard, Rasmus
Lefter, John A.
Lehtonen, Hj. O.
Leskinen, F. A.
Lidsten, Chas.
Liesen, W.
Lindeberg, Ernst
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Lindquist, Chas. S.
Lindroos, Fred
Liljedal, Ludv.
Loning, Herman
Lundquist, Ralph A.
Lubeck, Thos.
Lundin, -1054
Lundstrom, Ernst
Lydersen, Peder

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
Makares, S. J.
Mannonen, Niels
Manzano, Luis
Marker, Andrew
Marshall, Ira
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattos, Mario P.
Mahaffey, Cecil
Mattson, Hilding
Mattson, Victor
McGauley, Geo.
McGann, Oliver
McGregor, Donald
McGillvray, W.
McKenzie, Alex.
McLean, Grant
McCoy, J. L. -2904
McEvoy, Peter
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McCarthy, Harood
McManus, Peter
Maland, Helge
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Maynard, G.
Mersman, A.
Mess, W.
Melgand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Mitchell, David
Midgette, Frank W.
Mikelsen, Bern.
Miller, R. E.
Moberg, Alf.
Mooi, Peter
Mohr, Karl
Monroe, N. S.
Monsen, Charlie
Mol, J. W.
Moller, Fritz
Moonan, Thomas
Morgan, R. B.
Mortensen, Geo.
Moritz, W.
Morris, Francis
Moore, H. L.
Morris, Jimmie
Morrison, Donald
Moulas, Nicholas
Muller, Werner

Nannestad, Arthur
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, Jerome
Nelson, Nils E.
Nelson, Steve
Nelson, C. -302
Nelson, C. R.
Nesson, Ralph
Neumann, H. 4123
Neveau, Thomas
Newton, A.
Nickerson, Phillip
Niklasson, Justus
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nilsson, Emil
Nilsson, Edward
Nielsen, Jens
Nilsen, Hans L.
Nilsson, John
Nilsson, K. L. -807
Nolen,
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordquist, Otto
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nordgren, Ragnar
Nordlund, Albert
North, Jesse I.
Nummelin, Arthur
Nuter, Alex

Oad, John
O'Brien, Larry
Ohlsson, Hj.
Ogren, V. E.
O'Leary, Patric
Olsen, Fred
Olsen, Magnus
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Svedrup B.
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsen, Alf
Olsen, C. -1412
Olsen, Eugene
Olson, Harald
Olson, Ed.
Onno, Tobias
Ostlund, John
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Ozolin, Jan

Page, J. N.
Paksis, T.
Parker, Bert
Parrish, Arthur L.
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, Lewis
Pedersen, L. M.
Perrson, Albert
Permin, Jens
Petersen, Axel L.
Petersen, Bjarne A.
Petersen, Jens
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Pilkinton, Homer
Post, Albert
Potter, E. R.
Price, Arthur
Prusch, A.
Publicatus, A.
Punis, Tony

Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Rasmusen, Rudolpf
Rasmussen, Aksel
Rasmussen, Emil
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Reese, Luois
Richardson, Edwin
Riilukka, John
Rier, E. W.
Rogers, Thos. G.
Rollo, R.
Rommel, Andrew
Ronn, E.
Rose, J.
Ross, H. E.
Rosenberg, L. F. K.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Rutter, Amandus
Ryan, Patrick

Saharoff, John
Salli, Rudolf
Sampson, C. L.
Sampson, Carl -2136
Samuelson, E. -2888
Sanne, Rudolf
Sanjer, Sajer
Saunders, Dewey A.
Saxby, C. H.
Scanlon, David P.
Schmees, Herman
Schmidt, E. H.
Schneidau, Heinrich
Schroeder, Ernst
Schulze, John
Seivert, Albert
Seegaard, Rasmus
Sexton, Harry J.
Sharman, E. S.
Sidou, Geo.
Sidroff, Nick
Sigrist, George
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Skaar, Oskar M.
Skeries, Hans
Slattery, Harry
Small, E. R.
Smedsvig, O. B.
Smith, Jas.
Smith, W.
Smith, John H.
Smith, Geo. B.
Smith, A. G.
Solberg, Bernt P.
Soneson, Wilhelm
Sorensen, Jorgen H.
Sovdsnes, O. Petersen
Sonne, Herman
Spence, O. L.
Speckman, Max
Spey, H. F.
Stanford, Harry
Stensland, Paul
Sternisa, Carl
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Strele, F.
Strom, C. A.
Strurh, O.
Stang, A.
Stenensen, A.
Stewart, William
Stone, Wicktor
Strandberg, O.
Sund, Alex.
Sundberg, K. C.
Suominen, Oskar
Swanson, C.
Swinka, Albert

Tacie, John
Tallaksen, Arthur
Tandberg, Einar
Takkis, John
Taylor, Sam C.
Tellefson, Emil
Thomas, Johnie
Thomas, Nelson
Thomasen, Olaf
Thompson, Clifford
Thomsen, Chr.
Thorn, Arvid
Thomas, Frank
Thomas, Fred
Thomphson, James
Thompson, J. W.
Tillman, Chas.
Timmers, H. P.
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tjersland, Sverre
Tohtz, R. C.
Torson, Andrew
Touzel, R.
Trykin, Gustaf
Tucker, Harold J.
Tufty, C. J.
Turner, W. A.

Vargas, Martina
Vierr, W.
Vitek, Edward
Vitol, A.

Wapper, John
Ware, T. F.
Waterman, J. K.
Weber, C. W.
West, Frank
Whitesel, C. W.
Wilks, J.
Willmann, Wm.
Wink, Peter
Wittenburg, D.
Woods, Dick

PACKAGES.

Allison, Ben
Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Corneliusen, M.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Egan, John
Engstrom, Edw.
Frizzell, Riley
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Goodman, Tony
Griffin, J. R.
Halvorsen, Isak
Henrikson, Ernst
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Jansonu, C. J. W.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342

Ketelsen, Fred
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Lundquist, Ralph
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Mortensen, K. A.
Mortensen, Bjarne
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Sternica, Carl
Stranberg, P.
Tillsten, Jack
Travers
van Vleet, F. B.
Wahtje, W. H.
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

When making purchases from our advertisers, always mention The Seamen's Journal.

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

CHRISTENSEN NAVIGATION SCHOOL ESTABLISHED 1906 SAN FRANCISCO S.F. CAL.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN. Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

19 East Street, Foot of Ferry Bridge
Wholesale—OUTFITTER—Retail
Everything for the man that goes to sea
SEAMEN AND FISHERMEN
GEO. A. PRICE
IS RIGHT
U. S. Navy Tower's
Sea Boots Flannels Oil Skins

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

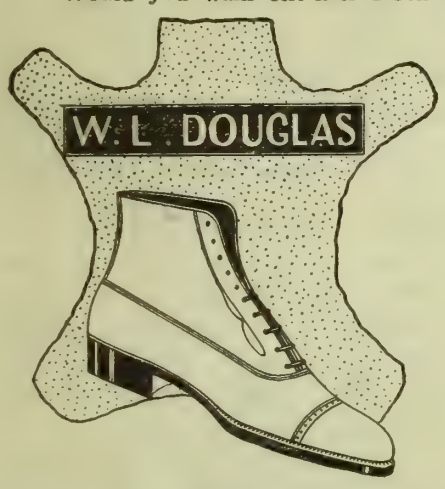
Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SAVE MONEY ON YOUR SHOES
Would you walk one-half block from Market Street to



Save $1 to $3?
We are located at 58 Third St., San Francisco.
We are agents for—
W. L. Douglas
Just Wright
Walk Ease
Strong & Garfield
We can positively save you money by buying your SHOES from us.
Our low rent and small expense make it possible for us to sell cheaper than the Market Street stores paying six times our rent.
We are showing a most exclusive and large stock of men's shoes. We can fit any foot and suit any fancy.
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET
Between Market and Mission
San Francisco, Cal.

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
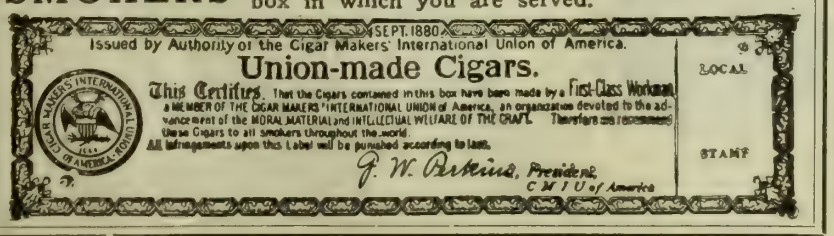
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.



News from Abroad

French steamers have resumed a daily cross-Channel service between Calais and Dover.

It is anticipated that Natal's coal production for the present year will amount to at least 3,000,000 tons.

The Argentine Government has asked Congress to vote 4,200,000 gold pesos for the improvement of the port of La Plata. It is proposed to deepen the port to a minimum depth of 30 feet.

Emigration from the British West Indies to sugar estates in Cuba and Santo Domingo is continuing. From Jamaica alone laborers are going to Cuba at the rate of nearly 2,500 monthly.

The future exportable surplus for Greater Rumania is estimated at 5,000,000 tons of cereals, in addition to 500,000 tons St. Petersburg standards of timber and 1,000,000 tons of petroleum products.

The financial position of Egypt has been strengthened considerably owing to the enormous wealth brought to the country during the war from sales of cotton, and Egypt is at the present moment considered as being in a better financial position than she has ever been before.

As a result of the shortage of fuel in French Guiana, arrangements are being made for two freight-carrying aeroplanes to travel fortnightly between the above-named colony and British Guiana to transport certain supplies to Cayenne; to obviate the necessity of depending entirely on steamer service.

Jamaica is considering the creation of a banana inspection department in order to prevent the purchase of immature fruit and its destruction in order to stifle competition, as is alleged to have been done recently by an American company which thus attempted to drive a rival to the wall.

For the first six months of the year the exports of Swedish iron ore amount to 1,500,000 tons, as against 900,000 tons in the same period of 1919. Coal and coke imports during the same period were, 1,177,155 tons (against 879,516 tons for 1919), of which 300,000 tons came from America.

Jamaica is considering the creation of a banana inspection department in order to prevent the purchase of immature fruit and its destruction in order to stifle competition, as is alleged to have been done recently by an American company which thus attempted to drive a rival to the wall.

Forty-five prisoners of India are now imprisoned in Port Blair jail in the Andaman Islands, the Siberia of India, according to the announcements here. Of these, twelve are from Bengal, two from Bombay, three from the United Provinces, and more than twenty from the Punjab. These men were charged with revolutionary activities against the British government in India, and have been in prison for many years. Although the British Government has proclaimed a so-called "amnesty," the men are still caged in the Andaman Islands because they love their country and refuse to submit to British authority. The Andamans are composed of a number of small, marshy and unhealthy islands in the Bay of Bengal, about 1,000 miles off the East coast of India.

With the Wits

Another Silver Heresy.—Too many men seem to think that optimism consists only of seeing the silver lining to the other man's cloud.—Dearborn Independent.

A Correction.—"Was Rome founded by Romeo?" inquired a pupil of the teacher. "No, my boy," replied the wise man; "it was Juliet who was found dead by Romeo."—Tit-Bits.

Saving the Hens Trouble.—"Here, Binks, I wish you'd take my garden seeds and give them to your hens with my compliments. It will save them the trouble of coming over after them."—Life.

Strong Family Resemblance.—"Contentment," remarked Shinebone, "am a mighty fine thing; de only trouble 'bout it is it's kin' o' hahd to s'tinguish from jes' plain laziness."—Boston Transcript.

Jugs, Not Jags.—"Pack my box with five dozen liquor-jugs," is the shortest sentence containing all the letters of the English alphabet, and there is no law against liquor-jugs so long as there is no liquor in them.—Concord Monitor.

They Couldn't Help It.—Two friends met in the Strand the morning after an airplane raid. "Any damage done your way?" the first asked. "Damage! Rather!" answered the other. "Father and mother were blown clean out of the window. The neighbors say it's the first time they've been seen to leave the house together in seventeen years."—New York Globe.

The Sign Language.—Ephum Johnson was up before Judge Shimmerplate on a cruelty to animals charge. "Deed Ah wasn't abusing dat mule, judge," the old man demurred. "Did you not strike it repeatedly with a club?" "Yassah." "And do you not know that you can accomplish more with animals by speaking to them?" "Yassah; but this critter am different. He am so deef he can't hear me when Ah speaks to him in de usual way, so Ah has to communicate wid him in de sign language."—Charleston Mail.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a [illegible] street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of [illegible] Woolen trimmings and [illegible] Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee

Is the amount not worth saving?

James H. Sorensen

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's GOOD GOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am "YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell

UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization

VOL. XXXIV, No. 4. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1920. Whole No. 1720.

AN INTERNATIONAL SEAMEN'S CODE

Does It Stand for Progress or Reaction?

The recent conference at Genoa, held under the auspices of the League of Nations, considered among other things the possibilitiy of drawing up an International Seamen's Code.

The conference agreed that the work of detailed codification could most suitably be undertaken by the International Labor Office functioning under the League of Nations. As previously reported in the Journal a recommendation was adopted to the effect that each maritime nation proceed with formulating a "Seamen's Code" to facilitate the task of establishing an International Seamen's Code.

A part of the code commission's report to the conference has a rich historic background and is therefore, because of its general interest, published herewith.

In most countries the systematic codification of seamen's law has not been undertaken up to this time, with the result that there is frequently confusion in the minds of seamen, if not also in the minds of shipowners, as to the precise nature of their rights and obligations. The British Merchant Shipping Act of 1894 and the German Seamen's law of 1902 may, in a sense, be called national seamen's codes, though the former is more in the nature of a general shipping code. A draft of a seamen's code had also been prepared in France before the war. But these compilations of the laws relating to seamen are not complete, and progress may still be made even in these countries toward a more complete systematization of seamen's law.

The Commission is convinced that it would greatly facilitate the establishment of an International Seamen's Code, in the sense in which that end is approved by this Commission, if each of the maritime countries of the world would advance so far as possible the codification of its own law relating to seamen. The clear and systematic statement of the law of each country in a single compilation would make it much easier for it to be understood in other countries. The uniformity which already exists would be more easily extended if such national codification were effected.

The Commission has experienced some difficulty in defining what is meant by an International Seamen's Code. It has decided that the term shall be used in this report to mean a collection of the laws and regulations dealing with the condition and position of seamen as such, which it may be possible for the various maritime countries of the world to adopt as a common and uniform body of international seamen's law. The content of such an International Code has not been and could not be determined with preciseness by this Commission. Indeed, the establishment of such a code must mean a labor of years.

The Commission has made a survey of the present situation for the purpose of determining whether any such general code or such special codes now exist. In times past, the seafaring world has known the existence of a single body of law common to numerous maritime countries. The Rhodian law and the laws of Oleron are striking instances of International Seamen's Codes which in their time served useful ends.

The "Consolate del Mare" served the Mediterranean countries during several centuries as a sort of international code of maritime law. And in this connection it is fitting that this Conference assembled in Genoa should pay its tribute to the commentaries on the "Consolato del Mare" by a famous Genovese citizen in the early part of the eighteenth century, Giuseppe Mari Casaregi (1670-1737). The debt owed to him by modern civilization itself is an indication of the possibilities of international codification.

If the modern growth of nationalism has tended to the creation of separate national maritime laws there are not lacking signs that in recent years appreciation has become more general of the unity of the seafaring world as an international community. The Conference which assembled at London in 1913 and 1914 and which elaborated an International Convention for the safety of life of both seamen and passengers at sea is an instance of this. Mention may also be made of the conventions concerning several specific divisions of sea law, which have from time to time been drawn up by the International Committee for the Unification of Maritime Law, and some of which have already found acceptance in the law of numerous maritime countries.

The Commission has fortunately included among its members certain representatives of the Scandinavian countries, and it is indebted to those gentlemen for an account of the International Scandinavian Maritime Law of 1893. Denmark, Norway and Sweden have found it possible since that date to maintain a common shipping law, and the fact that a common law exists has been of great benefit to Scandinavian shipowners and seamen. At the present time representatives of these countries and representatives of Finland are working on a commission which has been entrusted with its revision.

The Commission therefore feels it unnecessary to labor an argument that it is possible to establish an International Seamen's Code, in the sense in which that term is used in this report. It is convinced that, if this possibility is acted upon and an International Code is established through the medium of the International Labor organization, it is only the willingness of the maritime States which are members of the organization to adopt and enforce its provisions, which will condition its success.

The argument has been heard during the meeting of the Genoa Conference that the codification of sea law on an international scale would be most dangerous; that it would mean the perpetuation of many obsolete provisions in existing law; and that if such codification were successfully attempted, it would make it more difficult in the future to liberalize existing law and to adapt it to changing conceptions of social justice. The Commission has felt it its duty to examine this argument earnestly and thoroughly, and as a result of such examination, it has been convinced that such dangers are not serious, if indeed they exist at all. Certainly there can be no danger in codifying and uniformizing the law which is already somewhat uniform in various countries. And if it should prove to be unwise to proceed except in rare instances with the codification of the law on very contentious subjects, the demonstration of this fact will from time to time enable the advocates of further codification to escape such dangers.

The Commission would point out that any international code should be framed in elastic terms, and that if its content cannot ever be a maximum of the legal regulation existing in any one country, it should nevertheless be the maximum of the regulations common to numerous countries. It must also be noted that in the Draft Convention adopted at the Washington Conference a very salutary principle was introduced in the articles requiring periodical consideration of the necessity for revision. This principle should find a permanent place in the seamen's legislation attempted through the medium of the International Labor organization; and in the opinion of this Commission it affords sufficient assurance against the possibility that law which may have become common to various countries would be more difficult to change in any one country.

Nor does experience in the Scandinavian countries, which already have a common maritime law, justify serious fear. The Scandinavian Code has already been modified by the convention on assistance at sea signed in Brussels in 1911 and further modification may result from the work of the revision committee which is now sitting. On the whole, therefore, although the Commission has attempted to survey without previous commitment the possible dangers attending codification of sea law on an international scale, it has been convinced that these dangers are slight, if not nonexistent, and greatly outweighted by advantages which may accrue.

Of the possible advantages which may be expected from the establishment of an International Seamen's Code, as envisaged in this report, the Commission would direct especial attention upon two outstanding points. Unlike workers in many other fields, seamen must often do their work in several countries, in each of which it may be necessary for them to know something of the law as to their relations with their employers and their fellows. Even when not in other countries, much of the seamen's work must be done on the world's highway, far removed from the usual reach of public authorities. Moreover, on the ships of most countries the seamen are frequently of many nationalities. It is not unusual that the seamen on a ship neither speak the language of the ship's country, nor understand its laws. Seamen form what is, indeed, an international community, and as such they have many relations on which it would greatly redound to their advantage to have applied to them a uniform law, whatever flag be flown by the vessel on which they ship. Such a uniform law can be secured only through common international action.

Another advantage is quite as obvious and quite as important. With commercial competition between the merchant fleets of various countries as keen as it was in the days before the war and as it promises to be in the years to come. there are certain fields in which various States find it difficult to adopt any new legislation because of its possible reaction to the advantage of the merchant fleet of a competing country. If, for instance, one State attempts by legislation to secure the improvement of seamen's living accommodations, it may find it self at a disadvantage vis a vis another State which fails or refuses to make a similar change in its laws. Commerce tends to apportion itself among States in accordance with the advantages and disadvantages in existing legislation, and the balance which is thus struck at any one time is frequently a very delicate and precarious one which any change in legislation may upset.

Progress in national law may therefore depend to a large extent upon the possibility of common international action in a particular legislative field, and without such international action the progress which is possible may be precluded altogether.

An historic example of this necessity for common international action is furnished by the Plimsoll law enacted in England in 1894.

It was contended that the limit placed by this law on the load-line for British ships was to the disadvantage of British shipowners in competition with those of other countries. The effect of this legislation and the history of its administration furnish convincing proof that standards which are thought desirable in one country cannot sometimes be attained unless other countries proceed simultaneously to adopt the same standards.

Without attempting to enumerate other advantages which may be expected from an International Seamen's Code, the Commission is convinced that in the circumstances of the modern industrial and commercial world, the codification of sea law, in certain fields at least, has become not only a commercial necessity, but also the sine quo non for the application to workers at sea of standards already attained and commonly accepted for workers on land. In these fields, the alternatives are international action, or slow and tardy progress.

The Commission has not attempted to lay down in detail the general principles which should find expression in such an International Seamen's Code, and it is convinced that for the most part the establishment of these principles must await more thorough investigation. It seems clear, however, that any codification to be attempted should at first be in those fields where a measure of uniformity already exists in the laws of various countries. There are certain respects, principally concerning the formal relations existing between the seaman and his employer, in which the laws of many countries have long followed the same general course. Just as national codification has been most successful when preceded by a large degree of maturity in the laws codified, so it will perhaps prove that in international codification the readiest fields are those in which uniformity now exists. But codification must also meet the need for international action in those fields where national action is impossible or difficult without it and if the framing of generally acceptable legislation in such fields may call for more thorough investigation and more extensive adjustment of principles and policies, it should nevertheless prove quite as indispensable and quite as successful.

Whether an International Seamen's Code should be a complete body of law concerning seamen, or whether it would be more useful to elaborate special codes for particular fields of seamen's law, the Commission has not attempted to decide.

"FULLE OF DEVVYLS."

Once upon a time, when voyagers ventured into strange lands and among alien peoples, they drove into a fog of doubt and mystery.

When they returned, they sometimes wrote books telling of what they had seen or, like their brethren of to-day, what they thought their readers expected them to have seen.

Invariably, however, the old adventurers drew maps of the new lands as these had opened to their gaze. These maps they adorned with comment on the country's resources, such as "Here is muche gold," "Many elephants and ivorie," and other early fore-runners of the modern mining prospectus.

It often happened, though, that the scanty appliances of those days did not permit of extended journeys or accurate observations. Still, the directors at home would have to be satisfied that they had got their money's worth, so the balance of the chart was filled in with an imaginary littoral, the hinterland of which was dotted with "Dimondes are found here"; "Manye ostryches and apes." Then, across all, would be written, "None venture herein; this lande is fulle of devvyls."

It always proved a winner. The wisdom of the explorer in turning back was never questioned. His directors passed him a vote of thanks, and let it go at that, just as the Shipping Combine does to-day.

But one cannot help thinking that the ancient mariner's recipe for avoiding questions, and side-stepping new experiments, is not altogether unknown to us to-day.

There is a section of the community—not the largest, or the most deserving, but the most powerful and wealthy, worse luck—to whom any territory—terrestrial, political, or economical—lying outside their own prejudice-guarded ambit, is "a lande fulle of devvyls."

To these folk it is vain to go with the proofs that just beyond the iron hills lies a country of milk and honey for all, a land that can be reached by a road that all can follow easily and pleasantly, if only all will.

No use to tell them that the unlocking of the gate is in their hands; a gracious task which will cost the few that are mighty little, while it will open a new heaven upon earth to the many weary and oppressed.

They open out their charts, made for them and vouched by their led-captains.

"Nay, nay," they say; "none venture there. That lande is fulle of devvyls."

—J. B. H. in Australian Worker.

WORKMEN'S HEALTH INSURANCE.

A campaign for the passage of a workmen's health insurance bill has been launched by the Maine State Federation of Labor, following two resolutions unanimously adopted at its recent annual convention at Waterville, calling for the universal health insurance plan and instructing the legislative committee to work for its adoption.

"Sickness, which each year affects one-fifth of the adult workers, is the most prolific source of poverty," declares the Federation's resolution. "Even the fear of sickness and its disastrous effects undermines the well-being of the workers. The workers, through the trade unions and fraternal organizations, have made heroic efforts to meet this crying need of the wage earners. In these sick benefit plans, the workers bear the entire expense, although industry is in part responsible for the sickness among workers."

The universal plan is endorsed by the Federation because compulsory health insurance will "bring sickness protection to all workers" and will "place upon industry its just share of the cost of such insurance."

The Federation insists that the workmen's health insurance law furnish sickness protection at actual cost, with all private profits by stock insurance companies absolutely prohibited.

"Such a measure," the resolution says, "should embrace medical care and cash benefits during illness, and funeral benefit; should provide for active participation of the workers in the management and for democratic administration; and should exclude all interference by the commercial insurance interests."

A second resolution refers to the benefits of the State Workmen's Compensation law "to safeguard the wage-earners from the results of industrial accidents," and urges the adoption of "health insurance laws which have been proven by experience to be an efficient means of protecting wage-earners from sickness."

With this advanced action a total of more than 21 State Federations of Labor and 30 national labor organizations are now on record in favor of workmen's health insurance legislation.

SOVIETS IN ITALY.

In the industrial region of northern Italy the metallurgical plants have been seized by the workmen and are being run by their councils or soviets as in Russia. The movement arose in Milan where 280 industrial establishments were taken over on the first three days of September and other cities soon followed suit. In some cases the managers and superintendents were forcibly retained to direct operations or were kidnapped from their homes for that purpose. At the Lombard automobile factory at Milan six directors were imprisoned in the works as hostages to secure payment of wages. The workmen in the Fiat factory have announced that they will sell the automobiles they make on their own account. Red flags are hoisted over the soviet plants and pictures of Lenin are displayed on the walls. The factories have been fortified against attack by barricades and barbed wire. In some case bare wires carrying high voltage currents are strung around the building. Machine guns are mounted on the roofs and at the entrances. Abandoned munition plants have been seized and set to making arms for the insurgents. In Venice they have captured the arsenal. The workmen mostly live in the factories to serve as garrisons. They are under military discipline and allowed only a limited amount of liquor. At Genoa and Naples all the shipping in the harbor has been forced to raise the red flag by orders of the seamen and dockers committees.

The occupation of the plants by the employes has been accomplished with little bloodshed and little effort has been made to recover them. The Government remains neutral and inactive. The Minister of Labor, Signor Labriola, is a Socialist and holds that this is an industrial dispute in which the Government has no right to interfere so long as the movement does not take a political form. The General Federation of Labor has endorsed the action of the metal workers.—From the Independent, New York, September 18, 1920.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Labor Defeats Congressman Esch

Labor's defeat of Congressman Esch in the Wisconsin primaries is a distinct feature of the A. F. of L. non-partisan campaign.

Congressman Esch has represented the LaCrosse district continuously for 20 years. Two years ago he was re-elected by 10,000 majority over two other candidates, and as chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee he is credited in the popular mind with being co-author of the Cummins-Esch railroad bill.

His candidacy in the recent primaries centered on this legislation and he insisted that the law was the best possible, but labor in that district is non-partisan and therefore wanted facts. As a result Mr. Esch will retire to private life when the present Congress ends next March.

Other candidates who defend this law are telling their audiences that "I will look you square in the eye and declare that this is the best legislation that was ever passed." This statement is a heroic gesture, but it is neither argument nor fact. It is suited for the days when partisanship was rampant, when the labor vote was delivered in many sections of the country, the passing of which seems to be deplored by those who declare "Gompers is trying to deliver the labor vote," when he and other trade unionists urge non-partisanship to stop the delivery of labor's vote.

The defeat of Congressman Esch and the cheap drama defense of the railroad act recalls a speech by Congressman Sanders of Louisiana when the bill was before the House of Representatives for final passage. The House had previously refused to accept the Cummins bill, passed by the Senate, and the Senate had rejected the Esch bill, passed by the House. This situation forced both bills into conference, where conferees representing both branches of Congress secretly adjusted differences.

Forty-eight hours before the House was called upon to vote on the conference report it was made public. In refusing to vote for the new bill, Congressman Sanders said there was nothing left of the Cummins and the Esch bills but the titles. He declared that there was not a member of the House of Representatives, save possibly its members of the conference, who understood the report, and that it was a physical impossibility to intelligently digest the 120 pages of the report between the time it was made public and the hour for final vote.

"The study that I have been able to give to the report," said the Louisiana lawmaker, "convinces me that it is bad and, therefore, I am going to vote against it because the sections that I have studied, sections that I do understand, convince me that it has not been written in the interest of the 110,000,000 people of America."

Congressman Sanders's statement shows how this legislation was rushed through Congress, with the people whipped to a frenzy by special privilege and its defenders, who well know that their prosperity depends upon blind partisanship and a careless electorate.

Trust's Spokesman Told to Face Facts.

In an open letter to the Iron Age, semi-official organ of the steel trust and defender of Garyism, officers of the interchurch world movement suggest that this publication "face the facts." The editor is asked:

"Are cold facts on an actually existant autocracy to be met forever by trite fears of another, non-existant autocracy, or by talk of 'wonderful progress,' when the hours in the industry are longer now than 10 years ago? Are blacklists and spy systems the industry's pride?"

The church men say that among independent steel mill owners there are men who profess repugnance to the present system of refusing to confer with workers and the means used to maintain Garyism, but for reasons concerning the steel trust they claim they are unable to speak out.

The church men have also appealed to the public to take whatever steps are possible, through organization or otherwise, to avert another steel strike and consequent nation-wide trouble. This letter asks:

"The 12-hour day, involving hundreds of thousands; the seven-day week; wages that make for unhealthy communities and an underfed race; arbitrary management which penalizes the American spirit and corrupts its institutions—is the reform of all this to be left simply to the hazard of a strike?

"Cannot a democracy govern itself? Must the public, forewarned, rest inert while a basic industry prepares trouble for all? Just because the strike is some way off, or because the national campaign to allocate our political governance is on, is the great democracy to let economic governance go by sheer default?"

"From Stem to Stern."

W. A. Atterbury, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is as mad as the proverbial hornet because employes of that system are unionized. Mr. Atterbury unburdened his woes to the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. He said the Pennsylvania was strictly non-union when the Government took control and now, to his horror, he finds when this property is returned it is organized, to use his language, "from stem to stern."

The speaker's sorrowful tale would bring tears to a paving block and a sympathetic audience agreed that labor "broke its promise during the war." Mr. Atterbury construed the government's promise that there would be no reduction of labor standards during the war to mean that when the government took control of the railroads it should maintain the Pennsylvania's anti-union policy. Instead, Director General of Railroads McAdoo, in order No. 8, said:

"No discrimination will be made in the employment, retention or conditions of

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg., Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Internationale Transportarbeiter-Federation Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

The Ministry of Labor's figures showed that the cost of living in England on July 31 was 155 per cent. above the pre-war level.

The annual report of the Spanish Typographical Union shows a membership of 7,000. The union is strongest in Madrid, and weakest in Barcelona, which is noted for the anarchistic tendencies of its workers.

Ex-service men in South Wales have passed resolutions applauding the failure of the Territorial recruiting scheme, and refusing to obey any mobilization order for military operations against Russia or Ireland.

On a promise by President de la Huerta that a speedy and just settlement of their demands would be made, 75,000 workers on strike throughout Mexico, have returned to work. The strikers' demands include wage increases that range fdom 50 to 100 per cent.

The French wholesale co-operative society has done business this year to the amount of over 150,000,000 francs. In 1914 the business totaled 19,000,000 francs. In Douai the co-operatives reduced the price of foodstuffs 33 per cent., much to the disguest of profiteers and to the joy of wage earners.

Eighteen secret commandments, which Lenine required French trade-unions to subscribe to before they would be admitted to the Third Internationale, at Moscow, have been made public in Paris. They provide among other things for press censorship to secure a uniform Communist policy, and an iron discipline of a quasi-military character to be imposed by a strongly centralized body.

The boycott of Hungary by the International Federation of Trade Unions is one of the most significant events of the year. Workers of all countries are appealed to, to cut off Hungary, as a thing accursed, until the White Terror is lifted. With the thoroughness of a Biblical curse, Hungary is to have no food, no supplies, no communication, even, with the outside world. If indirectly the victims of Horthy have to suffer with him, their lot can scarcely be worse than it is now, and this seems the only way in which to save them. The camouflaged League of Nations has done and will do nothing, and as usual it is up to the workers to save themselves.

After pledging their one day's wages to the starving railway strikers of the Punjab, thousands of workers in a mass meeting in Bombay, representing different industries recently voted for an All-India Trade Union Congress to be held soon in that city. This meeting passed resolutions denouncing the attempt of the British Government to choose India's Labor representative to the International Labor Conference. The Government nominates N. M. Joshi, but the trade unionists want Lala Lajpat Rai. The Revolutionists want someone else. They hold that a Home Ruler like Lajpat Rai has no moral right to represent India, for he will debauch international public opinion by his Home Rule propaganda. Any one, they say, who opposes the independence of India, and wishes or works for the preservation of the British Empire is, directly or indirectly, consciously or unconsciously, an agent of the British capitalists.

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

Washington Was Thrifty In Youth
Biographers relate that George Washington opened a bank account when he was sixteen years old. He had a job with a surveyor.
Youth is the accepted time for opening a bank account. It is never too late, however.
All great fortunes have had modest beginnings. Many men have made fortunes after middle life.
See us today about opening an account.

ANGLO-CALIFORNIA TRUST COMPANY BANK
COMMERCIAL - SAVINGS - TRUST
"The Personal Service Bank"
MARKET & SANSOME STREETS
San Francisco
POTRERO BRANCH Third and Twentieth
MISSION BRANCH Sixteenth and Mission
FILLMORE BRANCH Fillmore and Geary

INFORMATION WANTED

Will H. Peterson and G. Johnson, formerly winchmen of S. S. "Carmel" to communicate with J. T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 9-8-20.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of the brother of August W. Strasdin, will please communicate with B. J. LaSelle, 924 Crocker Bldg., San Francisco. 9-15-20

INFORMATION WANTED

Members of crews of Barge "Ohio" and S. S. "Gulfcoast" will kindly communicate with this office regarding their salvage claims against the Standard Oil Barge No. 1 between Mobile and Port Arthur about May 18th. I represent a member of the crew and have already taken up the matter of a salvage award for him. Silas B. Axtell, New York, N. Y. 7-14-20

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth
This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.
LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE
will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong — on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.
Send in your order today.
$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

Honolulu Letter List

Bergesen, Bert	Lame, Pat.
Bradley, Ed.	Leison, Will.
Buck, Harry	Lind, Gust.
Caldwell, John	Matson, Rolf.
Campbell, Ed.	Mulligan, Ed.
Danielsen, Adolph	Nickols, Henry
Dant, B. C.	Sandel, T. S.
Ettersen, Ward	Stronberg, Pet.
Harns, Ed.	Stewart, A. J.
Johnsen, Hilding	Solberg, B. P.
Larsen, John

INFORMATION WANTED

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of George Mace Monroe, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, last heard of at Charleston, S. C., March, 1916, will please communicate with his mother, Mrs. Alice Monroe, 918 Spruce street, Seattle, Washington. 6-9-20

TO MY CLIENTS
Please look over our legal reports on file in every Union Hall on the coasts whenever you are in port. Notice of commencement of all actions, their appearance on the calendar for trial, trials, judgments and settlements effected are published in all cases whether for wages, salvage or personal injury. Law Office, Silas B. Axtell, 9 State Street, New York.

Pacific Coast Marine

Captain T. M. Scott of Mobile, Ala., has officially taken over the schooner "A. S. Coates," now in the Skinner & Eddy yards at Seattle.

The schooner "A. F. Coats" has been chartered by J. J. Moore & Co. to carry lumber from Puget Sound to Australia at $62 per thousand.

Receipts from the operation of Portland's municipal terminals in 1921 will total $359,000, according to estimates of receipts and disbursements compiled for consideration of the Public Dock Commission in preparing its budget.

After charging off more than $64,000 for depreciaion and $185,000 for bond interest, the Seattle Port Commission properties show a profit of $86,468.16 for the first six months of the year, according to a financial statement completed recently.

The A. W. Carlson Company, a new concern which has leased the Duwamish Waterway shipyard of the Inter-Ocean Barge and Transport Company, of Seattle, is starting out with work enough in sight to keep all its men busy for several months.

Losses of more than $500,000 each were suffered by the Shipping Board in accepting the bids on the concrete tankers "Palo Alto" and "Peralta," now building at Oakland, Cal., in the opinion of shipbuilders. The Atlantic Refining Company of Philadelphia offered $825,000 for the "Palo Alto," and the American Fuel Oil and Transportation Company of New York bid $700,000 for the "Peralta." Two more of the concrete tankers are building at San Pedro.

The tank motor ship "Charlie Watson," launched from the yards of the Union Construction Company on August 14, shortly will be in service for the Standard Oil Company between Southern and Northern California oil ports. The vessel takes the place of the "George Loomis," lost in 1918 off Coos Bay. The tanker "Asuncion," recently sold by the Standard Oil Company to George W. McNear & Company, has been at the Moore yards and soon will be ready to depart with fuel oil for Copenhagen.

The Moore Shipbuilding Company has been awarded the contract for repairs to the Dutch steamer "Arakan," which was ashore on the Point Reyes beach. The Moores offered to complete the extensive job in ninety calendar days at a figure of $297,854. Bid of the Bethlehem yards was $306,021, at ninety-nine calendar days. Repairs to the "Arakan" will include 109 bottom plates and 110 frame floors and reverse frames, and it will be necessary to remove the funnel, main engines, auxiliary engines, boilers and thrust shaft for realignment.

Captain Joseph J. Meany has resigned as assistant local and traveling inspector of the United States Steamship Inspection Service to take command of the shipping board steamer "Hannawa," now nearing completion at the Union Iron Works. The "Hannawa" will be operated by the Luckenbach Steamship Company and will load cargo at San Francisco for the coast-to-coast service of the company. Before entering the inspection service Captain Meany was commander of the United States collier "Iris" and for many years an officer on the American-Hawaiian ships.

J. F. Dillon, radio inspector for the San Francisco district, said he had received no complaint that Japanese wireless operators are "hogging the air." It was reported that Radio Telegraphers' Union is preparing a protest, pointing out an instance where the operator of the T. K. K. liner "Siberia Maru" insisted upon using his instrument beyond the permitted period. Government regulations require operators, in sending long messages, to stop every fifteen minutes and wait three minutes before resuming in order that ships in danger or with messages of importance may "cut in."

It is reported that the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co., of London, has placed orders on the Pacific Coast for six tankers, three with the Union Construction Co. of San Francisco, and three with the Southwestern Shipbuilding Co., of San Pedro. These tankers are of 8100 tons deadweight each. The order for the Anglo-Saxon tankers was originally placed months ago with Pusey & Jones, but was canceled on account of the troubles between that company and the Shipping Board, arising out of orders placed in 1916 by Christoffer Hannevig and other Norwegians, which were later sold to the Cunard Company at a profit and commandeered by the Shipping Board.

With the delivery of the cargo steamship "Apus," of 9550 tons deadweight, the G. M. Standifer Construction Corporation, Vancouver, Wash., completed its war program, in the course of which the company built and delivered fifteen freighters of 141,750 tons deadweight. The company now has private orders on hand for four tankers of 30,844 tons gross register. The Southwestern Shipbuilding Co., San Pedro, Cal., has also completed its war program with the delivery of the steamship "Hollywood," 8800 tons deadweight. This company built for the Emergency Fleet Corporation eighteen freighters of 158,400 tons deadweight. This company has on hand private orders for two vessels of 17,200 tons gross register.

The San Pedro harbor department is increasing its force rapidly and has established a concreting plant in the inner harbor. Tubular concrete piling for various wharf projects now are being made there. The concrete is cast around a hollow paper core. The Gunnite method of making the piling is followed and the resulting mixture is said to be so dense that it is impossible for water to penetrate the piling. The department also has arranged for a concrete barge which carries material to all parts of the bay from the central plant. It is sufficiently large to hold 1000 tons of material, and each night is returned to the central plant, where it is loaded by the night force of men and then is ready for service early the next day.

Capitulation on the part of the Shell Company of California to the United States Navy and its willingness to supply "all the oil it can" at $2 a barrel was announced during the week by R. A. Lewin, vice-president and general manager of the Royal Dutch concern. Lewis declared his company was at a loss to account for the continued seizures of oil by the Navy, as his company had announced that it would meet the Navy's demand to supply oil at $2 a barrel. The company will continue, Lewin said, to charge its private customers $2.35 a barrel. A charge heard at Twelfth Naval District headquarters that the Shell Company is understood to be furnishing oil on contract to the Japanese Navy was answered by Lewis with the admission that his company is exporting some oil to the Orient and understood that most of it was going to vessels of the United States Shipping Board.

Equipment of all lighthouses with wireless will reduce the dangers from fog to a minimum, according to Frederick Kolster, radio expert of the Bureau of Standards, who is on the Coast from Washington inspecting the new radio compass stations which were established recently to aid vessels in finding their positions offshore. Some of the lighthouses and lightships on the Atlantic Coast are equipped with automatic wireless by which a mariner can ascertain his exact position in foggy weather by listening at a wireless receiver in the pilot house. Kolster has designed a system by which short wave flash signals can be sent from lighthouses and lightships that can be picked up by captains on approaching shore and thereby obviate the use of the compass stations and the operators. By this system a captain could adjust his compass to the signals and proceed to port without danger of running ashore.

Through the deal effected by Norton, Lilly & Co. of New York, the big Skinner & Eddy shipyards at Seattle, Wash., covering twenty-five acres, will become the Puget Sound terminal of the Isthmian Steamship Line and the Societe General de Transports Maritime a Vapeur of Marseilles, France. The combined fleets will have twenty-five American and three French steamers, aggregating 271,275 tons, sailing to the Atlantic Coast, Great Britain, France, Spain and North Africa. Closing of the deal followed the announcement a short time ago that the Isthmian Steamship Line had decided definitely to place twenty-five 10,000-tonners on the Seattle route, twenty of the vessels operating in the intercoastal service between Seattle and other coast ports and New York via the Panama Canal and five between Seattle and other coast ports and the United Kingdom, also via the canal. Of the ships, seven are already in full operation in the canal route, while the transatlantic fleet of five ships is in full operation.

Captain Roald Amundsen, whose Polar expedition ship, the "Maud," is wedged in the ice twenty miles off Cape Serge on the Siberian coast, is in danger of losing his vessel and may be forced to abandon his attempt to reach the pole, according to Dr. James H. Condit, superintendent of Presbyterian mission in Alaska, who arrived at Seattle during the week on the steamship "Victoria," from Nome, Alaska. Dr. Condit said word was received of the plight of the "Maud" just as the "Victoria" sailed from Nome, and that the residents of that city are greatly concerned over the fate of the explorer. The vessel is tightly wedged between ice floes and the rockbound Siberian coast, and is in grave danger of being ground to pieces, Dr. Condit said. The first news of the "Maud" was brought to Nome by a fishing vessel. On leaving Nome in July Amundsen sailed into Bering Strait, passing Cape Prince of Wales and thence into the Arctic Sea via East Cape. Northwesterly winds which have prevailed during the summer carried the great Arctic ice floes to the east coast of Siberia, and the "Maud" was caught in the ice pack, according to information received at Nome.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
802-804 South Broadway Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....H. COOK, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
New York Branch.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RORENS, Agent
433 Court Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....DAVID COOK, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
132 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....W. ROSSI, Agent
49 Market Street
Sub Agencies:
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....316 River Street

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION

D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL SAN FRANCISCO

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1920.

"BETTER AMERICANS"?

We have had the "Citizens' Alliance" and the "Commercial Federation." Then we had the "United Americans." And now we have the "Better America Federation."

The last named society, now flourishing in Southern California, has apparently fallen heir to all the stupidity and all the vices of every defunct anti-labor organization in America.

An intimate expression of the "better America" idea is given in a pamphlet just issued by the Federation.

In this "outline of arguments," the Federation shows what popular education in the Federation's dream of a better America, should be. "Compulsory education," it tells us, should not be extended beyond the fourteenth year, for "the vast majority of children finish the eighth grade or grammar school at the end of their fourteenth year. Unless they are intending to follow some vocation, requiring a superior education, there is no practical wisdom in extending their school period by compulsion beyond that. As a matter of fact, it is unwise, and results frequently in a handicap rather than an advantage in their future advance."

Education a handicap! Who can beat it?

In the Federation's ideal of a better America, the "larger leisure" is evidently to be discouraged. The Federation's "brief outline" sets forth that "an investigation made in the large manufacturing districts in the East as to the manner in which the greater leisure operated, developed the fact that it was detrimental to the morals, efficiency and general morale, and was productive of the usual results of idle hours. Satan," sagely continues "brief outlines," "finds some mischief still for idle hands to do, and not merely mischief but unquestionably evil." In the coming better America, therefore, the larger leisure, for the wage-earner's own good is to be denied him.

Down with the shorter workday! It gives Satan a chance to get in his poisoned arrow.

"Given a temperament of lofty ideals," "brief outlines," tells us, "worthy ambitions, and no abuse may be found from any relaxation of physical work. But the question must be considered in its relation to the mass and not to the exceptions."

In the Federation's better America, woman's right to do night work is not to be abridged. "Brief outlines" tells us that "No rightminded man or woman wants to have women compelled to work nights, and there is no way they can be compelled to do so against their wishes, except the stress of poverty and dire necesisty." To deny them the right to do so, however, is according to the Better America Federation, "an abrogation of their fundamental right, and a denial of 'equality of opportunity'."

There you have it, boys, in a nutshell. If anybody, man or woman, wants to work twenty-four hours a day—by heck, it's their "fundamental right." And the self-styled "better Americans" are going to see to it that there is no interference by labor unions.

But it was ever thus. And were it not for the saving sense of humor one would almost be warranted to lose his temper.

Happily, in the long run, the plain people can always be depended upon to see through the mask of these exploiters of Americanism.

DOINGS IN JAPAN.

According to press dispatches the organized seamen of Japan have begun a movement to combat the importing of Chinese sailors to man Japanese merchant ships. Japanese sailors see a menace in a new step on the part of the shipowners to reduce the cost of running their steamers by employing unskilled and cheaper Chinese labor.

The agitation started when the Japanese found that their employing companies were discharging more and more of their fellow-seamen and replacing them with Chinese.

Members of Japanese crews say that the Japanese shipowners were very glad to get their services during the war when the German submarine menace was present and skilled labor was necessary. "We safeguarded their ships during the war," the seamen said in a public statement, "and now that the danger is past, they feel secure and suddenly turn thrifty, dismissing their own countrymen for Chinese labor."

The plea offered by the shipowners is that the Japanese seamen are inclined to start labor trouble on long voyages. They say, also, that the condition of shipping has made necessary a cut in wages, and for this reason the Japanese labor has been let out in some cases.

The seamen of Japan say they will make a fight for legislation to keep Chinese competition out of the shipping field.

It is refreshing to note, in this connection, that the delegate of the Japanese seamen at the recent Genoa conference fought strenuously for the eight-hour day for all seamen, including the men in the steward's department.

Here is a part of delegate Okasaki's speech when he opposed an amendment to the "draft convention" under which the cooks and stewards were to be denied the eight-hour workday:

> I fail to see any reason for imposing seventy hours on the steward's department. It has been claimed that the real wishes of the stewards are not known and it has been even suggested that the stewards wish to work long hours. This has been refuted by the Australian Delegate and I, on behalf of the Japanese seamen, wish to assure you that our seamen insist on 8 hours per day and 48 hours per week and our stewards do not wish to be treated differently from others. They have a right to be treated on an equal basis with their comrades aboard vessel. They maintain that the work in the steward's department could be carried on by the same limitation of hours and that it is only a force of habit that makes some people doubt as to the possibility of the application of the time limit to the catering department.

Coming from a Japanese seaman this is most encouraging talk. And if all signs do not fail, "cheap labor" shipowners are going to find it more and more difficult in the future to procure crews in Japan and other countries of Asia.

COAL AND THE LEAGUE

Data compiled by the British Coal Association shows that the world's production of coal during 1919 stood at the lowest figure since 1910. The total production last year was 1,170,000,000 metric tons, lower by 10,000,000 than the figures for 1910, and a decrease of 171,000,000 tons as compared with the figures for 1913. Great Britain was responsible for nearly a third of this decrease in production, her output dropping from 292,000,000 metric tons in 1913 to 237,000,000 tons in 1919. The United States was the only country to show an increase.

It is significant, in this connection, that the recent Congress of the International Miners' Federation (the first one since the war) has requested the International Labor Office of the League of Nations "to undertake to find the best method of establishing an International Coal Office for the purpose of securing a more equitable distribution of coal throughout the world."

The Director General of the International Labor Office, who was present at the session during which the creation of an International Coal Bureau was decided upon, made it clear that the distribution of coal in accordance with the needs of various nations would in no way modify or alter existing agreements arrived at by virtue of the Treaty of Peace or of the Spa Conference and that such a task could only be carried out in co-operation with other branches of the League of Nations. He stated, however, that subject to these reservations he was ready to respond to the appeal made by the Miners' Congress and agreed to bring the matter before the Governing Body of the International Labor Office at its next meeting on October 5th of this year.

The hope has been expressed that such an International Coal Bureau will eliminate much of the present loss and waste involved by defective organization of distribution and transport of coal throughout the world. Yet, since America is the only country where production of coal has increased, and since America is not in the League, it is difficult to understand how the end sought can be accomplished. Perhaps it will be said that this is one good reason why America should get into the League and thus become identified with the International Labor Organization. But let us not forget that in such event "the equitable distribution of coal" would be largely dominated by Great Britain and her colonies. Why? Because the latter would have twenty-four votes against four for the United States of America.

PACIFIC COAST OIL.

America now uses more than twenty times as much oil per capita as other countries, and this demand has reached such a point that oil now controls money instead of money controlling oil. Since we to-day require over 20 per cent. of the world's output, and have less than one-eighth as much oil in the ground as the rest of the world, we are demanding four times as much oil as all the other countries of the world put together.

For this reason, it is impossible for the Pacific Coast to expect any help from other parts of the country, even where other fuels are available, while, due to our lack of other fuel, the present reduction of our oil stocks is a particularly serious matter.

K. B. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Company of California, has outlined the Pacific Coast situaiton to the California Railroad Commission as follows:

The Pacific Coast supply of fuel oil and petroleum products is rapidly approaching exhaustion. Since May 1, 1915, crude oil stocks in California have decreased from over 60,000,000 barrels to 28,738,921 barrels on March 1, 1920.

The available supply of crude oil in stock is to-day less than 13,000,000 barrels.

At the present rate of consumption and of production of California fuel oil the available stock will be exhausted in about twelve months, at which time consumers of California fuel oil will be cut off from between 25,000 to 30,000 barrels per day.

The condition is not a temporary one, but the culmination of a steady growth.

So America has become an oil importing country and this has given additional stimulus for the building of tankers. The Union Oil Company of California is building three of these vessels in the yards of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company, at a total cost of approximately $6,100,000. Two of the tankers are of 12,000 deadweight tons, will cost some $2,250,000 each, and will ply, in conjunction with other vesesls now owned by the company, between the Mexican oil fields at Tampico and Pacific Coast ports, not only in California, but alos in South America.

The third vessel is of 7500 deadweight tons and will cost approximately $1,600,000.

The first 12,000-tonner is expected to be delivered about the end of the year, and the second from six to eight weeks later. The 7500-ton vessel, for the distribution service, should be ready next July, and will be built to carry approximately 17,000 barrels of refined oils and 35,000 barrels of fuel oil. The two 12,000-ton vessels will require about forty-four days for a round trip between Tampico and Los Angeles. Vessels will start from Tampico with nearly 85,000 barrels of oil cargo, of which 10,000 barrels will be used for bunkering, with the result of a net delivery of 75,000 barrels of Mexican crude oil at the port of Los Angeles every trip. If the tonnage situation permits, two cargoes or more per month will move from Tampico to California.

This will help materially to supply California with much needed oil and incidentally give steady employment to a number of seamen.

With the "purchasing power" in her pocket and the union label in her heart, woman reigns with the olive branch. She is mistress of the situation.

PROGRESS OF U. S. SHIPPING

American Merchant Marine and Foreign Trade Advancing to Honored Position Held Before Civil War

For the first time in sixty years the United States is no longer dependent upon foreign shipping to carry the bulk of its exports and imports, as according to the tonnage figures of the Department of Commerce more than 50 per cent. of the foreign commerce of the country is being carried in vessels flying the American flag. These figures, which cover all entrances and clearances of vessels at American ports, show that for the fiscal year ended June 30 last, American ships entered and cleared in the foreign trade aggregated 55,240,000 net tons. Vessels of all other nations combined totaled 53,252,000 tons, giving American shipping a lead of almost 2,000,000 tons.

How great the gain has been since the beginning of the war is instanced by the fact that instead of the lead of 2,000,000 tons shown for the year recently ended the total American shipping movement for the year ended June 30, 1914, was nearly 52,000,000 tons less than that of all the vessels under foreign flags engaged in trade with this country.

For the year ended June 30, 1919, the aggregate of American entries and clearances was 10,800,000 tons below the total for foreign vessels, so that the gain for American shipping during the fiscal year just closed over the previous one was nearly 13,000,000 tons.

How great the advance has been is indicated by the following figures adapted from the records of the Department of Commerce, showing the combined entries and clearances, in net tons, of American and foreign vessels for the years ended June 30, 1914, 1919 and 1920.

	American	Foreign
1914	27,470,000	79,101,000
1919	41,020,000	51,855,000
1920	55,240,000	53,252,000

Commenting on this condition of affairs, the New York Tribune says:

"Gratifying as is the advance shown by these figures, however, there is room for a much greater expansion in the proportion of our own trade carried in our own vessels. We now control, roughly, about two-thirds of our own commerce by sea with other North American countries and somewhat less than three-fifths of the trade with South America. Of the trade with Europe, however, the movement in American ships is only about a third of the total and we still carry considerable less than an even share of our commerce with Asia, Africa and Oceania.

Progress in Last Year

"The last year, however, has brought notable progress for American shipping and a consequent recession in the proportion of our trade transported in foreign bottoms. While the percentage of American ships moving to and arriving from other North American countries remained the same as in the previous fiscal year, substantial gains were recorded in all other directions, as the following percentages of American and foreign shipping entering and clearing American ports during the last two fiscal years indicate:

	American		Foreign
	1920	1919	1920	1919
North America	65.2	65.2	34.8	34.8
South America	57.3	45.8	42.7	54.2
Europe	33.4	13.3	66.6	86.7
Asia	37.1	13.7	62.9	86.3
Oceania	42.9	37.4	57.1	62.6
Africa	32.7	21.5	67.3	78.5
World	50.9	45.2	49.1	54.8

"Development of the trade with Europe in American vessels is a notable feature of the returns, for it is in this trade that American shipping faces the greatest number of competitors. With the exception of Japan and this country, practically every maritime nation of importance is European. Despite these conditions, however, the volume of our shipping trading between this country and Europe was more than 9,000,000 tons greater during the fiscal year 1920 than for the previous one, while for the same period foreign shipping showed a decrease of about 100,000 tons.

"A striking expansion in overseas trade is found in analyzing the distribution of the movement of American shipping. For the fiscal year 1919 the American vessels trading between the United States and North and South American countries aggregated more than 87 per cent. of the American total. For the 1920 fiscal year, however, the overseas trade in American bottoms comprised about 30 per cent. of the total, compared with 13 per cent. for the previous year. The broadening out of American shipping is further instanced by a decrease of about 28 per cent. in the proportion of trade with other North American countries. The changes in the apportionment percentages of the American shipping movements in the two years were as follows:

	1920	1919
North America	64.1	81.9
South America	6.2	5.4
Europe	24.6	10.1

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 27, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Andrew Furuseth presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; members ashore plentiful. Quarterly Finance Committee was elected to examine the Union's account for the past three months. The following members were elected delegates to the Twenty-first Annual Convention of the California State Federation of Labor, to convene at Fresno, Cal., on the 4th day of October, 1920: Ed. Andersen, R. Ingwardsen, C. George Larsen, C. F. May, Harry Olsen and Paul Scharrenberg.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 20, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.
R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Sept. 20, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 20, 1920.
Shipping dull; full shipwreck benefit was awarded to the members of the crew of the schooner "Charles E. Moody."
P. B. GILL, Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Sept. 20, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Sept. 20, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 20, 1920.
Shipping fair; members scarce.
HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Sept. 13, 1920.
Shipping and prospects poor.
JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 22, 1920.
Shipping fair; elected Eugene Burke delegate to Cal. State Federation of Labor Convention to be held at Fresno, Cal., Oct. 4, 1920; elected a Finance Committee to go over the finances of the Union for the past quarter; shipping slow on coasting vessels, slow on off-shore.
EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 16, 1920.
Shipping quiet.
LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro, Sept. 15, 1920.
No meeting; few members ashore; shipping fair.
JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

Holding that the Department of Commerce reports should show the tonnage as well as the value of the cargo movements through each custom district, the Seattle Port Commission has adopted a resolution introduced several weeks ago, to submit the proposal to the annual conventions of the National Association of Port Authorities and the Pacific Coast Port Authorities.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

THE POWER OF DISCIPLINE

Two many merchant marine officers today overestimate their disciplinary powers; too many young merchant seamen underrate their disciplinary obligations. In this important particular there is much misunderstanding on both sides, hence much contention and confusion of ideas as to who is boss.

The brass-bound novice on the bridge, puffed up with an exalted sense of his own importance, ofttimes seems to believe that buttons create an admiral, while the novice in the forecastle, trying out his first suit of oil skins, is inclined to regard the merchant marine as only a job, entitling him to the same freedom of conduct which he enjoyed ashore.

Both are wrong. The powers of a master over his crew are defined by law and established both by custom and the exigencies of the service; whereas the powers of an admiral on board his ship are absolute and undefined by any established authority except the despotism of war.

The duties and obligations of a seaman, on the other hand, are established by law and, to some extent, decreed by custom.

The rules of naval, or nautical etiquette, are arbitrarily decreed by custom and change not.

For a naval seaman to refuse, or neglect to salute by touching his cap upon meeting an officer, would be an offense calling for immediate punishment, though we doubt very much if anyone could find a law on the subject.

The salute is a time-honored courtesy toward a superior officer, but still more an act of homage to the service.

In the merchant marine, where the rules are less stringent and the seamen are not bound by oath to the service, discipline may be more lax, but the rules exist nevertheless, and can be enforced on occasions as well. To refuse to "sir" an officer might be taken in some quarters not only to imply an intentional slight or affront to the individual, but as an insult to the service.

In these suspicious times when so many both in and out of the service are rightly or wrongly suspected of disloyalty, it well behooves every loyal and law-abiding American seaman to behave courteously toward his superior officer on all occasions while in service.

That the officer in question may not always merit respect does not matter. It is not a question of whether he is a gentleman or not, but whether I am one. If he is unworthy, look over his head and salute the flag. He'll never realize the difference. JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

JACK JOE

At the regular weekly meeting of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, held at headquarters on September 7, 1920, the horrors of the "Puacko" incident, the murderous and diabolical atrocities committed by demon Petersen and his bloodthirsty sons upon their helpless crew during the memorable voyage of the "Puacko" from Victoria, B. C., to Cape Town, South Africa, were again revived and vividly recalled by the presence in the meeting of little Jack Joe, the unfortunate Kanaka boy who was so brutally beaten and horribly maltreated by the three unprincipled brutes that he is broken and crippled for life. Jack Joe, a handsome little Kanaka boy, is scarcely five feet tall, but he must have had the constitution of a rock to have withstood the unbelievable tortures and unheard-of maltreatment to which he was subjected at the hands of those unhung monsters in human form.

Jack Joe's story beggars all description and passes all belief. Even in the height of the hell ship days we can recall no similar atrocity.

Comrade J. Campbell, who was present, was also a member of the "Puacko's" crew and he corroborated Jack Joe's recital to the last detail. Comrade Campbell also spoke in the highest terms of little Joe, both as a shipmate and a man, and added that he was the best witness for the Government at the trial.

The precious Petersen trio have escaped the capital punishment they deserved, but they can never hope to escape the fearful retribution of Divine Justice, which is sure to overtake them both here and hereafter, for vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord of Hosts!

Little Jack Joe came to us in a pitiful condition. Since the "trial" of the "Puacko" murderers, Jack had been tentatively employed as man of all work about the building and offices occupied by Mr. Silas B. Axtell, attorney-at-law; but finally, having apparently concluded that there was no longer any hope of maintaining a successful damage suit in Joe's behalf either against the "Puacko" or her owners, he was constrained to let him go with a good recommendation and best wishes for his future success.

Joe came to us completely destitute and pleaded for relief, and he didn't come to the wrong place. His diminutive size, his straightforward though broken sentences as he told his appalling story, his broken and distorted body and likable personality and unwavering disposition, all appealed to the deepest sentiments of every man in the hall.

A motion to pass the bonnet for his relief until it could be seen what further could be done, met with unanimous favor and applause.

As it happened to be only an ordinary business meeting, the gathering was not a large one, but the tarpaulin muster netted $41.08, sufficient to keep little Jack off the street and out of lawyer's offices long enough for his cause to be considered by real men.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

OFFICIAL

A number of our business agents along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts have written in lately requesting a larger supply of JOURNALS each week. In most cases double supplies are requested.

It is very gratifying to learn that the JOURNAL is increasing in popularity and demand, and we take this opportunity to inform all our agents that they are fully authorized to order JOURNALS according to their needs direct from the Business Manager, Maritime Hall Building, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Calif.; at the same time informing their several headquarters in New York of the increase.

J. H. W.

Special Notice

The following notice has been received from Comrade Adolf Kile, Baltimore agent of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association:

"The bos'n or any other members of the deck crew who were in the S. S. 'Hoxcil' at the time that Knut Engstrom fell into the hold and was injured are hereby respectfully requested to communicate with George T. Mister, Esq., Attorney-at-Law, Law Building, Baltimore, Md."

Obituary

The following sad tidings also come to us from Comrade Kile in the same communication:

On the night of Sept. 4, 1920, Comrade C. K. Gerritsen, 2565, Sailors' Association, was held up by two negroes and shot through the heart by one of them.

Not having been a full member of the Union, Comrade Gerritsen was buried from the branch hall by general subscription among the members.

Since Comrade Kile does not state in his letter whether or not the perpetrators of the foul crime were apprehended, we take it for granted that they made good their escape—as usual. J. H. W.

HARBORS OF THE GOLDEN HORN

Constantinople has a future part to play as one of the greatest trade centers of the Near East. The tonnage trading with Constantinople itself is heavy. In addition to this, most of the thousands of ships that yearly cross the Straits, going or coming from Black Sea or Mediterranean ports, touch at some port of the Golden Horn.

Men who have watched developments in the Near East for years are unanimous in predicting that in the next few decades the Black Sea and eastern Mediterranean ports will be a phenomenal development never before equaled in the annals of that part of the globe. With them Constantinople is bound to develop with unprecedented swiftness.

Practically the only spot in the Golden Horn where careful and systematic dredging has been done is that next the landing place of Galata, on the seaward side of Galata Bridge. But this area is so restricted that only a few ships at a time can be accommodated there.

With the resumption of steamship passenger traffic in the eastern Mediterranean cargo boats rarely find berths at the landing. Indeed, most of the time only a small proportion of incoming passenger liners unload directly ashore, anchoring instead out in the Horn and resorting to the services of the traditional little four-oared caiques for both passengers and their baggage.

Harbor building on any appreciable scale has not been among the strong points of Turkish administration. Cranes, modern warehouses, and grain elevators are conspicuously absent from the landing places of the Golden Horn. Yet several sets of cranes could handle the day's tonnage in from two to three hours of work, minus the vast amount of labor now necessary and the enormous expenditure of steam power involved in keeping the lighters on the move.

One of the arguments which the Turks employ, in urging American investors to come to Constantinople, is that specimens of American "pep" displayed in the work of the Red Cross have convinced the Turks that America is the nation who can give Turkey the docks and harbors she will need in the near future. Moreover, they point out, America is the only country with sufficient capital to invest in harbor improvements.

MUNICIPAL "LABOR SATURDAY."

Water transportation has seen an interesting development in Soviet Russia. One of the new means of dealing with this traffic, according to the latest news, has been the introduction of municipal "Labor Saturdays" by local soviets when thousands of workers, liberated for the purpose from other work, participate in the loading and unloading of barges and steamers and the repair of water craft. On June 19, 9,415 persons in Petrograd helped to unload timber and other freight. About 10,000 took part in similar work on June 26. At that time, about 30,000 cubic feet had accumulated in Petrograd, and the question of organizing a "wood unloading week" was under discussion. A "Saturday Commission" of skilled workers also was formed to effect repairs. Participation in this work seems to be entirely voluntary, since the district committee draws up list of sympathizers among the skilled workers and apportions them to the repair plants in need of their help. The "registration" of material at the wharves is another form of such communal work in which on one Saturday one thousand men took part. The Petrograd Commune has agreed to increase the food ration for all workers taking part in the "Saturdays"; apart from this there seems to be no compensation.

The opening of navigation on the Volga, on June 1, also led to a great shortage of dock workers. At Nijni-Novgorod, a working force of 1,200 to 1,300 skilled longshoremen proved entirely inadequate, and the local committee applied to the central government for the assistance of 2,000 "red" army soldiers and 1,500 men from the compulsory labor camps. The principal freights in addition to timber—which only partly is floated—were foodstuffs, salt, metals, fish, cotton, medicaments, pyrite, petroleum and coal (comparatively little of the last named). A petroleum flotilla and thirty steamers for timber transportation are mentioned.

This effort, of course, does not lessen the urgent need of Soviet Russia for rolling stock and engines. Under the direction of Prof. Lomonossoff—well known in the United States—who is again director of the railroads, a supreme effort is being made to repair locomotives. In May, a total of 598, belonging to 18 different railroads, were thus put back into use.—The Survey.

MAYFLOWER RELICS.

In the course of a lecture before the Mayflower committee at London a short time ago, a part of the original timbers of the famous little ship which brought the Pilgrim Fathers to these shores was exhibited by Dr. Rendel Harris, a prominent British Quaker.

Experts who examined the timbers pronounced them at least 300 years old and said they had evidently belonged to a ship of the size of the Mayflower.

The timbers were found built in as a part of a barn on what is known as the "old Jordan farm," in Buckinghamshire, where William Penn is buried. There is a large Quaker colony in that district. Old records show that a former owner of the Jordan farm in the seventeenth century owned a quarter interest in the Mayflower and that the celebrated old vessel was converted into a whaling ship about 1654 and was used in the whaling trade off the coast of Greenland.

Dr. Harris promised to reveal the details of the secret at a conference to be held at Plymouth in the near future.

The timbers include oaken beams thought by Dr. Harris originally to have formed part of the hull and deck of the Mayflower. Some of the beams, which are worn and worm-eaten, bear marks indicating that they might at one time have held ship's rivets and tackle.

According to the London Mail, there is a local theory that a Quaker formerly lived in the neighborhood who was a professional shipbreaker, selling ship's timbers to farmers in the surrounding country. . It has been suggested that this man broke up the Mayflower and sold the timbers to the then owner of the Jordan property.

Dr. Harris' discovery is fraught with great historical significance for Americans, especially just at this time, when the tercentenary celebration of the arrival of the Mayflower off the Massachusetts coast is in progress.—Salt Lake Tribune.

SPECULATORS AND CULTIVATORS.

Japanese land purchases in California, which are making Californians nervous, are one of the results of encouraging land speculation. The Japanese must be buying the land for use since otherwise the purchases would not bring about an increase in California's Japanese population. They must be paying the price demanded by white owners. The price must be more than Caucasian settlers can pay or consider it profitable to pay as otherwise the lands would not be for sale. In other words, California maintains a land system that discourages settlement by those accustomed to Caucasian standards of living but does not discourage Japanese. The latter are willing to accept the margin remaining after complying with the California land speculators' demands. The Caucasian is not. If the land speculators were forced to let go Caucasians could go to work without payment of exorbitant tribute and would certainly do so. Japanese settlement would become a comparatively negligible quantity without special legislation to bring this about. California has the chance to accomplish this object. An initiative measure is pending providing for application of the single tax. If adopted the speculators holding lands out of use, while awaiting purchasers at prices that can be paid profitably by none but workers with oriental standards of living, would be forced to let go. The land would be open to white settlers. These could get possession on terms requiring payment of a tax to the State equal to the annual rental value. That would be the only tax they would be required to pay. The tax would be on the bare unimproved land value only. The value of improvements would not be considered. All production above the amount required to pay ground rental would go to producers free of taxation and of tribute in any form. The standard of living need not then be lowered. On the contrary, workers could live much better than at present. The single tax amendment offers Californians the choice between the present system, which must sooner or later force them to Japanese standards, even if Japanese immigration ceases, and the single tax, which will make California a better place for workers to live in.

The highest steam-navigated body of water in the world is Lake Titicaca, which lies at an altitude of 12,545 fett, partly in Peru and partly in Bolivia.

Labor's Economic Platform

Following is the Economic Platform adopted by the American Federation of Labor:

1. The abolition of all forms of involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime.
2. Free schools, free text-books and compulsory education.
3. Unrelenting protest against the issuance and abuse of injunction process in labor disputes.
4. A work day of not more than eight hours in the twenty-four hour day.
5. A strict recognition of not over eight hours per day on all Federal, State or municipal work, and not less than the prevailing per diem wage rate of the class of employment in the vicinity where the work is performed.
6. Release from employment one day in seven.
7. The abolition of the contract system on public work.
8. The municipal ownership of public utilities.
9. The abolition of the sweat-shop system.
10. Sanitary inspection of factory, workshop, mine and home.
11. Liability of employers for injury to body or loss of life.
12. The nationalization of telegraph and telephone.
13. The passage of anti-child labor laws in States where they do not exist and rigid defense of them where they have been enacted into law.
14. Woman suffrage co-equal with man suffrage.
15. Suitable and plentiful playgrounds for children in all cities.
16. The Initiative and Referendum and the Imperative Mandate and Right of Recall.
17. Continued agitation for the public bath system in all cities.
18. Qualification in permits to build of all cities and towns, that there shall be bathrooms and bathroom attachments in all houses or compartments used for habitation.
19. We favor a system of finance whereby money shall be issued exclusively by the Government, with such regulations and restrictions as will protect it from manipulation by the banking interests for their own private gain.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

(By Laurence Todd)

Deadly dull apathy, tempered by cynicism, marks the political temper of American labor as the presidential campaign draws to a close. Except in Wisconsin, where La Follette and the Plumb Plan League and the organized farmers fought and narrowly won a hard battle against the reactionaries; and except in Georgia, where railroad and cotton mill labor turned out for Tom Watson; and in New York City, where the five Socialist assemblymen have been re-elected to fill the vacancies caused by their expulsion from the Legislature—except in these three instances, the events of the campaign have been without encouragement to the immediate hopes of the various labor elements supporting Cox, Christensen or Debs.

Already the heads of the big national and international unions are looking ahead to the time when the ballots shall have been counted, and when it will appear that millions of wage workers have stayed away from the polls. A sweeping victory for Harding and the more violently reactionary business element is taken for granted. Gary and Morgan are going to be in power to a greater degree than ever before. "The iron heel" is the prediction of the Republican policy toward labor which is most frequently expressed by labor officials coming into Washington from the West and from New England. Unless some tremendous change shall take place in the attitude of the wage workers of the United States before election day, the next Congress will be even more stupid and brutal in its warfare upon organized labor than the present Congress has been. The safety valve upon industrial unrest will be chained down.

There are optimists at A. F. of L. headquarters who say that this condition of affairs, if Harding wins, will merely remove the differences within the labor movement, and that all of organized labor will march in solid phalanx against its enemies. They say that unionism will thrive upon oppression, and that labor will once more rally to the good old slogan of pure and simple trade unionism, free from the entanglements of political effort. If this be their real belief, then it would seem a pity to have wasted so much effort in behalf of Cox, and to have created so much internal dissension by attacks upon the Farmer-Labor party and the Socialist party. The truth is, of course, that the labor movement will be driven to defend itself more actively, under a hostile administration, and that instead of surrendering all political power to the employers it will at once begin to lay the foundation for a new and more practical political fight than it is waging this year.

The two extreme groups—those who call themselves radical and those who think themselves conservative—who oppose political effort by the organized labor movement, are in high feather at the present collapse of the effort to elect a pro-labor President of the United States. These two classes of direct-actionists look forward to a period of strikes—strikes of bigger proportions than the country has ever seen—during the next year or two. They believe there will be no other way in which labor can make itself heard by the Government.

If they be right, then the American labor movement is due to take up the question, next summer, of creating a General Labor Staff, similar to that which British labor has established, to bring together for effective action the strike-proposing authority of all the big and little internationals in the A. F. of L. It would be an extension of the plan already put into operation by the sixteen railroad organizations, and would cover all industries and crafts. That would be the logical outcome of an election in which anti-strike fanatics were put in control of Congress, the White House and the Department of Justice. Such a General Staff would sit in Washington or Chicago or New York, and would keep constant watch over anti-labor moves on the industrial chess-board, and would agree upon plans for meeting every move. These plans would be sent out in the form of "suggestions" to the responsible executives of all organizations, who would be morally bound to lay them before their respective memberships with their own comment added.

Such a centralization of authority on the field of industrial battle will, naturally, be delayed as long as possible—just as was the choice of Marshal Foch to command the British, Italian, American and Belgian armies in addition to the French. But if the Harding regime turns out as "hard-boiled" as it now promises, the labor movement will be compelled to adopt a plan of campaign to save itself from serious damage.

What little enthusiasm had been aroused in behalf of Cox among labor men was dampened when the President rejected the appeal of the anthracite miners for a revision of the unfavorable wage award made by his commission at Scranton. To some extent they had forgotten or forgiven the crushing blow delivered against the bituminous miners last November by the President and his Attorney-General and Federal Judge Anderson of Indianapolis. But this second instance of the repression of the miners brought back the memory of that earlier wrong, and the political committee of the A. F. of L. immediately felt the reaction. To-day the campaign is dead. Wilson and Palmer and Burleson are millstones around the neck of Cox, even in spite of the fact that Cox has never sympathized with the anti-labor moves of this administration.

One reason for the belief that a large part of the labor vote will stay away from the polls in November is the lavish use of money by the Republican Old Guard. There is talk, for example, of the use of half a million for the renomination of Lenroot in Wisconsin, and more than that for Wadsworth in New York, while in Minnesota the Steel Trust is said to be preparing to turn loose a million to control the Legislature against the Non-partisan League and State Federation of Labor, whose program includes a tonnage tax on iron ore that would cost the trust $3,500,000 a year. All over the country the impression gains ground that the White House and the capitol have been put up at auction, and that the war profiteers, hatched by the Democrats and Republicans in Congress, have handed back enough money to assure the purchase of every public office worth holding against the wage workers. The Democrats have some money, particularly in the cities, but it is only the anti-labor Democrats who control it, and they will use it to the mutual satisfaction of both the old gangs.

Turning from the dismal spectacle of the political wreckage to the cheering picture of a big union in convention, you find the International Association of Machinists, meeting in quadrennial convention in Rochester, with a membership well above 300,000, and predicting from 400,000 to 500,000 by 1924. During 1918 they organized 287 new lodges; in 1919 they added 269 more; in the first six months of the present year, in spite of slack industry, they formed 102 new lodges. Last December they had 338,000 members, but there was a falling off in the early months of 1920, and now the tide has turned again.

The finances of the Machinists are in good condition. During 1919 the receipts from local lodges by the grand lodge were $2,705,034, of which much the larger part was received in the last half of the year. For the first half of 1920 the receipts were $1,900,000, which was $880,000 more than in the first half of 1919.

Secretary-Treasurer Davison's report to the convention tells of the investment of a large sum of the Machinists' money in capital stock of the Commercial National Bank—the second strongest bank in Washington—and of the election of himself and President Johnston as directors of the bank. Their experience there caused them to join with others in establishing the Mt. Vernon Savings Bank in the new Machinists' Building, and this savings bank has in its first 90 days made the phenomenal record of rolling up over $1,000,000 in deposits. When the Norfolk business crowd recently refused credit to certain small shops that refused to join in the non-union-shop movement, the bank controlled by the Machinists came to the aid of these fair employers with abundant funds, and smashed the anti-union campaign there.

In his recommendations for changes in policy and constitution of the organization, Davison says:

"It will be noted that there has been more than a million and a half dollars expended in strike benefits within the period covered by this report (18 months). In many instances, in my opinion, the purpose sought to be accomplished has not been accomplished. I believe a change of policy should be adopted and our laws changed so they would permit of the handling of industrial disputes in a different manner. I believe we should enter the co-operative movement, and where it is necessary and where the funds of the organization will permit, that in fighting antagonistic employers we enter the machine basis. The amount of money expended for strike benefits, if invested in machinery and plants, would, in my opinion, have established higher standards with less loss to our membership than our present methods of handling strikes."

This Rochester convention will probably complete a fine act of reparation by the Machinists for the sacrifice made for them by Thomas J. Savage, one of their executive board and one of the ablest and most aggressive men who sat on the National War Labor Board. Tom Savage, young and idealistic and determined to do his part in labor's battle, overtaxed his strength in the days when the scourge of influenza was sweeping the country, and because he would not rest from his work on the board he fell sick and died. He left a young wife and child without means of livelihood. The Machinists as individuals raised something over $6,000 to buy a home for them, and a matter of $420 was borrowed from the international funds to complete the purchase. This sum will be made up by the individual delegates at the convention.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

employment of employes because of membership or non-membership in labor organizations."

As a result of this order, employes of the Pennsylvania railroad organized and now Mr. Atterbury predicts evil days for capital (meaning capitalists) since his spy system no longer functions.

This is the same Mr. Atterbury who testified before the Commission on Industrial Relations in 1915 that in the previous year his company spent $800,000, taken from the people in the form of freight and passenger charges, to maintain a private army and a Pinkerton spy system to make organization of labor impossible. Atterbury defended his private army on the ground that a State-controlled police force is a beautiful theory but does not work in practice.

British Unionists Behind Coal Miners

Demands of the British Miners' Federation for higher wages and lower prices for household coal have been refused by the government and a strike of vast proportions is imminent. The miners are associated with the railway men and the dockers in what is known as the triple alliance.

Indirectly connected with this movement is a demand for nationalization of the mines, which the coal diggers have vigorously urged for the past several months. The workers propose joint control of the industry by representatives of the State and persons engaged in the industry.

The direct demands are wage increases and lower prices for coal used by householders.

Housing conditions in the mining districts are also involved. The miners say that the government has made numerous promises that these conditions would be improved. In a recent speech President Smillie of the Miners' Federation said:

"It has been proved up to the hilt that children in many mining districts have been done to death owing to bad houses and unsanitary conditions, while generally the death rate of children in these districts is very high."

The trade union executive declared that this question ought not to be settled by the power or the ability of the government to beat the miners, or by the ability of the miners to beat the government, but it should be decided on the justice of the claim put forward by the miners.

Soldiers Check Coal Owners' Thugs

"The sending of troops in West Virginia, where coal miners are making a stand against the persistent and brutal tyranny of coal owners," says the West Virginia Labor News, "is just what the workers have been demanding for months. They have made several appeals to the Federal Government to send soldiers here to re-establish constitutional guaranties and check the encroachments of the employers upon the rights of the citizenship.

"In certain sections of West Virginia the coal owners have been ruling with mob law. They have maintained gangs of cutthroats who have invaded the lives and the properties of every man and woman who refused to accept their will as the supreme authority.

"The Government should do more than send its troops into the disaffected district. It should institute a sweeping inquiry into the methods of the employers. It should insist that the laws and constitution of the State be respected. It should make an end, for all time, of the system of coercion and oppression that has enabled the West Virginia coal owners to maintain a state of feudalism and to deny to Americans the right that Americans elsewhere possess without question or hindrance.

"West Virginia is a festering sore and contains enough of menace to justify all the attention the Government can give it.

"It is high time that we know whether a group of cold-blooded and inhuman mercenaries are more powerful than the Government of this nation. That is the issue in West Virginia."

Millions Made by Banks

In about three months three New York banks made call loans that totaled $335,000,000 and interest charges ranged between 18 and 25 per cent., said John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency, in a statement supporting the charge made by United States Senator Owen, who said in an Ohio speech that New York banks had loaned $500,000,000 at rates up to 30 per cent., and that the banks borrowed this money from the Government's Federal Reserve banks for 5, 6 and 7 per cent.

New York bankers have criticized Senator Owen for making "wild assertions," and now the comptroller of the currency declares that Senator Owen's claims are substantially correct.

"During the last year," said Mr. Williams, "the burdensome and oppressive interest rates to which the Senator refers have been exacted not in 'one or two possible insignificant cases,' as one critic expressed it, and not 'for about 10 minutes one afternoon the middle of last November,' as another critic stated, but in thousands of instances, at numerous times and upon call loans aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars."

PROGRESS OF U. S. SHIPPING

(Continued from Page 7)

Asia	3.4	1.1
Oceania	1.0	1.2
Africa	.7	.3

"Expansion along the lines shown indicates that the American merchant marine is at last on the way to secure a fair share of its own ocean-carrying trade, and that hundreds of millions of dollars hitherto paid to foreign shipowners annually will now go to the upbuilding of this country's own shipping."

Demand the Union Label.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175

BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588

CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842

MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street

TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666

SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue

CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer

Branches:

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W

SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131

CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666

TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823

CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866

MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543

CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary

Branches:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street

Branches:

VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214

SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street

Agencies:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street

Branches:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG .....Alaska
UNGA .....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

Walter R. Brown, candidate for Governor of Georgia in the recent primaries on an anti-union shop platform, made a ridiculous showing. He failed to carry a single county and ran a poor fourth.

There is a continual emigration into the northern and western states owing to the low wages and poor working conditions in Mississippi. Trade unionists urge workers to unite that conditions may be improved and they can stay at home.

The United States Civil Service Commission has ruled that it is illegal for a Government clerk to do extra work for political committees. Some Federal employes have made extra money by this work, after their regular hours, but this is held to be a violation of the rule prohibiting Federal employes from engaging in politics.

In a full page advertisement in the Oregon Labor Press, Wells Brothers Construction Company thanked the organized building trades of Portland for co-operation in making possible the erection of the largest store house in the northwest on schedule time. The building trades and associated contractors have a joint agreement and it is declared that Portland is the only city in the northwest where peace reigns in the building industry, and has made possible the erection of more buildings in Portland than in any other city in the northwest.

"No one agency," says the press service of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, "has had so great an influence in perfecting educational laws as the American Federation of Labor, which sponsored the original free public school system, the vocational educational law, and the compulsory part-time school law, all of which directly affects the industrial and commercial progress of the nation. The annual conventions of the Federation always record its position on prposed progressive educational measures."

The strike of coal miners in Alabama is on because the Alabama Coal Operators' Association believes it is bigger than the Government. Miners have been forced, under threats of jail for contempt, to abide by the terms of the Lever Act, while the coal owners refuse to obey Judge Anderson's injunction and in many cases will not employ officers of miners' unions. The coal owners also refuse to accept the scale agreed to last fall by the coal owners, coal miners and the Government. About half a hundred coal operators have accepted the scale, but the sabotage coal owners want to operate on a non-union basis.

Organized oil workers have pledged $2,000 to three Fresno (Cal.) school teachers who have been discharged and who are now suing the city superintendent for slander. It is agreed by every one that the teachers were discharged because of their connection with the Teachers' Union, which is opposed by the superintendent. This official, however, gives as his reason "official incapacity," and the teachers resent a reflection against their ability, that will deter them in securing employment in the future. They are without funds and when the case was presented to the Oil Workers' Union these trade unionists unanimously voted $2,000. Other trade unions are taking similar action.

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson, Jack
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George

Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.

Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling

Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry

Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38

Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor

Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar

Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.

Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.

Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.

Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liliquest, Rudolf
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.

Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muier, James

Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.

Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.

Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplore, J.
Prinz, Carl
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van

Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelson, H. N.
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H.
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L.
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R.
Sterndoch, J.
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M.
Svenson, Thure
Sverdrup, Walter
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash., Letter List

Anderson, Fred
Anderson, John (registered)
Anderson, E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Brandt, H.
Berke, C.
Barton, M.
Brun, Mattias
Bedford, A.
Bradsbery, Geo.
Carlson, Oscar
Forsman, Niels
Hansen, Johan G.
Hansen, H. O.
Hanson, Halvor
Halvorsen, Halvor
Halvorsen, Hans
Janson, John
Johanesen, Alf.
Johnson, Karl
Johannesen, Jonas
Johanson, Emil
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Kinnunnen, Ant.
Olsen, Alf
Petersen, Hans
Roneld, P.
Randmets, Mike
Risenius, Sven
Saro, W. R.
Smith, Carl Johan
Toren, Gustaf
Tourela, Erick
Vejvorda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO

Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Andersen, Oscar
Anderson, Hilding
A. L. N.
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Carlson, Gust
de Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob
Erickson, John
Groth, J.
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Hakanson, Ingvar
Isakson, Erick
Jacobsen, Jack
Johansen, F. C.
Johansen, Karl W.
Johnson, John
Karlson, George
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Leskinen, Fred
Levele, Ed.
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lauren, William
Lund, Frank
McNeill, Daniel
Ross
Moxnes, Chris.
Mikelsen, P.
Newton, A. B.
Olofson, Charles
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olsen, George
Peterson, Frank
Rasmussen, Peter
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Witt.
Svenson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Wamsa, August
Peter

Registered Letters

Cranzzi, Rosolino
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rasmussen, P.
Smith, R.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of John B. Isaacs will please notify Chas. F. Bullock, Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, 321 Twentieth street, Galveston, Texas. Matter of great importance. 3-31-20

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R.	$22.50
Eugene, John	22.50
Makinen, K.	22.50
Mattson, Geo. J.	22.50
Rehnstrom, A.	26.25
Sjoholm, J. W.	22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Rudolf Knutsson is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of his brother, J. Harvid Knutsson, a native of Trellerborg, Sweden, age 20, last heard from in New York, in April, 1918. Please address his brother, care Sailors' Union of the Pacific, 59 Clay street, San Francisco, Calif 1-7-20

An 8-room cottage with beautiful marine view overlooking the bay; suitable for a seafaring man, for sale at sacrifice. See owner, Kuhming, 736 Kansas street, San Francisco.

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

INFORMATION WANTED

Any one knowing the whereabouts of Karl Reese, age 30, last heard of in Iquique, Chile, October, 1916, bark Herbert," will please notify George Zimera, Sailors' Union, P. O. Box 65, Seattle, Wash. 1-21-20

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Gronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgall, Mikel
Person, Fritz, Leonard
Rainhard, H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

Portland, Or., Letter List

Ahren, Wm.
Andersen, A. C.
Andersson, Axel
Andersson, Carl
Anderson, A. B.
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Anderson, Gunnar
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakalhn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsic, Karl
Bach, Soren
Backman, Peter
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Gust
Bohm, Franz
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Davison, Jim
Diez, H.
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. E.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Enberg, Einar
Fogelberry, Harry
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gilkison, A. F.
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Gronbeck, H.
Gruber, J.
Halley, W.
Hanson, August
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Hoiland, E. A.
Heino, Gust
Henrikson, Geo.
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Irmey, Feodor
Jacobs, Fulton
Jernberg, Alfred
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Jones, E. L.
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kauko, Axel
Kelly, Norman
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Krause, Frank
Kristiansen, Wm. A.
Laine, A. A.
Laine, John
Larsen, Hans
Larsson, Ragnar
Larson, C. J. -1632
Leisig, John
Lindner, John P.
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank E.
Malkoff, Peter
Matson, R. M.
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLeod, Angus
McLean, M. R.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Moyer, Geo. E.
Neilsen, H. J.
Nelson, Nels
Nelsson, C.
Neuling, G. A.
Nilsen, Christ
Norberg, John E.
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peterson, Mauritz
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Preston, E.
Pyne, J. W.
Raanes, Johan
Rader, Allen
Rautio, Jack
Reiman, Tovo H.
Rier, Earl W.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Saine, Arthur A.
Salonen, Victor
Salin, Toivo H.
Sandvik, S. G.
Scott, M.
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sutse, Michel
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Thomson, Henry
Thorsen, Chas.
Tinstrom, A. R.
Tuhkanen, John J.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wikstrom, Carl
Willis, Samuel
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Fred L.
Worn, Otje

San Pedro Letter List

Aho, Jack
Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, C.
Andersen, C.
Anderson, Sven
Arentsen, John
Arnesen, Isak
Aspe, Theodor
Belmont, Joe
Bentley, Clifford
Bengtsson, Sigfried
Bergeson, B.
Berglund, Emil J.
Bergstrom, J
Brast, Sjomans
Braden, W. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Brown, Irving W.
Bye, Kristian
Burge, Larence
Cage, Tom
Carlsson, Chas.
Carlera, Peter
Carr, R. W.
Craig, Thomas
Cowan, Wm. L.
Church, C. E.
Davis, Orville
Daw, Walter
Deaver, Alvin
Desmond,, Albin
Doty, Erwin
Daunt, C.
Dreger, Jack
Dragich, Peter
Drennan, W. N.
Eliasen, John
Ek, William
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Evensen, Alex
Farrell, H. D.
Feeder, Geo.
Fickle, Omer
Fottinger, Karl A.
Folvik, Ludvig
Forde, Alfred
Frair, Enoch
Freiberg, P.
Franzell, A. H.
Freitag, F.
Gayton, H. L.
Grasson, Joe
Gronthal, Arthur
Golden, Roy
Gunnerud, Ulrik
Hansen, Olaf
Hellsten, G.
Hermanson, Carl
Holland, Jonnie
Hermanson, Carl
Hey, Ben.
Hickey, John
Hogstedt, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Hurley, Michael
Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Jacobsen, Tom
Janofy, Axel
Jensen, Marius
Jensen, Kristian
Jeeden, George
Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Johansen, Johan W.
Johansen, Carl
Johansen, J. -1432
Johnson, George
Johansen, J. -2314
Johnson, P. -2313
Johnson, Waldron
Jonassen, Johannes
Keel, Jewell
Kelty, Peter
Kenrich, Richard
Ketelsen, Fredk.
Keegan, J .
Klieman, Otto
Klementsen, Alf
Kootz, Fred
Knudsen, Andrew
Kruse, Henry
Kristoffersen, Hans
Laine John
Landborg, Chas.
Larsen, Johan -1542
Lauritzen, Ole
Levine, Carl
Lindholm, Chas.
Lill, Karl
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John
Lindeberg, Ernest
Lowrey, John R.
Lodersen, John
Lorgeman, Fred
Lobeles, Jose
Lund, F. V. -2010
Lucander, Hjalmar
Maahs, Willy
Magnussen, John
Martinson J.-2647
Mato, Alexander
McNeill, John
McGhee, E. J.
McRae, Jack

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

Books for You While at Sea

ADVENTURE — SEAMANSHIP
ROMANCE—HISTORY—TRAVEL
SCIENCE—GREAT MEN'S LIVES

Books to Help You Spend Idle Hours in a Pleasant and Worth While Way

For a Free Crew's Library Exchangeable at Any Time

Apply to

American Library Association

34 Sacramento Street San Francisco

Phone Sutter 6985

Or to other A. L. A. Agencies in Almost Any American Port

These books are provided free for your use by the people of the United States through the American Library Association.

When you have finished with them, they may be exchanged for another collection at any office of the American Library Association, or they may be exchanged for any A. L. A. collection on board another boat.

In fairness to the men on the next ship receiving this collection you should take reasonable care to prevent loss or damage to any book.

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST.

SAN FRANCISCO

Mize, J. H.
Mehrtens, Carl
Moor, Peter
Monson, Edvin
Moritz, W.
Murphy, Francis J.
Nauta, H.
Nankinen, Fred
Nelson, Ernest
Nelson, Charlie
Nelson, Gus
Nilsson, Edward
Ogren, Victor E.
Olofsen, O. A.
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Harold
Olsson, Otto
Pett, Dick
Petersen, Hugo
Peterson, August
Raaum, Harry
Rasmussen Swend
Roberts, Bob
Roberts, J. W.
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred C.
Rod, Halfdan
Rossdam, Harry
Rosenthal, W
Rohman, Pete
Runge, R.
Rueter, Amandus
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Sanders, Chas.
Sandberg, N. A.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Salin, Henry
Schladen, H.
Scaharry, Jacob
Schaumberg, W.
Scottol, Andrew
Scrivers, W.
Seland, Hans
Smith, Carl Johan
Soder, Paul
Strehle, F.
Strauss, Walter
Steen, Ivar
Stensland, Paul
Strom, Oscar
Stenberg, Alfred
Sterndock, John
Steffensen, Hans
Sundquist, Walter
Sunde, O.
Sullivan, Jack
Swindells, William
Swanson, Mr.
Swanson, Eric K.
Thomsen, Thomas
Treiberg, Peter
Veckenstedt, W.
Viscarra, Oscar
Voth, Gus
Wennerquist, Anton
Wilhelmson, Karl
Winkelman, Otto
Wilson, John
Woods, Claude F.
Wrobluvski, Paul
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

Packages

Hansen, Oscar W.
Nahinen, Fred
Roberson, Ole
Erickson, E. R.
Nanhinen, Fred.
Peters, J. M
Pinnington, H. D.
Young, William
Zoerb, Walter

INFORMATION WANTED

The Centrale Bond von Transportarbeiders have placed in my hands claim of the father and mother of L. Verhoef, seaman who met his death on the S. S. "Balosaro" April 29, 1920. An old spring line broke, curled around Verhoef's left leg and yanked him on to the winch while he was operating it. Before it could be stopped his leg was taken off. He died two hours later at the hospital. Will members of the crew please report here promptly. The master has made an entry in the log book to the effect that the deceased met with his death through intoxication, which statement we believe to be utterly false. I am acting for the dependent relatives. It is the duty of seamen to tell the truth. Your dependents may be in the same position some day.—S. B. Axtell.

8-25-20

Home News

An approximate cut of 20 per cent in wool cloth prices by the American Woolen Company was noted at the company's opening of its fall exhibit, according to the Textile World Journal. The cut, said to be less than anticipated by the trade, was attributed to little demand for woolen goods.

October 20 has been fixed officially as the date for the provisional referendum on the question of the best method of dealing with the liquor question in British Columbia. Voters will be called upon to decide whether the present prohibition act shall be continued in force, or provision made for government control and sale in sealed packages of spirituous or malt liquor.

So rapid has been the progress of the rice industry in California that this product now forms one of the chief exports to foreign lands. They are even shipping rice—Japanese rice—to Japan. During the first quarter of 1920 more than 100,000 pounds of rice were exported from San Francisco to Japan. Exportations from other ports brought the total up to 300,000 pounds

As a result of the overwhelming victory of the Republican party in the Maine State election, the odds in favor of Senator Harding to win the Presidential election next November shot up to 3 to 1 in the Wall street district. W. L. Darnell & Co., 44 Broad street, who are handling election bets on a commission basis, bet $9000 against $3000 on Harding. Followers of Democratic Candidate Cox are demanding odds of 4 to 1 against their favorite.

The farmer-labor non-partisan movement in Kansas succeeded in defeating for renomination 11 State Senators at the recent primary. These Senators favored the Allen "can't-strike" law. As they are now retired to private life they will have more time to study the fundamental theory of American liberty and democracy. The non-partisans declare that the primary elections cleared the decks and that they will surely defeat Governor Allen next November.

Carrying a crew of four men and a 1600-pound torpedo, a Martin bombing plane fitted with torpedo gear flew from Washington to Yorktown, Pa., a distance of 125 miles, in 64 minutes. Naval officers declared they believed the flight established a record for planes of that type. The flight was made as a test of the Martin plane in connection with its use with the bombing and torpedo practice soon to be conducted with the old battleship Indiana as a target.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is experimenting with wheat, oat and rye straw to secure a new combustible for use for automobiles and cooking, but work on this commercial possibility is hampered by a lack of funds. The department states that it has been possible to operate an automobile with straw gas and that 50 pounds of straw will produce about 300 cubic feet of gas—an amount sufficient to drive a light roadster 15 miles. By-products from the straw, it is stated, may prove useful in the dye industry. These scientists are struggling to perfect this discovery with a meagre appropriation that Congress grudgingly doles out to the agriculture department.

Domestic and Naval

The Standard Transportation Co. (Standard Oil of New York) is reported to have placed an order with the New York Shipbuilding Company for an oil tanker of 12,000 tons deadweight, in addition to the three already ordered of the same builders.

The total receipts from tonnage duties for the year ended June 30, 1920, according to returns to the U. S. Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce, was $1,707,934, compared with $1,265,229 for the fiscal year 1919. This year's receipts are the largest on record.

The records of the New York office of the Shipping Board disclose that, while in 1917 only 10 per cent. of the men below the grade of officers placed on Shipping Board vessels were native-born Americans, during the last six months the average has been 55.7 per cent.

The McDougall-Duluth Shipbuilding Company, Duluth, Minn., is building two 3,650-ton molasses tankers for the Sugar Products Company of New York, one molasses tanker for the David Berg Industrial Alcohol Company, of Philadelphia, and two cargo boats for the Robert Barnes Steamship Company.

Keels for two great battle criusers will soon be laid at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. The vessels are to be larger and faster, and carry far more deadly armament than any cruiser now afloat, according to naval officers. They will be 874 feet long, 106 feet wide, will draw 31 feet of water, and have a displacement of 45,500 tons each. They will have oil-burning engines, and a speed of more than 33 knots. Each ship will have four armored turrets in which eight sixteen-inch 50-caliber guns will be mounted, secondary batteries of sixteen six-inch 53 caliber guns, four three-inch anti-aircraft guns, and eight twenty-one-inch torpedo tubes.

Customs receipts at New York during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, amounted to $230,083,885, as compared with $117,854,252 for the preceding year. The expense of collection amounted to $5,158,156, as compared with $5,116,119 last year. This increase is accounted for in the increased bonus to employes, which exceeded the bonus paid last year by $318,836. The cost of collecting a dollar, however, was the lowest for a number of years, being .0225, or 2¼ cents, compared with .0434, or a litttle better than 4⅓ cents for the same period last year. The total value of imports was $2,904,946,043 and of exports $3,386,-984,723.

According to the Panama Canal Record repairs to the forward hull of the steamship "Koyo Maru," which was grounded on the reef at Serrana Bank, are under way at the 1000-foot dry dock. Inspection shows that shell frames for approximately 80 feet from bow on each side are badly damaged; most of the frames require splicing, being too badly bent and twisted to allow straightening, about 75 per cent. of the shell plates for five strakes will require renewal, the balance being in such a condition that they can be reused. As cargo in No. 1 hold could not be worked due to this hold being flooded, it is being removed while the ship is in dry dock; due to this fact the entire damage can not be seen at this time; it seems probable that the tank tops will require repairs.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. M.
Adolfsson, John
Almon, L.
Altonen, Carl
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Andersen, N. F.
Andreasen, H. -1477
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, Edvin
Anderson, Frank
Andersson, C. -2001
Andersson, G. A.
Andersson, G. S.
Anderson, John
Andersson, C. B. -797
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Aso, Gustav
Attaberry, Clarence
Augustin, H.
Aylward, Ja

Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Bandel, Curt
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Bendixen, Hans
Bergman, J. L.
Bergstrom, G. A.
Beschorner, Robert
Bjorklund, E.
Blomgren, C. A.
Blomgreen, A.
Bloom, Pete
Boerner, P. F.
Bolstad, Hans
Bond, H. J.
Borgeson, Hilding
Botsford, R. D.
Boyland, O. J.
Bourman, Jack
Brauner, C. A.
Broomhead, R.
Broshear, A. O.
Brown, H. W.
Bryning, Wm.
Bryning, Walter
Buckner, Chas. W.
Bye, Krist.

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, John
Carlson, Axel
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Peter
Carlsson, J.
Carlsson, John -861
Carpenter, Harold
Cavanaugh, H. E.
Chilcott, Geo.
Chavez, Mariano
Christensen, Jorgen -1731
Christensen, Martin
Cherry, Arthur
Chipps, Eric
Christensen, H. C.
Clausen, Louis
Clug, Fredrick
Cobb, Ralph H.
Colman, J.
Conley, Irwin
Cooper, C. E.
Coulyou, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dahl, Otto
Dahl, Oskar
Dahls, Ogden
Dahlgren, Wm. A.
Davis, Warren
Daunt, C.
Delsing, Ernst
DeMarlo, Thos
Delaney, G.
Derberg, M.
Dickensen, T.
Dominelli, G.
Domke, Willi
Donnelly, George F.
Drange, F. S.
Drennen, W. N.
Dommelen, G. J.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Dumas, C.
Dunwoody, G.

Eaton, Lawrence
Eckleberry, H.
Eide, B.
Eide, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Ellingsen, Harold
Ellis, F. L.
Engstrom, Ed.
Endemann, M.
Ennus, Pito
Erickson, -997
Ernst, E.

Fagerberg, Ivan
Farevoog, C. M.
Farrell, Bernand
Fletcher, Jos.
Freese, Paul
Fredricksen, O.
Freierbach, C.
Fuller, Geo. E.

Gallery, R. B.
Gaynor, Ambrose
Geletneky, Hans
Germenis, Socrates
Graham, Claude
Graham, Ray
Grainge, Arnold
Granberg, Fred
Gregory, M. N.
Green, Lawrence
Griffin, J. R.
Gunderson, H. T.
Gutmann, Paul C. M. -1133

Hagemeyer, Gus
Hagen, Horace
Haider, Henry
Hale, Kingsley
Hallit, Frank
Halvorsen, Isak
Hallowes, L. N.
Haka, Ed.
Hansen, -2010
Hansen, -3190
Haugen, H. C.
Hammond, Robert
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, Hans M.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Hansen, S. P.
Hanson, Olaf
Harbst, J. D.
Harvey, Earl S.
Hauptman, F.
Hawkins, L.
Hellsten, G. A.
Henniques, L. O.
Hessin, B.
Heaps, James
Hereld, J. M.
Heyen, Horace
Heywood, D. L.
Higgins, P.
Hobbs, Frank A.
Houlak, John
Hobbs, Frank M.
Hoglander, Martin
Holdaway, C. G.
Hood, Alex
Huter, Chas.
Huber, C. L. -2846
Hunter, Ernest

Ibsen, Christian
Ireland, H.
Isakson, Karl

Jacklin, Charles
Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jacobsen, Herman
Jahnke, Paul
Jakullis, John
Janson, John A.
Jansson, Hj.
Jansson, John
Jens, Otto
Jensen, Martin
Jensen, E. -1987
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jernberg, Alf.
Jeppsen, Chris.
Jespersen, M.
Jewell, Al. M.
Johannesen, Ole
Johannsen, Klaus
Johansen, Ellert
Johannesen, Johannes
Johansen, Anton
Johnsen, H. -2213
Johnston, Edw.
Johnson, E. -2715
Johnson, A. Emil
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johnson, E. L.
Johansson, Bernad
Johnson, Walter
Joiner, Jack
Jonsson, J. H. -2951
Jorgensen, Johannes
Jorgensen, F.
Josephson, Ben
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaaveland, T.
Karlgren, -644
Karlsson, E. -1738
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Katkin, Ed.
Kessell, Harry
Keegan, Joe
Kierne, G. H.
Kihlman, Gunnar
Kine, Conrad
Kinnie, E. J.
Kirby, Geo.
Klemmetsen, Alf.
Kluge, Fred
Kluge, Martin
Knudsen, Ragnval
Knutsen, B. R.
Kolustow, A.
Kraal, J.
Kristofferson, A. B.
Kruse, Einar
Kuckens, B.

LaMadrid, R.
Lambert, Jos.
Lange, Henry
Langmann, Wm.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen, Alfred
Larsen, H. -2280
Larsen, Sigruid
Larsen, John -2012
Laurence, Bruno
Leeder, W. -2287
Leegaard, Rasmus
Lefter, John A.
Lehtonen, Hj. O.
Leskinen, F. A.
Lidsten, Chas.
Liesen, W.
Lindeberg, Ernst
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Lindquist, Chas. S.
Lindroos, Fred
Liljedal, Ludv.
Loning, Herman
Lundquist, Ralph A.
Lubeck, Thos.
Lundin, -1054
Lundstrom, Ernst
Lydersen, Peder

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
Makares, S. J.
Mannonen, Niels
Manzano, Luis
Marker, Andrew
Marshall, Ira
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattos, Mario P.
Mahaffey, Cecil
Mattson, Hilding
Mattson, Victor
McGauley, Geo.
McGann, Oliver
McGregor, Donald
McGillvray, W.
McKenzie, Alex.
McLean, Grant
McEvoy, Peter
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McCarthy, Harood
McManus, Peter
Maland, Helge
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Maynard, G.
Mersman, A.
Mess, W.
Melgand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Mitchell, David
Midgette, Frank W.
Mikelsen, Bern.
Miller, R. E.
Moberg, Alf.
Mooi, Peter
Mohr, Karl
Monroe, N. S.
Monsen, Charlie
Mol, J. W.
Moller, Fritz
Moonan, Thomas
Morgan, R. B.
Mortensen, Geo.
Moritz, W.
Morris, Francis
Moore, H. L.
Morris, Jimmie
Morrison, Donald
Moulas, Nicholas
Muller, Werner

Nareta, Th.
Naville, Emil A.
Naylor, Geo. D.
Nelson, Charles
Nelson, Nils E.
Nelson, C. R.
Nesson, Ralph
Ness, Aksel
Neumann, H. -1423
Neveau, Thomas
Newton, A.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nielsen, Johannes
Nielsen, -1116
Nilsson, -1176
Nilsson, Reinhold
Nitschke, Karl
Nickerson, Phillip
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nilsson, Edward
Nilsson, John
Nolen,
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nordgren, Ragnar
North, Jesse I.
Nuter, Alex
Nyman, John A.

Oad, John
O'Brien, Larry
Ogren, V. E.
O'Leary, Patric
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, Arnold
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, -1280
Olsen, Hans, Th.
Olsen, Fred
Olsen, Magnus
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsen, Alf
Olsen, C. -1412
Olsson, Charle
Olson, Ed.
Olsson, James
Ostlund, John
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Ozolin, Jan
Page, J. N.
Parrish, Arthur L.
Paul, Ben
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, W. -1535
Peterson, Albert
Petersen, Fredrik
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Phillips, Bob
Post, Albert
Potter, E. R.
Price, Arthur
Prusch, A.
Puttner, Fred

Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Rasmusen, Rudolpf
Rasmussen, Aksel
Rasmussen, Emil
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Raynor, Robert
Regnill, Gustaf
Reuter, R. A.
Richardson, Edwin
Riesbeck, Hj.
Rillukka, John
Roberts, John
Robertson, Robert
Rohman, Paul
Rogers, Thos. G.
Rollo, R.
Rommel, Andrew
Ronn, E.
Rose, J.
Ross, -1500
Ross, H. E.
Rosenberg, L. F. K.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Rupert, Geo.
Russell, Robert

Saharoff, John
Salli, Rudolf
Sampson, C. L.
Sampson, Carl -2136
Samuelson, E. -2888
Sanne, Rudolf
Sanjer, Sajer
Saunders, Dewey A.
Saxby, C. H.
Scanlon, David P.
Schmees, Herman
Schmidt, E. H.
Schneidau, Heinrich
Schroeder, Ernst
Schulze, John
Selvert, Albert
Seegaard, Rasmus
Sexton, Harry J.
Sharman, E. S.
Sidroff, Nick
Sigrist, George
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Skaar, Oskar M.
Skeries, Hans
Slattery, Harry
Small, E. R.
Smedsvig, O. B.
Smith, Jas.
Smith, W.
Smith, John H.
Smith, Geo. B.
Smith, A. G.
Solberg, Bernt P.
Soneson, Wilhelm
Sorensen, Jorgen H.
Sovdsnes, O. Petersen
Sonne, Herman
Spence, O. L.
Speckman, Max
Spey, H. F.
Stanford, Harry
Stensland, Paul
Sternisa, Carl
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Strele, F.
Strom, C. A.
Strurh, O.
Stang, A.
Stenensen, A.
Stewart, William
Stone, Wicktor
Strandberg, O.
Sund, Alex.
Sundberg, K. C.
Suominen, Oskar
Swanson, C.
Swinka, Albert

Tacie, John
Taylor, Sam C.
Tellefson, Emil
Thomas, Fred
Thompson, Peder
Tillman, Chas.
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tohtz, R. C.
Torson, Andrew
Tovano, A. R.
Touzel, R.
Trebensen, Nick
Tucker, Harold J.
Tufty, C. J.
Turner, W. A.

Vargas, Martina
Van der Loeff, H. A.
v d Ort, W.
Van Helden, H.
Viets, C. L.
Vierr, W.
Vitek, Edward
Vitol, A.
Vorst, C. A.

Wahlstrom, E.
Wallin, Gust
Walters, Harry
Ware, T. F.
Waterfall, L. N.
Waterman, J. K.
Wessberg, E. H. N.
West, Frank
Wheller, Geo.
Whiting, Russell
Wigsten, Geo.
Wiken, Emil
Wiera, Hy.
Wiklund, Wiktor
Wilhelm, Edu.
Winther, Johan
Wilks, J.
Willmann, Wm.
Wilkins, Hy.
Wittenburg, D.
Woods, Dick
Wolfe, E. O.
Wolff, Paul E.
Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.
Zealberg, Jack

PACKAGES.

Allison, Ben
Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Corneliusen, M.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Egan, John
Engstrom, Edw.
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Goodman, Tony
Griffin, J. R.
Halvorsen, Isak
Henrikson, Ernst
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Jansonu, C. J. W.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
Ketelsen, Fred
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Lundquist, Ralph
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Mortensen, Bjarne
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Sternica, Carl
Stranberg, P.
Tillsten, Jack
Travers
van Vleet, F. B.
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

19 East Street, Foot of Ferry Bridge
Wholesale—OUTFITTER—Retail
Everything for the man that goes to sea
SEAMEN AND FISHERMEN
GEO. A. PRICE
IS RIGHT
U. S. Navy Tower's
Sea Boots Flannels Oil Skins

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

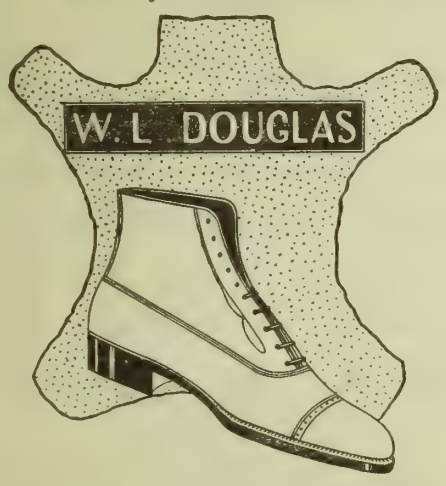
Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
738 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SAVE MONEY ON YOUR SHOES
Would you walk one-half block from Market Street to



Save $1 to $3?
We are located at 58 Third St., San Francisco.
We are agents for—
W. L. Douglas
Just Wright
Walk Ease
Strong & Garfield
We can positively save you money by buying your SHOES from us.
Our low rent and small expense make it possible for us to sell cheaper than the Market Street stores paying six times our rent.
We are showing a most exclusive and large stock of men's shoes. We can fit any foot and suit any fancy.
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET
Between Market and Mission
San Francisco, Cal.

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.
SEPT. 1880
Issued by Authority of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.
Union-made Cigars.
This Certifies, That the Cigars contained in this box have been made by a First-Class Workman a MEMBER OF THE CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION of America, an organization devoted to the advancement of the MORAL MATERIAL and INTELLECTUAL WELFARE OF THE CRAFT. Therefore we recommend these Cigars to all smokers throughout the world.
All infringements upon this Label will be punished according to law.
P. W. Perkins, President, C. M. I. U. of America
LOCAL STAMP

News from Abroad

A port is to be constructed at Comodoro Rivadavia (Argentina) at an estimated cost of $1,500,000.

Reports from Mesopotamia indicate a spread of anarchistic rebellion against the British in that country, says a London War Office report.

A Spanish Royal Decree subjects foreign emigrant ships sailing from Spanish ports to a progressive tax which starts at 10,000 pesetas for 2,000 emigrants.

A contract for the construction of an oil pipeline between Havre and Paris, with a daily capacity of 50,000 barrels, has been awarded to Messrs. James Stewart & Co., of New York.

The Navy crew representing the United States in the Olympic regatta in Brussels won the world's title and set a new world's record of six minutes and five seconds.

According to the Japanese Shipping Controller, last year the tonnage of merchant vessels built in Japan amounted to about 700,000, this being about 10 times the pre-war output.

At a recent meeting of 527 West Australian farmers, it was unanimously decided to subscribe £250,000 towards the £1,000,000 required for the establishment of wheat elevators.

In order to provide a sufficient supply of beef for local consumption, the Government of Jamaica has agreed to relax regulations which prohibit the importation of cattle for slaughtering purposes.

Munitions and hydroairplanes valued at nearly $2,000,000, recently confiscated by the Entente Commission in Germany, were destroyed by German workmen, many of whom are Communists, says a London dispatch.

A report from Mexico City says that Augustine Preve, who recently declared war on the whole world, except Russia, has been captured at Campeche and is being held for trial on charges of rebellion.

The Mexican Embassy at Washington issues an official statement promising equitable settlement of all claims against the Mexican Government and assurances that in the future protection will be afforded all foreigners who enter Mexico.

The Government of India is still retaining control of the rice trade. It is anticipated, however, that if the present crop turns out favorably, control will be abandoned before the end of the year and exports will once more be free.

Grain shipments from Argentina during the first six months of this year, compared with the same period of 1919, were as follows: Wheat, 4,198,685 tons (838,165); maize, 1,917,710 tons (856,820); linseed, 582,868 tons (222,420); oats, 210,104 tons (109,335).

The Danish mercantile fleet comprised, at the end of 1919, 708 vessels of more than 100 tons, totaling 749,020 tons, which, as compared with the respective figures for 1914, means a decrease by 10.9 per cent. in the number, and by 4.6 per cent. in the total tonnage.

Under a new six months' coal agreement signed by representatives of the Swiss and German Governments, Switzerland will receive from 15,000 to 20,000 tons of coal and coke and 15,000 tons of briquets per month. The agreement will run until January 15, 1921.

With the Wits

Making It Easy.—To facilitate the scheme for taking the finger-prints of infants in America, it is proposed to make the impressions in jam.—The Passing Show (London).

Reason Enough.—Binks (coming out of theatre)—"Why did everybody cry during the death scene? They must have known that the actor was not dead." Jinks—"Yes, that was just it."—Michigan Gargoyle.

The Real Difficulty.—Best Man—"What's the matter! Have you lost the ring?" Bridegroom—"The ring is all right, old man, but I've lost my beastly enthusiasm."—London Opinion.

A Practicing Physician.—Patient—"I want to see doctor. Be this the place?" Doctor—"This is where I practice." Patient—"Don't want no person for to practice on me; I want a doctor for to cure me."—The Bulletin (Sydney).

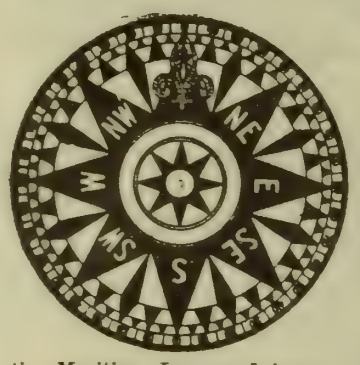
Looking Forward.—They had just become engaged. "I shall love," she cooed, "to share all your griefs and troubles." "But, darling," he purred, "I have none." "No," she agreed; "but I mean when we are married."—Dallas News.

Conclusive Evidence.—William and Henry, chauffeurs, were discussing the ill-luck of a fellow chauffeur, Clarence, who had the day before been fined for taking out his employer's car without permission. "But how did the boss know Clarence had taken the car out?" asked Henry. "Why," explained William, "Clarence ran over him."—Harper's Magazine.

Open Season.—A tourist was just emerging from a corn-field by the roadside, bearing in his arms a dozen handsome roasting ears, says the Oakley Graphic. A second car approached and stopped, whereupon the tourist reached for his pocketbook and asked in an embarrassed manner, "How much?" "One dollar," said the newcomer, and then, after receiving payment, remarked, "This is a fine field of corn. Wonder who it belongs to?"—Kansas City Star.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888



Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. JEWELERS

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco

717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento

112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James H. Sorensen

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's GOOD GOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing

All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry

676 THIRD STREET

At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco

Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am

"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell

UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO

Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization.

VOL. XXXIV, No. 5. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1920. Whole No. 1721.

COMPENSATION LAWS FOR SEAMEN

The Urgent Need for Federal Legislation

For several years the best lawyers in America have been unable to clearly define a seaman's right under the law to compensation or damages for accidental injuries aboard ship.

There are so many conflicting court decisions on existing laws that ordinary folks are hopelessly lost in the maze of verbiage necessary to explain the many intricate points involved. Of course, there is only one way out of the maze and that is the enactment of a Federal Compensation law for seamen.

Mr. Warren H. Pillsbury, compensation expert of the California Industrial Accident Commission, has favored the Journal with the excellent treatise on the subject which is published herewith, in full, and is commended to the careful perusal of all who earn their livelihood aboard ship.

The development of compensation legislation is still quite incomplete. The number of employes in excluded occupations, who should be under compensation protection is unnecessarily large. In nearly all States, agricultural, casual and domestic employes are excluded. In some States employes in employments where less than four, five or sixteen workmen are engaged, are still excluded. Some States limit their coverage to employes in specified hazardous occupations, and by reason of conflicts of jurisdiction between the States and the Federal government, most railroad employes and practically all maritime workers are taken out from the protection of State compensation laws, although receiving no compensation protection under Federal law. It is the purpose of this paper to discuss briefly the lot of the maritime worker.

Maritime employment is one of the most hazardous of industrial occupations. A sailor has the perils of the sea to face in addition to the ordinary dangers incident to working about machinery or handling goods. The stevedore is in constant danger from swinging booms or swinging loads of commodities being hoisted into or out of ships, from falling articles of cargo, and from infection from scratches or lacerations received in the handling of dirty articles and in the stowage of freight in dirty holds. These conditions have not as yet been improved by any systematic safety work, either by the States or Federal government, although the latter has done something under the La Follette act to prevent loss by shipwreck. When the same system of safety inspection is applied to working quarters aboard ship as is now being given by the more advanced States for land industry, maritime work will be more attractive to native-born Americans.

On the compensation side of maritime work, the situation is equally deplorable. State compensation laws are now finally precluded from compulsory application to maritime work by a series of decisions by the United States Supreme Court, holding that the law maritime is paramount even though Congress itself may have legislated to the contrary. The law maritime affords little or no protection to injured seamen or their dependents. If the seaman be injured or killed by negligence of the vessel or its owners, a complicated action for damages is allowed in the admiralty courts which is in no respect more beneficial to the seaman than suits for damages in the State courts for other employments, long since superseded by compensation laws. If the injury be not due to negligence, the seaman is limited to medical care and maintenance for a short period under the rule of "The Osceola" which gives far less than compensation. For permanent injuries no system of rehabilitation is provided. For death cases, it is very seldom that the widows and children receive an allowance of any sort. The States cannot give relief, though the burden of the poverty caused by injured maritime workers falls upon the States instead of the Federal government. Congress cannot even authorize the States to protect themselves against this burden, or to protect their citizens against industrial losses. The United States has not acted to give such protection in its own right.

While this may sound doleful, there is another phase of the matter which even more strongly savors of injustice. Congress has from time to time enacted legislation for the upbuilding of a merchant marine by the encouragement of the investment of money in shipping. Such legislation, at least until the recent war, did not succeed in its purpose, i. e., it did not develop an American merchant marine. The indirect effect of such legislation was, moreover, to penalize the maritime worker, and the net result was to give to the capitalist investing in American shipping a preference at the expense of his employes instead of at the expense of the public at large. For instance, the Harter act and the Limited Liability act have the effect of freeing a ship owner from liability for practically all claims for loss of life or personal injuries to members of the crew, as well as claims for loss of cargo, where the ship is a total loss. Even where a seaman or his dependents have a good right of action, the employer can limit his liability, if the vessel be lost, so as to defeat this right. This is a privilege not accorded to any land industry and is directly opposed to the practice of compensation legislation in which claimants for compensation are given preference over general creditors. In the proposed Federal compensation act for maritime workers, some provisions should be made whereby the right of limitation of liability by the employer should not be exercised so as to defeat compensation payments.

The effect of the Limited Liability act may be illustrated further by pointing out that the ship owner and cargo owner can insure their losses so that if a vessel be lost at sea the insurance company will make good the loss to the owner, although he be relieved from direct liability by the operation of this act. The seaman cannot, however, insure his earning capacity, as his wages are too low, and accident insurance premiums are too high, for his occupation to make any private system of accident insurance practicable. If the vessel be lost at sea with all on board, the ship owner can keep the payments made to him by his insurance company with which to purchase a new vessel. He does not have to devote the proceeds of his insurance policy to the relief of the dependents of his employes. The dependents alone get nothing and are cast a burden upon the public and private charities of the State in which they reside.

The injustice of the situation is further enhanced by reference to the coastwise shipping act by which foreign vessels are prohibited from engaging in coastwise maritime commerce of the United States. The ostensible excuse for the Limited Liability act is that it makes it possible for American shipping to engage in competition with foreign shipping. No such protection is needed for our coastwise shipping, because there is no competition with foreign vessels in this traffic, which claims a large proportion of our maritime commerce. Nevertheless limited liability may be invoked for losses in coastwise shipping. The result is that if a coastwise vessel be lost, the ship owner may limit his liability and invest his insurance money in a new vessel, suffering no substantial loss. The cargo owner collects his insurance upon his lost cargo. The dependents of many of the passengers can realize upon their life insurance policies, but the dependents of the lost crew get nothing. The only uncompensated loss is that sustained by the widows and orphans of the maritime workers. The protection of the Limited Liability act should not be given to ship owners in coastwise traffic to the prejudice of claims for damages or compensation for the loss of members of the crew.

The insurance situation is unsatisfactory as well as the compensation and safety situation. In California, prior to the decision of the Knickerbocker Ice Comvany Case, last May, in which the United States Supreme Court finally excluded State workmen's compensation acts from protection to maritime workers, a number of the maritime companies operated temporarily under our compensation act. In litigation arising under it, the insurance situation came prominently to the fore. In California we noted early, that most of the insurance covering liability of the ship owner for injuries to his seamen, either common law or compensation liability if ultimately sustained, was placed in certain English maritime insurance companies. A general form of policy was used by a number of these English concerns, commonly known as the "P and I," or Protection and Indemnity insurance. More recently an American club was formed to give the same insurance upon a mutual basis, but apparently, until recently, the British concerns have dominated the field. Their adjustment attitude, at least in California, was unsatisfactory in the extreme. Along the Atlantic seaboard I have not heard of as much difficulty as we have had here, possibly due to a better adjustment attitude in the East or to a less broad coverage of maritime workers in Atlantic Coast compensation States. In California the principal difficulties encountered were that the British concerns had no one within the State, or within the United States, upon whom service of process of the Commission could be made, so that it was impossible to make them parties to a compensation proceeding. The employer defended each case before the Commission, but was in fact represented by the attorneys of the insurance concern, who frequently refused to permit the employer to take a liberal attitude under threat of forfeiture of the insurance. They resisted all large claims very technically, carrying test case after test case to the courts upon constitutional or technical grounds, and delayed most other cases until the test cases should be decided. In small cases settlements were sometimes prompt, but usually the claimants were underpaid, according to compensation standards. Jurisdictional conflict between the State compensation law and the admiralty law was frequently made use of to throw the claimant from one court to the other and back again, in the endeavor to defeat liability on each theory in turn. So far as known, these English concerns are under no supervision in their own country as to solvency and management, such as that given by insurance commissioners in the different States in the United States.

Further, the insurance policies issued by these concerns, while in fact covering the compensation liability of the employer, invariably omitted the statutory provisions required by the State compensation acts and declined to accept any of the responsibility which the State law requires of compensation insurance carriers. In short, the maritime insurance covering the compensation hazard among others, was in the hands almost entirely of outsiders, who did not make themselves subject to the laws or courts of the jurisdiction under which they operated, and adopted adjustment policies at variance with the requirements of the jurisdictions in which they carried on their business.

The writer cannot state much as to the adjustment attitude of the American P and I club, as he did not come into contact with it to any great extent prior to the decision in the Knickerbocker Ice Company case.

A very satisfactory form of maritime policy, from the compensation point of view, was discovered by the writer in the policy of the Associated Companies, in which some ten companies engaging in the compensation business in the United States, issue a policy covering the liability of the employer and dividing the risk between them. On account of the catastrophe hazard, no one compensation insurance carrier could afford to insure the crews of vessels, but the association of these ten companies upon each risk eliminates this difficulty. Such companies do business in the various States, are thoroughly responsible, subject themselves to the jurisdiction of the different boards and commissions of the States in which they operate and comply with the laws of those States. If the Knickerbocker Ice Company decision had been the other way, the writer would have endeavored to start a movement for insistence on such form of policy to the exclusion of the P and I policies.

Attempts to Protect Maritime Workers.

The Federal Government being dilatory, the first attempt to give better protection to employes against maritime injuries came from the States. Admiralty law, like the common law, never provided a right of action for wrongful death, so the States somewhat early in their history, provided negligence statutes, giving such right of action. By act of Congress of 1789, the provision being known as the "saving clause" of the Judiciary act, claimants in admiralty had the alternative of suing upon contracts or injuries either in admiralty or in the State courts according to the common law, which common law included State statutes passed either before or after the act of Congress. The admiralty courts thereafter adopted such State statutes so that in the event of a fatal injury to a sailor due to the negligence of the ship owner, the dependents could sue for damages either in the state court under the State law, or in the admiralty court according to the usual course in admiralty, but based upon the same State law. This situation went on for many years until workmen's compensation acts developed in the United States. After the passage of the first compulsory compensation acts the State authorities applied such compensation acts to maritime injuries upon the same principle, i. e., that an injured employe or his dependents had the option under this "saving clause" of suing in the admiralty court or of suing in the State court upon the State law. When this matter came to a test in the United States Supreme Court it was held, however, in the celebrated case of Southern Pacific Company vs. Jensen, 244 U. S. 205, reversing the previously accepted doctrine that the State compensation act could not be applied. This was a five to four decision, the majority opinion being written by Mr. Justice McReynolds and based upon reasoning unsatisfactory to all admiralty lawyers as well as compensation authorities. The stand apparently taken by the court was that workmen's compensation acts, being new legislation and at variance with common law principles of liability, were not included within the act of Congress of 1789 above referred to, and that therefore the jurisdiction of the admiralty courts was exclusive.

To remedy this situation, Congress, on October 5, 1917, unanimously passed an amendment to the Federal judicial code expanding the "saving clause" above referred to, to extend the concurrent jurisdiction of the State authorities to include relief for maritime injuries under State compensation acts. This act of Congress was in turn declared unconstitutional, also by a five to four decision, in Knickerbocker Ice Company vs. Stewart, decided in May of this year. Mr. Justice McReynolds again wrote the majority opinion and the same four judges concurred with him as before. The decision holds virtually that Congress cannot permit State statutes, which are based upon principles unknown to the common law, to be applied to maritime matters, upon the assumption that the United States Constitution has made the law maritime of national scope and placed it beyond the authority of the States. The decision is much to be deplored. The Federal Constitution nowhere, in express terms, contains such requirement, and the previous history of admiralty law largely involves recognition of State statutes where not contrary to acts of Congress. The parallel course of development in State and Federal jurisdiction in matters affecting interstate commerce also leads to the same conclusion, as it has been held repatedly that State-created rights of action for damages for injuries to railroad employes are valid, even though dealing with injuries in interstate commerce, until such time as Congress took unto itself the regulation of this field. The result is that by a misunderstanding or lack of sympathy with compensation principles, the court has excluded the States from the protection of maritime injuries by workmen's compensation laws, while it still permits State damage suit laws to be applied to the same injuries.

Assuming the ideal to which the majority of the Federal court are striving, i. e., a national system of maritime law untrammeled by State interference, the decision was nevertheless unnecessary. Complete Federal control of maritime law is sufficiently secured by the ability of Congress to assume full authority at any time in its discretion. It was not necessary that the States be prevented from giving relief at a time when the Federal Government itself was doing nothing. If the decision had been the other way in the Knickerbocker Ice Company case, and State compensation acts had been allowed to apply to maritime injuries, such acts would all have been obliged to give way upon the passage of a uniform Federal compensation act. It seems an undue refinement, therefore, to oust the States from the protection of maritime workers at a time when Congress has provided no protection. In the last analysis, the protection of maritime workers is a local problem, not a national one. The crippled worker and his family are burdens upon the States, not upon the national Government, and the primary purpose of compensation legislation is to protect the community and its citizen workers against poverty due to industrial injury. With this protection the Federal Government is not concerned.

However, this may be, the decision of the United States Supreme Court upon the subject is for the present binding, and the States can do nothing more officially. This leads us to a survey of the national situation.

The first really important law which Congress has passed for the protection of seamen is the La Follette Act of 1915. This improved the condition of seamen materially along the line of better safety and living conditions and protection against abuse. It did not touch upon compensation for injuries. It met with extremely vigorous opposition upon the part of shipowners and was only enacted after a very bitter fight, although every land employment had long since been put under greater obligation for the comfort, health, safety and welfare of employes than the La Follette Act imposed upon shipowners. Even shipowners in coastwise shipping opposed it, although immune from foreign competition.

The next measure was the act of October 5, 1917, above mentioned, which the Supreme Court of the United States held unconstitutional in the Knickerbocker Ice Company case. Following this, Congress, in March, 1920, passed an abortive measure, providing a right of action for wrongful death for all injuries occurring upon the high seas. This gives only a remedy by damage suit for negligence, of the same type as that superseded in the various States by compensation legislation. It was unnecessary, as the Jensen and Knickerbocker cases still permitted State statutes to be applied under such circumstances, and practically every State has such death statute. It was an anomaly, in that it limited application of such statute to injuries occurring on vessels outside the three-mile limit, and did not provide the same protection for injuries occurring in harbors, although admiralty law applies equally to injuries upon navigable waters, in ports or harbors, or upon the high seas.

A later provision, Section 33 of the Jones bill, passed in June, 1920, by Congress, goes further. That section places all seamen under the protection of the Federal Employers' Liability Act, which act will be remembered as the one giving rights of action to railroad employes injured in interstate commerce. At the present time, seamen are upon a par with railroad employes in interstate commerce, with respect to redress of injuries. This law is largely inadequate. The railroad act is one giving a right of action for negligence only, and is not based upon compensation principles. At the time of its adoption it was an improvement upon contemporaneous negligence laws, but has since been superseded by the adoption of State workmen's compensation acts. The Jones bill is, however, a great improvement upon the previous state of the admiralty law. A serious defect is that it applies only to seamen, and apparently does not include stevedores or longshoremen within its operation. It is profoundly to be hoped that it will be superseded at the next session of Congress by a uniform Federal compensation act applying alike to maritime and railroad workers.

The prospect of a uniform Federal act at the next session appears to be good. Such a measure was drafted three years ago, and introduced by Senator Johnson of California, but was not brought up for passage, the law condemned in the Knickerbocker Ice Company case being put through instead. Since that time, the writer is informed, the bill has been with the United States Shipping Board for review before introduction. Just after the decision in the Knickerbocker Ice Company case, last May, the question was taken up hurriedly in Washington. According to my information, the Shipping Board, upon noting the inclusion of Section 33 by Senator Jones in his bill, being the provision above discussed, returned Senator Johnson's bill in a hurry, with a statement that it met their entire approval. It was then too late to press for passage a uniform compensation measure, as Congress was about to adjourn. Hence the inclusion of Section 33 of the Jones bill as a stopgap until the next session of Congress. Several other drafts of uniform Federal compensation acts for maritime workers are now being prepared, one by the American Association for Labor Legislation. Both political parties have declared for some such measure, although the Democratic platform limits this recommendation to a uniform compensation act for workers engaged in loading and unloading vessels, and does not include sailors. It is to be profoundly hoped that Congress will provide a thoroughgoing reform of the present provisions of the maritime law in this respect.

After all, the best solution would be to frame a thoroughly efficient Federal compensation law, applicable to all maritime workers, and to railroad employes in interstate commerce as well. I do not believe any of the States which have tried to make their compensation laws applicable to maritime injuries have felt that the matter should be permanently regulated by State laws. The desire to apply State laws has been, instead, to provide some very necessary relief to seamen until Congress should get around to provide a uniform national act. Three principal advantages of such Federal act are:

(1) Uniform imposition of burden upon all employers engaged in maritime commerce, avoiding the conflicting standards of divergent State laws.

(2) Opportunity to provide a compensation measure of high standard, superseding such acts in States where the compensation law is inadequate or nonexistent.

(3) A uniform Federal act will also avoid clashes between the compensation acts of different States based upon the question of extra-territorial application of such laws.

While many desirable features of a proposed Federal act can be suggested, in my judgment, the matter upon which most emphasis should be laid, apart from a high standard of benefits, is that the State boards and commissions should be given concurrent jurisdiction with the Federal courts in the enforcement of the Federal law. I think this can be done without constitutional objection, and it is now in fact being done with respect to injuries sustained by railroad employes in interstate commerce. In the latter case, suit can be brought under the Federal law in either the Federal or the State courts. The advantage of concurrent jurisdiction in State industrial accident boards and commissions is that such provision will eliminate the passing of claimants from one court to another with the danger of each court taking the view that the suit should be brought in the other court. In our handling of railroad injuries, it frequently happens that an employe files an application with the Commission for compensation under the State law and it is finally determined that the suit should have been brought under the Federal act and before a tribunal. If such employe sues first in the courts, he is often told that he should have sued in the Commission, and by that time his claim for compensation is doubtless outlawed. If the suit be brought before the Commission, the

(Continued on Page 9.)

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Anti-Unionist Retired to Private Life

Congressman Venable of Mississippi is the latest to go down to defeat by non-partisan labor. This candidate appealed for votes on the anti-union shop platform, and attacked the organized workers, who have retired him to private life.

Many instances have been reported to the A. F. of L. national non-partisan political campaign committee of candidates standing on the anti-union shop platform. In the great majority of cases these candidates have been defeated by organized workers, who show why cheap-labor employers support these candidates. In one instance a Texas candidate for Congress publicly solicited financial aid from these employers. While this candidate was nominated, Texas trade unionists and sympathizers more than evened the score by defeating a former United States Senator who sought the nomination for Governor on an anti-union shop platform.

In Labor's "victory list" is included United States Senator Thomas of Colorado, who was not even mentioned as a candidate for re-election at the recent convention of his party. During the last session of Congress it was almost a daily occurrence for this lawmaker to attack organized labor on the floor of the Senate. He was an inspiration to every anti-unionist and cheap labor employer in the land. But when Senator Thomas was called upon to face his constituents in a political campaign, he quit.

In Alabama Senator Underwood was nominated by a narrow margin, as was Senator Smith of Arizona and trade unionists of these States are enthusiastic over their first non-partisan venture on a statewide scale.

Georgia trade unionists were more successful in the case of United States Senator Hoke Smith, who was defeated, and in Wisconsin the political scalp of Congressman Esch, joint sponsor for the railroad bill, dangles from the belt of LaCrosse labor.

Labor's non-partisan activity has already resulted in the disappearance of many reactionaries from the national law making body. New faces will replace those who were confident that their labor attacks would assure campaign funds from powerful anti-union sources. Organized labor wrecked the scheme by abandoning party lines and defeated these enemies who imagined they could keep the workers divided by raising the wolf cry: "Gompers is trying to deliver the labor vote."

Numerous candidates for lesser offices have also been defeated. The list includes every office from town tax assessor and councilman to Governors of States.

These advances have been made possible by the awakening of the wage earners to their political strength when used as the balance of power against enemies of the men and women of toil and in the interest of justice and Americanism.

Labor's No-Partyism Plan Succeeds

Labor's non-partisan political program has passed the "explaining" stage. Its effectiveness is shown by heavy scores against the plunder crew who look upon government as a thing for private use.

Labor has done more than defeat Senators, Congressmen and Governors. It has impressed workers that this government is "of, by and for the people."

It has triumphed after 40 years of agitation by smashing a blind partisanship that cloaked injustice and justified wrong.

Today candidates must stand on their records. The edict of a secret caucus or appeals to "stand by the party" no longer suffice.

Non-partisanship is a national characteristic. The independent voter is no longer a curiosity.

For nearly half a century labor has insisted that partisanship is reaction's best asset, and labor has served democracy by destroying partisanship.

Every year the tide of non-partisanship mounts higher and higher. This year the wave has reached a record point.

This year labor is better organized, more intelligent, more determined in its fight for justice, for freedom of action, for Americanism as understood by the Fathers.

The non-partisan wave will not recede. It will continue upward as labor awakens to the need for and the value of an intelligent, independent ballot.

The A. F. of L. national non-partisan political campaign committee is developing this intelligence. Records of candidates for national offices are published, platform declarations are made known, literature is supplied wage earners, who are urged to study these documents and then vote against labor's enemies and in the interest of humanity and justice.

The non-partisan method will become more effective as wage earners sense the ideals of liberty, progress and democracy and social justice that are behind a ballot cast for these qualities rather than for pillars of reaction and special privilege.

Injunction Blocked by Anti-Labor Rule

Attorneys for striking machinists at Cincinnati successfully turned a decision by the United States Supreme Court, which invalidated the Federal Child Labor law, against anti-union employers who asked for an injunction.

The injunction plea was made before Federal Judge Cochran of the eastern district of Kentucky on the ground that the machinists were interfering with interstate commerce. Federal Judge Killets, Toledo (Ohio) district, recently issued an injunction against machinists on strike against the Overland Automobile Company for this reason and the anti-union lawyers called Judge Cochran's attention to this injunction.

The machinists' attorneys called the court's attention to the United States Supreme Court's decision on the child labor law two years ago. This law prohibited the shipment in interstate commerce of any commodity made in a plant that em-

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Internationale Transportarbeiter-Federation Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

Two hundred thousand men and women are said to have taken part in the funeral of Bela Somogyi, the editor of the Hungarian Socialist paper "Nepsazava." Somogyi was executed for being a Socialist by the murder government of Hungary operating under Allied auspices.

A housing organization consisting of four large employers and the Building Trades' Federation has been formed with the object of building 500 houses in Wellington, New Zealand, within the next twelve months. The controlling body will represent the employers, workers, and government.

Opposition to piece work was recorded by the recent annual convention of the National Metal Workers' Union of Belgium, which has grown from 18,000 in 1919 to 146,000 this year. During the past several months the union has waged many successful fights for a minimum wage and the eight-hour day.

Radical meetings are becoming increasingly frequent in Japan. Fifty policemen watched a meeting in Tokio recently where M. Shaman spoke attacking a social system that permitted non-producers to eat. "He who doesn't work must not eat," Shaman declared, and after several addresses along similar lines the police stopped the meeting. Fighting followed and many persons in the assembly were arrested.

In the House of Commons recently members stated slavery was being encouraged in Hong Kong (British), boys and girls being publicly bought and sold. Colonel Avery, for the Government, alleged that these boys and girls were not bought but "adopted for domestic service" for a lump sum. "If the girls were used for immoral purposes the court could watch over them," he said. Previous to this reply the Colonial office promised the General Federation of Trades Unions that the matter would be looked into if it were not made public property.

At a special convention of the Belgian Railway Employes' Federation it was voted to refer to the referendum the question of accepting the Government's plan to establish a joint railway commission of an equal number of employe and employer representatives appointed by the Minister of Labor on recommendation of both parties in interest. Opposition to the commission is based on the belief that it will devitalize the trade union by taking over much of its work. The convention favored the plan and has passed it to the referendum for final action.

At the annual convention of the Belgium Trade Union Federation the Government was called upon to remove restrictions against workers who would strike to improve conditions. The workers are demanding the same liberty against enforced labor that Belgium people demanded when the Germans invaded that country. Legally, Belgium workers have the right to strike, but judicial decisions have reached the point where strikers are penalized as violators of "liberty to labor." The Government promised to remove these restrictions, but as yet has failed to do so. The trade unionists also demand that the Government increase out-of-work benefits which now amount to but a pittance and fall far short of supplementing the trade union benefits, as it was intended to do.

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO CAL
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS UNION — UNION STAMP — Factory
Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

IS INDEPENDENCE YOUR GOAL?

If you spend less than you earn, and save the difference, you are on your way to independence.

WORK AND SAVE

must be part of the plan—safe investment another

INVEST YOUR SAVINGS

in

GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES

PRICES IN JUNE

Thrift Stamps at Twenty-five Cents

$ 5	Government Savings Stamps for.....	$ 4.17
$ 100	Treasury Savings Certificates for.....	83.40
$1000	Treasury Savings Certificates for.....	834.00

FOR SALE AT BANKS AND POST OFFICES

GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
SECOND FEDERAL RESERVE DISTRICT
120 Broadway - - - New York

INFORMATION WANTED

Will H. Peterson and G. Johnson, formerly winchmen of S. S. "Carmel" to communicate with J. T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 9-8-20.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of the brother of August W. Strasdin, will please communicate with B. I. LaSelle, 924 Crocker Bldg., San Francisco. 9-15-20

The James H. Barry Co.
"THE STAR" PRESS
PRINTING
1122-1124 MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM
A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
R. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

SEAMEN'S HEADQUARTERS
The Griffin House
AT NORFOLK, VA.
Furnished Rooms with Hot Baths
Phones:
27454 613 Plume St.
27852 420 West Buts St.
25034 400 Warren Crescent

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

When making purchases from our advertisers, always mention The Seamen's Journal.

INFORMATION WANTED

Chas. T. Smith, Roy Dresser, Joe Ban, Autti Hanks, Thos. Wolstenholme, Chas. Fraser, W. B. Pierce, Karl Olson, William Holmes kindly communicate with John T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 10-6-20

To the members of the crew of the S. S. "J. Acoh."

As I previously notified you the court gave judgment for fifty-three days' penalty amounting to $118 and $10 for shortage of potatoes, $328 in all, a $90 wage the others proportional. Subsequently after the judge went away the penalty was cut to 53 days at $3 per day, making the amount $169 each on a $90 wage, the curt thinking that because the crew were paid wages to the time of their arrival in San Francisco, the Government should get credit for that. I believe the court was in error as the pay to San Francisco was under contract for time actually consumed, and had nothing to do with the penalty for not paying off in Manila, at least what was easily ascertainable there. I think the case should be appealed, and will appeal it unless a majority of the crew write me they do not want it appealed. If appealed it will be on the calendar for argument in February and may be decided in March or April, or not later than May. The question as to transportation can also be again raised on appeal, and I think it should be.

"West Inskip" and "Cochapontes" salvage cases. Both salvage cases are set for trial for November 5, 1920, the first day the court could give. H. W. Hutton.

Pacific Coast Marine

A fleet of 285 wooden steamers, totaling 994,235 deadweight tons is offered for sale by the Shipping Board. The sale will be private and bids will be received until October 8, and then opened.

Puget Sound advices state that the Deep Sea Salvage Company, which has been selling stock on the representation that it proposed to raise the wreck of the steamship "Sophie," from the Lynn Canal, is in the hands of S. B. Hill, appointed receiver by the Supreme Court.

The tanker "Stockton," which was recently launched at the Moore shipyards, had her trial trip on San Francisco Bay during the week and passed all requirements. The vessel has been allocated by the Shipping Board to Struthers & Dixon and will be kept on the Pacific Coast.

The steamer "Bee," 375 tons, has been sold to the Hawaiian Meat Company for use in the interisland trade. The price is said to be $115,000. The Bee was built at Aberdeen in 1907 and was engaged in the lumber trade between Puget Sound and San Francisco for several years.

The power boat "Defender," Seattle, bound from Columbia River to Seattle, which landed high and dry on the shifting sands near Queets River, has been taken to pieces. All the valuable material in her was brought in on the power boat "Blazer." Insurance companies saw no other way of salving her.

J. H. A. Day has been appointed agent for the Shipping Board at Manila and will sail from San Francisco on the Ecuador next month for the new post, it was announced during the week. He has been with the Shipping Board at Washington and will spend the next couple of weeks studying Pacific Coast conditions at the San Francisco offices of the board.

According to word received by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce from George B. McGinty, secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the date of the hearing in San Francisco on the proposed uniform ocean and rail bill of lading has been set for October 25. The hearings will be held at the Palace Hotel.

The 10,100-ton deadweight oil tanker "Algonquin," now nearing completion at Alameda, Cal., for the Standard Transportation Company (Standard Oil of New York), is the first vessel launched on private account from the yard of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation since August, 1917, when the yard was requisitioned by the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Because it is considered an obstruction to navigation, the hulk of the old steamer "Juliet," sunk in the channel near Seventh street, is to be blown up. The "Juliet" was an ancient stern-wheel river boat, once belonging to the E. V. Rideout Company. Years ago an unsuccessful attempt was made to salve the old hulk for its timbers. Diver Martin Lund has been engaged to dynamite the craft.

Honolulu is again to have the service of a coast guard vessel. The eagle boat Earp is being fitted up at Mare island Navy yard preparatory to being taken to the Hawaiian islands by Lieutenant-Commander C. F. Howell of the Coast Guard Service. The Earp is one of the vessels built at the Ford automobile factory during the war. It resembles a destroyer, but is only 200 feet long. It is equipped with two four-inch guns and an anti-aircraft gun. There has been no coast guard boat in the islands since the war.

Singapore and Manila hereafter will be ports of call for liners of the China Mail Steamship Company, according to an announcement by General Passenger Agent Harold N. Thomas. These extensions, it is said, are made necessary by progressive offerings in both passenger and freight business. The new schedule provides that the steamers "Nile" and "China" will make Singapore a regular stop after touching at Hongkong and that the "Nanking" will go to Manila from Hongkong. Singapore will be included in the itinerary of the "Nile" when she steams from San Francisco December 11.

Under the control of the Harriman, Dearborn and Livermore interests some of the American-Hawaiian freighters, which formerly plied between Hawaii, San Francisco and Salina Cruz, are already on the berth to come back to the Pacific on the Coast to Coast run. This announcement was made this week by Williams, Dimond & Co., which firm will be agents for the United American Lines, operators of the vessels. The vessels will be on the coast-to-coast run only. They will not make the triangular call at Hawaiian ports, Practically no sugar is sent direct to New York now from Hawaii since the up-river refinery has been enlarged and it all comes to San Francisco via the Matson service. So the new service will be purely and simply for general cargo between all Atlantic ports and San Pedro, San Francisco, Portland and Puget Sound.

Foreign trade through the port of San Francisco was the smallest during August of any month this year. Exports were nearly $7,000,000 less than in July and below any August since 1916. Imports of duty-free merchandise were $2,000,000 below July, and importations of taxable merchandise were only about half of the July figure. Exports during August totaled $13,878,683, while in July they were $20,284,731. In August, 1919, they were over $20,000,000. Imports of duty-free merchandise last month were $15,343,596 and dutiable merchandise $5,155,537. In August, 1919, they were $17,726,798 and $9,946,951, respectively. Dwight Grady of the foreign trade department of the Chamber of Commerce says the falling off in business is due to the money panic of Japan, low rate of exchange and business depression in China, heavy trade balance against the Philippines and the midyear business dullness in the East Indies.

Announcement of a new agency contract for operators and managers of Shipping Board vessels is expected shortly, according to word received here from Washington. Conferences between the representatives of the operators and managers and officials of the Shipping Board have been held for the past few weeks and the details of the new agreement have been worked out with only one or two exceptions. One of the changes which the Shipping Board is said to be insisting upon is the control of the sub-agents in foreign fields. Under the present agreement the sub-agents are selected by the operators. Many of these selections, it is said, have proved unsatisfactory to the Shipping Board because of the failure to aid in the establishment of a strong organization for the American merchant marine in foreign countries. Another point which is expected to be settled at the final conferences is the matter of fees for operators. The operators are in favor of the payment of commissions for handling the vessels instead of on a profit-sharing basis. It is understood that no strong opposition will be made to this request for a change in the operating agreement.

During the passage of the German steamship "Lucie Woerman" through the Panama Canal on September 6, on the way from Hamburg to Chile with some 688 seamen to man German sailing vessels which are to be returned to Europe under terms established by the Reparations Commission of the Allies, a number of the seamen slipped overboard and swam ashore with the intention of deserting. They began going overboard in the Gatun Lake section, approximately opposite Frijoles, and continued through Gaillard Cut. As soon as the matter was reported a police launch ran alongside the ship and prevented further desertions, while a call was sent out for the apprehension of all that came to land. Up to the time of the clearing of the "Lucie Woerman" from Balboa in the afternoon of September 7, 61 had been returned aboard, and 5, taken later, are now held by the police. The master of the vessel was unable to say how many had gone overboard or even to state exactly how many had shipped on the vessel, as he had found a number of stowaways and in the mutinous condition of the men had not been able to secure a check on their number.

To hasten the expected action of President Wilson to order the transfer of the coast guard to the Navy Department, the Pacific-American Steamship Association, representing twenty-four companies, has telegraphed an appeal urging the President not to defer action pending the passage of legislation for the transfer. At present there is not a single cruising cutter between Cape Flattery and the Mexican border, it was said. The telegram sent to the President follows: "The United States coast guard is unable to render adequate assistance to the American merchant marine, which has increased from its pre-war status of 2,000,000 to over 10,000,000 tons. The coast guard facilities for rendering assistance at sea, instead of being increased, have steadily decreased during this period. Of the thirty-six vessels listed as cruising cutters in the latest coast guard register only a very small percentage is able to render assistance at sea in heavy weather. Five of the vessels listed as cruising cutters are not yet built. On the other hand, the Navy is at all points ready and equipped with an ample number of the finest class of vessels for this purpose that can be designed and which can be put in service immediately at no expense to the Government. The season of winter gales is rapidly approaching and only the President can effect the transfer of the coast guard to the Navy Department in time to meet the present grave emergency. To defer this action pending the passage of any form of relief legislation would needlessly jeopardize human life and property. It is inconceivable if the present emergency is thoroughly understood that the Government would leave its enormous merchant marine, manned by over 100,000 officers and men, with practically no protection."

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:
ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C...ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
New York Branch.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. ROREN, Agent
433 Court Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....DAVID COOK, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
132 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 East Bay Street
Sub Agencies:
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....316 River Street

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION

D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1920.

TOWARD THE GOAL.

The trade-union movement based upon constructive ideas is the logical solution for industrial injustice, and as the trade-union movement becomes stronger and stronger, industrial and social injustice is being gradually, but surely, eliminated in America.

The consistent and insistent efforts of the American Federation of Labor during the past third of a century bears out the contention that "constant dripping will wear the hardest rock away." We very much doubt that the most sanguine unionist of thirty years ago ever dreamed that organized labor would occupy the high place in our social structure which it does to-day.

The plans and efforts of the men who founded the American Federation of Labor are bearing fruit, and truly "they builded better than they knew." Yet, despite the proven results of steady progress, we have with us to-day the "short route artist," the direct actionist, who closes his eyes to reason and wants to plunge blindly forward and take the rank and file of the workers with him. He has no idea of the path to be followed, of the pitfalls and precipices on the way—his goal lies straight ahead, and regardless of the insurmountability of the obstacles he must plunge through.

Of the wrecks which must occur in following this idea he takes no heed. So long as he is the central figure in the play the cost and sacrifices amount to naught.

At times he is successful in gathering a following, but in short time the road becomes too rough and he skids on a dangerous curve and the whole outfit finds itself in a muddled condition at the foot of a precipice, and it generally takes a long time to get itself straightened out again. To those who have followed a trail through the woods the simile is easily understood. The blaze marks on the trees lead one safely over the roughest country. The trail may be one-third longer than the distance by air route—here turning out to avoid a swamp, there making a slight detour around a rock or tree, but always leading to the point of destination.

Thus it is with the American Federation of Labor, the greatest trail-blazer of modern times. The followers of this creed, who have traveled the trail of progrss, can see plainly the labor necessary to build this trail. Here a stump or rock, which barred traffic, has been removed; there a mighty tree has been felled; or again a quick-sand has been bridged, and the path, though winding and devious at times, is safe to travel and ultimately leads to the haven of realization.

To the workers who think for themselves there can be but one safe trail of unionism, blazed and cleared by the American Federation of Labor. This trail, while admittedly slow at times, insures the worker against stubbed toes, bruised shins and battered brains. Moreover, it is the one tried and tested road toward industrial justice.

POINTED COMMENT.

Commenting on the recent Genoa conference, held under the auspices of the League of Nations, Tom Chambers, Treasurer of the National Sailors and Firemen's Union, says:

Decisions of conferences like the Genoa conference are open to a certain amount of criticism owing to their peculiar constitution. For any proposal to become a convention it is necessary that it should secure on a vote a majority of two-thirds of those present. Concerted opposition by the government representatives can always secure the defeat of any draft convention, as while the employers and workers have only one delegate from each country, each government has two delegates. It will thus be seen that not even the united efforts of employers and employed could carry a proposal in face of government opposition. What, then, are the chances of the workers carrying a proposal when, as often happens, they find both the employers and the government against them? However well-meaning were those who drafted the regulations governing international conferences under the auspices of the International Labor Office and League of Nations, it is to be feared that not much in the way of real progress can be expected from such conferences.

Our good friend Tom is not in the habit of writing undigested stuff. So when Tom expresses the fear that not much of real progress can be expected from conferences functioning under the League of Nations he has reached that conclusion only after mature deliberation.

Senator La Follette, in his masterful analysis of the labor sections in the peace treaty, made it clear that instead of furthering progress the very opposite results are likely to be obtained. And that is the principal reason why the International Seamen's Union of America has declined to join in organized labor's endorsement of the League of Nations.

Figures compiled by the Bureau of Navigation show that more than half of the seamen on American ships are citizens of this country. The total number of seamen in the American merchant marine is given as 334,140, of which 137,016 are native-born Americans and 31,777 naturalized citizens of the United States. Other nationalities represented are: British, 30,609; Spanish, 29,784; Swedish, 11,905; Norwegian, 11,585; Russian, 9442; Danish, 6827; Portuguese, 6031; Italian, 3463; Filipino, 1646; Chinese, 1625; German, 1568; Japanese, 1276; French, 948; Austrian, 664; other nations, 41,974.

Looks like the Shipping Board may yet have to sell most of its wooden ships for junk.

CANADIAN SHIPBUILDING

Shipbuilding is one of the oldest of Canada's industries. It flourished particularly in the days of wooden ships. In 1863, for instance, Canadian shipyards built and sold to the United States wooden ships valued at $9,000,000. Considering the purchasing power of the dollar in those days, that was quite an achievement for a country having less than three and a half million inhabitants.

The industry declined when iron and steel were substituted for wood in the construction of ships. The decline persisted right up to the outbreak of the world war. Since then there has been a remarkable revival of the industry, until now Canada ranks as the third shipbuilding nation of the world in the number of ships turned out, and fourth in point of tonnage.

Figures for 1918-19 show that $60,000,000 was invested in the industry. The number of plants was 204, of which 90 were shipbuilding and 114 boatbuilding. Nineteen plants were turning out steel vessels of a tonnage ranging all the way up to 10,000 deadweight tons. Of the total number of plants 72 were located in Nova Scotia, 69 in Ontario, 26 in British Columbia, 23 in Quebec, 6 in New Brunswick, 4 in Manitoba, 2 in Prince Edward Island, and 2 in Alberta. The number of men employed was 22,486, and their wages amounted to $27,148,628.

In the fiscal year 1918-19 Canada built 148 ships aggregating 225,264 tons. It was this record which, as already noted, placed her third among the nations in the number of ships turned out, and fourth in point of tonnage.

Since 1914 Canadian shipyards have built for other countries vessels valued at $50,000,000. Most of this output was for Great Britain and France. Other buyers were Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Italy and Russia. In addition, home demands have been met. These include 150,000 tons of shipping for the Dominion Government, with 200,000 tons now under way as part of the Government program.

Nearly all the engines for the Canadian merchant marine have been made in Canada. Steel ship plates are also being extensively manufactured at home, the Dominion Government figuring as the chief customer in that line. The leading plate mill is located at Sydney, N. S.

THE PANAMA CANAL

The average citizen is by this time more or less familiar with the fact that the operation of the Panama Canal has from the very beginning been carried on at a financial loss to its builder and business manager, the United States Government. While the annual deficits shown have been trifling compared with the great value of the canal as a promoter of world commerce, they have made handy targets for shafts of criticism thrown by opponents of Government operation of public utilities.

But, as the old saw has it, it's a long lane that has no turning. The Panama Canal has at last given evidence of soon becoming a financially paying proposition. According to the Washington Post, the canal, during the last fiscal year, earned a surplus over expenses of more than $2,000,000. The number of merchant vessels passing through the "big ditch" in the course of the year was nearly 2500, and the income totaled more than $8,000,000. In addition, numerous naval units passed from ocean to ocean, their handling considerably increasing the general cost of operation.

These figures constitute new records for the great waterway. The number of vessels passing through the canal during the year was the largest since its opening. The income was larger in its gross total than in any previous year, and the net earnings were, of course, something entirely new. To be sure, the accumulated deficit in operating costs still amounts to some $4,000,000. But, with increases in revenue based on last year's earnings, in two or three years at most the Panama Canal will begin to pay interest on the original cost of its construction.

A FRATERNAL ARRANGEMENT

While the selfish intriguing of politicians and near statesmen in high places is keeping the world from getting back to its pre-war moorings, the Russian and Italian workers are setting the workers of other nations an example of practical Christianity which, if generally followed, would soon lead to permanent "peace on earth, good will toward men."

According to press dispatches, the Russian Soviet government and the Italian Institute of Co-operators have entered into an agreement to trade with each other, supplying such necessities as are most urgently needed at the moment. It is significant as showing the straits to which Russia has been reduced by the Allied blockade, that the first shipment from the Italian co-operators will be four steamers loaded with medicaments. Even more significant is the fact that the steamers will be supplied by the Seamen's Union of Italy, and that they are to be used exclusively for delivery of supplies to Russia. The plan is to establish a regular fortnightly steamship service between Odessa and Naples. And, wonderful to relate in this materialistic age, the element of financial gain will be strictly excluded from the undertaking.

In addition to the medicaments, the Italian co-operators will deliver surgical instruments, telegraph and telephone materials, agricultural implements, locomotives, tools of various kinds, etc. The Russians on their side, so it is reported, have already dispatched to Italy 6,000,000 poods of breadstuffs, with more to follow. As a Russian pood is equal to 36 English pounds avoirdupois, it is tolerably certain that the Russians are not nearly so hard up for food as we have been led to believe by the newspapers.

The Italian Institute of Co-operators also proposes to open branches in Odessa, Moscow and Reval. As the need for them arises other branches will be established. The greatest enthusiasm over the project is said to prevail among the workers of both nations.

As we see in the rainbow the harbinger of fine weather, so labor may see the glories of its future through its tears.

LABOR CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA

Report of British Labor Delegation Sent to Investigate Conditions in Soviet Russia.

The British Labor Delegation to Russia was sent out by the Labor Party and the Trades Union Congress, acting on a resolution passed by a special Trades Union Congress on December 10, 1919. This resolution demanded: "The right to an independent and impartial inquiry into the industrial, political, and economic conditions in Russia."

The delegation consisted of nine persons—seven men and two women—and they were accompanied by two delegates (men) from the British Independent Labor Party. Correspondents of newspapers were also with the party, but did not accompany them in all of their investigations.

The report made by this delegation is dated July, 1920. It is too lengthy for publication in full. But the part dealing with "Labor" as well as the summary under the caption "Conclusion" is printed herewith:

Labor.

All matters directly affecting labor are the concern of the Commissariat of Labor, which is governed by a Commissar and a board of two others, all of whom are nominated by the Central Executive Committee of the Trade Unions and appointed by the Council of People's Commissars.* There are about 500 local departments in different districts and governments. The departments of the Commissariat are: (1) Registration and Distribution of Labor; (2) Fixing of Rates of Wages; (3) Protection of Labor; (4) Statistics; (5) Museum of Labor; with subsidiary departments dealing with finance, organization, and internal arrangement of the Commissariat.

Labor exchanges, of which there are 420 with 260 branches, are now part of the labor department of the state, and they distribute labor for all purposes. Wages and hours of labor are fixed in accordance with the economic conditions of the country, and in practice this is done by the Central Executive Committee of the Trade Unions. During the war it has been necessary to allow the employment of children and young persons; but it is hoped to withdraw all persons up to 16 years of age from industry at an early date. Overtime is encouraged in factories and workshops, and double employment is undertaken. Children of 16 are not allowed to work more than six hours a day. All hours over eight are paid as overtime, and the workshop votes on the number of hours to be worked overtime. Women work the same hours as men, but for eight weeks before and eight weeks after confinement they are excused from work and receive full pay.

An average wage for a normal month's work varies from 1200 to 4500 rubles according to skill. Those out of work receive the total unskilled wages, whether they are skilled or unskilled, plus dinners and ration card entitling them to purchase goods at fixed prices. Those unemployed must accept suitable work if offered, under penalty of forfeiting their pay. Specialists and technicians receive very much higher rates of pay. At the present time there can be very little unemployment in Russia, although exact figures are lacking. The difficulty is to prevent men leaving the factories and workshops and going to the country. Membership of trade unions is compulsory, and embraces all persons without exception engaged in an industry or institution. A trade union in a factory includes technical staff, clerks, engineers, skilled and unskilled workers. A trade union in a hospital includes orderlies, charwomen, stokers, dispensers, nurses, clerks, and doctors. Labor is also compulsory for all able-bodied men and women of eighteen years and over up to fifty.

The difficulties of the situation were seen by the delegation in the ragged and half-starved condition of the workers at Sormova and Putilov works. They were drawn forcible attention to by a worker from the Kolomna works, who stated that desertions from the works were frequent, and that deserters were arrested by soldiers and brought from the villages. The workers at Kolomna were stated to receive about 4000 rubles a month or 48,000 a year, while the living of an ordinary peasant reckoned at ordinary market prices was valued at three and a half million rubles a year. Also, the peasants are willing to employ men at much higher money wages than they can get in the factories and workshops, plus a plentiful supply of food, which the town worker does not get.

M. Karl Radek, secretary of the Third International, says to the workers: "No surprise is entertained at your having fled to the villages to escape starvation, but the entire country is domed to ruin and famine unless you return to town."

The direction in which interesting developments of trade union activity may occur is seen in the account of the visit paid to Chatura Electricity Works, where peat is used as a source of power. Here the workers, who are peasants, and who work only two and a half

* Interview with M. Schmidt, Commissar for Labor.

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 4, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Andrew Furuseth presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium, with large number of members ashore. The Quarterly Finance Committee reported found Union's accounts correct for the past three months.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 27, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.
R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Sept. 27, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 27, 1920.
Shipping dull.
P. B. GILL, Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Sept. 27, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Sept. 27, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 27, 1920.
Shipping fair; members scarce.
HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Sept. 20, 1920.
Shipping and prospects poor.
JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 30, 1920.

The regular weekly meeting was called to order at 7 p. m. Eugene Burke in the chair. Secretary reported shipping improving. It was decided to establish an agency in Portland, Ore. The report of the Quarterly Finance Committee finding books, stub bills, cash on hand and in bank correct was read and adopted. Shipping improving.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 23, 1920.
Shipping medium; second cooks scarce.
LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 23, 1920.
Shipping medium; no quorum; shipping good; few members ashore.
JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

James J. Harvey, No. 3057, a native of Maine, age 67. Died at sea on board the S. S. "Osaqumsick," September 17, 1920.

Putting into Noumea September 30, the barkentine "Ecola" is reported leaking, in a cablegram received by the marine department of the Chamber of Commerce. The "Ecola" was bound for Sydney from Astoria, and until she was disabled had made excellent time from the Pacific port, having sailed across in fifty-three days to the New Caledonia port. The "Ecola" was formerly a Shipping Board steamer, but was converted into a windjammer.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

THE MAN JACK.

In a recent issue of The Independent, N. Y., Admiral W. S. Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, presents an interesting discussion of the present condition and needs of the American Merchant Marine in active competition for the world's carrying trade, and hopes and prospects for its future and further development and permanent success under existing commercial and legal exactions and international trade rivalries.

We all admire the energetic and dignified old Admiral, as all loyal American seamen should, but since he, admittedly, regards all sea service from the viewpoint and bias of an old and conservative naval officer, we cannot always accept his personal conceptions of maritime excellence as conclusive or binding upon ourselves.

In the course of his article Admiral Benson says: "One of our basic needs is more of the right kind of youths trained for the sea who will enter our service at the bottom rung with the hope, ambition and power ultimately to own the ship." Right here is a good place to knock off reading and begin to proceed.

At this particular point in his discourse our admirable defender and expounder of modern maritime methods seems to have become more enthused by patriotic zeal than inspired by practical sense. He appears to be thinking backwards, forgetting that visions of past successes in the American Merchant Marine have no application whatsoever to the practical theories of today. All ideas of individual success, and preeminence in the Merchant Marine have been long since dispelled by corporate ownership and operation under the new regime.

In the good old days, when hearts of oak so loved an oaken keel, when the spice traders of Newburyport, the South Sea traders of Boston, when the venders of cheap calico and Salem witchcraft corrupted the natives of Old Calabar and gave them rum for ivory, and glass beads for gold nuggets, when the New Bedford whalers could be trailed by the grease in their wake, and located by the stench from their try kettles, oh, yes, sir Admiral, in those palmy and historic days, an American youth of the right stamp, more especially if he belonged to the right family and professed the family creed, might possibly rise to the rank and estate of master, owner and merchant in his own ship, and conduct his own enterprises and over-sea ventures on an individual basis.

But those were the days of sparsely-settled country, when the vast interior of the United States was, practically speaking, a terra incognita, when our amazing internal resources were not even dreamt of, and all eyes along our extensive coast lines were turned seaward instead of landward.

In those days, too, many masters were monsters, many merchants were madmen, and the church spires of New England were tarnished with gold.

All seamen were slaves sold in the nearest places of arrogant commercialism; shipping articles were pretense, and the marine hell-ship was the "real" article, the bloody belaying pin his prime minister, and the power to imprison was secretary of state.

Yes, it must be admitted that in those historic times the fellow who proceeded to sea on the "me first" motto, with the physical force to demonstrate his opinions to all before him, and the influence, moral or immoral, to back them up behind him, had a chance to succeed and some day own his ship—and her crew as well.

But the God-fearing sailor of obscure degree, who entered the service knowing nothing but his duty and his prayers, always found that the residue and remainder of his earnings, laboriously counted into his calloused palm at the end of a two or three years' voyage, would not suffice to buy a kedge anchor.

The youth who enters the merchant marine today has no more hope or expectation of ultimately owning his ship than a brakeman has of owning the train on which he rides.

The youth or young man entering the sea service to-day is not obsessed by any such fallacious notions of personal ownership. If he is at all sincere in his efforts to succeed in his chosen profession, his first ambition will be to reach the bridge by the shortest possible route, and there, if he succeeds in securing a hand-hold, to work himself up to the top of his profession by sheer merit, industry, loyalty and force of character.

We are living in the era of great enterprises and miraculous discoveries. The days of corporate ownership, co-operative management and collective bargaining are here, as far as the American merchant marine is concerned.

The only seamen now capable of owning or operating ships independently and outright are the organized seamen acting collectively as a corporation. They alone of all national organizations, financial or corporate, have the power to do this; for they alone possess the skill, the numbers, the knowledge, the training and the power in every department of sea service contained within themselves, and within their own ranks to make a ship go, to keep her continuously at sea and bring her safely to port without employing outside help.

But a sailor in the merchant marine, hoping to own his own ship, is like a baby crying for the moon, with the same result—the baby is still here and the moon forever there.

In his next paragraph Admiral Benson calls attention to the records of the Sea Placement Bureau, to which he alludes as "most encouraging," as showing that six out of every ten men entering the service in Shipping Board ships during the last six months have been "American citizens."

"And this percentage," he avers, "is growing higher every week."

"In 1917," continues the Admiral, "only 10 per cent. of the men below the grade of officers placed on our ships by our New York office, were Americans. During the last six months the average has been 55.7 per cent." An encouraging showing indeed.

Very good so far, but now let us quote one more sentence from Admiral Benson's statement just to get the drift of his argument.

"It was necessary during the war," he continues, "to give wide employment in the merchant marine to the nationals of the countries allied with the United States. Most valuable service was rendered by these men and theirs was a great contribution toward the winning of the war. But now the time has come to replace these men with Americans."

Yes, Sir Admiral! And for fifty years prior to the outbreak of the European conflict foreign seamen of all nationalities had been serving continuously in both the merchant marine and navy of the United States, and they, all of them, at all times and under all circumstances and conditions, rendered loyal and unselfish service to the country under the American flag.

When the conditions in the American merchant marine had become so vile and unbearably cruel and degrading that all Americans fled from it, and American parents would rather see their sons go to prison than to sea, the trained seamen of foreign nations still continued to sail in American ships, in spite of evil and tyrannical treatment, through good report and bad, and continued:

> To carry aloft the Stars and Stripes,
> Against old England's boast,
> Paul Jones, the terror of the sea,
> Will fly them on her coast.

We think it comes with an ill grace; we regard it as an act of basest ingratitude when a dignified and influential Admiral, representing both the naval and maritime opinions of the mightiest and most prosperous power on earth, deliberately proposes to discard and disregard the rights and interests of a body of seamen who, through peace and war, have upheld the power and dignity, and defended the safety and supremacy of the United States of America for more than half a century at the surrender of their liberties, their personal welfare, their happiness and their lives, simply because they did not happen to be born within the United States.

What honest argument can be advanced in favor of such a course?

These seamen having proven their faith in our country, and their loyalty and devotion to our flag in times of stress, through storm and wrack, through breach and battle, are they not fully and honorably entitled to all the rights of citizenship?

Remove the foreign trained seamen of American citizenship from the merchant marine to-day and you withdraw the backbone and being of the service.

Neither the training ships nor the recruiting camps have yet produced one real American seaman of native birth, and they never will. Neither will the steamships. Neither will the United States Navy. All these services combined cannot, under present conditions, produce one genuine Able Seaman.

The poorest class of seamen being recruited to the merchant marine to-day are those who have previously received naval training. It was ever thus. It was so when the navy was under canvas; it was so in the days of the old steam frigates, when steam power was merely auxiliary to sail. It is still more so now when every naval operation, from the engine compartments to the galley ranges, from the gun turrets to the ash ejectors, are purely mechanical or mechanically controlled.

Men brought up by machinery never learn to work by hand, and men trained to perform in battalions can never be tied to individual tasks.

It makes a world of difference to the man-o'-warsman whether there are a thousand men on deck working in detachments or relays, or whether there are ten men in the forecastle all required to work individually at any task on the ship. The amount of work, the hard work and the wide variety of duties appall him; he feels ill at ease, away from home, out of his sphere.

In sailing ship days it was precisely the same. A man-o'-war carried enough men to dress ship and man all her yards standing shoulder to shoulder, whereas a merchant ship of the same size or larger did not carry crew enough to man one starboard yard-arm, with immensely more work to do.

If all the young men in the merchant marine were to be closely questioned, as we have often questioned some, it would be learned from their replies, as is constantly shown by their actions and conduct on board, that a great many of them have no sincere purpose to serve in entering the merchant marine.

Some admit that they are only cruising around to see the world; others confess that they are there to escape hard work ashore and have a good time; some are going abroad just to escape prohibition and get somewhere where the land is "wet"; many are there to collect high wages for work they don't know how to do, and many are there just as a passing necessity to keep off the beach and out of jail. Upon such evasive and dishonest pretexts no competent merchant marine personnel can ever be built up.

In justice to the patriotism of the large number of honest, stalwart young men constantly seeking in good faith to qualify for admission and enrollment in the merchant marine, there should be held on board every training ship, and in every camp or shore station where apprentices are being prepared to enter the merchant marine, periodical elimination contests, both oral and practical, in which all competitors should be required to show, or demonstrate both sincerity and ability in their desire to enter the merchant marine.

The real school, the true and only school of actual and practical training in the arts and operations of effective seamanship, is the square-rigged sailing ship engaged in national service and international traffic. There, and there only, can seamen acquire in actual service and intensive training the practical knowledge and develop the inward sea-sense that will enable them to grapple with all emergencies, overcome all obstacles and perform seeming impossibilities in contending with the elements for the safety of lives and valuable property committed to their charge.

And until the Government of the United States becomes sufficiently enlightened to create and put into commercial operation for the practical education and training, and case hardening of our bridge and subordinate officers as well, we will never have a really efficient personnel, nor achieve the maximum of safety and loyalty in our new merchant marine.

Admiral Benson tells us that he has served altogether nearly 45 years in the U. S. Navy. We have served just about the same length of time in the merchant marine, having entered the service at Boston on February 28, 1876. In that time we have served in everything, from a jolly-boat to a full-rigged ship, from a Chinese junk to an ocean liner, and from a menhaden fisherman to a New Bedford whaler. We speak therefore from experience, if not with authority.

We cannot concur in the opinion that a naval man, whatever his rank, is the one best qualified to discuss the requirements of the merchant marine.

We regard it as a most unfortunate circumstance that Admiral Benson should have taken it in hand to write the article to which we have alluded above without first consulting some of his less exalted but more practical-minded admirers among the old shell-backs still kicking about in the merchant marine.

There are many occasions, we believe, when the professional and the practical minds should be closely associated to attain the best results, and this was one of those important times.

And we regard it as little short of a public calamity that the Admiral's article and opinions should have been published in The Independent, because we know of no other periodical wherein its dissemination could possibly accomplish so much harm.

Admiral Benson's article is, unintentionally, but nevertheless gravely, misleading, and owing to his rank, his public standing and popularity, as well as his authoritative position in maritime affairs, his statements will be accepted like gospel by a public that loves to be cajoled, and by thousands of young recruits in the merchant marine who just fatten on flattery laid on thick.

And The Independent, a high grade and highly reputable educational magazine, will carry and disseminate among hundreds of thousands of eager and confiding pupils studying at high schools throughout the United States the authoritative information that half-trained or untrained youths are good enough for the new merchant marine; that merchant marine needs can be judged by naval experience; that genuine seafaring men of the seven seas who have served our country nobly and fearlessly, in peace and in war, for fifty or sixty years during untalked-of periods when our own nationals refused to serve, are soon to be dropped from the rolls, because by the laws of Nature they did not happen to be born in the United States.

This is certainly an unfortunate combination of events; but if it must be done, then let us make a good wholesale job of it, that we may not be charged by spectator nations with unfair discrimination.

Let us drop Christopher Columbus, Amerigo Vespucci, Thaddeus Kosciusko, the Marquis de Lafayette, Count Rochambeau, John Paul Jones, General Franz Siegel, John Erickson, and all the rest of the brilliant galaxy of American patriots of foreign birth from the rolls of American history, from the scrolls of American honor, and from the sacred memories of the past that cluster round the immortal dead.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

Don't think because the war in Europe is over that the fight for human rights is over; the chances are that that fight will never be over as long as you and I are on this little earth.

If Abraham Lincoln were alive to-day he would probably say: "Thank God, we have a labor movement that can sustain a strike until it accomplishes something."

SEAMEN'S COMPENSATION LAWS

(Continued from page 2)

Commission having power to apply either the State or Federal compensation law as the facts may appear, this confusion is avoided. There is no possibility of the claim being outlawed or claimant told to commence his suit over again in a different court, and the worst that can happen, if the decision of the board or commission be reversed, is that the case will be sent back to the same body to apply the other law upon the testimony already taken.

Interim Modes of Relief.

When the decision was announced in the Knickerbocker Ice Company case, various California stevedoring concerns immediately took up with our Commission, and with their insurance carriers, the matter of continuing under the State workmen's compensation act, the Supreme Court of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding. They took the position that experience for some years under the State compensation act showed that such act was more beneficial to the employer than liability under the maritime law, and they desired some way by which they could continue to receive immunity from suits in admiralty. The employes also intimated that they would be very much dissatisfied unless their employers continued to allow them workmen's compensation protection, and further intimated that labor disturbances might arise unless compensation protection be given them. It was, therefore, put squarely up to certain insurance companies whether they would continue to receive the premiums offered by the employers as theretofore and to pay losses under the compensation act as losses should occur.

Some of the steamship owners also took this view, especially after the Jones act had been called to their attention, which placed them under the same obligation as that owed by railroads to their employes in interstate commerce.

As a result of this pressure, a tentative agreement has been worked out to last until the passage of the proposed Federal act, whereby insurance carriers will continue to receive premiums upon their compensation policies as heretofore, and will pay losses upon the scale of benefits provided by the compensation act. In the event of disagreement as to the application of the compensation act, the California Industrial Accident Commission is to be made the arbitrator of the claim. In return for this arrangement the injured man is to be requested to, and doubtless will, in most cases, sign a release of all rights in admiralty in return for the written agreement of the insurance company to pay him such sums for his injury as he would be entitled to receive under the compensation act, if applicable. At the present time, this arrangement is working nicely and everybody seems satisfied.

In addition, a few employers now sign contracts with their men at the time the men enter their employment, in advance of any injury, agreeing that if the man shall be injured while at work he shall be paid for such injuries the sum of money to which he would be entitled to receive under the workmen's compensation act, if applicable, the men for their part agreeing to accept such payments in lieu of all right of action under the admiralty law. The validity of the latter agreement, entered into in advance of any accident, is open to some doubt as a matter of law. The making of such agreement after the accident, however, appears unobjectionable. With these two methods a modus vivendi has been reached whereby employers and employes are both satisfied and the State workmen's compensation act is practically in effect by agreement to the satisfaction of all parties. Of course, this is largely a gentlemen's agreement, and some departure may be expected from it as time goes by, but probably not to a sufficient extent to warrant repudiation of this understanding between employers and employes.

This, of course, is only a temporary arrangement, and we hope an adequate Federal act will soon be enacted which will finally solve all of the present difficulties.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

(By Laurence Todd)

Election of Harding as President is to be the signal for a general assault upon the American Federation of Labor by lawmakers, courts, police, constabulary and the press throughout the country, according to predictions confidently made here by men in touch with the big financial and commercial interests.

Wages, they say, are too high.

Prices are coming down—perhaps—and wages must come down if business is to remain profitable under the new regime.

A fragment of evidence of anti-union activity drifts down here from Denver, in the following circular letter:

Office of
The Employers Association of Denver
566 Gas & Electric Bldg.,
Denver, Colo., Sept. 10th, 1920.

To Members:

Realizing the importance of protecting our interests, we would respectfully suggest that you call up the United Americans, room 323 Tabor Opera House Blk., phone Main 2154, if you desire to get the names of candidates who can be safely trusted to combat the efforts of the unions in the next Legislature to repeal the anti-boycott and anti-picketing bill.

This is simply for your information and the suggestion is made to save us from the charge of playing the game of politics. We realize you are thoroughly interested in seeing that we do not lose any of the ground we have gained for the "Open Shop."

The United Americans is a reputable organization which spends much time and money in running down facts that we are all interested in.

Yours very truly,
The Employers Association,
By Herbert George,
President.

In connection with the United Americans, which was formed ostensibly as an anti-Bolshevik league and included many union men, it is worth noting that not merely "Moocher" George of Denver supports it, but so did—quite recently—our old friend Frederick J. Koster, who has tried to make San Francisco and New York believe that he knew how to establish the non-union shop by the slush-fund route. To a recent statement in this correspondence on Koster, one of the patricians of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has written a denial, saying that—"He is devoting his time, when absent from this city, in continuation of the work that he hoped would find fruition in the United Americans, in relation to which we had our several meetings a few months ago. He is continuing this work with the group of men with whom he was associated in New York, and also as chairman of the American Ideals Committee of the United States Chamber (of Commerce). To my knowledge Mr. Koster has never engaged in any anti-union fight here or elsewhere as indicated in this article, but has stood consistently for the principle of the right to 'employ union or non-union workers in whole or in part as the parties involved may elect.'"

That ought to hold us. Likewise it ought to brand the United Americans and the American Ideals Committee of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Curiously enough, the bitterness of the organized employers and their political puppets is daily increasing, and centering on the A. F. of L., when the executives of the latter body are in the very act of isolating the labor movement of America from that of the rest of the world on the ground that European and South American labor is too radical.

The October issue of the American Federationist announces, in an article entitled "The European Brainstorm," the refusal of the executive council of the A. F. of L. to join the new International Federation of Trade Unions—the so-called Amsterdam International—and declares the unalterable opposition of the A. F. of L. to a Socialist labor movement. The article, which is lengthy and vigorous in its use of adjectives, is signed by President Gompers and Vice-President Woll.

It sets forth that the Montreal convention adopted the report of the council disapproving the statement issued by the Amsterdam International,—in which the phrase occurred, "Down With the Reaction! Up With Socialism!"—and calling for a May Day demonstration which was in effect a one-day strike for Socialism.

"Since the Montreal convention," says the article, "matters have taken a turn for the worse. The Amsterdam international has issued throughout the world and sent to us for circulation in this country a declaration calling for international revolutionary measures by Labor in aid of the Soviets in their war with Poland.

"The chairman of the British Labor Party (Adamson), claiming to speak for the British trade union labor movement, has sent a cablegram along similar lines, apparently calling for similar action. The contents of these messages are thoroughly revolutionary and obviously animated by a desire to use the most extreme measures for strengthening the hold of Soviet power in Russia and enabling it to extend its influence and to dominate neighboring countries."

Mr. Gompers and Mr. Woll explain that they believe this "wild extremism" is only a temporary thing, and that British and Continental European labor will get over it after a while. They charge "critical conditions now prevailing in Europe," and the use of gold by the Soviet government, with causing this "brainstorm." Soviet money, they say, is "wrung from its bleeding and starving slaves in Russia."

The manifesto sent to the labor movements of all nations by the Amsterdam International on Sept. 8th is an appeal for cooperative effort by all labor organizations to force the stoppage of wars and of the making and moving of war materials

"The organized workers of the world," it says in part, "must from now onwards be prepared to act in accordance with the decisions arrived at by the international conferences at Berne and Amsterdam, and to utilize every available resource in the struggle against all wars. * * *

"Not a train carrying munitions must be worked; not a ship laden with war materials must be allowed to leave harbor; not a single soldier must be transported. * * * The International Federation of Trade Unions declares that the proletariat of all countries can and must act in this manner to protect the workers' efforts in the direction of liberty and social progress; and firm in the conviction that war can only cease by the will of the workers, the International calls upon all national trade union centers to prepare, if necessary, for mass action by means of a general strike.

"The production of war materials must cease in all countries, and in order that disarmament may become an accomplished fact, the International demands that action be taken in all countries to put an end to the manufacture of arms. * * *

"Today our organization must of its own accord, within its own ranks, find the power to preserve the world from terror and annihilation."

To this the heads of the A. F. of L. respond that the Amsterdam manifesto and the similar cablegram sent out by the British Labor Party, at a time when they wanted to help Soviet Russia defeat Poland. They say that these same labor forces condemn the Allied starvation blockade against Soviet Russia, and then themselves "inflicted suffering on the entire population of Hungary" by a blockade. They deny that the world is threatened by terror and anarchy "unless it be from the Soviets." Poland, they declare, "has now perhaps the most democratic government of Europe."

In short, the article takes direct issue, as to facts of current political and working-class history, with the position of the labor movements of Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Scandinavia, Holland, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia and Germany and Austria. It ends up with this declaration:

"It is a source of regret that conditions have been so shaped by those who are now controlling the policies and course of the new International Federation of Trade Unions, that the American Federation of Labor feels constrained to refrain from joining a movement where the independence and autonomy of each national trade union center is not only denied but wherein it is subjected to absolute dominion for purposes wholly foreign to the objects for which the International Federation of Labor should be formed."

In view of the tremendous peaceful revolution going forward in Italy, and the gigantic industrial and political strength which European labor is developing to meet the organized international reaction that is cloaked by the Allied conferences, the effect of the refusal of the American movement to go along any further will be to make European labor still more radical. For it was the big American delegation, voting always against every radical proposal, that encouraged the anti-radical element to keep up its protests against the Left Socialists in the International's sessions. With America out, European labor hastens toward complete affiliation with Moscow.

If gratitude for non-radicalism were to be found in the hearts of American employers, they would cease their preparations for the promised "big offensive" of this winter. But they are merely stupid and vindictive because they are compelled to deal with union representatives. They are like the political gangs that controlled the presidential nominations and platform committees this year. They will make no compromise with the people.

From the top rail of the fence, that looks like a most dangerous sort of procedure. After all the rank and file can stand only about so much of the iron heel. Then they go into committee of the whole, and devise ways and means of registering their opinions—industrial, political, diplomatic and labor-diplomatic.

LABOR CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA

(Continued from Page 7)

15,000 to 20,000 rubles a month plus a substantial payment in kind of very good rations. One hundred and five people here had handled 70,000,000 poods of peat, while at another works working on the normal system and at normal rates of pay, 283 people had only handled 6,000,000 poods. Another interesting experiment is at Kazan, and is being carried out by members of the building trade union who had been given 2500 acres of land and had undertaken to develop a community; they were working directly under the Supreme Council of National Economy. Eleven hundred and fifty people are employed, and the community has its own communal kitchen, its own schools and library, and creches for the young children. The productive department of the colony are a carpenter's shop, a tin-plate shop, an engine-shop, a flour mill, and a railway with an engine of its own. This community is undoubtedly far more favorably situated than the ordinary workers of Moscow or Petrograd, and their life cannot be compared with the stress and strain of the normal lot. Amongst other advantages, it enjoys that of being in the country and being able to grow its own food. The rations of the community were distinctly good. Work along these community lines appears to be in the line of natural development of the Russian workers' psychology, which, in work, always expressed itself before the revolution in the artel. (A primitive method of co-operation.) Another interesting experiment is that of the Russian-American tool shop, created in Moscow by seventy men deported from the United States, a large number of whom, of course, spoke English, and who had had experience of American organization of industry. The men were working twelve hours a day and had a premium system by which it was possible for a worker to earn 100 to 200 per cent. more than the rate. A special laundry and cook-house was attached to the shop, and all the workers, men and women, got not only dinner but supper.

The communist view of the trade unions is expressed in the report of the interview with M. Schmidt already give, and in "The Trade Unions in Soviet Russia," by A. Losovsky (Moscow, April, 1920). The present defects of organization are recognized, particularly the impossibility of carrying out completely the proposed "system of the state regulation of wages," but it has one very great virtue, "it is the child and creature of the Revolution" (p. 46). It is stated that "there is not a branch of state activity (military, food, sanitary, economic, technical, cultural, etc.) in which the Russian trade unions are not engaged." "Revolutionary activity, whole-hearted loyalty to the cause of the Revolution, the clear and firm position in the struggle with the bourgeoisie, the stern and ruthless hostility to the very idea of the co-operation of classes, the fearless destruction of old relations and fetishes, are things which the Russian trade union may teach the workers of other countries." The critics of the present form of trade union point out the need for "independent class organization" in opposition to the tendency of government policy being framed to suit the preponderant mass of the peasants. Also, that the need of Russia for foreign capital, and "the adaptation of Russian private capital" with the "extreme growth of private small and home industry" creates now "numbers of hired workers standing in need of defense of their interests by the trade unions." Another reason for the maintenance of independent unions is to resist "compulsory" measures and "bureaucratization" by the Soviet authorities, and they must be able "to defend before the Government the interests of the proletariat, independently of the views of the Government itself." The critics look to improvement in wages, reform of the loan system, freedom of election of boards of administration and works committees, and political reforms to secure greater freedom generally.

Conclusion.

Russia is a vast country, potentially rich, but economically in a backward state. Her people consisted, before the Revolution, of peasant owners (the vast majority) a town proletariat, a small bourgeoisie, and a still smaller class of large capitalists, sharply distinguished from the rest of the population. Russian party strife has been marked by its extreme violence. The present leaders are men who have suffered every kind of oppression, and have been accustomed months a year, are paid much higher wages than usual, the money wage amounting to from for years to take their lives in their hands.

With such conditions and such a history, Russia has been plunged into no less than six years of continuous and still continuing warfare. She has been blockaded and her communications with the outside world cut off. She has been invaded by foreign troops on all sides. More important still, the most desperate efforts have been made to foster conspiracy and civil war on her territory.

The economic collapse, and the measures for the restriction of liberty, are due at least as much to these causes, and the general exhaustion, suspicion, and despair which they would have produced in any case, as to the tumults and mutual hatreds to which the Revolution itself has given rise.

Whether, under such conditions, Russia could be governed in a different way—whether, in particular, the ordinary processes of democracy could be expected to work—is a question on which we do not feel ourselves competent to pronounce. All we know is that no practical alternative, except a virtual return to autocracy, has been suggested to us; that a "strong" government is the only type of government which Russia has yet known; that the opponents of the Soviet Government when they were in power in 1917 exercised repression against the Communists.

Such are the conditions and peculiarities, the heated and revolutionary atmosphere, which must be taken into account in any criticism of the Russian Revolution, and still more in any attempt to apply its lessons to other countries.

The Russian Revolution has not had a fair chance. We cannot say whether, in normal conditions, this particular Socialist experiment would have been a success or a failure. The conditions have been such as would have rendered the task of social transformation extraordinary difficult, whoever had attempted it and whatever had been the means adopted. We cannot forget that the responsibility for these conditions resulting from foreign interference rests not upon the revolutionaries of Russia, but upon the capitalist governments of other countries, including our own.

BEN TURNER, the Labor Party, Chairman of Delegation.
MARGARET BONDFIELD, A. A. PURCELL, H. SKINNER, Trades Union Congress.
ETHEL SNOWDEN, TOM SHAW, ROBERT WILLIAMS, the Labor Party.
CHARLES RODEN BUXTON, L. HADEN GUEST, Joint Secretaries.

The report has been submitted to and also indorsed by Mr. R. C. Wallhead and Mr. Clifford Allen, who formed an independent delegation to Russia on behalf of the Independent Labor Party.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

ployed children under certain ages. In setting this law aside the Supreme Court held that the act was not a regulation of commerce, but an attempt to regulate conditions of manufacture and that Congress has not jurisdiction in matters reserved to the States.

Judge Cochran accepted this decision, rather than that of Judge Killets and denied the injunction plea on the ground that while the machinists might interfere with production, they were not interfering with interstate commerce, as understood by the United States Supreme Court.

Glaring Inefficiency

Publicists who talk about strike losses when a group of workers demand higher living standards are ignoring the charge of Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of Pennsylvania, that Pennsylvania's forests are denuded and that 5,000,000 acres of idle land costs the people $100,000,000 a year.

In freight charges alone this lack of efficiency is costing Pennsylvania $25,000,000 a year for lumber brought into the State.

"Tree cutting goes on without regrowth of trees," says the forester. "This means forest devastation. It means neglect of our true economic interests that borders on the criminal. For this condition Pennsylvania is to blame—Pennsylvania in its capacity as a commonwealth of intelligent people."

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175
BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588
CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842
MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street
TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666
SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue
CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer
Branches:
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W
SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823
CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543
CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary
Branches:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street
Branches:
VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
Agencies:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG .....Alaska
UNGA .....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

At a municipal election in Fresno, Cal., firemen won the two-platoon system and policemen the eight-hour day by a vote of six to one.

For the first time in its history, Steam Engineers' Union No. 6 has signed contracts with all grain elevators in Kansas City, Mo.

A wholesale co-operative store will be started by the organized coal miners of Kansas and local co-operative societies.

Painters in Newark, N. J., are negotiating a new wage rate of $9 a day. The present rate is $8. New York City pays $10 and the local painters insist that living conditions here justify the increase.

Investigators of the books of the Kansas State Industrial Court, which enforces the Kansas "can't-strike" law, deny that excessive telegraph and telephone charges were caused by the attempt to get freight cars for farmers to move their wheat. One of the main reasons was securing Allen boosters as passengers for the special train to New York when the Governor debated the "can't-strike" law with President Gompers.

The battle of the Marne was only a skirmish compared to the every-day hazard of peace, according to members of the Health and Accident Underwriters' Association. at their meeting in Chicago. It was stated that 105,000 persons are accidentally killed every year. During the war 31,000 Americans were killed in battle, whereas here at home, with no battle going on, 126,000 Americans died of accidents during the same period.

Striking cigarmakers of Tampa, Florida, urge the labor press and all trade unions and individual trade unionists to warn workers in the cigar industry to stay away from that city. For nearly six months 13,000 men and women have resisted attempts of employers and their allies to destroy the cigar makers' unions. The employers have also announced that when they defeat the strikers they must return to work under a lower wage scale, which amounts to a wage reduction of 45 per cent.

The city commissioners of Kansas City, Kans., will apologize to Governor Allen because organized labor carried a banner in its Labor Day parade with this inscription: "To hell with Allen's industrial court law." The city officials are shocked at such absence of drawing room manners by "vulgar" wage earners who object to going to jail when they refuse to accept poor working conditions. To date the city commissioners have not apologized to the trade unionists because of the governor's attempt to re-establish slavery.

The Ohio workmen's compensation law has proved so successful that the actuary of the State Industrial Commission has recommended that a 12 per cent. dividend be declared to employers who are subscribers to the insurance fund. The dividend will approximate $1,350,000 and will be distributed in the form of credits to subscribers. The Ohio compensation law does not permit private insurance liability companies to do business in the State. Employers may provide their own insurance if they desire, but their plan must have the approval of the State Industrial Commission. As a result the Ohio law is generally accepted by employers.

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson, Jack
Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liiquest, Rudolf
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Richardson, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N.
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H.
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E.
Pinard, F. H.
Pipiore, J.
Prinz, Carl
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S
Sobel, R
Sterndoch, J
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M
Svenson, Thure
Sverdrup, Walter
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Wnete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkveit, A.

Aberdeen, Wash , Letter List

Anderson, Fred
Anderson, John (registered)
Anderson, E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Brandt, H.
Berke, C.
Barton, M.
Brun, Mattias
Bedford, A.
Bradsbery, Geo.
Carlson, Oscar
Forsman, Niels
Hansen, Johan G.
Hansen, H. O.
Hanson, Halvor
Halvorsen, Halvor
Halvorsen, Hans
Janson, John
Johanesen, Alf.
Johnson, Karl
Johannesen, Jonas
Johanson, Emil
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Kinnunnen, Ant.
Olsen, Alf
Petersen, Hans
Roneld, P.
Randmets, Mike
Risenius, Sven
Saro, W. R.
Smith, Carl Johan
Toren, Gustaf
Tourela, Erick
Vejvorda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson Gust
De Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob.
Erickson, John
Eisen, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Levele, Ed.
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lindroos, Oscar
Lauren, William
McNeil, Daniel Ross
Monson, Jacob
McVeiar
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbi, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R.
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren, Hilmer
Registered Letters
Granzzi, Boraline
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rassmussen, T.

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Gronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgail, Mikel
Person, Fritz,
Leonard
Rainhard. H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J..... 22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Members of the crew of the "West Katan," whose claims for salvage services rendered to the S. S. "Flavel" is being handled by the undersigned. It has just come to my attention that the Shipping Board have asked you to sign vouchers in settlement of the salvage claim. I was offered one-half-month's wages which was refused. It appears that they are endeavoring to get you men to settle directly. I advise that none of you accept this as it is grossly inadequate. At least you have no right to accept any settlement without consulting me. Silas B. Axtell, Attorney for Seamen, 9 State Street, New York City. 10-6-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

INFORMATION WANTED.

The following named members of the crew of the S. S. "Kenebec," who helped salve the schooner "Thomas L. Wand" on November 19, 1919, have vouchers ready to be distributed at our office:

Demetre Sakelaris, $46.80; Carl Puka, $50.72. Isidro Flores, $50.55; Janes Franco, $50.55; Daniel Rodrigues, $50.55; Rafael Corrillo, $50.55; Dimity Sacelarius, $50.55; Siegor Sorensen, $50.55. Levy & Levy, Lawyers, Trust Bldg., Galveston, Texas. 10-6-20

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912,

Of The Seamen's Journal, published weekly at San Francisco, Cal., for October 1, 1920.

State of California,
County of San Francisco—ss.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared S. A. Silver, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Business Manager of The Seamen's Journal, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Name of Postoffice address—

Publisher, Sailors' Union of the Pacific, San Francisco, Cal.
Editor, Paul Scharrenberg, San Francisco, Cal.
Managing Editor, Paul Scharrenberg, San Francisco, Cal.
Business Manager, S. A. Silver, San Francisco, Cal.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or, if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent. or more of the total amount of stock.)

Sailors' Union of the Pacific, San Francisco; not a corporation. Principal officers of the Sailors' Union: Andrew Furuseth, Secretary, San Francisco; Ed. Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary, San Francisco.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent. or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)

None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

S. A. SILVER, Business Manager.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 28th day of September, 1920.

(Seal) MARGUERITA S. BRUNER.
(My commission expires Jan. 8, 1922.)

San Pedro Letter List

Andersen, J. -2157	Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Anderson, Sven	Jacobsen, Tom
Anderson, C.	Johnsen, P. -2313
Anderson, Bartines	Jensen, Marius
Andowiz, H.	Johnson, George
Arentsen, John	Johansen, Carl
Arnesen, Isack	Johnson, Waldron
Asaksen, Asak	Johansen, J. -1432
Aspe, Teodor	Jonaseon, Johanes
Arnold, Tom	Janofy, Axel
Bentley, Clifford	Jeeden, George
Berglund, Emil J.	Jensen, Kristian
Bergstrom, J.	Johnson, Carl E.
Bengston, Sigfried	Johansen, Anton
Brown, Irwing	Johansson, Gustav
Burge, Lawrence	Jonson, K. A.
Braden, W. A.	Kenrich, Richard
Bye, Kristian	Kelty, Peter D.
Brast, Sjomans	Kessa, Th.
Bjorklund, Erick	Keel, Jewel
Benson, Chas. A.	Knudsen, Andrew
Bergeson, B.	Kristoffersen, Hans
Belmont, Joe	Kleman, Otto
Boe, John	Kepplar, C.
Carr, R. W.	Killat, Dau
Cowan. Wm. L.	Karki, Juho
Cariera, Peter	Kluge, Frank
Craig, Thomas	Klahn, Karl
Church, C. A.	Kemmulsen, Alf.
Cage, Thomas	Kappen, Bernt
Christoffersen, C.	Krumholz, Edwin
Cumalet, J. H.	Lind, Gustav
Castle, H. C.	Lindstrom, John A.
Carlson, C.	Lindholm, Charles
Doty, Erwin	Lowrey, John
Desmond, Albin	Loderson, John
Daw, Walter	Larsen, Johan 1542
Daunt, C.	Landborg, Chas.
Deaver, Alwin	Lorgeman, Fred
Dreger, Jack	Laine, John
Dragich, Peter	Lill, Karl
Davis, Orville	Lund, F. V.
Drennen, William	Lauritzen, Ole
Disney, Robert	Levine, Carl
Devine, John	Lobeles, Jose
England, Thomas	Lehmus, Bill
Evans, Wilbert	Langeman, W.
Eliasen, John	Lund, Alai
Evensen, Alex	Lundquist, Axel
Edwich, Leonarel	Lutzen, W.
Engel, F.	Moor, Peter
Eliassen, Emil	McNeil, John
Fottinger, Karl A.	McRay, Jack
Frair, Enoch	Mize, J. H.
Feeder, George	McGhee, E. J.
Franzel, A. H.	Martinson, John
Freitag, F.	Maahs, Willi
Fansel, H. D.	Magnusson, John
Fahey, M.	Moritz, W.
Fairbrothers, Ed.	Monson, Ed.
Fish, Ralph	Mato, Alex
Golden, Roy	Murphy, Frank
Grason, Joe	Moller, J.
Gunnerud, Ulrick	Moutcso, Joe
Gronthal, Albert	Mueller, John
Greenwall, J. E.	Nankinen, F.
Gotz, Rudolph	Nelson, Ernest
Gallagher, Denny	Nilsson, Edward
Galke, Roy	Nelson, Gust
Gaede, W.	Nelson, Charlie
Hurley, Michael	Njutrom, Uno
Holland, Jonny	Nilsen, A.
Hermanson, Carl	Nelson, Ham
Hellesten G.	Nielsen, P. F.
Hansen, Olaf	Nelson, Andreas
Hogsted, Chas.	Nelson, Emil
Houston, Robert	Nelson, Hans
Hey, Ben	Ogren, V. E.
Hickey, John	Olofson, Oscar
Herlin, W.	Olson, Toney
Hogstedt, Chas.	Oleson, Chars. C.
Haman, O. W.	Olsen, Emil
Hangman, Ed.	Ono, Jollas
Holtkamp, C.	Petersen, August
Ikaanes, Edward	Petersen, Hugo
Isakson, J.	Pastrillen, H. K.
Perry, William	Soder, Paul
Parr, Robert M.	Sandberg, A.
Pedersen, Harold S.	Seland, Hans
Petterson, Axel K.	Sahlberg, Rudolf
Rossdam, Ha.	Smith, Carl Johan
Robert, Bob	Steffensen, Hans
Rohman, Pet	Scheumberg, Wm.
Rueter, Aman	Swanson, Mr.
Raaum, Harry	Scottel, Andrew
Rod, Halfdam	Steen, Ivar
Rosenthal, Walter	Sterndock, John
Robertson, E.	Swindells, William
Robinson, Fred	Scrivers, W.
Roberts, J. W.	Sullivan, Jack
Runge, R.	Swanson, Erick K.
Rosamund, J.	Strom, Oscar
Roberts, Pliney	Strahle, Chas.
Ruiz, Jose	Stenard, Percy
Sanders, Chas.	Swenson, A. -1932
Saxby, Charles	Sundgrau, Walter
Sandstrom, O. H.	Sunnesvig, Olaf
Sunde, O. H.	Skaanes, Edward
Svendsen, Fred	Wrobluske, Paul
Sveortary,	Winkelman, Otto
Seppel,	Wennerquist, Anton
Sundquist, Walter	Wihemson, Karl
V.	Woods, Claude
Schultz, W.	Wich, Ole
Treiberg Peter	Wrig, P.
Thal, R.	Werne, John
Torsman, Niels	Young, William
Thompson, James	Yeoman, W. E.
Veckenstedt, Wm.	Zoerb, Walter
Vitol, Alex.	Zimmerman, Fritz
Voth, Gus	Zunderer, Theo.
Wilson, John

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

—when you marry

The question of when you marry is mostly a question of when you can afford to marry—not when you want to marry.

When this time comes, as come it will—you are glad then that you have saved your money.

There's just one thing to do—provide now for whatever the future holds in store for you. You'll be glad many times for the savings account you can begin now at this friendly bank.

ANGLO-CALIFORNIA TRUST CO.
COMMERCIAL-SAVINGS-TRUST
"The City Wide Bank"
Market & Sansome Streets
San Francisco

THIRD & TWENTIETH SIXTEENTH & MISSION FILLMORE & GEARY 101 MARKET ST.

INFORMATION WANTED

Olaf Nyhagen, a native of Bergen, age 36, is inquired for by his mother, Mrs. Dina Nyhagen, Bergen, Norway. 4-28-20

Home News

It is estimated that the next census will show that about one-tenth of the people of the United States live in the cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, while more than one-quarter live in 68 cities having a population of 100,000 or more.

Lumber prices have risen out of proportion to increased costs of production and distribution, says the United States Forestry Service. This government bureau finds that "recent high prices of lumber, news print, turpentine and other forest products have seriously affected many industries and in various ways have imposed formidable burdens on the public."

Immigration is increasing by leaps and bounds and government officials predict that all pre-war records will be broken during 1920. It is stated that the rush is so great in New York that immigration officials are swamped. As is usual the arrivals are seeking the eastern industrial centers. Less than 25 per cent. of the August arrivals went far from the Atlantic coast. This condition is increasing housing perplexities in New York, Philadelphia and other east coast cities.

Corporations are being forced to disgorge additional federal taxes at the rate of $25,000,000 a month, according to officials of the Internal Revenue bureau. This amount represents revenue due the Government in the shape of excess and war profits taxes which the corporations failed to acknowledge in their original statements. It is fair to assume that officers of these corporations are among those who continually advise labor on the necessity for strict observance of law.

In the first test vote in the country on the league of nations, the Wilson covenant has been emphatically condemned. The Republicans of New Hampshire have renominated Senator George M. Moses, an "irreconciliable," who voted consistently against the covenant either with or without reesrvations. He won by the remarkable majority of 12,000 in a total vote of 45,000 over Huntley L. Spaulding, a former Hoover aid, who advocated the league with the Lodge reservations.

Wheat from last year's crop carried over into 1920 totaled 109,318,000 bushels July 1, compared with 48,561,000 bushels of the 1918 crop on hand the corresponding date last year, said an announcement by the Department of Agriculture. Crops on farms, in country mills and elevators and in points of large accumulation, all showed an increase over 1919 totals. This year farmers held 47,756,000 bushels, against 19,261,000 bushels in 1919, the figure perhaps reflecting disturbed conditions during the past year.

The high price of gasoline is reflected in record-breaking dividends just announced by Standard oil companies. In the third quarter of this year cash dividends totaled $29,504,575, compared with $27,273,000 in the second quarter and $23,354,000 in the corresponding quarter of 1919. The last disbursement is the largest ever made by Standard Oil companies in the third quarter and with the exception of the $30,406,000 paid out in the second quarter of 1916, it is the largest ever made at any time since the United States Supreme Court "dissolved" the Standard Oil trust.

Domestic and Naval

W. H. Gahagan, Incorporated, Brooklyn, N. Y., is constructing ten wooden floating drydock pontoons with a lifting capacity of 2000 tons each for the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the Shipping Board.

The Murnan Shipbuilding Company, of Mobile, is busy launching barges, one of 7500 tons for the Mexican Oil Company, of Tampico, having been floated recently, and one of the big barges partially built during the war being sent down the ways this week. The company has work for the next two years in sight.

The following tugs owned by the United States Shipping Board have been sold "as is" and "where is": "Guardsman" (wood), 357 tons gross, 1000 horsepower, to the T. A. Scott, incorporated; "Condor" and "Cockatoo" to the Goodwin-Gallagher Sand and Gravel Corporation; "Tomah" (wood), and "Green Bay" (wood), each 177 tons gross, 450 horsepower, to the Federal Shipbuilding Company, Kearney, N. J.

Attention has often been called to the dangers resulting from numerous wrecks in and about the Havre roads. In fact, several accidents have already happened. The salvage firm of Laffitte & Cie. are to raise a number of the vessels, amongst which are the transatlantic liner "Louisiane," the British cargo boat "Kelvinbrook," the Norwegian three masted "Silius," the oil tankers "Saint-Jacques" and "Iles Chaussey" and the mine sweeper "Au Revoir."

The Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce, reports 177 sailing, steam, gas and unrigged vessels of 257,765 gross tons built in the United States and officially numbered during the month of August, 1920. From other sources than construction, 1 vessel of 6,749 gross tons was admitted to American registry under the Act of September 7, 1916, and 1 of 2,630 under the Act of August 18, 1914, total 2 vessels of 9,379 gross tons.

A regular service between Panama Canal ports and Puntarenas, Costa Rica, has been established with the Costa Rican motor ship "Rosana" of 278 gross and 207 net tons, Panama Canal measurement. Sailings are approximately every 15 days in each direction. Accommodations are available for six first-class passengers. The "Rosana" is 112 feet long by 25 feet beam, is fitted with two 75-horsepower Diesel engines and makes approximately nine knots. Puntarenas is 471 miles from Balboa.

Announcement was made by the Shipping Board recently that it had authorized the sale to foreign purchasers and granted permission for the transfer thereof to foreign registry of ten steel steamers of approximately 3700 deadweight tons each, constructed on the Great Lakes by the American Shipbuilding Company, the registry to which these vessels will be transferred being France, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Denmark, Belgium, Spain, Italy, Great Britain and its colonies and dependencies. These vessels equipped to burn either coal or oil, were constructed by the American Shipbuilding Company for its own account, and being unable to interest American companies in this country in the purchase thereof negotiated for their sale to foreign interests. The Shipping Board was informed that the shipbuilding company will receive about $662,700 each for the vessels which approximates $171 a deadweight ton.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK A. H. R. SCHMIDT A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY I. N. WALTER E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE HUGH GOODFELLOW ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON L. S. SHERMAN
GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. M.
Adolfsson, John
Almon, L.
Altonen, Carl
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, Edvin
Anderson, Frank
Andersson, C. -2001
Andersson, G. A.
Andersson, G. S.
Anderson, John
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Attaberry, Clarence

Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Bendixen, Hans
Blomgren, C. A.
Bloom, Pete
Boerner, P. F.
Botsford, R. D.
Bourman, Jack
Broshear, A. O.

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Peter
Carpenter, Harold
Chilcott, Geo.
Christensen, H. C.
Clausen, Louis
Colman, J.
Conley, Irwin
Cooper, C. E.
Coulyou, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dahl, Otto
Dahl, Oskar
Dahls, Ogden
Davis, Warren
Daunt, C.
DeMario, Thos
Dickensen, T.
Domke, Willi
Drange, F. S.
Drennen, W. N.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Dumas, C.

Eaton, Lawrence
Eisenhardt, K.
Ellingsen, Harold
Ellis, F. L.
Engstrom, Ed.
Endemann, M.
Ennus, Pito
Erickson, -997

Farevoog, C. M.
Farrell, Bernand
Fletcher, Jos.
Freese, Paul
Fredricksen, O.
Freierbach, C.
Fuller, Geo. E.

Gallery, R. B.
Gements, Socrates
Graham, Ray
Grange, Arnold
Granberg, Fred
Gregory, M. N.
Green, Lawrence
Gunderson, H. T.

Haider, Henry
Hale, Kingsley
Hallit, Frank
Hallowes, L. N.
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Harbet, J. D.
Harvey, Earl S.
Hasselmen, F.
Hawkins, L.
Heamberg, L. O.
Hewlin, B.
Higgins, P.
Hollisk, John
Hoglander, Martin
Hood, Alex

Ibsen, Christian
Ireland, H.

Jacklin, Charles
Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jahnke, Paul
Jakullis, John
Janson, John A.
Jansson, John
Jensen, Martin
Jensen, E. -1987
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jespersen, M.
Jewell, Al. M.
Johannesen, Ole
Johanssen, Klaus
Johansen, Eilert
Johnston, Edw.
Johanson, E. -2715
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johnson, E. L.
Johansson, Bernad
Joiner, Jack
Jonsson, J. H. -2951
Jorgensen, F.
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaaveland, T.
Karlgren, -644
Karlsson, E. -1738
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Katkin, Ed.
Kierne, G. H.
Kine, Conrad
Kinnie, E. J.
Kirby, Geo.
Kluge, Martin
Knudsen, Ragnval
Kolustow, A.
Kraal, J.
Kristofferson, A. B.
Kruse, Einar

LaMadrid, R.
Lambert, Jos.
Lange, Henry
Langmann, Wm.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen, Alfred
Larsen, H. -2280
Larsen, Sigruid
Larsen, John -2012
Laurence, Bruno
Leeder, W. -2287
Leegaard, Rasmus
Lefter, John A.
Lehtonen, Hj. O.
Leskinen, F. A.
Lidsten, Chas.
Liesen, W.
Lindeberg, Ernst
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Lindquist, Chas. S.
Lindroos, Fred
Liljedal, Ludv.
Loning, Herman
Lundquist, Ralph A.
Lundin, -1054
Lundstrom, Ernst
Lydersen, Peder

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
Makares, S. J.
Mannonen, Niels
Manzano, Luis
Marker Andrew
Marshall, Ira
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattos, Mario P.
Mahaffey, Cecil
Mattson, Hilding
Mattson, Victor
McGauley, Geo
McGann, Oliver
McGregor, Donald
McGillvray, W.
McKenzie, Alex.
McLean, Grant
McEvoy Peter
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McCarthy, Harood
McManus, Peter
Maland, Helge
Mattos, M. D.
Merkman, Hy.
Maynard, G.
Mersman, A.
Mees, W
Melsand, Rlcard
Meyers, J. E.
Mitchell, David
Midgette, Frank W.
Mikelsen, Bern
Miller, R. E.
Moberg, Alf.
Mooi, Peter
Mohr, Karl
Monroe, N. S.
Monsen, Charlie
Mol, J. W.
Moller, Fritz
Moonan, Thomas
Morgan, R. B.
Mortensen, Geo.
Moritz, W.
Morris, Francis
Moore, H. L.
Morris, Jimmie
Morrison, Donald
Moulas, Nicholas
Muller, Werner

Nareta, Th.
Naville, Emil A.
Naylor, Geo. D.
Nelson, Charles
Nelson, Nils E.
Nelson, C. R.
Nesson, Ralph
Ness, Aksel
Neumann, H. -1423
Neveau, Thomas
Newton, A.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nielsen, Johannes
Nielsen, -1116
Nilsson, -1176
Nilsson, Reinhold
Nitschke, Karl
Nickerson, Phillip
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nilsson, Edward
Nilsson, John
Nolen,
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nordgren, Ragnar
North, Jesse I.
Nuter, Alex
Nyman, John A.

Oad, John
O'Brien, Larry
Ogren, V. E.
O'Leary, Patric
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, Arnold
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, -1280
Olsen, Hans, Th.
Olsen, Fred
Olsen, Magnus
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsen, Alf
Olsen, C. -1412
Olsson, Charle
Olson, Ed.
Olsson, James
Ostlund, John
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Ozolin, Jan

Page, J. N.
Parrish, Arthur L.
Paul, Ben
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, W. -1535
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Phillips, Bob
Post, Albert
Potter, E. R.
Price, Arthur
Prusch, A.
Puttner, Fred

Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Rasmusen, Rudolpf
Rasmussen, Aksel
Rasmussen, Emil
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Raynor, Robert
Regnill, Gustaf
Reuter, R. A.
Richardson, Edwin
Riesbeck, Hj.
Rillukka, John
Roberts, John
Robertson, Robert
Rohman, Paul
Rogers, Thos. G.
Rollo, R.
Rommel, Andrew
Ronn, E.
Rose, J.
Ross, -1500
Ross, H. E.
Rosenberg, L. F. K.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Rupert, Geo.
Russell, Robert

Saharoff, John
Salli, Rudolf
Sampson, C. L.
Sampson, Carl -2136
Samuelson, E. -2888
Sanne, Rudolf
Sanjer, Sajer
Saunders, Dewey A.
Saxby, C. H.
Scanlon, David P.
Schmees, Herman
Schmidt, E. H.
Schneidau, Heinrich
Schroeder, Ernst
Schulze, John
Seivert, Albert
Seegaard, Rasmus
Sexton, Harry J.
Sharman, E. S.
Sidroff, Nick
Sigrist, George
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Skaar, Oskar M.
Skeries, Hans
Slattery, Harry
Small, E. R.
Smedsvig, O. B.
Smith, Jas
Smith, W.
Smith, John H.
Smith, Geo. B.
Smith, A. G.
Solberg, Bernt P.
Soneson, Wilhelm
Sorensen, Jorgen H.
Sovdsnes, O. Peter-sen
Sonne, Herman
Spence, O. L.
Speckman, Max
Spey, H. F.
Stanford, Harry
Stensland, Paul
Sternisa, Carl
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Strele, F.
Strom, C. A.
Strurh, O.
Stang, A.
Stenensen, A.
Stewart, William
Stone, Wicktor
Strandberg, O.
Sund, Alex.
Sundberg, K. C.
Suominen, Oskar
Swanson, C.
Swinka, Albert

Tacle, John
Taylor, Sam C.
Tellefson Emil
Thomas, Fred
Thompson, Peder
Tillman, Chas.
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tohtz, R. C.
Torson, Andrew
Tovano, A. R.
Touzel, R.
Trebensen, Nick
Tucker, Harold J.
Tufty, C. J.
Turner, W. A.

Vargas, Martina
Van der Loeff, H. A.
v d Ort, W.
Van Helden, H.
Viets, C. L.
Vierr, W.
Vitek, Edward
Vitol, A.
Vorst, C. A.
Wahlstrom, E.
Wallin, Gust
Walters, Harry
Waterfall, L. N.
Waterman, J. K.
Wessberg, E. H. N.
West, Frank
Wheller, Geo.
Whiting, Russell
Wigsten, Geo.
Wiken, Emil
Wiera, Hy.
Wiklund, Wiktor
Wilhelm, Edu.
Winther, Johan
Wilks, J.
Willmann, Wm.
Wilkins, Hy.
Wittenburg, D.
Woods, Dick
Wolfe, E. O.
Wolff, Paul E.
Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Corneliusen, M.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Egan, John
Engstrom, Edw.
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Goodman, Tony
Halvorsen, Isak
Henrikson, Ernst
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Jansonu, C. J. W.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
Ketelsen, Fred
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Mortensen, Bjarne
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Sternica, Carl
Stranberg, P.
Tillsten, Jack
van Vleet, F. B.
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

Frank K. Sofsky is desirous of knowing the whereabouts of his brother, Carl McCormick Sofsky, who was last heard from while returning from France on the U. S. Army Transport "America" at Norfolk, Va. Anyone knowing his whereabouts will please communicate with the above named party at 9 N. Washington Street, Stanton, Va. 7-7-20

The Centrale Bond von Transportarbeiders have placed in my hands claim of the father and mother of L. Verhoef, seaman who met his death on the S. S. "Balosaro" April 29, 1920. An old spring line broke, curled around Verhoef's left leg and yanked him on to the winch while he was operating it. Before it could be stopped his leg was taken off. He died two hours later at the hospital. Will members of the crew please report here promptly. The master has made an entry in the log book to the effect that the deceased met with his death through intoxication, which statement we believe to be utterly false. I am acting for the dependent relatives. It is the duty of seamen to tell the truth. Your dependents may be in the same position some day.—S. B. Axtell. 8-25-20

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the
CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up to date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN. Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

19 East Street, Foot of Ferry Bridge
Wholesale—OUTFITTER—Retail
Everything for the man that goes to sea
SEAMEN AND FISHERMEN
GEO. A. PRICE
IS RIGHT
U. S. Navy Tower's
Sea Boots Flannels Oil Skins

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

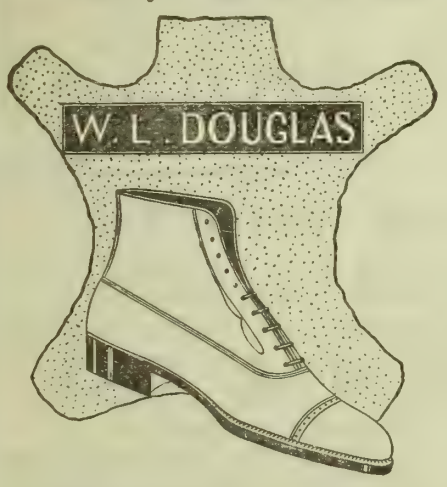
Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SAVE MONEY ON YOUR SHOES
Would you walk one-half block from Market Street to
Save $1 to $3?
We are located at 58 Third St., San Francisco.
We are agents for—
W. L. Douglas
Just Wright
Walk Ease
Strong & Garfield



We can positively save you money by buying your SHOES from us.
Our low rent and small expense make it possible for us to sell cheaper than the Market Street stores paying six times our rent.
We are showing a most exclusive and large stock of men's shoes. We can fit any foot and suit any fancy.
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET
Between Market and Mission
San Francisco, Cal.

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
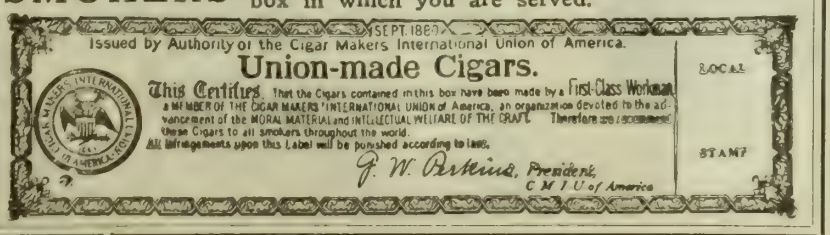
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.



News from Abroad

The financial position of Egypt has been strengthened considerably owing to the enormous wealth brought to the country during the war from sales of cotton and Egypt is at the present moment considered as being in a better financial position that she has ever been before.

Oil has been struck at a point just within the Arctic Circle, north of the Great Slave Lake and close to the Mackenzie River, according to a report from Toronto. The flow is small, but ten barrels a day, and possibly cannot be made use of economically.

It is reported from Tokyo that Japan plans to send an unofficial commissioner to the United States to facilitate mutual understanding and improving the relations between Japan and the United States by delivery of public lectures and other appropriate means.

A Paris report says that the Danish, Swedish and Norwegian Premiers decide to meet in Copenhagen to determine the attitude of their respective countries toward the League of Nations and to discuss the policy which they intend to follow toward Russia.

A new Brazilian shipping company, the Companhia Nacional de Transportes Maritimes Uniao Luso-Brazileira, proposes to place orders soon for twelve steamships of about 2,000 tons each and will establish a line between Portugal and the Portuguese Colonies, New York, Central America, Hamburg and other European ports.

The sending of an American gunboat to Honduras to protect American interests, if necessary, reveals that officials in Washington have been watching with growing concern revolutionary movements in process of development in several Central-American countries. Outbreaks are expected in Honduras and Guatemala.

A Tokyo dispatch says the "Association for the Study of Foreign Policy" in that city decided to hold a mass meeting and appeal to the public on account of the anti-Japanese agitation on the Pacific Coast of the United States. Members of the association say that the relations between Japan and the United States are growing worse over China and Siberia.

Between January 1 and July 1, the Norwegian mercantile marine had a net increase of 59 vessels and about 180,000 tons. In the same period the Swedish fleet increased by 9 vessels and about 55,000 tons, while Denmark had a net increase of 21 vessels and 28,000 tons. Of the Norwegian ships added to the fleet, 31 with a tonnage of 20,411 were built in the country, while 33 of 99,558 tons were built abroad.

The five liners being built in England for the Australian Government will come out next year. They carry each 15,000 tons deadweight and 700 third-class passengers in rooms. The designed speed is 15 knots. Of the 950,000 cubic feet of cargo space, 370,000 will be insulated. The speed will be 15 knots and fuel will be carried for 7,000 miles steaming. Six more liners are being built in Australia, which will carry 12,800 tons at 13 knots. They will have each 250,000 cubic feet of insulated space.

With the Wits

One Sure Thing.—Care may kill people, but don't care kills more.—Boston Transcript.

Sunday-School Teacher—What is more to be desired than great riches? Chorus of Scholars—Nothin'!—Royal.

The Cure.—"I am sure the fellow we were talking about has an itching palm." "Well, why doesn't he go out and scratch for a living?"—Baltimore American.

Natural Mistake. — Raymond — "What the deuce do you mean by telling Joan that I am a fool?" George—"Heavens! I'm sorry—was it a secret?"—London Mail.

Constant Reminder.—He (to wife who is off for the beach)—"Now, don't forget me dear." She—"As if I could, Jack. The surf at night sounds just like you snoring."—Boston Transcript.

Shake Before Taking.—Tommy (to aviator)—"What is the most deadly poison known?" Aviator—"Aviation poison." Tommy—"How much does it take to kill a person?" Aviator—"One drop!"—Science and Invention.

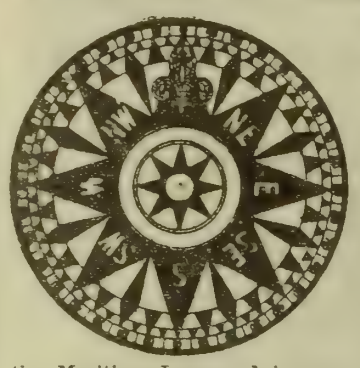
Psychological Advantage.—"Don't you object to all this talk about the high cost of everything?" "Not at all," replied the profiteer. "It prepares the mind of a customer for what he may expect and saves argument."—Washington Star.

Deep Impressions.—"That antagonist of yours says he is going to leave footprints in the sands of time." "He won't," replied Senator Sorghum. "His mind is in the clouds. He is an intellectual aviator. When he comes down he will leave a dent, not a footprint."—Washington Star.

His Weakness. — "What brought you here, my poor man?" inquired the prison visitor. "Well, lady," replied the prisoner, "I guess my trouble started from attending too many weddin's." "Ah! You learned to drink there, or steal, perhaps?" "No, lady; I was always the bridegroom."—Toledo Blade.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888



Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ — Phone Douglas 5752 — ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a [illegible] street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big [illegible] on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service Woven Trimmings and Excellent Workmanship. The Style Qualities and Fit I guarantee

Is the amount not worth saving

James H. Sorensen

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked In Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's GOOD GOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell
UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

331.805
ED

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization

VOL. XXXIV, No. 6. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1920. Whole No. 1722.

THE JAPANESE PROBLEM

Its Menace to America as Seen From California's Standpoint

The article that follows is reprinted from a recent issue of The New Republic, to which publication it was contributed by Chester H. Rowell, editor of The Fresno (Cal.) Republican.

Mr. Rowell is generally regarded as one of the best informed men on the Pacific Coast on the question of Japanese immigration and its potential dangers to this country. His views on the subject are therefore of more than passing interest now that the Japanese menace, long-felt and understood in California, is beginning to attract national attention.

Because the question of Japanese immigration has been agitated chiefly by California, there is a tendency to regard it as a local California question, whose importance Californians exaggerate, from a too-near perspective. As to its local aspects, this may be conceded. The Californian who would risk the peace of the world because he is annoyed by too many Japanese neighbors at Florin or San Gabriel must not expect sympathy except from the few others similarly situated. And of course any pretense that Occidental civilization is staggering under the burden of one or two hundred thousand industrious and generally law-abiding Japanese is too absurd to be regarded as anything but hysteria. If this were all, Californians would deserve the serene condescension with which their appeals are too often met.

What thoughtful Californians contend is that this is not all, and that in its larger aspects the Californian, not the provincial eastern view, presents the truer perspective. In this we are joined by all the English-speaking white peoples bordering the Pacific—by Washington, Oregon, British Columbia, Australia and New Zealand. These peoples are only a small part of the white race of the world. But they are its vanguard and its whole representation on the shores of the Pacific. And they are unanimous in demanding the support of the American Union and of the British Empire in excluding Japanese and Chinese immigration.

They all need immigrants, and they all reject those immigrants who are nearest and easiest to get and whose labor, if admitted, would produce immediate and great prosperity in their several commonwealths. Whatever the abstract merits of this race question, at least there is only one concrete opinion on it among the outpost peoples of the white man's world.

In California the situation presents itself under various aspects, some of which are confessedly local and temporary. There are perhaps a hundred thousand Japanese in the State (no one knows the real number) mostly industrious and useful people. Some of them are engaged in business or professions and some in skilled mechanical trades, but most of them are farmers. As farm laborers they scatter everywhere, but as farm owners or renters they tend to concentrate in a few districts, and to Hawaiianize these. As laborers and as renters the larger land owners welcome them. As land owners, nobody wants them, and as land renters nobody wants them for neighbors. The reasons are partly economic. They underlive and overwork their white competitors. But they are mostly racial.

Right or wrong, our people will not live with those of a physically different race except on the basis of that race's inferiority. Since the Japanese are not inferior, and are in some respects superior, there is friction. Seven years ago California passed an alien land law, forbidding land ownership by "aliens ineligible to citizenship" (which means Japanese) and restricting their right to lease land to three years. Ingenious lawyers found ways of getting around these inhibitions by putting title in the name of native-born minor children and naming their parents as guardians. So there is an initiative law now before the people, limiting guardianship over real-estate to persons eligible to own real property, and abolishing the leasing privilege entirely. The initiative will undoubtedly pass, but it will have little effect. Leases will be changed into contracts ostensibly for personal employment, and other forms of guardianship will be devised. Nothing will have happened except the impressive declaration of the people of California that they do not want the Japanese.

So far as the Japanese now here are concerned, this is all; and it is not much. Willingly or unwillingly, we shall have to make a place for them in our industrial structure, and they will fill it well—too well to suit us. If this is all, we can stand it, and it may even be good for us. Certainly it is California's business whether we face the problem wisely and reap the benefits or foolishly and take the consequences. Either way, if the Japanese do not increase we can take care of those who are here. The only great thing is to be sure that there shall be no more of them. And over that not California, but the nation, has jurisdiction. On this our appeal to the nation at large is based.

The possibilities of increased numbers are three—the birth rate; smuggling in violation of the "gentlemen's agreement," and a letting down of the immigration bars, under the plea that whatever laws we pass must not discriminate between races.

Statistically, the birthrate looks startling. Mr. V. S. McClatchy has presented figures to show that in a few generations the Japanese will be most of the population of California. To which Mr. John P. Irish responds with computations showing that by similar geometric progression Mr. McClatchy's grandchildren will then own all the land in California. Of course neither will happen. But the nucleus is here, and it is already certain that for all time to come California will have a considerable population of Oriental race. What has happened to Hawaii has begun to happen to us. Even a slight relaxation of the immigration bars would finish it. The natural increase alone, in spite of Mr. McClatchy's startling figures, will scarcely do so.

Under the "gentlemen's agreement," Japan avoids an exclusion law by undertaking to do the excluding from the Japanese side. Japanese laborers can not enter the United States without passports, and Japan undertakes to refuse these passports. But if a Japanese does smuggle in, over the Mexican border, and can then lose himself among his own people for a few years, there is no way afterwards of excluding him. Chinese exclusion is effective, because if a Chinaman does slip in and is caught afterward without the necessary papers, he can be deported. A Japanese can not. In consequence there is an undetermined but doubtless very considerable amount of organized smuggling over the border. If this continues and grows, either an exclusion act or a tightening of the terms of the gentlemen's agreement will become imperative.

But of course the only overwhelming menace would come from a reversal of the national policy that we shall have one law for immigrants of European race and another for those of Oriental races. To relax or compromise that principle would be to undermine the dyke that keeps out the infinite ocean. For the really serious aspect of this race question is the fact that the races which we are considering are so overwhelmingly numerous. There are nearly as many Japanese as Americans. There are four times as many Chinese. If the racial barrier is to be lowered, sooner or later we shall have to admit the Chinese also. Then there will happen to America—to California immediately and to the whole nation within a generation—what has already happened to Hawaii. Our grandchildren will find out, from the Hawaiian laboratory, whether they dare let that happen.

What their verdict will be is perhaps academically debatable. But until the verdict is rendered, the frontier peoples of the white man's world are unanimous that it is their advance-guard duty to take only one side of it. For this is the only human blunder which once made can never be undone. The world may go Bolshevist or Imperialistic, Buddhist or Atheist; it may abolish property, marriage, government or liberty, and afterward retrace its steps. But it can not mongrelize physically different races and ever after unmix them. Either they will intermarry, and destroy the white race (the yellow race is safe in Asia) or they will be kept from doing so by a caste system which will destroy democracy. Either there must be a geographic racial frontier at the Golden Gate, or else we shall have a social frontier, right down the middle of our institutions. It is not a question entirely of economics or of civilizations. Economic inequalities are temporary and we have already assimilated civilizations quite as alien as the Japanese. It is a question of physical race, and race is hereditary. It lasts forever.

Also it is a question of world peace. If the scattered embers of the European war are successfully extinguished, a world-polity is theoretically and probably practically possible which will guard against the repetition of that calamity. Nothing can guard the peace between the Occident and the Orient except the development of friendly co-operation across the Pacific. It will take all the nations to establish that peace, but any two of them could break it. We must make sure that these two are not America and Japan. And to this end we must avoid causes of friction. With the two races physically on different sides of the ocean, we can develop our common national and international interests. But with any considerable immigration to this side, causes of friction would inevitably develop.

They might be our fault, but we could not prevent them. Our people have learned their racial lessons in a dangerous school. We have dealt with two inferior darker races, but never with an equal one, and we have dealt always unjustly. We have dealt unjustly with the Negro and he submits. We have dealt unjustly with the Indian and he is dead. If we have many Japanese, we shall not know how to deal otherwise than unjustly with them, and very properly they will not submit. The only real safety is in separation. Nature erected a barrier which man will overpass only at his peril.

So the message of California to the nation is this: On our local problems, have patience with us. Admonish us if we need it, but do it understandingly. But on the great problem let this nation resolve as firmly as California is resolved that one side of the Pacific shall be the white man's and the other side the brown man's frontier. Only so is our race, our civilization, or the peace of the world secure.

PERFIDY OF THE WOBBLIES

In the August issue of McClure's Magazine there appeared an article from the pen of Harold Lord Varney under the head, "X-raying the Red Philosophy." The article is an exposition of the villainous methods utilized by the "traveling tourists" of the I. W. W. in sowing the seeds of dissension in the labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Varney, who is now writing a series of articles for McClure's on the I. W. W., was for seven years officially identified with the Industrial Workers of the World, and while working under the red banner of the "Wobblies" was admired by the crimson-hued brethren as one of the ablest expounders of I. W. W. philosophy. Varney traveled all over this country as a propagandist and was hailed by the disciples of the revolutionary aggregation as a Demosthenes whose oratory soared above the majority of the blood-and-thunder spouters, whose war whoops thrilled the thoughtless and unsophisticated.

Varney, since he severed the ties that bound him to the professional disrupters of the legitimate labor movement, has been stigmatized as a Judas by the high priests of the "Wobs," but whether Varney deserves to be designated as a traitor or not, the fact cannot be denied but that Varney is tearing away the mask from the I. W. W. and exposing the repulsive features of a gang of conspirators whose ambition has been prostituted to a program of destroying the bona fide labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Varney in his article in the August issue of McClure's uncovers the "borers from within" and shows the means and methods employed by the "Reds" in sowing the seeds which result in a crop disastrous to the solidarity of legitimate unionism.

Varney, after seven years' affiliation with the Industrial Workers of the World, boldly declares that the I. W. W. has accomplished nothing save destruction, and having failed to reach the goal of their expectations through slandering and vilifying the officials of the labor unions affiliated with the A. F. of L., have put their wreckers on the inside of the labor unions, in the hope that they can raise questions of discussion that will ultimately weaken or destroy the efficacy of the bona fide labor unions.

The I. W. W. has been a foraging aggregation almost since its birth, and hundreds of thousands of members of organized labor can well remember the many blood-bespattered circular letters that have been sent out from the literary bureau of the I. W. W. pleading for financial assistance in behalf of campaigns for free speech, strikes and in defense of red apostles who were charged with mudrer, riot, incendiarism, treason and other crimes, and many of the members of organized labor have learned that thousands and tens of thousands of dollars that were donated by labor organizations in the belief that the money so contributed was to relieve distress and uphold the right of free speech and free assembly, was but a ruse to recuperate the depleted treasury of the I. W W. in order that the soap-box propagandists might be better equipped to carry on their campaign of demoralization and destruction.

The members of organized labor have likewise learned that these breeders of dissension are devoid of every feeling of gratitude, and that the great majority of the professional disseminators of calumny, slander and vituperation have been actuated by no motive save to weaken and eventually destroy the only responsible and reliable movement on the industrial field that is honestly struggling to advance and promote the material welfare of toiling humanity. Thousands and tens of thousands of men and women in the labor movement have been duped and deluded by the glib-tongued Ciceros who have painted word pictures of the changed conditions that would take place on this old earth when the revolutionists would storm the citadel of Capital and force the despots in the domain of industry to capitulate to the terms of unconditional surrender.

Men and women in the labor movement who were once hypnotized by the mouthings of wind artists have realized that "all is not gold that glitters" and that the radiant and glowing promises made by the evangelists of I. W. W.ism who dedicated "I'm a Bum" as an international anthem to revive the drooping spirits of the proletaire, were nothing more nor less than brazen and unblushing degenerates who felt no tinge of remorse as they temporarily converted the gullible to take stock in an organization that has now, through its perfidy, become a pariah among laboring men and women who have learned their lessons in the school of experience.

The I. W. W. and the O. B. U. are practically one and the same, having the same tactics, methods and propaganda, and should not only be shunned by the men and women of labor, but openly condemned as treasonable to the best interests of the working class.—The Miners' Magazine.

Reformers generally would succeed better if they were to give less attention to the effects of the strike and more to the causes thereof.

Ultimate success in a labor struggle does not always depend upon the ability to continue fighting. Not infrequently it is the ability to quit that decides the issue.

CUTTING CORNERS

"And where do you think you're going? Don't you know enough not to try and run by a stop signal? You didn't see me raise my hand, eh? Well, you can hear the whistle, can't you? If you are both blind and deaf you've got no business running a car. Trying to cut corners, that's what you were trying to do. Well, you can't get away with that stuff here. Back up now and go around when I give you the signal."

Did the traffic cop ever talk that way to you? If he has not you have probably heard him speak his mind to others. And there is only one thing to do about it. That is to back up as he tells you and make the turn around the standard in the middle of the crossing as the rules require. If you don't, you may have a chance to tell your troubles to the judge, and judges are such unsympathetic listeners.

It doesn't pay to try and cut corners either in an auto or in finance. Yet thousands of Americans are trying to take short cuts to prosperity and affluence every day. The traffic rules provide for saving, and safe investment but they try to get by on speculation and "taking a chance," to get around the congested financial corner. When they are caught, and they nearly always are, they have to back up and start all over, while those who stuck to the rules of safety buzz by them with hoots of derision.

Scores of wildcat stock salesmen will try to point out tremendous profits to you from investment in their wares, but you will have to cut the corners to get to those profits and you may wind up in a wreck or the police court, or at least have to listen to the words of the traffic cop. If you stick to safe and sane plan of systematic saving and investment in government securities, War Savings Stamps, Treasury Savings Certificates and Liberty Bonds, you'll get ahead faster than if you try to cut the corners, for you won't have to back up and start over.

THE RIGHT TO LIVE

Says the Columbia Record: "The right to strike would be less questionable if it did not operate to interfere with the right to live."

If that is all that makes a right questionable, then there is very little to justify the right of private ownership of land. Landowners have the legal right to keep the landless of the earth. The right to work depends entirely on the permission of landowners under the existing land system. Consequently the right to live is dependent, so far as statute law can make it, upon the willingness of earthowners to concede it. The strike is a weapon to protect the worker against too oppressive a use of the land monopolist's power. Like all weapons of war, it may "operate to interfere with the right to live," but, so long as private ownership of land remains undisturbed, neglect of its use may operate as wholesale suicide. If the right to live is sacred, then land should not be privately owned.

A giant mushroom weighing nearly 3lb. and measuring 24 inches in circumference has been gathered between a row of potatoes on a Sheffield district farm.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Martial Law in Galveston

In a letter to the Houston (Texas) business men's associations, John H. Reagan, Galveston correspondent for the Houston Press, declares that martial law in Galveston, because of the longshoremen's strike, is backed by big business; that riots in Galveston have not occurred, and that "there was not enough criminality in the facts which brought them (the soldiers) here to equal the police blotter of Houston, Dallas or El Paso on one brisk police evening."

The newspaper man wrote the letter in answer to a letter published by Galveston business men who attacked the Houston Press because of the publication of articles by Reagan showing facts that other forces were concealing.

"It isn't a question of political groups," says the newspaper man. "I am not caring a tinker's dam for these groups. There was and there is something finer and nobler involved: a thing which we sent our men to Europe to die and to live for; a question of liberty.

"Here are the 'causes' which brought the guard here:

"1. An interurban was shot into by two negroes, members of the longshoremen, it is true, but an act of their own volition. Both men have been indicted and one is on the island and the other has escaped to Toledo or Detroit.

"2. Five automobiles that brought strikebreakers to Galveston were stoned outside of the city limits by unknown parties and one driver was caught and beaten up.

"3. A white strikebreaker was beaten up one evening in June by several longshoremen and his head stuck in a water pail.

"These are the crimes—the terrible offenses which causes the State of Texas to police Galveston to-day at a cost of $50,000 a month.

"But that is not all. You and I and the rest of us were told that freight had stopped moving; that wheat and cotton could not be shipped if the strike continued. The governor spoke of this terrible condition in his proclamation. Yet all the cotton and grain that goes out of Galveston, with a small exception, does not go on coastwise ships, but upon deep-sea vessels—and it was the coastwise longshoremen that struck, not the deep-sea men.

"On July 14 General Wolters took over the police force of Galveston and all police power. The commissioners, elected by large majorities, were insulted by the act, and there is no city in Texas, where there are red-blooded business men, who would have stood for such usurpation of power or so thinly woven a pretext.

"But that was not all. Thursday of the past week, John Mathias, counsel for General Wolters, stood in the county courtroom and addressed members of the bar of Galveston, and stated that the writ of habeas corpus did not operate in Galveston where the military were concerned.

"I wore the American uniform to preserve the principles of American government. I wear the American Legion button as a constant reminder that three of my friends lie dead in France for such a cause, and the cruel commercialism that would crucify these people of Galveston because of a love of power rather than justice is a commercialism that is decadent and sodden, and unworthy to survive.

"I do not censure the boys who are in uniform. They are fine, splendid fellows, my brothers. But a few months ago I was one of them.

"But when the foundation of a structure is bad, the house crumbles and the foundation of bringing the guard here is so absurd and ridiculous that no sane man investigating the situation could do other than say, 'They should not be here.'

"General Wolters has abolished in the corporation court the right to trial by jury; he has abolished the right of appeal; he has denied the right of public appeal; he has suspended the right of habeas corpus and a man may be imprisoned and held and have no recourse. They are scarcely doing that in Russia; save in a state of war they have not a right to do it in Texas."

The newspaper man declares that behind martial law is the attempt to establish the non-union shop and opposition to the city commissioners whose tax equalization policy has angered big business.

"May I add in conclusion that since the 1,000 longshoremen have been out on strike there has not been a single arrest of one of them for any grievous offense; that the men are well behaved; most of them are at work at other tasks, and are living the lives of good citizens."

Stop "Help Wanted" Cry

The Cincinnati branch of the National Metal Trades Association, that is opposing the wage demands of organized machinists, has instructed its members to discontinue "help wanted advertisements until further notice."

These anti-unionists proclaim their right to "run their own business," but their union now notifies them to stop advertising until "further notice."

The extensive advertisements, it is stated, are of doubtful value because they encourage the strikers and "business is declining in all lines throughout the country."

The antis might also state that the machinists are winning their strike.

In another appeal the antis ask contributions for the home guard. In his letter, President Dean says:

"I would of course be indiscreet to put into a letter everything I know about conditions here, making it absolutely necessary to maintain the home guard, but let me state to you most emphatically that they are very plain, very direct and very necessary."

The machinists say strikebreakers are garbed in the uniform of the home guard for the purpose of provoking violence, and that there has been no violence and property is not endangered because of the strike.

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Internationale Transportarbeiter-Federation Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

The membership of the British National Union of Railwaymen is now 481,081, an increase of 64,550 on the figures for last year.

Swedish naval officers are said to be greatly exercised over the proposed new law which would prevent their employment in commercial vessels except after a period of training.

Officers of British vessels have made demands for increased overtime rates and flat increases in monthly pay as follows: Cargo liners and general traders—First Mate, £10; Second Mate, £7; Third Mate and ranks below, £5 per month in each case. Coasting cargo vessels—Chief Mate, £2 10s.; Second Mate, £1 15c. per week in each case. Foreign-going passenger vessels—First Mate, increase of £12; Second Mate, £9; Third Mate and ranks below, £7; these rates to be added to the present rates paid, inclusive of all bonuses.

Hopeless conditions and a dark future for Europe's children was painted by Dr. Livingston Farrand, of the American Red Cross, on his return from a trip abroad. He said the most conservative estimate by the Red Cross indicates that at least 11,000,000 children in Europe are fatherless from war and they face the next few years without hope of adequate care, unless outside assistance is given. "When to these orphans," said Dr. Ferrand, "are added the millions of other children undernourished and underdeveloped physically and mentally, the dangerous situation is obvious. It is this generation devitalized and neglected, upon which in a few years the stability of Europe must rest."

Under the guise of labor troubles, all the big German shipyards are closing down one after another. These yards are engaged on the construction of ships which would have to be surrendered to the Allies under the terms of the Versailles Treaty and the inference is that the German Government is encouraging the yard owners to adopt an unflinching attitude toward their employes in order to drive them away quietly to other trades in which their talents can be utilized in a way more profitable to the country. Whatever the real reason may be, it is a fact that the smaller German yards which do repair work or build small vessels that do not come under the terms of the Treaty, seem to have no labor troubles worth speaking of.

The 70-hour work week is common in Japan, according to a report to the British government by its commercial secretary to the British embassy at Tokyo. It is stated that the present tentative and imperfect Japanese factory laws provide for a 12-hour day, "but factories employing only male operatives over 15 years of age may exceed the limit." The 70-hour week is common, it is stated, but there is agitation for the eight-hour day. Speaking broadly, continues the report, the Japanese laborer prefers to work long and leisurely, and requires little time for rest, food and recreation. In spite of great advances in cost, it is a fact, the report says, that Japanese labor is still considerably cheaper than labor in the west, but the comparative efficiency is much lower, many authorities placing it at one-half.

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

Union Made Shoes for Men Exclusively

JOE WEISS
WHITE PALACE SHOE STORE
92 FOURTH ST. nr. MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO
Repairing Done While You Wait
by the latest machinery. Work called for and delivered.
We use only the best leather that the market affords

IS INDEPENDENCE YOUR GOAL?
INVEST YOUR SAVINGS
in
GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES
PRICES IN JUNE
Thrift Stamps at Twenty-five Cents

$ 5	Government Savings Stamps for	$ 4.17
$ 100	Treasury Savings Certificates for	83.40
$1000	Treasury Savings Certificates for	834.00

FOR SALE AT BANKS AND POST OFFICES
GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
SECOND FEDERAL RESERVE DISTRICT
120 Broadway - - - New York

INFORMATION WANTED

Rudolf Knutsson is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of his brother, J. Harvid Knutsson, a native of Trellerborg, Sweden, age 20, last heard from in New York, in April, 1918. Please address his brother, care Sailors' Union of the Pacific, 59 Clay street, San Francisco, Calif. 1-7-20

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney at law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 675 Mills Bldg., Telephone Sutter 4673.

INFORMATION WANTED

Chas. T. Smith, Roy Dresser, Joe Ban, Autti Hanks, Thos. Wolstenholme, Chas. Fraser, W. B. Pierce, Karl Olson, William Holmes kindly communicate with John T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 10-6-20

Will H. Peterson and G. Johnson, formerly winchmen of S. S. "Carmel" to communicate with J. T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 9-8-20.

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM
A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
R. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop

You Want the Truth

This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE
will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.
Send in your order today.
$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Mrs. Jean Taylor. 940 Pender Street, West Vancouver, B. C., is anxious of ascertaining the whereabouts of Robert Gilchrist Cassar, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific. 10-13-20

Will some of the crew of the "Deva" on her first voyage September, 1919, please call on H. W. Hutton, 527 Pacific Building. Oskar W. Olson was on her at that trip and contracted an insurable case of typhoid fever through bad water and he needs some witnesses in a case he has for damages.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Michael Blasich, a native of Fiume, Austria, and a retired member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, will please communicate with his mother, Maria Blasich, Cosala 169, Fiume, d'Italia, Italy.

To Scandinavian Sailors:
Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.
LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

Before resuming the trans-Pacific run the transport "Great Northern" will undergo repairs to the oil tanks. Another hatch will also be placed in the vessel to facilitate cargo handling.

Grays Harbor port commission offices have been opened, and Engineer C. A. Strong of Tacoma is temporarily in charge. The first work of the commission will be to consider the purchase or construction of a dredge.

Government gold expended in Seattle for alterations and other work in Japanese-built ships since the first of the year will pass the $1,720,000 mark when the contract for converting the steamship "Eastern Sword" from a coal burner into an oil burner is completed.

The mine-sweeper "Swallow" and sub-chasers Nos. 294 and 310 have arrived at the Bremerton navy yard after a cruise in Alaskan waters. All three boats will undergo repairs. Hull work on the 10,000-ton repair ship "Medusa," being constructed at the navy yard, is 80 per cent. complete.

Three new tankers for the coast oil trade are being built by the Union Oil Company of California, at a total cost of $6,100,000. Two of the tankers will be of 12,000 deadweight tons, and will cost about $2,500,000 each. The third will cost about $1,600,000 and will be of 7,500 tons. The first of the trio is expected to be delivered late in December.

Announcement was made last week that the Coast and Geodetic Survey has published a new edition of the following Pacific Coast charts: Chart No. 5971, Coquille River entrance, Oregon. This edition shows the results of a survey to the entrance in May, 1920, by United States Engineers. Chart No. 5984, Coos Bay, Oregon. This shows the result of a survey of the entrance to Coos Bay made by United States Engineers in June, 1920.

The Moore shipyards in Oakland had 41,250 tons of shipping for repair on the four drydocks recently. Two speed records for repair work were broken when the Pacific Mail liner "Venezuela" was docked to replace forward plates and released three days later, while the Union Oil tanker "Lyman Stewart" had several plates replaced as the result of ramming the Standard Oil tanker "Richmond." The Dutch steamer "Arakan," which went ashore off Point Reyes, is also undergoing extensive repairs.

California may again be able to sell lumber to Brazil and other countries on the east coast of South America. The freight rate on lumber to River Plate points has been reduced $5 per thousand feet, which exporters believe makes it possible to again do business with this region. The foreign trade department of the Chamber of Commerce was notified by the United States Shipping Board that the rate on lumber from Pacific Coast points to the River Plate, recently fixed at $45 per thousand, had been reduced to $40.

Three steamers of the Shipping Board, under operation by local agents, steamed from San Francisco recently on their maiden voyages. The "Jalapa," launched on December 20 last, departed for Seattle to load grain for the United Kingdom at $26 a ton; the freighter "Heber," launched August 7, sailed under command of Captain Chrestensen for Seattle, also to load grain for the United Kingdom; and the tanker "Halway," Captain Deery, with a cargo of oil for Balboa, got away. She was launched July 1.

Contracts for lubricating oil for the Shipping Board vessels on the Pacific Coast for the next year have been awarded to the Standard Oil Company, it was announced in dispatches to the local board. The contract includes a supply for another year at Honolulu. The contract runs from October 24. According to the estimates of the Pacific Coast territory the requirements for the year were based on 371,716 gallons of oil, valued at $195,808. Deliveries are to be made at San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Honolulu.

Coal and oil fuel at Panama has reached such an acute shortage that many steamers bound for the Orient through the Canal and booked to touch at Honolulu are being diverted up the coast to San Francisco to secure bunkers, according to a report from Honolulu. The Hawaiian Chamber of Commerce has instructed its Washington representatives to take the matter up with Federal officials. The oil fuel shortage at Panama has existed for several months past and the coal scarcity is declared to be a new wrinkle in the situation. According to Honolulu advices, the Islands are due to suffer severely in commerce if the trans-Pacific steamers omit Honolulu as a port of call.

Said to be the first large steel steamer to be withdrawn from the Shipping Board service on the Pacific Coast because of the shortage of cargoes, the freighter "Maquan," 9400 tons, has been tied up on Puget Sound. She was operated between Seattle and the Orient by Frank Waterhouse. Other vessels, none of which has its home port at San Francisco, are expected to follow into the temporary discard. The "Westward Ho" was recently withdrawn because of difficulties of operation. The wooden steamer "Brookdale," operated as a training ship in Matson service between Seattle, Honolulu and San Francisco, has been withdrawn and remanded to the custodian at Norfolk, Va. She was replaced by the "Hollywood." Her withdrawal is in line with the policy of retiring wooden steamers.

The "Wenatchee," the first vessel of the twelve allocated to Pacific Coast shipping companies to be placed in commission, is expected to leave New York on January 15 for San Francisco on her maiden trip. The voyage will be in the nature of an excursion party, calls being made at Havana and Panama. After calling in this port the vessel will proceed to Seattle. Rates for the first-class trip from New York to Seattle will be from $300 up. Captain G. T. January, Pacific Coast navigator who served on ships of the Pacific Mail, has been selected to bring the "Wenatchee" to Seattle from New York. During the war Captain January was a Lieutenant-Commander in the Navy. He is a native of San Jose and is well known here.

Super-cargoes, or agents of the Shipping Board who travel on vessels of the Government owned merchant fleet, are here to stay, according to advices received from Washington. There are 480 super-cargoes employed by the Shipping Board and it is said that while no more will be added, none will be released. It is pointed out in Washington advices that the super-cargoes are a necessary adjunct to the board, as they are the only direct representatives aboard the vessels. In future, their business will be to check all supplies purchased by the master of the vessel, keep a watchful eye on all repairs, and otherwise see that there is no unnecessary expense to the Government. "This is necessary," a Shipping Board official explained, "because the officers and crews of the steamers are employed by the operators of the ships, and not accountable to the shipowner." Super-cargoes are paid $175 a month and are furnished food and quarters. The fate of the super-cargoes has hung in the balance since the administration of Judge John Barton Payne, as chairman of the board, and many local operators have expected orders abolishing the Federal agents.

Amalgamation of the entire shipping industry of Japan, embracing the three great companies, Toyo Kisen Kaisha, Nippon Yusen Kaisha and Osaka Shoshen Kaisha, has been proposed, and conferences to this end are now in progress in Japan, according to Captain M. H. Morle, Shipping Board master, who returned from the Orient recently on the Pacific Mail steamer "Colusa." Meetings of representatives of various shipping interests have been held at Tokyo and the principal seaports, Captain Morle said, and the newspapers have discussed the proposition favorably. The Imperial household, which controls some of the companies, also is said to favor the move. The plan is similar to the merger of Japanese freighters built during the war emergency. "The Japanese believe that they will be better able to uphold their end in the world of commerce, if their overhead is reduced and if they work in unison," Captain Morle said. "In this way they will also be able to confer better with other nations to obtain favorable rates. They are in no position to operate at less than cost, and there is therefore no danger of a rate war emanating from them."

Old-timers along the San Francisco waterfront were given a demonstration of real seamanship when the French bark "Pierre Antonine" came sailing in through the Heads without a pilot, or assistance from a tug. It is customary for a sailing ship in making this harbor, especially a foreigner, to heave to off the bar, and take aboard a pilot. Then the skipper of the craft signals for a tug, and is safely towed to his anchorage. Captain Hery, however, dispensed with these formalities, and although the pilot boat at the bar dispatched a pilot to the bark, and a Red Stack tug appeared in the offing, Captain Hery waved his hand in dismissal and kept on his course. Through the Golden Gate the bark with all sails drawing sped up the bay. Captain Tom Anderson, marine lookout at Point Lobos for the Marine Exchange, shook his head and blinked his eyes: "Dangerous, but true seamanship," he declared. Under the lee of the Marin County hills the bark's canvas flapped a bit, but another breeze quickly filled her sails and she came in through the midchannel and past Fort Point to an anchorage near Meiggs' Wharf. The "Pierre Antonine" came in ballast, 197 days from Belgium to load grain for the United Kingdom. She came around the Horn.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C...ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF
Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
New York Branch.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RODEN, Agent
433 Court Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....DAVID COOK, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
510 Trust Building
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
132 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 East Bay Street
Sub Agencies:
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC
Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION
H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....316 River Street

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION
D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal
Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1920.

SEA TRAINING

The proper training of boys and young men bent on following the sea for a living is fully as important as that ships be properly built and suitably equipped for service. For what shall it profit us to have the biggest, most stanchly built, and best equipped merchant fleet in the world if the crews manning the ships are inefficient?

Yet it is common knowledge among old sailormen who have kept in touch with the changes wrought in seafaring methods in recent years, that American seamen of to-day are much less proficient in seamanship than the situation actually warrants. The fact is that the great majority of them have not been properly trained. Some of the blame for this condition may safely be placed on the emergency created by the war, when seamen had to be fabricated over night almost, so to speak. But after making all due allowance for that factor there still remains much to be explained.

As the twig is bent so will the tree grow. Most present-day young American seamen are graduates of some Shipping Board training ship. And thereby hangs a tale not at all flattering to the Shipping Board's sea service bureau. All accounts agree in most particulars that the "training" given the youngsters on board the average Shipping Board training ship consists chiefly of "soodjee-moodjee" drill, holystoning, shining brasswork, swabbing the decks, painting the smokestack, and such like prosaic stunts. No doubt these things are, in a way, a necessary part of a ship's routine work. But after all they are merely incidentals in the program of teaching seamanship, and should never be made to take the place of elementary instruction in the essentials of the profession. To train boys for the sea on any other basis is to reverse every accepted mode of teaching, and amounts at best to a waste of time; especially in the case of the Government's training ships where the period of instruction is of such limited duration.

That we haven't exaggerated the situation is indicated by the following affidavit, kindly sent us by Comrade Julius Nelson, agent of the Newport News branch of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, who furthermore informs us that the "Newton" is no worse than any other Shipping Board training ship. "They are all the same," he says; "the boys don't learn any seamanship, but are put to other kinds of work."

AFFIDAVIT

In regard to conditions on U. S. S. B. Newton on voyage from Newport News, Va., to Boston, Mass., Portland and Boothbay, Maine. We were employed at Sea Service Bureau, 133 24th Street, Newport News, Va., Sept. 2, '20, sent on board same day and got under way for Boston, Sunday, 5th. Friction from the start in regard to working hours. Watches set and men required to work on Sunday at other work than required, washing down all done. On objecting, chief officer told bosun to work the men 9 hours each day. Arriving at Boston, watches were broken, and when leaving Boston no sea watches were set. After working the apprentices all day, we were called to work at night. We objected, as we were told there was no overtime allowed. Chief Officer said we would get the time back. We never did. The watches were set again at Portland and on the run to Boothbay, same old thing, watches called out any time, Left Boothbay for Newport News, same old argument about Sunday work. Arrived Newport News, Saturday, 18. Liberty party carried ashore by 8-12 watch a. m. No liberty in evening, 8-12 watch called to get up. Motor boat and life boat at 5:30 p. m. Argument. All hands called to do the work. This was on Sunday, in port. On Monday morning, 6:30 a. m., all hands called to clean up ship. Two bosun mates left ship and mate refused to allow pay for the night and morning. Pay ended on 19th. We objected, but no good. There is no system aboard the Newton. We were hired as bosun's mates, as instructors for the apprentices in duties pertaining to seamanship. The only things any of the apprentices did was to swab down decks, paint around ship and wash paintwork with salt water and salt water soap. Never a lesson at the wheel, ship carried regular quartermaster. Two of apprentices were used as lookouts, and never changed. The same two always. There is no regard paid to rules that govern Seamen's Union and there are very few Union men employed. The apprentices have no chance at all. No lessons in seamanship whatever. We, the undersigned Bosun's Mates, are competent American seamen, A. B. Tickets, Life Boat Certificates, a sea service of 20 and 8 years, respectively, proving our fitness against the incompetence of those whom we were forced to obey, and by whom we were defrauded of money properly due us. To this we swear.

JOHN CLARK FOUNTAINE.
A. F. THOMAS.

Sworn to before me in my City of Newport News, Virginia, this 21st day of September, 1920.

W. R. HASKINS, Notary Public.

When all is said, the only way to make a real seaman of a boy is to send him to sea on a real seagoing ship, where he will be in constant contact with all the actualities of seafaring needed to complete his professional education. That's how all worth-while seamen have been produced. On the other hand, a training ship course of instruction is liable to become a handicap to the recipient, in that usually most of what he has learned must be unlearned before he can hope to make any headway in his chosen profession. It was the recognition of this fact which led to the present agitation within the ranks of the International Seamen's Union for the establishment of schools of their own, where members who have graduated from a Government training ship may learn what's what in seamanship as distinguished from what ain't.

The Government's fleet of wooden ships were built at an estimated average cost of $170 a deadweight ton. Three attempts have been made to sell the ships to American buyers. Only four offers to buy have been received by the Shipping Board so far, the highest at about $12 a ton. Which is about the value of those miscellaneous articles that used to be advertised as "given away with a pound of tea."

BIG SLUMP IN O. B. U. STOCK

The course of the One Big Union of Canada has apparently not run as smooth as its organizers had hoped. This is made plain by a few facts which leaked out from their recent convention held at Fort William.

For instance, instead of the reputed membership of 41,500, the report of the convention shows that during the five months from January to May last the O. B. U. was receiving per capita tax on a membership of but 19,510.

It was also shown that in many cases no per capita tax has been paid since June 1. Coming down to particulars, the miners of Alberta have paid no per capita tax to the organization since March last, though they paid tax during January, February and March on the basis of an average membership of 2199. Vancouver, once the stronghold of the O. B. U., has paid no per capita tax since January, though at that time it was paying on a basis of 790 members.

Calgary is reported as having been consistent in its affiliation, with a membership of the general workers of 51, transportation workers 200, and flour mill men 33. Edmonton has paid on an average of 486, but has paid nothing since May. The metal miners' district board of Rossland paid on an average of 440 members. Winnipeg has paid up to June for all organizations, with an average membership of 3864; Fort William with an average of 411; Port Arthur 570; Thunder Bay 744; Victoria 29; Montreal 262, and the loggers 9382.

The most discouraging item of information brought out is that the financial statement presented at the convention showed a balance on hand of but $162.25. Add to this the continued falling off in the income from per capita taxes, and it is very evident that the O. B. U. of Canada has a hard winter staring it in the face.

As if these troubles were not enough, the lumber workers of British Columbia, with a membership of more than 9,000, withdrew from the convention because of serious differences with the executive board. It is stated that the withdrawal was the climax to a disagreement of several months' standing, and that it was in the nature of a protest against insistent efforts of the central executive of the O. B. U. to abolish the industrial unity of the lumber workers and bring them more under the control of the central executive, with consequent control of their funds.

Summing it all up, the One Big Union of Canada seems to be well on the way towards the fate which sooner or later overtakes every labor organization which fails to make good its promises to the workers.

LABOR'S NON-PARTISAN CAMPAIGN

Labor's non-partisan political activity cannot be estimated by victories alone. The defeat of numerous reactionaries is not the sole gain. Of major importance is the agitation, the education, the molding of public opinion that makes possible the election of candidates pledged to the cause of justice, followed by remedial legislation.

Nothing can withstand the white-heat

glare of an aroused and intelligent public opinion. It is the foundation of all progress in govednment. It is lasting when based on the thought that a particular wrong affects society as a whole.

When workers first urged free public schools, the plan was ridiculed, but constant agitation convinced the people that ignorance is a menace. Then free schools became a fact. Labor's agitation against child labor, for the secret ballot in public elections, for a shorter work day, or for a living wage, did not succeed until people caught the point that society would be benefited if the changes were made. Agitation made new viewpoints possible.

This public opinion has no connection with hysteria and fads of the moment that are based on emotion and sentiment and not on reality and facts. No public official dares ignore real public opinion. It sweeps aside opposition to its dictates. It silences a venal press and every other defender of special interests.

This public opinion cannot be had for the asking. A single resolution is not sufficient to start its resistless sweep. Few men abandon long-held views, or stir themselves to act against social injustice by reading one protest. Special privilege does not yield because of one declaration.

Public opinion is a golden prize. It is only for those who capture it by ceaseless work, either by deadening the conscience of men, or by constant agitation which finally awakens that conscience.

The non-partisan political program of organized labor offers wide fields for this agitation. The story of labor's social program should be told on every political rostrum, should be the text in every assemblage of citizens from now until the November elections. The story of labor's ideals, its purposes and its plans, is the story of American ideals, of freedom, equality and right relations between men.

Labor has won many victories in the present non-partisan compaign. It has defeated reactionaries and elected champions of right. It has awakened labor to its duties as citizens. It has impressed upon workers the value of scrutinizing the record of every public official, that government "of, by and for the people" may be a fact. The list of these victories will be increased as the campaign progresses. But beyond these, labor has won greater victories by arousing the public mind to the importance of issues that were formerly looked upon as "labor questions" that had no relation to society as a whole.

In less than forty years San Francisco will be the principal port in America, and the Pacific Coast the center of the world's shipping, predicts Captain Robert Dollar. The doughty old captain evidently must have got over his one-time fear that the Seamen's Act would put our merchant marine everlastingly on the blink.

The people of India speak about 150 different languages, and are divided into forty-three distinct nationalities. This explains a great many things about India's troubles. If the situation in America were only half as bad our country could never have become the great self-governing republic it is today.

CONVENTION CALL.

International Seamen's Union of America.

To all District Unions of the International Seamen's Union of America.

Greetings:

The International Seamen's Union of America will hold its Twenty-fourth Annual Convention in the city of Philadelphia (Pa.), beginning the second Monday in January, 1921, at 10 a. m. and will continue in session from day to day until its business is completed.

The importance of this convention demands that each District Union be represented by its most able, experienced and faithful members in order that the questions confronting the seamen may be dealt with and acted upon to the best interest of the Seamen's movement.

As the membership of the International Seamen's Union is now over the 100,000 mark and as each District Union is in very good condition financially, it is expected that a full quota of delegates will be sent from each District Union. Those who have already elected delegates are requested to consider the matter while those who have not selected their representatives are urged to bring this about.

The Unions of the Atlantic District will make all arrangements for said Convention and be prepared to meet the delegates and tender them every accommodation necessary in a function of this nature.

Representation.

The following sections of the Constitution of the International Seamen's Union of America govern representation at the Convention:

Article III, Section 2. Representation at the Convention, shall be based upon the average per capita tax paid during the year. Organizations shall be entitled to one delegate for two hundred members or more, three delegates for five hundred or more and one delegate for each additional five hundred or majority fraction thereof.

Section 3. Affiliated Unions shall be entitled to one vote for each one hundred members or majority fraction thereof. When more than one delegate represents an organization, the vote of their union shall be equally divided among such delegates.

Section 4. Delegates shall have the same qualifications as the elected officers of the organization, provided, no one shall be seated as a delegate who is also a member in any Labor Organization not affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America, etc.

Credentials.

Duplicates of credentials should be mailed not later than December 1, 1920, to the International office in order that the Committee on Audit and Credentials, which meets prior to the Convention, may have ample time to complete its work and be ready to submit its report when the Convention convenes.

It is suggested that District Unions or delegates having matters they desire to submit to the Convention will do so by forwarding copies of resolutions which they desire to introduce to the International's Secretary-Treasurer at least two weeks in advance of the Convention.

You are respectfully requested to take up the matters herein mentioned with your Union in order that the Convention Call may receive careful consideration by the largest number of members possible.

With best wishes, I remain,
Fraternally yours,
T. A. HANSON,
Secretary-Treasurer.

The Board of Harbor Commissioners announces that, effective November 1, the charge for switching on the Belt line Railroad will be $3.50 per car, instead of $3, the present rate.

Struthers & Dixon have been assigned the steamer "West Carmago" by the Shipping Board. The vessel has just been completed by the Schaw-Batcher Company at its local yards.

The November number of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha magazine, Japan, is one of the most attractive issues turned out by the company in several months. The articles of travel are illustrated and contain valuable information on how to see the Orient.

The American schooner "Commodore" will carry lumber to Durban from British Columbia for $42 for Hind, Rolph & Co. The American steamer "Forest King" will carry lumber from Puget Sound to Callao for W. R. Grace & Co. at the rate of $30.

Announcement of a three weeks' service between Philadelphia and Portland and other Pacific Coast ports was made by the North Pacific and Western Steamship Company. The Admiral Line is the agent for the company on this coast and is now operating a monthly service between the Atlantic and Pacific ports.

A resolution requesting National and Coast port authorities to urge the Government to compile and publish tonnage figures as well as valuations in Department of Commerce reports has been filed by the Seattle Port Commission. The resolution states that the publishing of value does not give the real index to the condition of commerce, while the tonnage figures would show exactly the volume of traffic handled by each district.

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 11, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Andrew Furuseth presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; members ashore plentiful.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 4, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Oct. 4, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 4, 1920.
Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL. Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Oct. 4, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Oct. 4, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Oct. 4, 1920.
Shipping fair; members scarce.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Sept. 27, 1920.
Shipping and prospects poor.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters. San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 7, 1920.
Shipping slack. Nominated officers for the ensuing year and delegates to the I. S. U. of A. Convention to be held at Philadelphia, January 10, 1921.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Sept. 30, 1920.
Prospects uncertain. A number of members around.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Sept. 30, 1920.
Shipping very good. Few members ashore.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

Julius Wang, No. 899, a native of Norway, age 40. Died at San Mateo, Calif., October 4, 1920.

The coast-to-coast trade still holds the center of interest. Offerings from the Atlantic are strong, and while the east-bound market is not exceptional, full cargoes are moving. European trade also holds steady. New Zealand offerings are slack, and Australia is only a little better. The west coast of South America is dull. The Hawaiian trade. consistent with the season, is slack. There is no demand for barley charters, and the chartering for wheat out of the more northern ports has practically closed. Lumber is still active, and oil fixtures are being made for all the routes.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

JACK AND HIS FRIENDS (?)

In the current issue of The National Marine Magazine appears an article by Felix Riesenberg extolling the monumental activities of the Seamen's Church Institute of New York and elsewhere in saving sailors from Satan, from the crimps and from themselves.

The article in question being highly gratifying in quality to the holy Joes and devil-dodgers, and their powerful patrons among the ship-owning fraternity, is profusely illustrated with photographs taken within and without the "Tower of Babel" on South street, New York City.

The illustrations are, of course, intended to show the world what a delightful abiding place has been provided by the goodness of heart and spare conscience money of the wealthy and class-inclined exploiters of all labor for the benefit of those ungrateful and unregenerate beasts—the seafarers.

The National Marine being one of the recently endowed monitors appointed by the reactionary Marine League to suppress the truth and praise the devil, naturally grabs Mr. Riesenberg's pleasing description and pretty pictures off a hot griddle and proceeds at once to accord them all the publicity and print display known to modern artcraft.

In his opening discussion of former maritime conditions, Mr. Riesenberg reveals himself as a waterfront tenderfoot, a recent arrival, with neither personal knowledge nor actual experience among such conditions. He also strikes us as being somewhat guileless and sanctimoniously inclined, and therefore easily deluded into writing glowing tributes to the glamorous present as compared with the dark and dismal eras of the past, without knowing the source, and sole contributor to present day improvements, amelioration and industrial and economic advancement among seafaring men—The Seamen's Unions.

Like most other civilians unacquainted with the historical facts of the situation, Mr. Riesenberg naturally assumes that present conditions are so because the devil-dodgers at the institutes and asylums have made them so. They are never made to realize that the so-called Seamen's Friends (?) Societies almost moved heaven and earth for a hundred years in their efforts to preserve and perpetuate the degrading conditions preceding the great reform movement inaugurated and completed by the outraged and plundered seamen themselves, for their own glory and renown, because they well realized that wherever or whenever the seamen became independent, prudent, sober and respectable they would cease to be the special wards and favorite sinners of the holy Joe societies, and since the aforesaid societies were founded upon a religious desire to curb and ameliorate evil conditions they could only flourish amid such conditions. Therefore, instead of contending for the seamen's advancement, they always either secretly aided, openly abetted or judiciously connived with the crimps for their moral and social degradation and economic undoing.

"Not so many years ago, in the days we read of," says Mr. Riesenberg, "the vast enterprise of shipping, laying the foundation of many an American fortune, flourished side by side with the sinister business of robbing sailors of their share in the profits of the sea.

"When old-timers think of the various 'houses' in those days, up and down Front and Water streets," continues our well read informant, "they wonder how the old boarding masters would have felt if wages then were half as good as now. Then," he reminds us, "sailormen out of the Port of New York signed on voyage after voyage for eighteen dollars a month. . . . Now the pay is a hundred a month in sail and eighty-five in steam."

Yes! Yes! All quite true and praiseworthy! Now, then! Hip-hip-hip—but vast shouting! Pipe down there a minute and find out first who we're cheering for, the sky pilots or the sea dogs?

We would remind Mr. Riesenberg that the first duty of an author is to become an authority; and to do that he should study both sides of his subject before attempting to submit either side for public edification.

It is quite true that in former years "the vast enterprise of shipping laid the foundation of many an American fortune." But it is equally true and less flattering that it established and maintained at the same time the most corrupt, treacherous and debasing system of human impressment and involuntary servitude that ever disgraced mankind, and that the so-called Seamen's Friends (?) Societies were always either active or silent partners to that corruption, and that none of them ever raised hand or voice, or spent a copper for its overthrow. That eighteen dollars per month was the regular wages of seamen during that period is a serious misstatement.

Eighteen dollars per month at the Port of New York was an exceptionally high rate of wages, only to be declared when shore industries were so brisk that the crimps and jackals could not succeed in rounding up enough unfortunate beachcombers, immigrants or other stragglers to fill out the ships' complements under false pretexts, promises, drunkenness or force.

Under ordinary conditions sailors signed on in the deep-water windjammers for fifteen or sixteen dollars per month, and under certain exceptional conditions, which we shall presently describe, the wages at times fell as low as twelve, and one year to seven dollars per month for long voyages.

But it mattered little to a sailor in those days whether his wages were fourteen or forty dollars per month, his first two or three months' wages were signed away to a boarding master or a sailors' home (?) when he sold himself, the balance went to the slop chest, and he would be either chased out of the ship penniless or paid off with the jib downhaul in a foreign port.

Now, under present improved conditions it may be somewhat enlightening to explain how far the Kingdom Come societies were responsible for the existence of the former "blood money" regime, and consider how much they have accomplished toward reform.

When, about fourteen years ago, one of the Seamen's (?) Church Institute Societies began a bumming campaign to collect a million dollars—more or less—with which to erect a new and modern orphan asylum on West street, New York, for the benefit of seafaring men, protests came from seamen in all parts of the country. Hundreds of sailors dropped their historic marlinspikes and grasped their fountain pens to write in and voice their solemn protests against this crowning disgrace. These protests, many of which found their way into the press, elicited some surprise among civilians at the time and a good deal of uneasiness among the sky pilots who conducted the bumming operations.

When the announcement came that the late Mrs. Russell Sage had decided to contribute $150,000 to "this worthy charity," the wrath of the misrepresented seamen knew no bounds.

On March 24, 1907, two hundred sailors, in regular meeting assembled at the old Union Hall, 51 South street, New York, unanimously adopted stirring resolutions bitterly assailing all "friend" societies and denouncing the existing propaganda to make seamen the puppets of a monumental fraud.

But the professional bummers kept on in spite of all protests, and finally succeeded in securing enough conscience money to erect a colossal non-union roost for the benefit and convenience of their patrons and promoters, the British steamship companies.

In some of the nicely worded begging circulars distributed among their purse-proud patrons at that time, the American Seamen's Friends (?) Society tearfully alluded to the old "Sailors' Home" at 190 Cherry street as "a feature of our city life for more than fifty years." Yes, it was a feature, a fraud, and a most reprehensible one, as we shall presently see. As originally designed, it was, no doubt, the bona fide intention of its founders and promoters to conduct the old Sailors' Home as a counteracting influence against the crimping system. But hell is paved with good intentions, 'tis said, and the American Seamen's Friends (?) Society, soon finding that it could not fight the organized and intrenched crimping system without incurring the ill will and antagonism of their powerful allies and supporters, the shipowners, prudently desisted from their noble attitude and adopted the course of least resistance.

Eventually the "Home"(?) was leased to a member of the crimping association and became the main pillar of this nefarious business. A number of prominent shipowners were elected to the board of directors and the Society then announced that the "Home" had been "leased under Christian influences" for the protection of seamen. God save us from our protectors! For thereafter the Sailors' Home (?) at 190 Cherry street remained part and parcel of the corrupt and vicious crimping system until the day of its doom. The Seamen's Friends Society had tried to wash its hands of the institution by palming it off on the ever-greedy crimps, but the filth still clung and the stench of their treachery was never dispelled. Old sailors have long memories and they never forget the odious incidents of departed days.

As a member of the crimping system the Sailors' Home (?) at once adopted and always persisted in crimping methods in its dealings with seamen. Its practices were, if possible, even more reprehensible than those of the rest because conceived and executed under the cloak of religion.

In 1884 all advances of seamen's wages were absolutely abolished by Act of Congress. This Act fell like a bombshell amongst the waterfront brigands, and they spent two years conceiving and contriving underhand and unlawful methods designed to circumvent and nullify its provisions to the great distress and degradation of all seamen. But when all these fraudulent innovations had failed to bring about the desired results—then the opulent and supposedly religious superintendent of the Sailors' Home (?) placed himself at the head of a gang of well dressed and well primed beach pirates and proceeding to Washington, induced the members of Congress to substitute an allotment for the ancient advance system in the name of the holier-than-thou group which he represented. And for thirty-one years thereafter the allotment system remained in vogue, until finally abolished by the La-Follette Act; a false and flimsy pretense, a bane to our merchant marine and seamen and an everlasting disgrace to the American Seamen's Friends (?) Society.

The reverend secretary long ago admitted that all these indictments against the Society, as well as many more with which we have yet to deal, were all perfectly true, but he begged us not to publish them, as, he said, "It would interrupt our income and the Society is now trying to be good."

"When the devil was sick,
The devil a saint would be;
When the devil got well
The devil a saint was he."

Among all the jackals employed by the crimping association to debauch seamen. the runner of the Sailors' Home was the boldest and most insolent purveyor of contraband whiskey.

Mr. Riesenberg, in his article, alludes to ships anchoring off the Statue of Liberty. "Shore boats would put out from the Battery," he says, "carrying the crimps," bringing whiskey, etc.

Here again his imagination is at fault. Inward-bound windjammers never got as far as the Statue of Liberty before the crimps boarded them, and their boats never "put out from the Battery."

The crimps always maintained a lookout station at Stapleton, Staten Island, from whence the sea and lower harbor were constantly scanned with spy glasses for inward-bound ships. All ships arriving from foreign ports were, of course, required to anchor at the Quarantine Station off Staten Island, and as soon as the medical inspection had been completed and the doctors' launch had shoved off the crimping boats would surround the ship and the runners would come scrambling aboard like bramleykites around a dead coolie, with bottles of rotgut whiskey protruding from each pocket. As soon as the crew was drunk enough they would be individually assigned to whatever houses they had been persuaded by the various runners to patronize. When the runners had completed their canvass of the ship's crew they would return to their crow's nest on Staten Island and telegraph the results of their enterprises to New York. Then the town runners from the various crimping dens would meet the ship when she reached her berth and each would claim the victims mentioned by his fellow pirate at Quarantine.

If, by this time the crew was too drunk to dock the ship, the runners would take her lines on the pier and help make her fast and the skipper would pay them a fancy price and deduct it from the seamen's wages. The crimps would then load their drunken victims into express wagons with their dunnage and cart them "home."

Such was the usual modus operandi in such cases. The captains always permitted it, the shipowners encouraged it and the devil-dodgers sanctioned it.

On March 15, 1891, we arrived at Quarantine, 176 days out from Hiogo, Japan. The usual bunch of runners boarded us, of course, all modestly proffering pint flasks; but at length came Tommy Walker, the redoubtable runner of the staid and pious old Sailors' "Home," bringing a Standard Oil drum of standard size with a wire becket rove through two ear holes drilled in the top, full of Cherry street booze.

He slammed his trophy down on the forecastle floor with an ostentatious flourish, loudly proclaiming that no man could have a drink out of that can unless he was going to the Sailors' "Home" to board.

In 1893 the New York crimps sent a representative to England and negotiated contracts with many of the largest and wealthiest shipping firms in the United Kingdom for the shipment of their crews in the Port of New York. According to the terms of these nefarious contracts, the New York Crimping Association undertook to supply crews for all the signatory firms, excepting officers and apprentices, at a rate of wages not exceeding $15 per month, and to pay a rebate to the owners of $5 for every man so engaged. Immediately after this hellish deal had been consummated the advance in British ships sailing from New York was raised from $40 to $50 per month. Wages were fixed at a flat rate of $15 per month and shipping fees were raised from $10 to $15 per man.

Between the 15th of October, 1893, and the 15th of March, 1894, the first six months of a three-year contract, 70 sail of British ships entered New York harbor, all chartered to load case oil for the Far East, and all under contract to the New York crimps for the engagement of their crews.

Allowing 18 seamen as an average crew of each ship, which would be a reasonable estimate, we have a total of 1260 seamen. At $50 advance they were compelled to pay $63,000 in "blood money." At $15 each, they paid $18,900 in shipping fees, contrary to United States law. And of this sum the unprincipled British shipowners received $6,300 in "blood money" rebates. And as a member of the Crimping Association the Sailors' Home at 190 Cherry street was an active party to these base contracts, and during the three years they remained in force supplied hundreds of unfortunate victims to fulfill their hideous terms.

In 1894 the existence of these contracts was discovered by the agent of the Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union at New York. The names and titles of 28 of the signatory firms in Great Britain were learned and verified to a certainty, and these were sent to Mr. Eugene T. Chamberlain, who then was and, we believe still, remains, U. S. Commissioner of Navigation at Washington, D. C.

The following year the Commissioner referred to these abominable contracts in his annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury, so for the first time the matter was made public. Then when the contracts expired in 1896 the British ship mongers, finding that the cat was out of the bag, refused to renew them, although solicited by the New York crimps to do so. But by that time fully 10,000 hopeless victims must have been shanghaied under these villainous agreements; the majority of them never returned and many were lost at sea.

In December, 1894, this writer accompanied President Andrew Furuseth, of the International Seamen's Union of America, to the headquarters of the American Seamen's Friends (?) Society in an effort to secure the endorsement of the Society to the Seamen's Bills (the Maguire Bills) then pending in Congress. These bills provided, among other proposed reforms, for protection of seamen from brutal officers, for the protection of their health by providing sanitary forecastles and a scale of provisions equal in kind and quality to that served to convicts in the penitentiaries, for the abolition of the degrading crimping system, for seaworthy ships and the freedom of contract to labor and personal liberty vouchsafed all men under the Constitution of the United States.

The Reverend Secretary received us very coldly, fingered the bills very gingerly, as though they had been infected, pursed his lips wisely and at length announced that he would lay the matter before the next meeting of the board of directors.

About two weeks later we received a report from the Reverend Secretary informing us that the board of directors had decided at their last sitting that, while the Society was "deeply interested in the moral and spiritual welfare of seamen, it could not enter into any controversy between them and their employers."

When we came to examine the list of directors of the Society we discovered that an unduly large proportion of them were prominent shipowners and merchants.

What's the use to sue the devil when the court is held in hell?

In addressing the Committee on Cities of the State Legislature at Albany, in May, 1894, one of the most notorious

(Continued on Page 11)

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

(By Laurence Todd)

If the workers in the industries and the stockholders in those industries cannot both be satisfied from the profits, then the workers are entitled to the first full share, because the stockholders can always go to work.

This is the argument of Father John A. Ryan, D. D., director of the Social Action department of the National Catholic Welfare Council, here, in a pamphlet on "Capital and Labor," which the Council has just issued. He takes the position that the purpose of industry is the production of a livelihood for those in the industry. They must have a standard of living that means steady improvement and self-respect. Private profits must be a later consideration. Greater production is to the benefit of both worker and capitalist, but between worker and capitalist there is no common interest when the product is distributed.

"As regards the division of the product," he declares, "the interests of capital and labor are mutually opposed. While labor participation in management and profit-sharing would considerably soften the conflict over the division of the product, it would not and could not soften the problem."

Dr. Ryan lays down the principle that all the people have the right of access to the earth's resources of livelihood under reasonable terms and conditions; that all have a right to a decent livelihood from work; that some have a right to more than a decent livelihood, because of higher usefulness; that stockholders have a right, after decent wages have been paid, to the prevailing rate of interest. But—

"The stockholders have other means of livelihood than their interest-income; they have their opportunity to work.

"If the workers are compelled to accept less than living wages in order that the stockholders may obtain the normal rate of interest, the elementary needs of the workers—their need of food, clothing and shelter—will be accounted less important than the desires of the stockholders to enjoy life's luxuries and superfluities.

"Therefore, justice requires that the owner of capital should not receive interest until all the workers have obtained remuneration equivalent to a decent livelihood."

This suggestion is very timely, since the country is being flooded with editorials and newspaper articles and special pleadings of all sorts, to the effect that "wages must come down, along with prices." There is a terrible anxiety lest profits of stockholders may come down.

Government officials here who keep track of foreign business conditions say that that's the point of this labor revolution in Italy—the stockholders were hogging the profits and starving the workers. The workers demanded that they be given a chance to see how the industries were run, and what were the profits, and who got the profits, and for what service. The business magnates were afraid to open their books. So the workers walked into the shops and grabbed the books and the machinery too.

They found, as they had suspected, that a lot of ornamenal "directors" were getting $5,000 a year or so, just to attend an occasional meeting of the board, when they knew nothing of the industry and were merely social patrons or friends of the stockholders. The stockholders charged these fat salaries up to "management." Then there were rake-offs for other social butterflies, politicians, military strutters, etc., under the pretense of business commissions, or wholesale agents, or any of the various frauds whereby the workers in an industry are cheated of the decent livelihood which Father Ryan declares is the right of labor first of all.

What has come of the Italian industrial revolution, thus far, is the putting of trade union committeemen on the boards of all industrial concerns, and trade union expert accountants in the offices, so that the labor power of Italy shall within a few months have a complete organization of brains in the actual management of all Italian business, and shall be able to cut out all of the side-graft which has been starving the workers and their families. Then, within a few months or a year at most, they are going to put their own men into the technical end of every business—experts in the processes of manufacture and handling of goods—so that they will be able to bring about more efficient production.

All of these committeemen of labor will then form a national organization which will plan out the further development and improvement of Italian industry as a whole, for the betterment of the Italian people as a whole. Of course, they will carry out Dr. Ryan's principle, that the first thing to be secured is a decent living for the workers themselves—and their standard of living will be steadily raised.

The keynote of the Italian industrial revolution is its peaceful, common-sense, bread-and-butter directness toward the goal of better production and fairer distribution of manufactured goods. "Even a college professor can understand it," as the Western phrase runs.

Reason for the peaceful acceptance of the new industrial state in Italy is given by a bureau chief, who says that the Italian labor movement includes a majority of the citizens, and that the present royal government holds office merely by consent of the workers, who may decide on a new government at any time.

It is in the light of the Italian events, and in view of the unanimous action of European labor against any further attacks upon Russia, that the resolutions adopted by a great majority in the convention of the International Association of Machinists at Rochester this week must be read.

These resolutions declare that the recent world war failed to establish the hoped-for democracy in the world; that instead a debt which will burden the shoulders of the working class for many generations has been fastened upon them; that the masters of industry have, through this war debt, been enabled to further enslave the workers through control of the cost of living, and that henceforth labor will be granted less and less of what it produces, if the master class has its way.

"The wars of the world," the resolutions say, "will never stop until those who are called upon to do the fighting and pay the debts take it into their own hands to establish peace on earth and the true brotherhood of man.

"The working people of Russia have established a new order of society responding to the needs of the times. The Russian Soviet Government has shown by word and deed that it is not waging war for the purpose of conquest; that it has committed no aggression upon any nation's territory; has attempted no conquest of other peoples, and has resorted to arms merely to defend itself against unjust attacks from the outside as well as the reactionary forces within."

They proceed to denounce the blockade and military measures of the American Government against Russia as illegal, and to call upon the Government to cease this hostility and to "leave the people of Russia in possession of their rights as human beings." Sympathy for the Russian Soviet Government is then formally expressed. The Machinists' international officers are instructed to "communicate with the labor officials of other countries" in which the governments might by agreement with the American Government seek to force the workers to take up arms against Russia, in order to "let the workers themselves decide whether there is cause for war or not." They call upon the officials of the A. F. of L. to do the same.

Beside this, the convention cabled to the British labor movement a message of congratulation on its sending to the British Government an ultimatum against any further war.

Expulsion of O. B. U. agents from the convention was the result of general agreement, especially among the Plumb Plan League workers, that the Machinists have never been in so strong a position to "deliver the goods" to the workers, and that any disruptive agitation to-day is treason to the working class. The tremendous ovation given Glenn Plumb tells the story of the spirit of these delegates of 300,000 organized craftsmen.

Collapse of the "bomb plot" charges made by most of the newspapers and press associations of the country when the explosion took place in Wall Street on September 16 has been accompanied by no apologies on the part either of Attorney-General Palmer or his detectives or by the anti-labor press which tried to insinuate a connection between the explosion and Palmer's refusal of labor's demand that he release political prisoners. John Donlin, president of the Building Trades department of the A. F. of L., hit the nail on the head when he declared, promptly, that the blast would be found to have been an accident, due to a collision with a dynamite wagon which was on the street in violation of law.

Secretary of State Colby, formerly for a brief time on the Shipping Board, is another official who has not apologized. His grievance against the Labor Press Association whose reporters he has just excluded from the confidential interviews at the State Department, is that it has printed some parts of his class-propaganda, and that it has complained when he tried to color the news about Poland, Haiti and other countries so as to cover up the imperialist and aristocratic tendencies of his game.

Your correspondent, who had the honor to "have it out" in open verbal combat with Colby and to be given the door in consequence, has never published all of the "inside stuff" that was conveyed to the newspaper men at these secret conferences. He has never, for example, mentioned a bitter attack on the shipyard workers as profiteers and hold-ups; nor an unfriendly comment on a great religious organization that is doing splendid service to the organized labor movement; nor sneers at the cause of the Irish race.

Anyone who approaches the State Department, under Colby's regime, with a cause that appeals to working people and to lovers of human justice, will discover the reason why Colby does not want to be questioned by the representatives of the workers' press.

ATLANTIC COAST AND GULF

(Continued from Page 9)

crimps in New York said in his opening remarks, made in our presence:

"Mr. Chairman, and Gentlemen, I represent the Sailors' Landlords Association, the Shipowners' Association and The American Seamen's Friends Society of the Port of New York."

If that crimp had never told the truth before, he told it then, for he represented the forces that had sent him and was authorized to speak for them all.

But as we shall have a great deal more to say on this interesting subject in future issues of the Journal, we must draw the line for the present, having already exceeded our allotted space. But we would gently admonish all magazine writers wishing to become famous by writing fancy sea tales to learn their subject at first-hand before they begin. All so-called Seamen's Societies and Institutes are cloistered business ventures pure and simple. Under the cloak of religion they can solicit capital without hindrance, exploit seamen without reproof and erect lordly skyscrapers without taxation.

They have never done anything to improve the seaman's conditions, to raise his wages or protect his person, nor can they prove that they have ever saved a soul.

They are now reaping golden harvests where they have never even planted a mustard seed.

They are creating paper mates and discouraging good seamanship; they are attracting droves of foreigners to the Merchant Marine and displacing hundreds of Americans.

Honest American seamen will never submit to being made the objects of public philanthropy and charity drives.

We do not believe in the religion they preach and never practice. If we cannot get to heaven with the religion we learned at mother's knee, then we'll have to become albatrosses and forever fly 'round Cape Horn.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

Special Notice

The following named seamen, or any of them who were on board a steamship in collision in New York Harbor on March 17, 1919, are requested by The City of New York to report or communicate with Mr. Anthony Johnson, Room 1540 Municipal Building, New York City:

Edward Christiansen, Seamen's certificate No. 33286.

Gustave Faulk, Seamen's certificate No. 66081.

John Spavas, Seamen's certificate No. 68016.

N. Hansen, Seamen's certificate No. 63983.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

A REMEDY THAT WILL CURE

The New York Legislature could have stopped rent profiteering by changing the tax laws. It could have put upon land values, aside from the value of improvements, the entire cost of running the government. It could have abolished all taxes save upon land values and made the tax high enough to absorb the entire rental value of land. That would have made the holding of land unprofitable except for use. Consequently all land having any value would by this time have been put to its best use. Consequently there would have been enough new buildings erected to make competition between houseowners sharp enough to force rents down. But to have done that would have interfered indirectly with private ownership of land. The Legislature did not want to do this. It preferred to give the rent-gouger a longer lease of predatory opportunities. It has done so.

THE ORIGIN OF "DIXIE"

A monograph in the London Financial Times on the history of the old Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, at New Orleans, reveals the origin of the name "Dixie Land"—the term applied now to all the Southern states and preserved in the famous Southern war song, "Dixie." Prior to the Civil War the Citizens' Bank, having the power to issue paper notes, issued several millions of bills in denominations of $10 and $20, but mostly $10. The $10 bills were engraved in French with the French word "Dix" featured on their backs. The bills became known as "Dixies," and this money becoming popular, Louisiana was referred to as the "Land of Dixies," or "Dixie Land." Eventually the term was so broadened as to apply to all the Southern states. This seems a very acceptable explanation of the origin of the term, which has been the subject of so much discussion.—Cleveland Press.

"This great country, which we are pleased to call ours, belongs, by legal title, to a few landlords whose number and proportion to the whole people are annually growing less."—James G. Maguire.

"When there is a great demand for labor in agriculture, and wages are high, there must soon be a great demand for labor, and high wages in all occupations."—Henry George.

The dendrograph is an instrument that has been invented for recording growth and other variations in the dimensions of trees.

"We propose to abolish poverty by the sovereign remedy of doing to others as we would have others do unto us; by giving to all their just rights."—Henry George.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175

BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588

CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842

MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street

TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666

SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue

CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer

Branches:
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W

SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131

CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666

TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823

CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866

MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543

CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary

Branches:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street

Branches:
VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street

Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street

Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214

SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street

Agencies:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street

Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG .....Alaska
UNGA .....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

More than 8,000 coal miners have won their strike against the contract system maintained by the Pennsylvania Coal Company.

During the first six months of the present year the International Molders' Union of North America paid $163,498.20 to its members in sick benefits.

The 5 and 10 per cent. wage offer made by pottery works' owners has been accepted by a referendum vote of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

Bricklayers in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, employed by the Leonard Construction Company have suspended work to enforce a rate of $1.25 an hour. Former rates were $1.10.

The membership of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders is nearing the 25,000 mark. The last report placed the figure at 24,496.

President Wilson approved the majority report of the anthracite coal commission, increasing the wages of contract miners 20 per cent. over present rates.

The last report of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators shows a membership gain of 3432 in one month. The good standing membership was 123,436 and is still going up.

Associated silk manufacturers in Paterson, N. J., have qualified for vaudeville. They appropriated $3,000 to conduct an agitation for the non-union shop, which, they declare, "is in no way hurtful to the legitimate activities of trade unions." The bosses aver non-union employes must not lose their independence.

The interests behind Governor Allen's "can't-strike" law are whispering that Kansas needs a few troops of State constabulary to "protect the farmers from thieves." Trade unionists are alert to this siren song which has been sung in eastern legislative halls by corporation lobbyists during the past several years.

The eleventh quarterly report of the Bloomington (Ill.) Co-operative Society shows that all records have been broken and a 9 per cent. dividend declared. Five per cent. of this amount is returned to members, proportioned on the basis of money spent at the store. This system of returned savings is known as the Rochdale plan.

In the financial column of a Philadelphia newspaper it is stated that the Federal Government of Brazil is considering plans for the issuance of $50,000,000 in bonds to be used for the erecton of homes for working people in Rio de. Janeiro to relieve the housing shortage. The homes are to be sold on payments spread over a period of twenty years, with very low interest charges.

In a letter to A. F. of L. headquarters, Thomas A. French, secretary of the Arizona State Federation of Labor, makes this report on labor's non-partisan activity in the primaries of that State: "The results thus far have proven that the non-partisan program is a success, and had we not adopted this method we would have lost all offices in Arizona. Among the State candidates nominated who are favorable to labor are the following: Supreme Court Judge, Secretary of State, Attorney General, State Treasurer, State Mine Inspector, State Auditor, Corporation Commissioner and Congressman."

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W

Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson, Jack
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George

Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.

Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling

Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry

Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38

Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor

Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar

Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.

Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.

Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.

Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liliquest, Rudolf
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.

Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James

Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.

Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.

Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E.
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplore, J.
Prinz, Carl

Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van

Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N.
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H.
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L.
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R.
Sterndoch, J.
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M.
Svenson, Thure
Sverdrup, Walter
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash , Letter List

Anderson, Fred
Anderson, John (registered)
Anderson, E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Brandt, H.
Berke, C.
Barton, M.
Brun, Mattias
Bedford, A.
Bradsbery, Geo.
Carlson, Oscar
Forsman, Niels
Hansen, Johan G.
Hansen, H. O.
Hanson, Halvor
Halvorsen, Halvor
Halvorsen, Hans
Janson, John
Johanesen, Alf.
Johnson, Karl
Johannesen, Jonas
Johanson, Emil
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Kinnunnen, Ant.
Olsen, Alf
Petersen, Hans
Ronald, P.
Randmets, Mike
Risenius, Sven
Saro, W. R.
Smith, Carl Johan
Toren, Gustaf
Tourela, Erick
Vejvorda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO

Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson Gust
De Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob.
Erickson, John
Eisen, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Levele, Ed.
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lindroos, Oscar
Lauren, William
McNeil, Daniel Ross
Monson, Jacob
McVeiar
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbi, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R.
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren, Hilmer
Registered Letters
Granzzi, Boraline
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rassmussen, T.

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Gronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgail, Mikel
Person, Fritz, Leonard
Rainhard, H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J..... 22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Members of the crew of the "West Katan," whose claims for salvage services rendered to the S. S. "Flavel" is being handled by the undersigned: It has just come to my attention that the Shipping Board have asked you to sign vouchers in settlement of the salvage claim. I was offered one-half-month's wages which was refused. It appears that they are endeavoring to get you men to settle directly. I advise that none of you accept this as it is grossly inadequate. At least you have no right to accept any settlement without consulting me. Silas B. Axtell, Attorney for Seamen, 9 State Street, New York City. 10-6-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

UNION LABEL
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
NYMAN BROS.
Bee Hive Store
Men's Furnishings, Hickory Shirts, Hats, Oil Clothing.
Home of the union made Co-operative Shoe
302 So. F Street, ABERDEEN, Wash.
on the Water Front.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

Portland, Or., Letter List

Ahren, Wm.
Andersen, A. C.
Andersson, Axel
Andersson, Carl
Anderson, A. B.
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Anderson, Gunnar
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakaihn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsic, Karl
Bach, Soren
Backman, Peter
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Gust
Bohm, Franz
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Davison, Jim
Diez, H.
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. E.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Enberg, Einar
Fogelberry, Harry
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gilkison, A. F.
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Gronbeck, H.
Gruber, J.
Halley, W.
Hanson, August
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Holland, E. A.
Heino, Gust
Henrikson, Geo.
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Irmey, Feodor
Jacobs, Fulton
Jernberg, Alfred
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Jones, E. L.
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kauko, Axel
Kelly, Norman
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Krause, Frank
Kristiansen, Wm. A.
Laine, A. A.
Laine, John
Larsen, Hans
Larsson, Ragnar
Larson, C. J. -1632
Leisig, John
Lindner, John P.
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank E.
Malkoff, Peter
Matson, R. M.
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLeod, Angus
McLean, M. R.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Moyer, Geo. E.
Neilsen, H. J.
Nelson, Nels
Nelsson, C.
Neuling, G. A.
Nilsen, Christ
Norberg, John E.
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peterson, Mauritz
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Preston, E.
Pyne, J. W.
Raanes, Johan
Rader, Allen
Rautio, Jack
Reiman, Tovo H.
Rier, Earl W.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Saine, Arthur A.
Salonen, Victor
Salin, Toivo H.
Sandvik, S. G.
Scott, M.
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sutse, Michel
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Thomson, Henry
Thorsen, Chas.
Tinstrom, A. R.
Tunkanen, John J.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wikstrom, Carl
Willis, Samuel
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Fred L.
Worn, Otje

San Pedro Letter List

Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, Sven
Anderson, C.
Anderson, Bartines
Andowiz, H.
Arentsen, John
Arnesen, Isack
Asaksen, Asak
Aspe, Teodor
Arnold, Tom
Bentley, Clifford
Berglund, Emil J.
Bergstrom, J.
Bengston, Sigfried
Brown, Irwing
Burge, Lawrence
Braden, W. A.
Bye, Kristian
Brast, Sjomans
Bjorklund, Erick
Benson, Chas. A.
Bergeson, B.
Belmont, Joe
Boe, John
Carr, R. W.
Cowan, Wm. L.
Cariera, Peter
Craig, Thomas
Church, C. A.
Cage, Thomas
Christoffersen, C.
Cumalet, J. H.
Castle, H. C.
Carlson, C.
Doty, Erwin
Desmond, Albin
Daw, Walter
Daunt, C.
Deaver, Alwin
Dreger, Jack
Dragich, Peter
Davis, Orville
Drennen, William
Disney, Robert
Devine, John
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Eliasen, John
Evensen, Alex
Edwich, Leonarel
Engel, F.
Eliassen, Emil
Fottinger, Karl A.
Frair, Enoch
Feeder, George
Franzel, A. H.
Freitag, F.
Fansel, H. D.
Fahey, M.
Fairbrothers, Ed.
Fish, Ralph
Golden, Roy
Grason, Joe
Gunnerud, Ulrick
Gronthal, Albert
Greenwall, J. E.
Gotz, Rudolph
Gallagher, Denny
Galke, Roy
Gaede, W.
Hurley, Michael
Holland, Jonny
Hermanson, Carl
Hellesten G.
Hansen, Claf
Hogsted, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Hey, Ben
Hickey, John
Herlin, W.
Hogstedt, Chas.
Haman, O. W.
Hangman, Ed.
Holtkamp, C.
Ikaanes. Edward
Isakson, J.
Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Jacobsen, Tom
Johnsen, P. -2313
Jensen, Marius
Johnson, George
Johansen, Carl
Johnson, Waldron
Johansen, J. -1432
Jonaseon, Johanes
Janofy, Axel
Jeeden, George
Jensen, Kristian
Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Johansson, Gustav
Jonson, K. A.
Kenrich, Richard
Kelty, Peter D.
Kessa, Th.
Keel, Jewel
Knudsen, Andrew
Kristoffersen, Hans
Kleman, Otto
Kepplar, C.
Killat, Dau
Karkl, Juho
Kluge, Frank
Klahn, Karl
Kemmulsen, Alf.
Kappen, Bernt
Krumholz, Edwin
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John A.
Lindholm, Charles
Lowrey, John
Loderson. John

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

Books for You While at Sea

ADVENTURE — SEAMANSHIP
ROMANCE—HISTORY—TRAVEL
SCIENCE—GREAT MEN'S LIVES

Books to Help You Spend Idle Hours in a Pleasant and Worth While Way

For a Free Crew's Library Exchangeable at Any Time

Apply to

American Library Association

34 Sacramento Street San Francisco

Phone Sutter 6985

Or to other A. L. A. Agencies in Almost Any American Port

These books are provided free for your use by the people of the United States through the American Library Association.

When you have finished with them, they may be exchanged for another collection at any office of the American Library Association, or they may be exchanged for any A. L. A. collection on board another boat.

In fairness to the men on the next ship receiving this collection you should take reasonable care to prevent loss or damage to any book.

Larsen, Johan 1542
Landborg, Chas.
Lorgeman, Fred
Laine, John
Lill, Karl
Lund, F. V.
Lauritzen, Ole
Levine, Carl
Lobeles, Jose
Lehmus, Bill
Langeman, W.
Lund, Alal
Lundquist, Axel
Lutzen, W.
Moor, Peter
McNeil, John
McRay, Jack
Mize, J. H.
McGhee, E. J.
Martinson, John
Maahs, Willi
Magnusson, John
Moritz, W.
Monson, Ed.
Mato, Alex
Murphy, Frank
Moller, J.
Moutcso, Joe
Mueller, John
Nankinen, F.
Nelson, Ernest
Nilsson, Edward
Nelson, Gust
Nelson, Charlie
Njutrom, Uno
Nilsen, A.
Nelson, Ham
Nielsen, P. F.
Nelson, Andreas
Nelson, Emil
Nelson, Hans
Ogren, V. E.
Olofson, Oscar
Olson, Toney
Oleson, Chars. C.
Olsen, Emil
Ono, Jolias
Petersen, August
Pastrillen, H. K.
Petersen, Hugo
Perry, William
Parr, Robert M.
Pedersen, Harold S.
Petterson, Axel K.
Rossdam, Ha.
Robert, Bob
Rohman, Pet
Rueter, Aman
Raaum, Harry
Rod, Halfdam
Rosenthal, Walter
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred
Roberts, J. W.
Runge, R.
Rosamund, J.
Roberts, Pisney
Ruiz, Jose
Sanders, Chas.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Sunde, O. H.
Soder, Paul
Sandberg, A.
Seland, Hans
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Smith, Carl Johan
Steffensen, Hans
Scheumberg, Wm.
Swanson, Mr.
Scottel, Andrew
Steen, Ivar
Sterndock, John
Swindells, William
Scrivers, W.
Sullivan, Jack
Swanson, Erick K.
Strom, Oscar
Strahle, Chas.
Stenard, Percy
Swenson, A. -1932
Sundgrau, Walter
Sunnesvig, Olaf
Skaanes, Edward
Svendsen, Fred
Sveortary, Seppel,
Sundquist, Walter V.
Schultz, W.
Treiberg Peter
Thal, R.
Torsman, Niels
Thompson, James
Veckenstedt, Wm.
Vitol, Alex.
Voth, Gus
Wilson, John
Wrobluske, Paul
Winkelman, Otto
Wennerquist, Anton
Wihemson, Karl Woods, Claude
Wich, Ole
Wrig, P.
Werne, John
Young, William
Yeoman, W. E.
Zoerb, Walter
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

Honolulu Letter List

Bergesen, Bert
Bradley, Ed.
Buck, Harry
Caldwell, John
Campbell, Ed.
Danielsen, Adolph
Dant, B. C.
Ettersen, Ward
Harns, Ed.
Johnsen, Hilding
Larsen, John
Lame, Pat.
Leison, Will.
Lind, Gust.
Matson, Rolf.
Mulligan, Ed.
Nickols, Henry
Sandel, T. S.
Stronberg, Pet.
Stewart, A. J.
Solberg, B. P.

INFORMATION WANTED

Any one knowing the whereabouts of John B. Isaacs will please notify Chas. F. Bullock, Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, 321 Twentieth street, Galveston, Texas. Matter of great importance. 3-31-20

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST

SAN FRANCISCO

Home News

All federal prisoners in the Maryland state penitentiary will be removed to other institutions as a result of an investigation of charges of brutality in the Maryland institution, according to an announcement by the Department of Justice.

Farmers are compelled to pay 10 per cent. for credits even on the best of security and this condition may affect the movement of record crops, said George Hampton, managing directon of the Farmers' National Council. "The farmers' end of the help from the Federal Reserve Banks system," he said. "is not only the small end of the horn, but practically the disappearing end."

Leprosy, a scourge of humanity since early history, apparently has been conquered by officers of the United States Public health Service in the leper colony at Kalihi, Hawaii. Forty-eight sufferers of the dreaded malady who have been subjected to a new method of treatment have recovered to such extent as to warrant their release on parole, and after a year not one has shown a symptom of recurrence.

The American people are eating less meat, according to Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the Federal bureau of animal industry, in an address before the convention of the Institute of American Meat Packers. During the past year, the speaker said, the consumption of meat, per capita, decreased eight pounds. He said this was considerably less than the average consumption before the war and that the decrease will have an unfortunate effect upon the livestock industry if continued.

Strong opposition to the further admission of Japs was recorded by the annual encampment of the veterans of foreign wars, held in Washington. Resolutions demanded the abrogation of the Root-Takahira agreement, known as "the gentlemen's agreement," which permits the admission of certain classes of Japs to the United States. The veterans also demanded the adoption of an amendment to the Federal Constitution refusing American citizenship to any child whose parents are not eligible to citizenship.

In New York the lines are shaping for a struggle between the dairymen's league and milk distributers, middlemen and milk condensing firms. The league insists that producers should control the price of milk and farmers all over the State are signing their names to this declaration and pledging support to co-operative marketing, which its advocates declare will eliminate the middlemen. The milk condensing concerns threaten to close down because of surplus stock. It is stated that one concern has $75,000,000 worth of stock in storage.

Starting with September 1 the government ended its policy of meeting the deficits of the railroads by reaching into the treasury of the United States. Under the Cummins-Esch bill the railroads were given this guarantee for six months after the passage of the act. Under this system Uncle Sam footed the bill for the recent outlaw railroad strike. It is whispered that some of the railroad managers lost little sleep over this outburst, because the government would meet all charges and they believed the outlaws might possibly succeed in permanently dividing the railroad labor organizations.

Domestic and Naval

Rear Admiral Long, who has been in command of division 4 of the Atlantic fleet has been appointed Director of Naval Intelligence, succeeding Rear Admiral Albert C. Niblack, recently assigned as naval attache at London.

More than 750 merchant ships are tied up in British ports, and several hundred in Japanese harbors, according to official dispatches received from London. Low freight rates and the general slump in ocean traffic are said to be the cause.

Completion of a sales agreement under which Louis M. Atha of New York is to purchase ten composite vessels, aggregating 40,000 deadweight tons, for $1,400,000, was announced recently by the Shipping Board.

The American minister reports from Christiania, Norway, that at a recent meeting of the Christiania Rederiforening (Christiania Shipowners' Association) the chairman stated that shipping freight rates have declined 100 per cent. in the past six months and time charters have dropped from 45s. to 20s. per ton.

The Shipping Board oil station at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, does not undertake to furnish supplies to vessels other than those owned by the Shipping Board, and in view of the shortage of stock at the disposal of the Board, it is unlikely that bunker oil can be had by private vessels at this port. The same conditions apply to the Shipping Board oil station at Honolulu.

At the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1920, the total American registered, enrolled and licensed shipping, according to the returns of the Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce, consisted of 28,182 vessels of 16,324,013 gross tons, compared with 27,513 vessels of 12,907,300 gross tons on June 30, 1919. Of the year's increase nearly 90 per cent. consists of seagoing vessels of 1000 gross tons or more built at public expense and owned by the United States Shipping Board.

Destructive effect of the Nation's coast defense guns against an armored warship will be tested for the first time in an experimental bombardment of the old battleship Massachusetts. The Massachusetts will be turned over to the War Department about November 1 to be used as a target for the twelve-inch coast guns and mortars of Pensacola, Fla. Although the Massachusetts was constructed about twenty years ago, her eighteen-inch armor approximates that of the latest battleship. The ship will be anchored at a range of about three miles.

The campaign for the enlistment of Californians for the superdreadnaught "California," now under construction at Mare Island, has extended its scope of activities to embrace not only naval recruiting stations, but those of the marine corps also. The marine guard of the new battleship is to be composed entirely of native-born Californians, according to an announcement made at marine recruiting headquarters. The U. S. S. "California" is expected to be ready for sea in the early part of January, 1921. The new plan to man battleships entirely by natives of the States after which the vessels are named is expected by naval officials to benefit morale and stimulate competition in efficiency by the various ships crews.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK A. H. R. SCHMIDT A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY I. N. WALTER E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE HUGH GOODFELLOW ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON L. S. SHERMAN
GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. W.
Aagaard, A. M.
Adolfsson, John
Alhstrom, Ellis
Alto, John
Altonen, Carl
Almon, L.
Altonen, Carl
Andersen, Adolf
Andersen, Axel F. C.
Andersen, Jens
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas.
Theo.
Anderson, G. Alexius
Anderson, Edwin
Anderson, James
Anderson, S. E.
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, Edvin
Anderson, Frank
Andersson, C. -2001
Andersson, G. A.
Andersson, G. S.
Anderson, John
Aronson, Gunnar
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Attaberry, Clarence
Augustin, Herman

Baardsen, Hans
Backman, Paul
Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Baker, B. A.
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Baumont, H.
Bendixen, Hans
Bengtson, Oscar
Blomgren, C. A.
Bloom, Pete
Boerner, P. F.
Borjesson, H. J. B.
Bosshardt, H.
Bothe, O.
Boutwell, Billie
Botsford, R. D.
Bower, Gordon
Bourman, Jack
Brander, Wm.
Braun, James
Broshear, A. O.
Broshear, A. O.
Brown, Dudley C.
Bryning, Wm.
Burr, W. H.

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, Andy
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Peter
Carpenter, Harold
Chilcott, Geo.
Christensen, H. C.
Clausen, Louis
Coffey, Geo.
Colman, J.
Conley, Irwin
Corey, Eldridge
Coulyou, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dahl, Helge
Dahl, Otto
Dahl, Oskar
Dahls, Ogden
Davis, Warren
Daunt, C.
DeMario, Thos
Dickensen, T.
Donnellon, Geo.
Domke, Willi
Drange, F. S.
Drennen, W. N.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Dumas, C.
Duff, Peter W.
Dunhane, Matt.

Eastman, J. W
Eaton, Lawrence
Eide, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Ericsson, Martin
Ellingsen, Harold
Ellis, F. L.
Emmerz, Joe
Engstrom, Ed.
Endemann, M.
Ennus, Pito
Ericsson, Gustaf W.
Erickson, -997
Ertman, Eskil
Eskelinen, Erick
Esterberg, Gus.
Even, Frank

Farevoog, C. M.
Farrell, Bernand
Fletcher, Jos.
Freese, Paul
Fredricksen, O.
Freierbach, C.
Fuller, Geo. E.

Gabrielsen, Lars
Gallery, R. B.
Gaougat, F.
Garnetzky, Fritz A
Germenis, Socrates
Glassner, Albion
Golden R. L.
Graham, Thos.
Graham, Ray
Grainge, Arnold
Granberg, Fred
Gregory, M. N.
Green, Lawrence
Green, Grandville
Griffin, J. R.
Groman, Gusta
Grondahl, Armas W.
Gustaffson, Walter
Gunderson, H. T.

Haider, Henry
Haider, Henry
Hale, Kingsley
Hallit, Frank
Hallowes, L. N.
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, H. V.
Hansen, Magnus
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Harbst, J. D.
Hartog, J.
Harvey, Earl S.
Hauptman, F.
Hawkins, L.
Hein, M.
Heldahl, Trygve
Henke, Erick
Hennum, Ludvig
Hensel, Paul
Henniques, L. O.
Hessin, B.
Higgins, P.
Holbrook, G. A.
Hoskin, Alex
Houlak, John
Hoglander, Martin
Hood, Alex
Hunter, Ernest

Ibsen, Christian
Ireland, H.

Jacklin, Charles
Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jacobsen, Alfred
Jacobsen, Joakim
Jahnke, Paul
Jakullis, John
Jannson, K. Hj.
Janssen, Carl
Jensen, Carl O.
Jensen, Joe
Johansen, Johan R.
Johansen, Waldemar
Janson, John A.
Jansson, John
Jensen, Martin
Jensen, E. -1987
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jespersen, M.
Johannesen, Ole
Johanssen, Klaus
Johansen, Ellert
Johansson, C. -2094
Johannson, Albert
Johnson, Edward S.
Johnstone, Leslie
Jonsson, J. H.-2951
Johnston, Edw.
Johanson, E. -2715
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johnson, E. L.
Johansson, Bernad
Joiner, Jack
Jonsson, J. H. -2951
Jorgensson, F.
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaki, Lauri
Karlgren, -644
Karlsson, E. -1738
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Katkin, Ed.
Keeney, F. W.
Kelly, Geo.
Kessel, Harry
Kierne, G. H.
Klindt, Frederico
Kine, Conrad
Kinnie, E. J.
Kirby, Geo.
Kluge, Martin
Knutson, R. B.
Knudsen, Ragnval
Kokko, Martin
Kolustow, A.
Kraal, J.
Kragero, C. M. J.
Kristofferson, A. B.
Krishjan, K. W.
Kristoffersen, A. B.
Krueger, Harry

Laine, John E.
LaMadrid, R.
Lambert, Jos.
Lange, Henry
Langmann, Wm.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen, Sigruid
Larsen, John -2012
La Rue, C. E.
Lee, Albert
Leeder, W. -2287
Leegaard, Rasmus
Lehtonen, Hj. O.
Leskinen, F. A.
Lindahl, G.-2342
Lindroos, Geo.
Livingston, H.
Lidsten, Chas.
Lindeberg, Ernst
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Lindquist, Chas. S.
Lindroos, Fred
Liljedal, Ludv.
Loberg, Bror
Loning, Herman
Lundin, -1054
Lundstrom, Ernst
Lundstrom, Ernst
Lybeck, Theo.
Lyons, John

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
Maki, Ivar
Makares, S. J.
Mannila, Oscar
Manning, H. H.
Mannonen, Niels
Manzano, Luis
Marshall, Ira
Martinsen, Ingvald
Matheis, Herman
McFarlane, Dougal
McGauley, Geo.
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McCarthy, Harood
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Mess, W.
Meigand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Meyer, George
Mikelsen, Bernard
Mitchell, David
Mooi, Petei
Monroe, N. S.
Monsen, Charlie
Moi, J. W.
Moller, Fritz
Moonan, Thomas
Morgan, R. B.
Moritz, W.
Moore, H. L.
Morrison, Donald
Mohr, Chas.
Moller, H. W.
Morgan, R. B.
Morrison, Phillip
Moulas, Nicholas
Muller, Werner
Muldrose, W. L.
Murray, E. J.

Naylor, Geo. D.
Nelson, N. H.
Nelson, Charles
Nelson, Nils E.
Nelson, C. R.
Nesson, Ralph
Ness, Aksel
Neuman John
Neumann, H. -1423
Neveau, Thomas
Newton, A.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nielsen, Johannes
Nielsen, -1116
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nolen,
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordling, Sven
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nordgren, Ragnar
Nurmi, Wm.
Nuter, Alex
Nyman, John A.

Oad, John
Ogren, V. E.
Olafson, O. B.
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, J. H.
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, Magnus
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsson, C. G.-1101
Olsson, V.
Olsson, Charle
Olsson, James
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Osen, Aksel
Osted, Fred
Owervick, Thos.
Ozolin, Jan

Page, J. N.
Parker, David
Paulsen, E. A.
Paul, Ben
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, S.-1888
Pedersen, W. -1535
Perdock, A.
Peterson, Elias
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Phillips, Bob
Post, Albert
Publicatus, August
Puttner, Fred

Raasu, Matti
Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Rasmussen, Emil
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Regnill, Gustaf
Richardson, Edwin
Rillukka, John
Roach, Steffen
Robson, Carr
Roberts, John
Robertson, Robert
Rogers, Thos. G.
Ronn, E.
Rose, J.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Rupp, A.-1029
Ryan. James

Saharoff, John
Salli, Rudolf
Sampson, C. L.
Sampson, Carl -2136
Samuelson, E. -2888
Sanne, Rudolf
Saxby, C. H.
Sexton, Harry J.
Sigrist, George
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjoberg, Silas
Sjogren, Fred.
Skaar, Oskar M.
Skaug, Hans
Skeries, Hans
Skogstrom, John
Small, E. R.
Smith, L. R.
Smith, Geo. B.
Soland, B.
Solberg, Bernt P.
Sorensen, E.
Sorensen, N. M.
Sovdsnes, O. Petersen
Speckman, Max
Sprogoe, Theodor
Stanford, Harry
Steffenson, H. P. T.
Stone, M. C.
Strom, John
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Strele, F.
Stenensen, A.
Stewart, William
Sundberg, K. C.

Taylor, Sam C.
Tennison, George
Thomas, Fred
Thompson, Clifford
Thode, Rudolph
Tiller, Edward
Tillman, Chas.
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tjersland, S.
Torson, Andrew
Tovano, A. R.
Tucker, Harold J.
Tufty, C. J.
Turner, W. A.

Van der Loeff, H. A.
v d Ort, W.
Van Helden, H.
Viets, C. L.
Vierr, W.
Vitol, A.
Vorst, C. A.
Waterfall, L. N.
Wessberg, E. H. N.
West, Frank
Wiera, Hy.
Wiklund, Wiktor
Wilks, J.
Wilkins, Hy.
Wittenburg, D.
Woods, Dick
Wolfe, E. O.
Wolff, Paul E.
Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Corneliusen, M.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Egan, John
Engstrom, Edw.
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Goodman, Tony
Halvorsen, Isak
Henrikson, Ernst
Hobbs, Frank A.
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Jansonu, C. J. W.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
Ketelsen, Fred
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Mortensen, Bjarne
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Sternica, Carl
Stranberg, P.
Tillsten, Jack
van Vleet, F. B.
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED.

The following named members of the crew of the S. S. "Kenebec," who helped salve the schooner "Thomas L. Wand" on November 19, 1919, have vouchers ready to be distributed at our office:

Demetre Sakelaris, $46.80; Carl Puika, $56.72; Isidro Flores, $50.55; Janes Franco, $50.55; Daniel Rodrigues, $50.55; Rafael Corrillo, $50.55; Dimity Sacelarius, $50.55; Siegor Sorensen, $50.55. Levy & Levy, Lawyers, Trust Bldg., Galveston, Texas. 10-6-20

Anyone who was acquainted with the late Chas. Erickson, discharged from the U. S. Navy in 1896, and subsequent thereto sailing on the Pacific Coast, will confer a great favor upon his widow, Mrs. Charles Erickson, by communicating with her at P. O. Box 15, San Pedro, Cal. Mrs. Erickson is anxious to establish certain facts relating to the physical condition of her late husband prior to his discharge from the U. S. Navy. 1-28-20

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

CHRISTENSEN NAVIGATION SCHOOL ESTABLISHED 1906 SAN FRANCISCO S. F. CAL.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

19 East Street, Foot of Ferry Bridge
Wholesale—OUTFITTER—Retail
Everything for the man that goes to sea
SEAMEN AND FISHERMEN
GEO. A. PRICE
IS RIGHT
U. S. Navy Tower's
Sea Boots Flannels Oil Skins

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

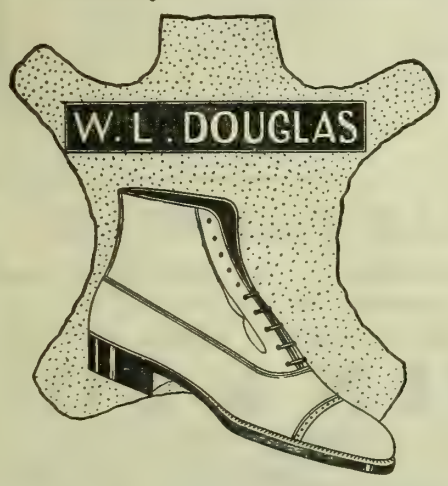
Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SAVE MONEY ON YOUR SHOES
Would you walk one-half block from Market Street to



Save $1 to $3?
We are located at 58 Third St., San Francisco.
We are agents for—
W. L. Douglas
Just Wright
Walk Ease
Strong & Garfield
We can positively save you money by buying your SHOES from us.
Our low rent and small expense make it possible for us to sell cheaper than the Market Street stores paying six times our rent.
We are showing a most exclusive and large stock of men's shoes. We can fit any foot and suit any fancy.
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET
Between Market and Mission
San Francisco, Cal.

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.
SEPT. 1880
Issued by Authority of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.
Union-made Cigars.
This Certifies. That the Cigars contained in this box have been made by a First-Class Workman a MEMBER OF THE CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION of America, an organization devoted to the advancement of the MORAL MATERIAL and INTELLECTUAL WELFARE OF THE CRAFT. Therefore we recommend these Cigars to all smokers throughout the world.
All infringements upon this Label will be punished according to law.
J. W. Artieus, President, C M I U of America
LOCAL STAMP

News from Abroad

The British Government has given official notice that, owing to raids by Sinn Feiners on the stations, light and fog signals on the Irish Coast can no longer be relied upon.

Maximum freights on mineral oil from America have been raised by the Norwegian Government from Kr. 100 to Kr. 140 per ton for Gulf loading, other ports being raised on the same scale.

The organization of the Central American Union Navigation Company is announced in a circular just issued by the International Central American Bureau. The company is to engage in the Central American coast trade.

The area under crop in Australia this season is 11½ million acres, which is an increase of 3½ million acres over last year. Four of the wheat-growing States have entered into arrangements for a compulsory wheat pool for the 1920-21 crop.

The estimated amount of the exportable surplus of the Burmah rice crop for the current year has been fixed at 1,800,000 tons of cargo rice, and it is announced in the Rangoon Gazette that this will be strictly under Government control.

On the plea that Dutch shipping companies are taxed in various countries, such as Great Britain and her Colonies, France, Spain, Greece, and the United States, the Dutch Government has been advised by Dutch shipowners to levy a similar tax upon the foreign shipping companies which use Dutch ports. Under this pressure the Dutch Government has appointed Mr. J. F. Dykstra to investigate and report.

During the first six months of the year 277 steam vessels have been launched in British shipyards, aggregating 969,840 tons, according to reports received in shipping circles. At the same time nineteen sailing vessels of 7433 tons were sent down the ways. The largest vessels now building in these yards is under 25,000 tons, three of them are in excvess of 20,000 tons, while sixty-three are over 10,000 tons and 211 over 500 tons.

In order to prevent a panic the Japanese government has arranged to make a loan to the Tokio stock brokers and the 74th Bank of Yen 80,000,000 ($41,200,000). These loans are an old practice of the Japanese government and it is believed that this form of paternalism is not a real help to Japanese industry for the reason that it encourages over-speculation which is the cause of the present depression in the land of the Mikado.

Norwegian undercutting on the freight markets of the world is believed to be a thing of the past, for the reason that Norwegian shipping, already heavily taxed, is likely to be called upon soon to face even greater imposts. The Norwegian budget for 1920 shows a deficit of Kr. 60,200,000, which will have to be met by borrowing, but in any case the interest on this sum will have to come out of taxation and as the leading industry of Norway, shipping will be called upon to shoulder most of the burden. The per capita debt of Norway is Kr. 391.11, or $104.82 at par exchange, which compares with $235.34 for the United States, but in the light of the potential productivity of both countries, Norway is far from being as well off as the United States in the matter of national indebtedness.

With the Wits

"Hi there, sir," shouted a Florida landlord to a departing guest who was rushing for the train, "you've dropped your pocketbook." "All right," shouted back the guest without stopping, "I've no further use for it."—New York Globe.

"If my boy Josh ever goes into politics," remarked Farmer Corntossel, "I reckon he'll be one o' these fav'rite sons." "What makes you think so?" "He works terrible hard for the first few days an' then isn't heard from the rest of the season."—Washington Star.

"Pa, what's a slush fund?" "It's a large sum of money raised by an opposing political party for corrupt purposes." "But, pa, dosen't your party ever have a slush fund?" "No, my son. We merely raise a little money for legitimate expenses."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The suitor had stated his case in a few halting sentences. "But have you achieved any success in life?" asked the adored one's father. "Oh, boy! Have I?" blurted the happy youth. "Why, didn't I make it clear to you that your daugher has promised to be my wife?"—Buffalo Express.

"I am negotiating for the services of a hired man," said Mr. Cobbles. "How are you getting along?" "First rate. He seems to like my motor-car pretty well, and the table board and the jazz records we bought for our phonograph. All we've got to do now is to decide on the wages and the number of hours a day he thinks he can work without injuring his health."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Hiram," said Mrs. Corntossel, "what bandwagon are you going to ride on?" "Mehitable," was the reply, "I know how I am goin' to vote, but I won't be flourishin' on any band-wagon. I am not sufficiently prominent to have a seat and be examined by the admirin' populace. I'm only one of the fellers that are supposed to be proud and happy if they are invited to climb down every now and then and crank up the car."—Washington Star.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen Trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James H. Sorensen
Watchmaker and Jeweler

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's Good Goods

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell
UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization

VOL. XXXIV, No. 7. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1920. Whole No. 1723.

THE SITUATION IN ITALY

A Review of the Recent Industrial Upheaval in That Country

The doings of the Italian workers in recent months have attracted world-wide attention. Their importance, from a news standpoint, has been regarded as second only to that of the Russian revolution.

It is quite clear, however, to those who can read between the lines that all has not been told with reference to the situation in Italy. This is especially noticeable as to the conditions out of which the present developments in that country have sprung. Yet without knowing something of those conditions a fair understanding of the developments can not be had.

Those interested in the subject will find much light on it in the following article by Mr. Arthur Livingston, reprinted from a recent issue of The Survey.

Recent events in Italy have not followed just the course that was projected by the Socialist Congress of Bologna, held in October, 1919. That Congress, marking an epoch in Italian Socialism, voted overwhelmingly for a "maximalist" program—the "immediate" seizure of the means of production and transportation by the working classes. The plan of the Congress called, however, for an orderly agitation under responsible leadership leading up to the establishment of a central revolutionary authority under the control of the labor unions, which, in some way undefined, would be able to seize power. Everyone remembers the immediate consequences of that vote. The Socialists won notable victories in the November elections, dividing honors with the revolutionary Catholics. The hopeful masses believed quite generally that the revolution had been voted in. In a few towns power was actually seized, and almost everywhere spontaneous rioting occurred. But the results were disappointing. Nothing of a prominent nature was inaugurated. One hundred and fifty-six Socialist deputies went to Rome and said many clever things in the course of a few months—the Catholics again dividing the honors. But it looked as though the revolution had talked itself to death.

The next developments, however, were of profound significance. In Turin the compact organization of the General Federation seemed suddenly to fall to pieces. The revolutionary workers in the factories there began impromptu to form the celebrated "shop councils," quite independently of the labor chambers, of the trade federations and of the national directorate of the greater federation. And with these councils came a new form of agitation. Ever since the late winter of this year the seizure of factories has been of common occurrence; and the "strike on the job" (ostruzionismo) became one more terror to be added to the daily torment of the capitalist. Immediately the General Federation, and eventually the Government also, adapted themselves to the new conditions. The Federation recognized the shop councils; the Government on irrelevant grounds legitimized some of the seizures. The shop councils and not the old cumbersome organizations became the advance guard of revolutionary agitation. The movement culminated in July when the shop councils planned a general seizure of factories throughout Italy. For lack of co-ordination and owing to the opposition of conservative elements in the labor organizations this operation failed, not, however, without laying the foundations for the events of August and September where the social revolution in Italy has registered very material gains.

The movement of August 20, when a policy of "obstructionism" was nationally inaugurated in the steel trade, owed its paralyzing power to the fortunate consensus of all the diverse elements in the Italian metallurgical industries—the Syndicalist Union (anarchical), the official Federation of Iron Workers (the F. I. O. M., affiliated with the General Federation), the Italian Labor Union (patriotic Socialist) and the Catholics. Taking advantage of a public demand for high taxes on profits, and of the announced intention of the manufacturers to resist any further demands for increased wages, the iron and steel workers called for such a new increase. The issue developed with all the formalities of chivalry. It was taken for granted on both sides that this struggle was to be a final show-down of relative strength, where the real points involved would be not money but principles. This was made clear by the workers in their refusal to consider any question as to whether the industry could stand a new wage increase; and by the manufacturers in their indifference to the question of arbitration. In answering the obstructionism of the workers by the lock-out the manufacturers hoped to put the question squarely up to the Government. If the workers went into the shops, drew their pay, and ran the machines but produced nothing, had the owners the right to close the shops? Would the Government uphold the rights of private property to that extent? The workers answered the lock-out by occupying the factories and trying to run them on their own account. The Government refused to allow the issue to be transported to the ground of legal precedent, and strove to effect a compromise.

It is in this evasion that the deep significance of the Italian disturbance lies. For whether or not the present agreement between labor and capital as to joint control of production proves permanent or not, the principle that public policy is superior to private property rights has entered into the Italian national consciousness. With practically no bloodshed, and with relatively little confusion as compared with the magnitude of the issues involved, on a basis of free and frank public discussion of the most vital interests of individual, group and nation, Italy has set out on an experiment in co-operation that is headed toward a form of industrial communism.

From this point the field is open to prediction, in which people will indulge in one sense or another as interest and temperament decide. To that large majority of American editorial writers who have outdone each other in picturing Italy as on the brink of something appalling, it may be comforting to reflect that among the possibilities is the chance that Italy may be on the brink of solving the whole question of industrial unrest. And that other group of enthusiasts who already see Bolshevism installed within the bosom of the Entente may be reminded that no one of importance in Italy foresees any immediate prospect of a thoroughgoing communization of Italian life. The accepted doctrine there is still that of the revolutionaries of the Right, that a communistic Italy cannot survive as an island in a capitalistic Europe.

Clearly the Italian Foreign Office and the agencies of the international press have done little to illuminate the conditions out of which the developments in Italy have sprung. One mystification emanating from both these sources has been the overemphasis laid upon the Fiume question, and the failure to point out that the real issue in foreign relations that has been exercising the Italian public has been Russia. To be sure there has been some honest self-deception in all that. The riots of May-July, 1919, were necessary to call the Italian government itself back from its absorption in the intrigues of Paris. But it is fair to say that taken by and large the Fiume issue has been a pastime of Italian politics to distract the public mind, and especially the foreign mind, from the realities of Italian conditions. What those realities have been we can here suggest only in a most general way.

Among them has been the complete isolation of the Italian government, of the Italian "governo," from any vital contact with public issues or with public opinion. Whenever, since the Armistice, anything has been done in Italy, it has been done by the parties interested in doing it; the "governo" has been a bureau of registration, empowered to take cognizance of established facts. It has accepted the seizure of Fiume by patriots, the seizure of lands by co-operatives, the seizure of factories by workers, the seizure of fortresses by subject States (Valona), the seizure of ships by sailors, and the seizure of public buildings by local populations. This means that the respect for political democracy in Italy has been seriously and progressively weakened. In fact, do we not owe to an Italian premier (Orlando) a syndicalistic definition of the ballot as the expression of an economic interest, and of the new concept of the State as the union of economic groups? And is not the most significant debate of the Italian Senate the debate as to whether it should not abolish itself?

Among them, also, has been the neutralization of the Italian army, a reality corollary to the preceding. There is no power on which the present Italian régime has been able effectively to rely. The army is moved about with the permission of the labor unions in operations only of which the labor unions have approved.

Among them, again, has been the vitalization, the coming into self-consciousness, of various groups, assembling around one interest or another to transform the moral and intellectual texture of the nation. Vital forces in Italy to-day are the owners of wealth, on the one hand, and the workers on the other—the two great forces the clash of which is giving new direction to the national life. Add to these the co-operatives, grown powerful in numbers and in activity, which are contributing to the establishment of the new economic consciousness of the nation. Then there is the church which has immensely broadened the scope of its aims and its action, rousing millions of Italians to a new outlook on the social problem. Again there are the soldiers of the late war, men who feel bound together by a common effort in a great cause and who are determined that not all the promises of a new kind of Italy for the future shall remain unfulfilled. Finally come the "intellectuals" of the country, the heirs of what has been called Italian culture, men trained to critical method and dispassionate judgment, men respected by all classes of people for the brilliancy of their discussion of public questions and their devotion to their ideals and to the nation. Such groups are asserting themselves in terms of direct action; and each of them is making itself felt in proportion to its real strength. That is why Italy, to-day, of all victorious powers, presents the picture of a nation governed more by actual public opinion than by force and by phraseologies. That is also why, in the face of a great social transformation, "the public" is neutral between the conflicting parties, giving no mandate for slaughter to elements who would otherwise be inclined to settle great issues by the strong arm.

There is an old phrase to the effect that "Italy will do it herself." It was in the spirit of that phrase that the country faced the consequences of the peace of Vienna. It is in something of the same spirit that she will handle the worse mess inherited from Versailles.

THE "RATE OF EXCHANGE."

The fluctuation in the rates of exchange for foreign moneys, consequent upon the war, has created a difficulty in the settlement of seamen's wage accounts. In the case of foreign-going vessels discharging crews at American ports it is customary to charge the "rate of exchange" for all money paid in foreign ports during the voyage. The difficulty arises in the effort to determine the rate of exchange at a given place on a given day.

A consideration of the law on the subject is necessary to an understanding of the problem. Section 4548, Revised Statutes, reads as follows:

> Moneys paid under the laws of the United States, by direction of consular officers or agents, at any foreign port or place, as wages, extra or otherwise, due American seamen, shall be paid in gold or its equivalent, without any deduction whatever, any contract to the contrary notwithstanding.

Assuming that the law includes all moneys paid by the ship master as part payment of wages, its meaning seems clear and explicit. Gold is practically out of circulation in every country, including the United States. Payments of money in port are made in the paper currency of the respective countries. Accordingly it would seem that the legal requirement of "gold or its equivalent, without any deduction whatever" means that moneys paid in paper or any form other than gold shall be chargeable only in the amount of gold into which the foreign currency can be converted. Thus, a one-pound note can be converted into, say, $3.50 gold; therefore all moneys paid in one-pound notes should be chargeable only at the rate of $3.50 per pound. So regarded, the question seems quite simple. But another element enters into the case which somewhat complicates matters.

The paper issued by foreign governments is the equivalent of gold in the country of issue. For instance, a British one-pound note is the equivalent of a British gold sovereign, just as, in the United States, a five-dollar bill is the equivalent of a five-dollar piece. Consequently, the shipowner sometimes takes the position that payments made to seamen in paper money are the equivalent of gold at the place where the payment is made, and therefore the seaman is chargeable on the basis of gold (normally $4.8665 per pound sterling), irrespective of the fact that the paper money received by the seaman may be worth in the United States only $4 or less per pound sterling.

It will be seen that the question becomes one of determining the meaning of the term "rate of exchange," as involved in this matter. Does that term imply the rate at which paper may be exchanged for gold in the country of issue? Or does it imply the difference between the exchange value of paper money in the country of issue and in a foreign country? If we accept the former of these alternatives as a fact, it follows that the seaman may legally be charged the normal rate of, say, $4.87 per pound sterling, since, as has been pointed out, British paper is the equivalent of gold in British ports. In this connection it should be borne in mind that as gold is unobtainable the parity of value between gold and paper in the country of issue is merely a theory.

If the latter of these alternatives be the fact, it follows just as certainly that the seaman can only be charged at the rate of exchange prevailing at the time and place at which he is finally discharged and paid off. In this view any charge for moneys paid in foreign ports in excess of what the same moneys would exchange for in the United States is in effect a deduction, and therefore illegal.

While the law above quoted appears clear, it is in fact obscure, or rather the conditions that have recently arisen have themselves obscured the law. The meaning of the law, while clearly expressed by its terms as applied to the conditions existing at the time of its enactment, in 1873, can not now be determined except by inference.

We are obliged to read into the law such language as shall suffice to distinguish between the equivalent of gold in the United States and in foreign countries. If we take the phrase, "shall be paid in gold or its equivalent" and add to it the words, "in the United States," the meaning which we now infer would be clearly and indisputably expressed. We would then know beyond all doubt that paper money paid to American seamen in foreign ports is chargeable only at the rate for which it can be converted into American money, without commission, discount, or any deduction whatever.

Section 4548, above quoted, was an improvement upon the British law of 1854, which provided that wages should be payable "either in money or by a bill drawn upon the owner." In 1862 the law was amended so as to provide that "payment shall, whenever it is practicable so to do, be made in money and not by bill," with the further requirement that, in case of payment by bill, "the owner shall be liable to pay the amount for which the same is drawn to the holder or indorser thereof." The British law was again amended in 1889, and now reads as follows:

> Where a seaman has agreed with the master of a British ship for payment of his wages in British sterling or any other money, any payment of, or on account of, his wages if made in any other currency than that stated in the agreement, shall, notwithstanding anything in the agreement, be made at the rate of exchange for the money stated in the agreement, for the time being current at the place where the payment is made.

The language of the British law is explicit and leaves no doubt as to the rate chargeable to the seaman. Applying the principle of that law to payments made to American seamen in foreign ports, the amount paid should be charged at the rate of exchange current at the time and place of payment.

As the "rate of exchange" indicates the rate at which foreign money may be exchanged for American money, payments made at the current rate of exchange would be equivalent to payment in gold, and therefore in conformity with law. In other words, a seaman receiving, say, twenty pounds in paper notes would be charged a sum equal to the actual value in gold of those notes, and no more.

Much of the difficulty that arises over this question may be obviated by agreement between seamen and shipmasters at the time of payment. The current rate of exchange should be entered in the Official Log-Book and certified by the consul. The practice, heretofore quite common, of entering payments in foreign terms, leaving the rate of exchange to be determined at the port of final discharge, leads to dispute, which it is practically impossible to settle, except by a more or less arbitrary method. In reality the question is one of simple arithmetic, which if properly dealt with may be determined as exactly as any other question of that nature.

GORGAS AS AN ECONOMIST

"Doubling of wages" was declared by the late General Gorgas as the most important sanitary measure that could be applied. In more than one public address he made clear that, if given the power to select only one thing to improve sanitation, doubling of wages would be his choice. Of course what he had in mind was a real increase in wages, not an imaginary one. He did not mean a doubling of wages to be accompanied by a trebling of prices or any price increase at all. He was an economic student and knew that such an "increase" would be in fact a reduction. He meant a wage increase that would actually double the wage-earner's purchasing power. He knew how to bring this about. He would have cut off the power of non-producers to absorb the earnings of labor. He would have abolished all taxes on labor or its products, have revoked the grants to private corporations of control of public highways, have taken the entire rental value of land for public use and abolish special privilege generally. In his public utterances he endorsed unequivocally the complete program of Henry George. He knew how to bring about economic justice, knew that economic justice is indispensable to public health, and did what he could to impart this knowledge to others.

"What we propose is simply to do justice."—Henry George.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Political Prisoners' Release

"Our country has been at peace, from a military standpoint, for nearly two years and the release of all political prisoners will do much to tranquillize our country and re-establish normal times."

This declaration was made by President Gompers in a plea to Attorney-General Palmer for a general amnesty to all political prisoners. With President Gompers were Vice-Presidents Valentine and Woll and Secretary Frank Morrison of the A. F. of L.; officers of various national and international unions and the several A. F. of L. departments and other trade unionists. The meeting with the Attorney-General was in compliance with a resolution adopted by the last convention of the A. F. of L., which unanimously declared for an amnesty.

President Gompers said the unanimous adoption of this resolution was remarkable because no group of citizens were more loyal than the organized wage workers. He called attention to labor's declaration of lovalty in the event of war made three weeks before this country proclaimed a state of war. The Attorney-General replied: "You don't need to defend the loyaltv of the A. F. of L., Mr. Gompers."

"Our action at the present time is not without precedent," continued the trade unionist. "We ask for the liberation of political prisoners. The espionage act was passed as a war-time necessity, and now we are no longer at war. Our country is not in danger. We would like to see those men and women liberated who are detained for crimes that would not be crimes in times of peace."

Meyer London, former Congressman and attornev for the United Hebrew Trades of New York, followed President Gompers. He said the mere release of imprisoned men and women was not sufficient, and that amnesty would have to include a pardon. In reply to an interrogation by the Attorney-General to the effect that liberating prisoners might lower the morale of the people in the event of another war, Mr. London replied that in his opinion it would have the opposite effect.

Don't Like Eight-Hour Report

The National Industrial Conference Board does not like the eight-hour report recently issued by the United States Public Health Service, and which stated that its investigation of a ten-hour and an eight-hour plant showed that the eight-hour system is the best. The National Industrial Conference Board represents a score of employers' associations. It has issued statements to the effect that a 54-hour week is just about a normal week day.

The Public Health Service report is naturally resented by the employers' investigators, who talk about "unscientific statements."

The board's insistence for "scientific" statements was not maintained in its recent probe of the cost of living for wage-earners in the mill town of Lawrence, Mass. The investigators stated that the minimum standard for a family of five—father, mother and three children under 14 years of age—calls for three tons of coal a year.

Governor Condemns Mob Rule

The mobbing of C. H. Franck, trade union organizer, and his companion, when the two men attempted to hold a trade union meeting at Sumrall, Miss., has aroused Governor Russell, who has called upon the officers of that town to punish the guilty.

In a stinging letter the governor shows that he is an American through and through, and is against mobbery regardless of who perpetrates it.

"Things have come to a pretty pass in this grand old State," he writes, "when citizens upon a perfectly lawful mission must be insulted, assaulted and maltreated as these gentlemen were.

"It is a piece of gangsterism, thuggery and outlawry that will not be tolerated in this State and I am calling upon each of you gentlemen, as citizens and officials, to make prompt investigation of this outrage against these citizens and the laws of this State and make report to me at this office.

"The law of this State must be enforced and the rights of every citizen protected."

Urge Loyalty To U. S.

Admiral Benson, chairman of the United States shipping board, appeals to business men to support the newly organized marine insurance syndicate. Certain vessel owners, it is stated, "manifest little interest in the question whether or not their insurance is placed with American underwriters," and this "short-sighted policy" is interfering with the development of new business in the United States.

"The task of building up and properly maintaining our shipping, foreign trade and insurance can never be accomplished unless there is loyal support by our citizens," says Admiral Benson.

The naval officer's appeal is interesting to workers in view of public demands by these business men for "America first," and their fear that wage earners are not "100 per cent American."

Law Maker Scored.

Labor's opposition to the re-election of United States Senator Wadsworth is sustained in a scorching letter by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, in answer to a plea that she support this Senator.

"What is his record?" asks Mrs. Catt, who then adds: "A continuous, never pausing opposition to all measures aiming to restrain limit or control special interests which at this time have been oppressing the people by overreaching methods; a never failing support of invisible government; a support of government by filibuster vs. government by majorities. Not one measure drawn in the interest of public

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Internationale Transportarbeiter-Federation Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

Bank employes of Italy have started a movement to obtain control of financial institutions in that country, says a Central News dispatch from Rome, quoting the Epoca of that city.

The Labor party of Christiania arranged a great meeting of protest against the Norwegian authorities refusing to allow the Russian Trade Union delegation to travel through Norway to Denmark and England.

At a conference of representatives of Big Business institutions, convened by the Millions Club, held in Sydney, all kinds of arguments were put forward in order to make it appear that the time was ripe for flooding the country with immigrants from Great Britain.

Social and industrial conditions in Italy might be compared to those found after a violent earthquake, when tremors continue for a considerable time. The great shock of the metal workers' movement is passed, but the settlement will require days and perhaps weeks. It is probable that the principle of participation by workmen in the management of industry will not be written into practical law before the end of the year. Extremists are pouring oil on the fire, hoping to make the situation worse.

British Labor's outcry against "War with Russia" has reached proportions almost incredible to one from America who remembers how all protest against war was shut off by the authorities there in 1917. From town after town comes the word that if war is declared, the workers will shut down the industries. This word comes from all sorts of industries—carpenters, toolmakers, blast furnace men, military garment workers, vehicle workers, railway men, shoemakers and hosts of others. "Labor has spoken with one voice; its opinion is unanimous," says the Daily Herald. "It will not have innocent bloodshed in the interests of the capitalists, and it will stop the war—it will stop any action, military or naval, complete or partial, direct or indirect, by war or blockade, designed to set the nations of western Europe against Socialist Russia."

The British Trades Union Congress has declared that unemployment should be a direct charge on the industry affected and that the responsibility for unemployment should be borne by industry. The resolution adopted at the annual convention of the congress is as follows: "Recognizing that irregularity of employment and the loss of wages therefrom is the chief cause of social distress, involving low wages and continuous poverty for a large section of the workers, and believing that by proper organization of industry unemployment could be eliminated, this congress declares that responsibility for unemployment should be borne by the industry, and that in no case should the level of income fall below 85 per cent. of the wages earned when in full employment. In order to raise the necessary funds power should be obtained to force a levy on the industry, and, further, congress hereby instructs the parliamentary committee to take such action as may be deemed necessary to obtain amendments in existing legislation or to secure the introduction of further legislation toward that end."

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

Union Made Shoes for Men Exclusively

JOE WEISS
WHITE PALACE SHOE STORE
92 FOURTH ST. nr. MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO
Repairing Done While You Wait
by the latest machinery. Work called for and delivered.
We use only the best leather that the market affords

Oilers and Firemen
EVER EXPECT TO GO UP FOR A MARINE ENGINEER'S LICENSE?
If so, do not fail to get the
"Blue Book of Facts of Marine Engineering"
because it contains all the questions, answers and problems that are required for a license. The problems are all worked out in simple arithmetic so that you can easily understand them. The price is $3.00 per copy, and is on sale at most Marine Firemen's Union Halls, or a money order mailed to us will bring you one by return mail.
OUR OTHER BOOKS
"THE BLUE BOOK OF OIL BURNING AND BURNERS." It gives you practical information on oil burning and burners, their care, operation and safety hints. Price, $2.00.
"THE MARINE TURBINE POWER PLANT." A practical book on the Marine Turbine, covering Gears, Auxiliaries, Boilers and all oil burning equipment. It is free from difficult processes of reasoning and is written in language that you can readily understand. Price, $3.00.
"THE MACHINISTS' BLUE BOOK" covering general Machine-Shop Practice, Shortcuts, Shop Kinks and Quick Methods. 592 pages and 400 illustrations. Price, $4.00.
Address Department C
OCEAN PUBLISHING CO.
25 West 42d St. New York City

INFORMATION WANTED

Arturo Longueira, age 18, who mysteriously disappeared at South Ferry, New York, on August 25th, or any one knowing his whereabouts, will please communicate with Secretary, Marine Firemen's Union, 70 South St., New York City. 10-20-20

Members of the crew of the S. S. "J. E. O'Neil," which salved the motor ship Oregon. A settlement has been made and I wish the following men would communicate with me in order that they may be paid their share of the salvage due them: P. Anderson, seaman; W. Kendall, seaman; J. C. Thompson, third assistant; Joe Brady, wiper; H. F. Morressy, messboy. S. B. Axtell, 9 State street. 5-12-20

Olaf Nyhagen, a native of Bergen, age 36, is inquired for by his mother, Mrs. Dina Nyhagen, Bergen, Norway. 4-28-20

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney-at-law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 676 Mills Bldg., Telephone Sutter 4673. Residence Phone Prospect 2908.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Crew of the S. S. "Wasco," which signed on at New York March 19th and were discharged and arrested at the Cape Verde Islands about October 19th, will be good enough to report or communicate with the undersigned. The trial of some of the crew will come up shortly and I should like to join as many of the crew as possible in their action.—S. B. Axtell, New York, N. Y. 8-4-20

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of George Mace Monroe, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, last heard of at Charleston, S. C., March, 1916, will please communicate with his mother, Mrs. Alice Monroe, 918 Spruce street, Seattle, Washington. 6-9-20

Chas. T. Smith, Roy Dresser, Joe Ban, Autti Hanks, Thos. Wolstenholme, Chas. Fraser, W. B. Pierce, Karl Olson, William Holmes kindly communicate with John T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 10-6-20

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM
A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
R. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth
This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.
LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE
will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.
Send in your order today.
$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Mrs. Jean Taylor. 940 Pender Street, West Vancouver, B. C., is anxious of ascertaining the whereabouts of Robert Gilchrist Cassar, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific. 10-13-20

Will some of the crew of the "Deva" on her first voyage September, 1919, please call on H. W. Hutton, 527 Pacific Building. Oskar W. Olson was on her at that trip and contracted an insurable case of typhoid fever through bad water and he needs some witnesses in a case he has for damages.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Michael Blasich, a native of Fiume, Austria, and a retired member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, will please communicate with his mother, Maria Blasich, Cosala 169, Fiume, d'Italia, Italy.

To Scandinavian Sailors:
Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.
LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

The sailing of the steamer "West Caddoa" in the round-the-world service of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company has been postponed from November 1 to November 15.

The freighter "Waban," which was operated by the Admiral Line, has been allocated by the Shipping Board to Struthers & Dixon to carry 7000 tons of grain from Columbia River points to Callao, Peru.

The Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company have offered first mortgage bonds on the plant for sale. The bonds have been underwritten by Los Angeles bankers and brokers. The issue amounts to $1,250,000. The securities consist of the only mortgage on the plant.

The two 12,000-ton steel freighters now under construction at the Moore shipyards for the Matson line are expected to be ready for service about February of next year. The vessels are to be christened the "Manulan" (Heavenly Bird) and the "Manukai" (Sea Bird). Both freighters will be used for the sugar and pineapple carrying trade between the Hawaiian Islands and here.

After a long series of protests from the Chamber of Commerce and civic organizations the Shipping Board has transferred Portland from the Seattle district to the San Francisco district. When the division of the Pacific Coast district was made several weeks ago Portland shipping interests petitioned the Shipping Board to be placed in the San Francisco district because it was too close to Seattle.

Ships of the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Steamship Corporation will make Portland a port of call in the future, according to information received by Manager H. L. Hudson of the Portland Traffic Bureau. Ports of call of this company are Baltimore, Philadelphia, Mobile, San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco. It has several ships in operation to the Pacific Coast and more will be added.

Lumber and grain charters from North Pacific ports continue to hold the center of the charter market on the Pacific Coast. The British sank another wedge into the grain movement to the United Kingdom with the chartering of the British steamer "Orca," 9940 tons, to M. H. Houser, from Puget Sound at 110 shillings. This figure is one of the lowest yet reported, and is considerably less than the Shipping Board rate.

The steamer "Jeptha" has been assigned to the General Steamship Corporation for operation in place of the steamer "Silverado," according to information received by J. G. Euson, Portland agent. The vessel will come to Portland early in November to load cargo for American ports. The steamer "Wallingford" of the same service will arrive late this month to load lumber and general cargo.

As if in final contradiction of the rumored departure from San Francisco of Toyo Kisen Kaisha because of the Jones bill, the Japanese company has issued one of the most elaborate and artistic travel folders which has ever appeared on the Pacific Coast. Beautiful color work and neat engravings add attractiveness to an unusual collection of maps and travel, hotel and scenic information. Accurate reports on hotel prices and accommodations in the United States and the Orient are not the least valuable of the contents.

Delivery of two of the steamers allocated to the Matson Navigation Company for their passenger and freight service between Baltimore, San Francisco and the Hawaiian Islands will not take place until the latter part of February or early in March of next year, according to E. D. Tenney, president of the company. All of the twelve vessels of this type that have been allocated to Pacific Coast shipping companies will be from three to five months late in delivery. The first of these vessels to be ready for delivery is the steamer "Wenatchee," scheduled to sail from New York for Seattle about the middle of next January flying the flag of the Admiral line.

A fast freight and passenger steamship service between San Francisco, Copenhagen, Denmark, and Oriental ports is soon to be established by the East Asiatic Company, according to Otto Jelstrup, New York agent for the company. Jelstrup said that his firm is constructing six motorships of 13,000 deadweight tons each, which will be put in the service when completed. At present the company has twenty-six motorships operating between Copenhagen and the Orient, with San Francisco as a port of call. "Thousands of immigrants," said Jelstrup, "are eager to settle in the Pacific and Middle Western States." When the San Francisco service is established, Jelstrup said, the Pacific Coast can expect a steady stream of immigrants from various parts of Europe.

A new 'round-the-world service, with Portland as the home port, but with San Francisco as a regular port of call, is to be established soon by Gerritsen, Curtis & Co., under the name of the Curtis Line, according to Clifton Curtis, Jr., vice-president and general manager. The Curtis Line will be operated by chartered steamers. It will proceed eastward, or counterwise to the Pacific Mail 'round-the-world service. Leaving Pacific Coast ports, the vessels will proceed to the United Kingdom, Antwerp, Rotterdam, Stockholm and other northern European ports. Thence the steamers will proceed to Marseilles, Mediterannean ports, the Suez Canal, Dutch East Indies, Manila, Saigon, Hongkong and other Far East ports, and return to the United States Pacific harbors. Curtis said the company would be able to receive cargo at Portland and San Francisco shortly after November 15.

Shipments of the new crop of tea from the Orient have practically ceased for this year, and importers and exporters say that the importations are only between one-half and two-thirds normal. The decline in this cargo, because of its high tariff, has been a perceptible blow to San Francisco and other coast steamship companies. In the season just passing there was very little China black tea shipped to this country. Only about half the normal amount of China green was imported. Ceylon and other Oriental teas were about two-thirds the usual total. The explanations are advanced that the price demanded in the Far East is excessive and that there is a lack of buying interest. In this connection, it is said that importers bought heavily on teas in the early part of the war, fearing an embargo, and that the country is overstocked. Nearly one-fifth of the teas imported into the United States last year came through the port of San Francisco.

Continued depression characterizes the shipping world. Oriental freights remain an uncertain quantity, with the East Indies but little better. Java trade is dull, as is the New Zealand. Australian business is but little better, but there are encouraging signs of improvement. The Antipodes seem to have vast quantities of provisions and other necessities which may be unloaded in the United States. Hawaiian business is a little slack. Advances continue to be made in intercoastal, United Kingdom and European routes, and the coastwise trade is showing improvement as far south as the Panama Canal. The West Coast of South America is not very active. The charter market is almost at a standstill. Australia and South America have quit their lumber buying. There is no demand for grain to the United Kingdom. Oil continues to be much in demand, and there are frequent charters of this nature. Coal is showing increased activity, particularly to New Zealand.

While the Shipping Board is seeking friendly agreements in maintaining ocean rates, it was announced in a statement from Admiral W. S. Benson that the policy of the board would oppose all rebating and other forms of unfair competition by foreign lines. Admiral Benson's statement pointed out that American companies are authorized under the merchant marine act to ask for admission to steamship conferences and if they are refused the board has the power to bar foreign vessels from the ports of the United States. Admiral Benson says it is the policy of the board to put an end to cutthroat competition. Conferences have recently been held at London by Shipping Board operators and foreign steamship lines running to China, Japan and the Far East. These conferences were held with a view to participation in the regular trade routes between Europe and the Orient by the American ships. Because of the practice among many of the European lines in granting rebates the operators of merchant marine ships requested an announcement of the policy of the board in that direction.

Preparations are being made by the Hawaiian and Oriental tourist bureaus for handling the largest traffic across the Pacific in years, according to A. Lewis, Jr., of the Honolulu Tourist Bureau. He will make a tour of the large cities to survey the field of expected travel this winter to California and to the Far East. With the deilvery of the new 535s to the Admiral Line, Pacific Mail and the Matson Navigation Company, the accommodations for travel to the Orient will be increased so that more than three times the present number of tourists and business travelers can be taken care of. The Pacific Mail will have five new ships to put on the Oriental run soon after the first of the year, it is expected, and five others of the same type have been allocated to the Matson Navigation Company for the Hawaiian service. According to reports which have been received here from the Eastern tourist centers railroads are being flooded with inquiries about steamer accommodations to the Orient. The Eastern tide of travel will be diverted to a large extent to the Pacific this winter, it is asserted by representatives of the railroads and steamship agencies on the Atlantic seaboard. Bookings are already being requested on the new passenger ships of the Shipping Board, which will be put in commission here in a few months.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street

Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C...ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841

Branches:
New York Branch.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. REN, Agent
433 Court Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....DAVID COOK, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
510 Trust Building
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
132 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 East Bay Street

Sub Agencies:
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976

Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue

Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....316 River Street

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION

D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal
Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1920.

AFTER ADMIRAL BENSON'S SCALP

If, as it is said, a man's worth may best be gauged by the enemies he has made, then Admiral Benson, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, is all to the good, both as a government official and a 100 per cent. American.

For he has incurred the bitter enmity of the international ring of shipmongers who for many years past have been battening on the profits from America's overseas commerce. These gentlemen are, to a man, out to get the admiral's scalp. His vigorous policy for an American merchant marine that shall be sufficient at all times for our own needs has brought down upon his head the united wrath of the gang. And no wonder, either; for their hitherto fat pickings will become mighty lean indeed if the admiral's shipping policy is permanently adopted by this nation.

This is the gang whose influence is said to have been powerful enough to induce President Wilson to ignore the mandate of the Jones Act directing him to abrogate all commercial treaties standing in the way of carrying out the provisions of the act. It was they who conducted the bitter campaign against the Harriman-Hamburg-American ship deal, which Admiral Benson has defended all along as a distinct gain to American shipping. And it was this same ring of shipmongers again who set up such a terrific howl when the admiral blocked the proposed sale of Shipping Board vessels at "knockdown" prices, and announced that he would dispose of the ships only to American interests which would guarantee to keep them permanently under the American flag.

And now the gang is out to "get" the admiral. Strong pressure, it is reported, is being brought to bear upon President Wilson against reappointing Admiral Benson to the Shipping Board when the board is reorganized as provided by the Jones Act. The President's delay in appointing the full board of seven members is pointed to as an indication that the pressure is having effect. Be that as it may, it is evident that the delay favors the shipping ring, as it gives them added time in which to marshal their forces for the final ousting of Admiral Benson. Anyway it is quite safe to assume that, in the meantime, they are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to achieve that end. They have too much at stake to overlook any bets.

The organized seamen of America have not always been in complete accord with the United States Shipping Board. There have been times indeed when they have had good cause for resenting the policy of the board. But Admiral Benson personally has been so uniformly fair and considerate in his dealings with the seamen that, as the Shipping Board is going to remain a permanent institution of the Government, they would fain see him reappointed. With him as a member of the new board, preferably as its chairman, they would feel a good deal more assured of getting a square deal when submitting some grievance for adjustment.

ANOTHER "FLOATING FAIR"

A few weeks ago the JOURNAL recounted how floating sample fairs, steaming across the seas with exhibits of manufactured and art goods for the inspection of prospective buyers in other lands, were under contemplation, or in actual commission, in various maritime countries. Particular note was made of the Italian steamer "Trinacria," which was thus freighted, leaving Naples the middle of August on a voyage covering the principal ports of the Western Mediterranean.

And now comes Holland. A company has been organized at The Hague for the purpose of sending a "floating fair" to various parts of the world, particularly the United States. The concern is organized somewhat on a co-operative basis, it appears. Anyway, it proposes to send the Messageries Maritimes steamer, the "Macedonia," of 6,100 tons burden, to the United States and Central and South America with the view of introducing Netherlands products, and enabling Netherlands commercial houses to establish both import and export connections in the countries visited.

The plan, as outlined, is for each of the Netherlands firms going into the venture to advance the sum of 2,800 guilders for each cubic meter of space occupied aboard the vessel by an exhibitor, and 200 guilders for each port visited. The ship will be divided into show rooms, and each exhibitor will install on board in the space he has engaged such display of his goods as he cares to make. He will also furnish the company with advertising matter, price lists, and other information.

The company will furnish an organization of commercial men on the ship who will act as sales agents and endeavor to arrange satisfactory permanent connections for the exhibitors in the ports visited. For sales actually made the company will charge a single commission of 10 per cent., but will take no commission on any business which may follow from connections thus made.

The company also proposes to carry on a comprehensive advertising campaign in the countries to be visited, so as to secure the maximum results from the visit. Its chief aim, however, will be to act as agent for the exhibitors rather than to attempt to do business for itself. To this end it will translate and print, as well as distribute, for the exhibitors all their advertising matter, furnish them with representatives who can speak the language of each country visited, and otherwise assist them in every way to properly present their goods and secure permanent business.

The ship will make a stop of about 10 days in each port. The itinerary includes New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Vera Cruz, Havana, Port au Prince, La Guaira, Port of Spain, Pernambuco, Bahia, Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Montevideo, and Buenos Aires. The voyage, therefore, will last about six months.

So confident is the company of success that plans have already been made for a second voyage, this to be to South Africa, East Africa, India, the Straits Settlements, and the Dutch East Indies.

OUR GROWING MERCHANT MARINE

During September, according to returns of the Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce, the increase in the American seagoing merchant marine owned by private shipowners exceeded the increase in the Government-owned ships built with appropriations made by Congress. This was the first month since the armistice that such an increase has been recorded. The explanation undoubtedly is to be found in the fact that at the last session Congress, in the appropriation bills, changed the war policy, and directed the Shipping Board to maintain itself by sales of ships and shore property without further appropriations.

The exact figures for September are as follows:

The number of American seagoing ships of 500 gross tons or over, owned by private shipowners, rose to 1,829, of 4,625,324 gross tons. This was an increase during the month of 25 ships of 116,335 gross tons. As compared with this the increase in the Government-owned tonnage during the month was only 20 ships of 88,855 gross tons. This gives the Shipping Board a total of 1,698 ships, of 7,288,208 gross tons, on October 1. Since January 1, 1920, however, the Government-owned tonnage has increased by 233 ships, of 1,347,466 gross tons, while privately owned American tonnage has increased only by 129 ships, of 536,926 gross tons.

MORE INDIAMEN

The trade between San Francisco and the East Indies has grown in scope and importance to such an extent that the Shipping Board has decided to allocate three large, powerful steamships to this run. These ships will be in addition to the fifteen "535's" which have already been allocated to this coast for trans-Pacific service.

The three new steamers are what is known in shipping parlance as "502's." They will be equipped for passenger service as well as freight, each to have accommodations for 84 passengers. The tonnage of each ship is given as 12,000 deadweight, and they will be capable of making 14 knots an hour. They will be operated by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company.

The "Panhandle State," it is reported, is the first of the big trio to be sent here.

The other two are of the same type. All have been launched and are nearly completed. The expectation is that all three vessels will be here before the first of the year. There's a reason. The Pacific Mail is at present operating the steamers "Colusa" and "Santa Cruz" on the India run. These ships, however, are under charter from W. R. Grace & Co., and, so it is said, must be returned to that firm by the first of the year. Their place on the run will then be taken by the three new steamers.

The addition of these ships to the already great fleet trading to and from San Francisco will be quite a boost to the port. And the probability is that they represent only the beginning of what will in a few years more be one of the mst important steamship lines in the world. "Westward the course of empire takes its way." Also the course of trade. Good judges are all agreed that the Pacific is destined soon to become the main highway of the world's seaborne commerce, and San Francisco America's greatest port. It is only logical therefore to assume that any line of ships now running from this port has the very best chance in the world to grow and prosper.

The officers and members of the crew of the S. S. "West Katan" at the time she came to the assistance of the S. S. "Flavel" are entitled to a salvage award for services rendered on that occasion. The seamen on board of the "West Katan" at the time were as follows:

Robert M. Carr, James W. Robert, Lawrence Green, Otto Nordquist, Oscar Lisberg, Carl Halverson, Walter A. Reb, E. Benson, Carl Altonen, A. Poss.

The awards will be paid on application at the office of Williams, Dimond & Co., 310 Sansome street, San Francisco, Cal.

Italian seamen have evidently taken President Wilson at his word that the late war was fought to make the world safe for democracy. When the Italian steamer "Polacky" arrived in Constantinople the other day the health officers of the port ordered the crew and steerage passengers to take a bath before landing. The crew refused to bathe unless the first-class passengers were also made to do so. After some parleying the crew won their point. The first-class passengers consented to bathe, and thus was democracy vindicated.

Now that booze can't be had any more for christening ships we might do worse than adopt the Japanese custom on such occasions. When a Japanese ship is ready for launching a large cage filled with birds is hung over the bow, and as the ship glides off the stocks into the water the birds are released. That surely is a prettier custom than the one of breaking a bottle of wine over the bows, as well as more symbolical of the launching.

According to Lloyd's Register the United States owns 51 per cent. of the world's tanker tonnage. On July 24, the United States registry showed 308 tank vessels of 1,734,843 gross tons. Great Britain was second with 1,261,595 tons. The world total was 3,386,091.

Demand the Union Label.

THE ETERNAL LAND QUESTION.

Public Ownership Brings Hardship To New Zealand By Increasing Land Values.

(Note—Following is the text of an address delivered by Herbert Atkinson of New Zealand at a dinner in San Francisco opening the campaign for Single Tax Amendment number 20.)

The Dominion of New Zealand has been of great interest to the social student in that, for many years, New Zealand led the way in what is called "Progressive Legislation." New Zealand has made great strides in State and Municipal Socialism. The list of enterprises in which the Government engages is truly formidable. In addition to the usual Government Departments controlling the Army, Navy and Justice, the Government of New Zealand controls the police force.

The Government owns and operates the railroads, doing all repair work in its own workshops. The Government owns and operates coal mines, competing in the market with the output of privately-owned mines. The Government runs a fire and life insurance department and competes with private insurance companies—in fact, the Government insurance department regulates the price of the premiums of the competing companies, so that they cannot charge more than the State office, or they would get no business. The Government has a department called the Public Trust Office, which department does a lot of legal work, as a man can make his will and make the Public Trust Department his executor. The Public Trustee will draw up the will for you, put it in the Public Trust safe and run the estate for the heirs of the man when he is dead. The Government manages a good system of Public Primary Schools, free, secular and compulsory. There are also good secondary or technical schools and a State-endowed university. The State also undertakes the whole work of the Post Office and telegraph and telephone service; also, the wireless and cable stations. The Government also has a Public Works Department and constructs public buildings, roads and bridges.

The Government owns several experimental farms and a chemical laboratory for test work and analysis. The State owns and runs several good hospitals and four excellent maternity homes are operated at a very low fee per patient. There is a good system of old age pensions and a savings bank department attached to the Post Office.

The State advances to workers and settlers; assists the worker to buy land and a house to live in, and the would-be settler to buy land whereon he can farm.

The Government runs a special Arbitration Court, in charge of a Supreme Judge, to attempt to settle labor disputes and to fix wages in all industries.

The Municipalities vie with the State in the collective control of various enterprises—street car services, city water supplies, city baths, municipal milkmen, street making, drainage schemes; gas and electric light and power are municipal enterprises. So, also, are free libraries and the scavenging and disposal of garbage. The harbors of New Zealand are controlled under Government supervision by boards, of which the members are elected by the people. These Harbor Boards undertake the construction of wharves, dredging of shoals, the handling of cargo, etc.

If this class of legislation is all that is required to make a people prosperous, then New Zealand would indeed be the Islands of the Blessed; but the fact is that, in spite of all this progressive legislation, it is harder to make a living now in New Zealand than it was thirty-five years ago, before this progressive legislation was put on the statute books, and it is but just to concede that these State and municipal enterprises are, on the whole, very well managed. But the fact remains that the labor situation is far from peaceful. There have been strikes in the State coal mines, strikes on the wharves controlled by the Harbor Boards and, to cap all, a strike on the State railroads, which held up the whole service of the country. Mr. Massey, the present Conservative Prime Minister, had to leave the Prince of Wales, during his late tour of New Zealand, at Roatura to amuse himself with the Maories and the Hot Springs, while he (Mr. Massey) went to Wellington by automobile, 400 miles, to confer with the Labor leaders in charge of the railroad strike to get a settlement and start the wheels of industry revolving again.

The Arbitration Court has not brought about industrial peace. The Union leaders tumble over one another getting into court to get their clients' wages raised. No. 1 Union gets a raise, then No. 2, then No. 3 Union and so on. When they have gone round the lot and everybody has got increased money wages, prices go up and nobody is any better off than they were at first. Then they start it all over again. It is like a "merry-go-round"; but nobody ever gets ahead by it, like soldiers marking time. In short, the worker is no better for all this progressive legislation, and also, neither is the employer.

Who is the better for the great increase of

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Ed. Andersen presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; lots of members ashore. Members were urged to obtain their Able Seamen's certificates at their earliest opportunity, as the Collector of Customs at San Francisco has issued orders for strict enforcement of that section of the Seamen's Act providing for sixty-five per cent. of able seamen to be carried. Nominated officers for the ensuing term and delegates to the International Seamen's Union convention.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 11, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Oct. 11, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 11, 1920.
Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL. Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Oct. 11, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Oct. 11, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Oct. 11, 1920.
Shipping fair; members ashore plentiful.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Oct. 4, 1920.
Shipping and prospects poor.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 13, 1920.
Shipping quiet. Ballot Committee appointed on officers for ensuing year.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 7, 1920.
Shipping medium. Nominated officers for ensuing term.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Oct. 7, 1920.
Shipping good. Few members ashore. Nominated officers for the ensuing term.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

Chas. Wilson Anderson, No. 1916, a native of Scotland, age 43. Died at Vancouver, B. C., October 8, 1920.

Christian Hansen, No. 965, a native of Norway, age 46. Died at Palo Alto, Calif., October 15, 1920.

Johan Gerhardt Hansen, No. 3007, a native of Norway, age 23. Died at Wilmington, Calif., October 16, 1920.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

LOCATED AT LAST

A few months ago we reported the difficulties the Marine Cooks and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf were experiencing in the search for a suitable site for its permanent home and official headquarters.

At last we are pleased to announce the quest of our grub-spoilers has been highly successful, and the organization has just acquired by right of purchase one of the handsomest and most substantial pieces of real property in the whole waterfront section of New York City. The building in question occupies a site about 60 feet frontage and 80 feet deep (we have not as yet secured the exact dimensions), on the corner of Cortlandt and Washington streets, Manhattan. The building is a five-story, flat-roofed block, built entirely of fireproofed brick, interspersed with ornamental stone frescoes between the stories.

It is decidedly a high-class and most desirable piece of property, admirably located, and in splendid condition.

The front of the building faces the great square which constitutes the first block on Cortlandt street, beginning from the North River. It is within a few minutes' walk of both the Sixth and Ninth avenue L stations, and about equi-distant from the Pennsylvania and Jersey Central railroad ferries, and within ten minutes' ride of South ferry, the East Side L's, the uptown subways, and Hudson Terminals. It is therefore easily and directly accessible from all parts of Greater New York, and Greater New Jersey as well.

The sale price we understand to be $120,000. Of this amount $70,000 has been paid down and the deed executed. The remaining $50,000 is covered by an outstanding mortgage which will expire April 1, 1921. Thereafter the Cooks and Stewards' Association will assume title clear and expect to move in and take formal possession about May 1, 1921.

When this final move has been consummated every division of the International Seamen's Union in New York will have a permanent home of its own, with the single exception of the Atlantic Coast Fishermen's Union, and as the latter still have their headquarters in Boston, with New York still figuring as a branch port, it is hardly probable that they will join in the prevailing real estate boom very soon.

The new premises of the Cooks and Stewards' Association are now fully tenanted by a number of bustling business firms, but as their leases all expire coincidently with the mortgage by which the building is now entailed, the organization has only to wait and collect the rents, and count them into the union exchequer during the interval.

President Griffin of the Cooks and Stewards' Association informs us that it is the intention of the organization as soon as the new headquarters have been officially settled, to carry out, if practicable, their [illegible] project to open a first-class culinary school at the new foundation.

But it is the present intention to make a co-operative and general effort, rather than a corporate and exclusive interest.

In this connection Mr. Griffin explains that although the building is plenty large and roomy enough for the establishment of a very large and efficient school, the first cost of equipment, operation, instruction and management would be greater than the Cooks and Stewards' organization, unaided, would care to assume. And since the service and the results expected to accrue therefrom would be a benefit and an advantage to the entire merchant marine, all concerned would be asked to co-operate in establishing the new school and contribute toward its success. Sailors and firemen, as well as shipowners, and possibly the U. S. Shipping Board, said Mr. Griffin, would be asked to interest themselves in the new culinary department and contribute to its promotion and development.

This plan we believe to be a wise as well as a necessary departure in the upbuilding of the merchant marine.

When we pause to consider the thousands of daily quarrels, the constant ill-feeling and disregard of duty engendered on shipboard by bad cooking—or grub-spoiling, rather—and disordered stomachs resulting therefrom, we cannot help boosting for the early establishment of the much-desired and long-needed cooking school, and praying for its perpetuation and unbounded success.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

A REAL UNION SHIP.

We are willing to wager without reserve that the most interesting ship, from a Union standpoint, that has ever dropped anchor in New York harbor is the Italian ship "Brescia" of the Garibaldi line, now loading at the foot of Seventy-ninth street, North River, for Genoa.

The arrival of the "Brescia," in our estimation, marked a red letter day in the history of organized seamen. It was a far more important event, considered from the standpoint of world progress, than the thunderous entrance of the six mighty battleships swinging majestically just above her on the bosom of the Hudson.

The arrival of the "Brescia" we regard as the most momentous event in new world maritime history since Henry Hudson sailed up the North River in his little Dutch caravel, the "Half Moon," three hundred and eleven years ago. The "Brescia" is one of a pioneer fleet of seven commercial ships owned outright and operated exclusively by the Italian Federated Seamen's Union of Genoa.

"Societa Anonima Co-operativa fra Lavoratori del Mare per L'esercizio della Navigazione con Naviglio Nazionale." Such is the title of the organization, and its central offices are in Corso Principe Adone No. 2, Genoa.

Shortly after the arrival of the "Brescia" her genial, but wide-awake master, Captain Antonio Raimondo, called at the offices of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association to pay his respects to the Union officials. He was accorded every courtesy due to his service rating and distinguished membership in a sister organization from a foreign and friendly land.

At Captain Raimondo's invitation, our assistant secretary and Mrs. Gus Erickson paid a return visit to his ship and spent a very pleasant and mutually interesting evening with the captain and Signora Raimondo, who graces his sumptuous cabin.

A few days later the Coast editor pilgrimed up to Seventy-ninth street to pay his respects to the "Brescia," her worthy master and loyal crew before their departure for sunny Italy.

Captain Raimondo greeted us with the right hand of fellowship, invited us into his comfortable cabin, and granted us a very comprehensive interview, outlining the beginning, extension, scope and prospects of the Italian Seamen's Union as a co-operative ship-owning corporation. This he has promised to amplify for us in writing when the "Brescia" reaches Norfolk, Va., where she is to call for bunkers to take her home. Captain Raimondo, who speaks English, informed us that shortly after the war ended, and the Italian merchant marine began to resume its interrupted operations, the organized seamen in Italy decided to employ themselves by acquiring and operating ships of their own, thereby absorbing for themselves the huge profits which otherwise accrue to counting-house shipmongers.

So said, so done; the Italian Union began to invest in ships and establish business offices and agencies, both at home and abroad, to protect their shore interests while the ships were being navigated by seafaring members.

Captain Raimondo stated that at present the Union fleet numbers seven big freighters and other ships will be acquired as fast as circumstances will warrant the increase.

Most of the fleet, he said, had already completed their second voyages under the Union pennant, but the "Brescia" was making her maiden voyage as a co-operative ship. No trouble had so far been experienced, the captain said, in securing freights, and none was anticipated. The Union's ships go into the world's markets, accepting charters at profitable rates exactly as privately owned ships do. The shore end of the business is well looked after by their own agents, who are likewise members of the Seamen's Union. In case of any attempt at blacklisting, the captain assured us the Union would promptly retaliate by ordering a strike and complete boycott against all ships and cargo owned, operated or handled by the aggressors, thus leaving them to rot in their neglected brine until sold at a sacrifice.

Captain Raimondo further explained that under the present plan of incorporation only bona fide members of the National Federation of Marine Workers are allowed to own shares in Union ships. Any member in good standing is permitted to invest his savings to the extent of 5000 lire, approximately $1000, in the co-operative shipping company. But that is the limit; 5000 lire represents the highest value that any individual can invest in shares of stock under the present agreement.

This moderate limit admits of the widest possible distribution of shares among the general membership of the Union, and prohibits hogging or control by any individual or combination of members. All such investments of 5000 lire or less are eventually returned to the shareholders with earnings and interest from the date of investment out of the surplus net income on freights. When all shares have been thus acquired and all loans redeemed, the ship thereafter becomes the property of the Union, and all of her net earnings revert to the general treasury.

In one very important respect the Italian Seamen's Union is far more progressive and cohesive than our own International Seamen's Union.

This consists in the universal combination and co-operation of seafaring men of all classes under one general title and banner, regardless of rank or rating.

In Italy, masters, mates and men, engineers, oilers and stokers, stewards, cooks, flunkies and messboys, wireless operators, supercargoes, pursers, clerks, accountants and supernumeraries of all classes are organized and included in the joint membership of the "Federazione Nazionale del Lavoratori del Mare," as the Italian National Seamen's Federation is styled.

It is, therefore, a national confederation of seafaring men in which ratings are recognized, but castes are banished. When the American ship's officers and while collar functionaries awaken from the fond delusion that they are made of superior clay and cast in special molds, and arouse to the distressful realization that they, too, are workers dependent upon the will or the whim of common employers for their positions and livelihood, they may climb down from their present exalted perches and bear a hand with their less pretentious but more aggressive fellow seamen in controlling the merchant marine through collective ownership and co-operative enterprise for the common benefit and the public welfare.

Then service in the merchant marine will be a safe and dependable vocation for seafaring men to follow.

The Italian co-operative ship-owning movement is now less than five months old, but its progress and success have already been phenomenal, and its further progress and development will be watched with sincere interest by organized seamen the world over. But by none will it be more intently or intelligently considered than by the organized seamen in the United States.

The "Brescia" measures 5809 registered tons and goes down to her marks at 9,000 tons, deadweight.

Here's health and success to Captain Raimondo, his stanch and sturdy ship and loyal crew.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

ORIENTALS PREFERRED.

It is never a pleasant duty to be called upon to remonstrate with our own comrades or erstwhile shipmates concerning their moral delinquencies, or reprove them for repeated acts of wilful misconduct, disobedience of lawful commands, or wanton neglect of duty on shipboard or in foreign ports, all of which tend to aggravate prevailing ill feelings between officers and the men under them, discredit the Seamen's Act, strengthen the contentions of our enemies in the eyes of public opinion and bring the seamen's unions into ill repute.

Telling the truth about our best friends is always a thankless task. Friendly advice is seldom heeded, flattery is the spirit of popularity, and self-conceit resents rebuke.

Nevertheless, even at the risk of being jeered at as old fogies, we feel called upon at this particular juncture in the progress of maritime events to warn our comrades and fellow members against the dangers of bad conduct and disobedience in the merchant marine, whether at sea, in port or ashore. For a long time past the studied persistence of many steamship companies operating from Eastern and Gulf coasts in giving the preference to Chinese and Japanese crews has been a continual cause of complaint and natural resentment among the organized seamen on this coast.

Protests to the offending ship-owners and appeals to the language clause of the LaFollette law and to the spirit of Americanism have all been made in vain. Many ships still persist in carrying Mongolian crews to the absolute exclusion of American seamen.

Why?

The Mongolian seamen are also organized, in New York, at least, and almost always demand and secure the Union scale of wages and working conditions, including a special contract to be inserted in the Articles when signing on in a foreign ship.

The preference of ship-owners for Chinese crews cannot, therefore, be attributed entirely to pecuniary considerations.

Heathen docility and obsequious kowtowing to authority may have something to do with the choice, for brass buttons were made to be admired. That Chinese and Japanese cooks often excel in the culinary arts is also true, and however detestable may be their secret practices, they are to all outward appearances always spick and span, while the subtle, smiling, courteous, obliging, pussy-footing Mongolian waiters are adorable to homage-loving, aristocratic passengers.

But how about the fireroom and deck crews? However backward and untrained some of our American recruits may be, there is no ship-owner who can truthfully claim that as a whole American crews are not physically, mentally and actually far more efficient and courageous than Chinese.

In loyalty, skill and devotion, as well as in physical makeup and determination, the Caucasian is far superior to the Mongolian in any emergency, and this has been demonstrated in scores of marine disasters within the memory of the living generation.

According to statements from the ship-owners, their preference for Asiatic crews is simply a matter of dependability. Asiatic crews, they assert, are always dependable. They always report for work on time, are always attentive to duty, never absent without leave, seldom demand half wages and never get drunk in port.

American seamen, on the other hand, they claim, are always boisterous and disobedient, always drunk, disorderly and off duty in port, and laid up with self-contracted sickness at sea. They are forever making impossible demands during the voyage, and urging unjust claims at its close.

Whatever may be the ulterior motive of the ship-owners in persistently engaging Asiatic in place of American crews, we are constrained to admit that in many cases they have been furnished with valid excuses by recalcitrant American seamen.

The British ship-owners have always advanced the selfsame plea as an excuse for carrying Lascars and Chinese exclusively in many of their ships.

While we place no credence in the protests or pretensions of shipowners, as a rule, we must, in this instance, at least, confess that their excuses are invested with a measure of plausibility founded on fact.

A stern regard for truth compels us to admit that many American seamen are shamefully and disgracefully insubordinate and unfair, both at sea and in port, toward their own shipmates, as well as toward their officers and employers, and a timely rebuke is well merited and well meant, even if it is unheeded.

The disreputable misconduct truthfully alleged against many young seamen by ship masters, and amply sustained by their own shipmates, is a disgrace alike to the service and the Seamen's Unions. It constitutes a valid excuse for supplanting them with Asiatics or other aliens of any sort who are better behaved and more reliable. It also furnishes apparent justification for the constant attempts upon the fundamental clauses of the Seamen's Act, and brings the Seamen's Unions into disrepute.

Men who have been the worst behaved during the voyage; those who have loafed and dodged the most; those who have been laid up the longest from the effects of dissipation or disease, are invariably the ones to make the loudest howl and the hardest fight at the pay table for their full wages, irrespective of whether they have earned anything or not.

Such are the plain, honest-to-goodness facts, and if they don't read good, just turn over a new leaf—with a different chapter on it.

Every Union seaman has a triple duty to perform—to the service, to his shipmates and to his Union.

He should fulfill his obligation to the ship, both in obedience and deportment, to the last letter in the contract; he should be loyal to his shipmates in the full performance of his duties, and he should always bear in mind his solemn obligation to "obey all rules and regulations" laid down by the Union for the common good.

The law requires that where a ship is short-handed, the wages that would have otherwise accrued to absent seamen shall be divided among those remaining as compensation for extra labor imposed upon them.

If this were done in the case of idle or incompetent seamen, or in cases where seamen are laid up from vicious causes, we

(Continued on Page 11)

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

(By Laurence Todd.)

On the eve of adjournment this week, the convention of the International Association of Machinists at Rochester revoked its previous decision to issue its monthly magazine as a magazine section of "Labor," the weekly organ of the Plumb Plan League, and to conduct a special page in that paper each week for the 330,000 members whom the Machinists would add to "Labor's" subscription list. As the case now stands, the Machinists' general executive board is instructed to investigate and recommend some method of getting the membership into more frequent touch with headquarters—possibly through a weekly publication. Meanwhile the Machinists' Journal is to be mailed direct to the residence address of every member.

By nullifying its first action, the convention has possibly stopped for a long time the development of a weekly labor paper of progressive policy into a circulation which might have reached 2,500,000 men—the entire membership of all labor organizations represented in railroad service. For the heads of the other unions and brotherhoods have been considering the plan, and its adoption by the biggest of them had made the proposal seem a good one to take up together. However, the argument was made, and was finally effective, that the Machinists should not be asked to tackle the job alone—that if the railroad labor organizations are to have a national organ based on lump subscriptions, it must be arranged by mutual agreement among them all, or among the strongest of them.

Out of this same Rochester convention has come a new storm cloud that will hang over the American Federation of Labor until it meets at Denver in June. The Machinists have sent an ultimatum to the executive council of the A. F. of L., demanding that it enforce its decisions in favor of the Machinists and against the Carpenters, as to jurisdiction over the installing of machinery. Several other jurisdictional awards are also involved. J. A. Taylor, formerly of Seattle, now in general charge of this machine installation industry for the I. A. of M., was in headquarters here to-day, and said that there could be no further evasion of the issue—the decisions of the council would have to be enforced against the biggest as well as the smallest organizations, or the Machinists would, as instructed by their convention, refuse to pay per capita tax to the A. F. of L.

Jurisdictional awards affecting the Carpenters have not had much force, in recent years, because of the size of that organization and its consequent ability and disposition to defy any unfavorable award. To a lesser extent the same has been true of the Machinists, notably in the case of the Flint Glass Workers. The Machinists took the position that when the council enforced the convention's awards against the Carpenters and the Plumbers, who had taken work claimed by the Machinists, the latter would abide by its decision in the Flint Glass Workers' case. As this course has not brought results, the Machinists now threaten to stop paying dues to the A. F. of L. until it proves its ability to enforce its own decisions.

In answer to resolutions attacking Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, adopted by the executive committee of the American Legion, a statement has been issued by the officers and a list of members of Willard Straight Post No. 842 of the Legion, in New York, denouncing this action.

"Mr. Post acted," they say, "to put a stop to the deportation of aliens who had been arrested and ordered deported by proceedings in flagrant violation of the spirit of American institutions and the letter of American law as exposed by the recent report of Dean Pound and others.

"This action of the Legion executives is but another manifestation of the reactionary panic that is characteristic of this, as of all, post-war periods. We heartily commend Mr. Post for the firm stand taken by him in accordance with the best tradition of American political liberties. We take this means of expressing to Mr. Post our appreciation of his courage in canceling the deportation warrants in question."

Hardwick's two-to-one victory in the contest for the Governorship of Georgia is another triumph for the farmer-labor protest against the corporation gang which claims to represent the Wilson administration and the Republican party in this campaign. And now comes word that the North Carolina primary has resulted in nominating for Governor on the Democratic ticket—which is as good as election—Cameron Morrison, a strong friend of the organized labor and farmer movement. For the first time, North Carolina will have a pro-labor administration. The textile workers and the tobacco workers of the State will now have a chance to form unions without fear of being ridden down by State troops or company guards.

In the first primary in a certain county in North Carolina the labor speakers observed that their enemies got a big plurality; there was to be a second vote, however, to decide the winner in a three-cornered contest. They went into one meeting of cotton-mill hands and asked how many present could read and write. Less than one-third could do so. Then they explained, with a big diagram on the platform, that the man to be voted for had a long name, while the bosses' man had a short name. The illiterates got that fact, and in the second election they voted solidly for the man with the long name!

Incidentally it should be added that the labor speakers told these mill hands that they should be ashamed to let another year pass without their learning to read print.

Due in part to the opposition to the League of Nations and in part to the educational work conducted by the Plumb Plan League and the A. F. of L. Political Committee, more than a dozen Southern members of Congress have been beaten in the primaries by men with a more progressive view of labor issues. In North Carolina, for example, Representatives Hoey and Robinson refused to run, while Small and Godwin were defeated at the polls. In the next House, Congressman Huddleston of Alabama, who has stood almost alone, will have the support of a sizeable group of progressive Democrats whose program will include the repeal of the Esch Cummins law and the taking over of the railroads by the people under the Plumb Plan.

It is noticeable that Harding has gone to Iowa to make a special appeal for the election of Senator Cummins. Reports to the railroad organizations are that Cummins can be beaten in November. The same word comes from Wisconsin, where Lenroot's nomination in the Republican primary has been followed by the filing of an independent candidacy for the Senate by John Thompson, the LaFollette nominee. Harding has now made a special appeal to the jingo and anti-labor element by his declaration against any release of political prisoners. He knows that the A. F. of L. committee on political amnesty believes that almost every one of the political prisoners will be released—although under the pretext of individual facts in each individual case—before November 1.

The Wilson Administration, on the other hand, is making its last-minute campaign at the expense of the farmers. It is trying to make the city workers believe that the farmers have been the big profiteers. By the use of the Federal Reserve Board's powers of controlling credit, it has forced the farmers to take whatever prices the grain gamblers are willing to offer them, since money with which to tide over the marketing period cannot be had. A panic against the farmers has been set in operation. If the same pressure were exerted against the manufacturing or transportation industries, millions of men would soon be out of employment.

Yet the farmers' organizations in the West—the National Non-Partisan League, the Society of Equity and the progressive units of the Farmers' Union and Grange—are standing fast, and are getting ready to give answer by further alliances with organized labor at the polls and in co-operative enterprises.

Preparations are now under way for the trial of the officers of the United Mine Workers of America before Federal Judge Anderson at Indianapolis, beginning November 8, on charges of conspiracy to violate the Lever Act. The conspiracy charge is based on the fact that the coal miners, even after their officers had called off the proposed strike at the order of this life-term judge, held the court in such contempt that they went out and stayed out until a settlement was reached. As a matter of cold fact, neither President Lewis nor any other of the officers who follow him deserves to be on trial, because they did not stand up and fight it out with the court. They surrendered, as is shown in the report of the executive council of the A. F. of L. this year. The executive council met on a Sunday and adopted strong resolutions endorsing and pledging aid to the United Mine Workers in defying Judge Anderson—only to learn a few hours later that Lewis and his associates had decided that they "could not fight the Government."

If ever an indictment was fortunate for a labor official, this one may be called a godsend for John Lewis. He will be on trial when the 400,000 members of his organization ballot for officers, in December. Feeling against him runs high in some districts—due to his failure to call the strike last November when the judge forbade it. Since that day the operators and the Government have, as one of the miners remarked here, "treated us like a step-child." Coercive tribunals have set wages for the bituminous and anthracite miners, and their protests have been denounced from the White House as "repudiations of collective bargaining."

A big coal strike is brewing, unless the recent wage awards are to be revised. Men in the "key" positions—the men who do not dig the coal, but keep the mine machinery going—are not getting a living wage. The trial at Indianapolis will bring out these grievances.

ATLANTIC COAST AND GULF

(Continued from Page 9)

believe it would have a beneficial effect on the criminally inclined, and would result in something like a square deal toward the orderly and self-respecting majority of seamen as well.

The several constitutions of our Unions provide penalties to be imposed upon members who, by misconduct on shipboard, bring their organization into ill repute.

These penalties should be enforced right up to the hilt wherever the evidence of such misconduct is properly substantiated, and the offending member suspended until the penalty is satisfied.

It must certainly be an unpleasant, as well as an unappreciated task, for a Union delegate to feel compelled to advocate "rights" for a member who is known to be definitely and defiantly in the wrong.

The Seamen's Unions cannot and will not knowingly pose as defenders of wilful misconduct or criminal delinquency on the part of ill-behaved seamen, even though they be members. Those who invoke the law themselves must obey the law, and "whoso comes before the Court must come with clean hands."

Let all seamen, therefore, deport themselves according to law, that they may be protected under the law. This will eliminate the current excuse for supplanting American by Oriental crews, and place the ship-owners squarely on record on the principal question now agitating the House.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

welfare in his sixteen years of legislative office has he introduced and carried through. On the contrary, many measures designed to bring comfort and privilege to the masses he has opposed and not a few killed by his own hand. A close study of this man's record emphasizes Theodore Roosevelt's maturest judgment of him:

"'It is rarely that a public man champions the right of big business to do wrong as openly as Mr. Wadsworth'."

Uncle Sam Profiteers.

Uncle Sam has been placed in the profiteer class by Herbert Hoover, testifying before the Senate Committee on Reconstruction. The ex-Food Administrator said the government "should pay something like an adequate rate of interest" to depositors in the Postal Savings. At the present time, he said, national saving was not encouraged and a study of Postal Bank reports would show that depositors do not receive much more than 1 per cent. The government places this money in banks and receives 2½ per cent.

Other witnesses have testified along the same lines. Under the law, the government pays 2 per cent. to depositors and then places this money in banks and receives 2½ per cent. interest. The government has been issuing one-year treasury certificates bearing 6 per cent. This money, used by the government to retire bonds, is furnished by banks, who hand back to Uncle Sam the postal bank deposits for 6 per cent. interest which they are paying 2½ per cent. for.

The treasury certificates are issued in denominations of from $500 to $100,000, which put them beyond the reach of the average wage-earning citizen.

Urge One Language.

The Grand Army of the Republic has taken a stand against the use of any language other than English for common usage. The old vets have changed their ritual to read "one country, one language and one flag," instead of "one country and one flag."

THE ETERNAL LAND QUESTION.

(Continued from Page 7)

wealth that has taken place during the last twenty years in New Zealand?

It is here where the Single Taxer comes in.

The price of land in New Zealand has risen enormously.

New Zealand is the most rent-ridden land on the whole earth.

The land owner is the robber that takes all that is left.

Prices of land have risen beyond all reason. If the State built a railway, the price of the land they were making accessible has risen before the road was finished. Did the municipality plan a street car service, the land speculator was out in the suburb before the street car, and has gained a golden harvest.

The best grazing land for Queen Cow (as that animal is called there sometimes) has reached the figure of 120 pounds per acre. The man who takes this on, finds that, when he has paid the interest on his mortgage, there is left but a bare living for his family and himself. Land in the suburbs of the cities is correspondingly high priced.

The situation is probably clearer in New Zealand than anywhere else on earth. Every enterprise directed by State or civic authority, with a view to benefit the people at large, simply resulted in hugely increased land prices. Not all the land is good in New Zealand. There is much land that is mountainous, bare, bleak and unprofitable. And land being of fixed quantity and in increasing demand, its price must rise—and does rise.

Do the people of New Zealand understand this? No. They do not. Twenty years ago, the Liberal Party of New Zealand laid the foundation stone of the Single Tax; but green moss grows on it now, and the weeds have covered it up; and the once great Liberal Party, which, under Ballance and Seddon bade fair to lead the whole world in restoring the rights of the people to the land on which they must live—that Liberal Party is dead and the wild ass of Conservatism stamps on its grave.

The Labor leaders and the Labor Party in New Zealand have not got hold of the land question. They do not see its possibilities; and, until they do, there is no hope of anything further being done in New Zealand. But New Zealand has shown that, whatever legislation you enact, if you do not get the land question settled first, the land owner will scoop the pool and rake in any benefit that may accrue from any improvements you may introduce.

Henry George asserted that the land question must be the first great reform and New Zealand has shown in letters that he who runs may read that Henry George was correct. And the question is, which country is going to be the first to tackle the lion in the way?—Which country the first to see the cat and bell it? Is it going to be one of Britain's daughter colonies, or poor, old, much-abused Britain herself? Or, is it to be (no intention to flatter) this brightest, fairest State of California?

I think it is America's job to lead in this struggle for freedom of the individual—to give, so far as humanly possible, equal opportunity for all, that each shall be free to do whatever he wills, provided he does not infringe upon the equal freedom of every other.

The whole world is waiting for a lead in the right direction. Let us see to it that we do our bit toward holding the light to show the road.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175

BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588

CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842

MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHEERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street

TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666

SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue

CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer

Branches:

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W

SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131

CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street

SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666

TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823

CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866

MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598

DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543

CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary

Branches:

CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street

Branches:

VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street

Branches:

SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214

SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street

Agencies:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:

SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street

Branches:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG.....Alaska
UNGA.....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

The example set by the United States in establishing juvenile courts has been followed by all the principal countries of Europe, says the United States Children's Bureau.

By a vote of 49 to 17 the Oregon Federation of Labor in its annual convention rejected a proposal for indorsement of the One Big Union plan. Resolutions were adopted favoring higher standards of certification for teachers.

A return to pre-war conditions of no unions, piece work and low wages, is longed for by J. C. Fritts, master car builder of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad. This corporation was forced to raise its standards when the Government took control, and now Fritts echoes the wishes of "higher ups" in a plea for the good old days of "recognition of individual effort." The car builder expressed these sentiments in a speech before the New York Railroad Club.

The board of directors of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks has made permanent the suspension of Grand Vice-President J. W. Nelson, it was announced at the international headquarters. Although a number of technical charges were sustained against Nelson for alleged violations of the brotherhood constitution and laws, it was said the principal indictment was because of his actions in connection with the "vacation," or unauthorized strike, that started last May on the Central of Georgia Railroad.

At the convention of the International Association of Machinists attention was called to a long work day move by the New York Central Railroad. This corporation has asked the State Industrial Commission to exclude it from the law providing for one day's rest in seven. "It seems strange," said President Johnston, "that the New York Central should make such a request when other railroads, such as the Pennsylvania, are laying men off." Declarations in favor of Government ownership of railroads were cheered by the delegates.

At a labor conference of employers and representatives, called by the Babson Statistical Organization, it was declared that adherence to the golden rule in industry is necessary and that prosperity and contentment of the people is only possible as each individual applies this principle. The conference instructed its committee to ask the A. F. of L. for an expression on how the principles of the golden rule can be applied to the industrial situation. It is stated that these advocates of the golden rule [illegible] any form of agreement with trade unions.

The Chicago Federation of Labor [illegible] withdrawn its funds from the Chicago banking institutions and deposited them with the Nonpartisan [illegible] the result grew out of the failure of the United States [illegible] the banks to stand against the organized workers. Moreover, this action will help the farmers and [illegible] the Non-Partisan League [illegible] the banking monopoly that is trying to crush this first real attempt to get out from under their stranglehold, and at the same time prevent them from [illegible] this organization.

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson. Jack
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George

Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.

Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling

Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry

Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38

Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor

Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar

Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.

Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.

Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.

Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liljquest, Rudolf
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.

Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James

Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norshelm, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.

Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen Mick
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.

Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Erle
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Blarne
Peterson, Oscar
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E.
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplone, J.
Prinz, Carl

Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Rohr, Hans
Rosten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van

Sale, John
Smith, C. J.
Samuelsen, H. N.
Scott, W. N.
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash., Letter List

Anderson E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Anderson, Fred.
Brackberry, Geo.
Bunte, Paul
Bjorkquist, Ragnar
Berke, C.
Bedford, A.
Barton, M.
Carlson, Oscar
Caitan, Jose
Gardel, C.
Hanson, H. O.
Johanneson, Jonas
Johannesen, Alf.
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Olssen, Chas.
Olsen, L. -1099
Otill, W. A.
Parker, Arthur L.
Randle, C. W.
Skarvetun, Hansen Hans -315
Saro, P. Wm.
Smith, Johan, Carl
Vejvoda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson Gust
De Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob.
Erickson, John
Eisen, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Levele, Ed.
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lindroos, Oscar
Lauren, William
McNeil, Daniel Ross
Monson, Jacob
McVeiar
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbi, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R.
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren, Hilmer
Registered Letters
Granzzi, Boraline
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rassmussen, T.

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Gronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgail, Mikel
Person, Fritz, Leonard
Rainhard, H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J..... 22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Members of the crew of the "West Katan," whose claims for salvage services rendered to the S. S. "Flavel" is being handled by the undersigned: It has just come to my attention that the Shipping Board have asked you to sign vouchers in settlement of the salvage claim. I was offered one half-month's wages which was refused. It appears that they are endeavoring to get you men to settle directly. I advise that none of you accept this as it is grossly inadequate. At least you have no right to accept any settlement without consulting me. Silas B. Axtell, Attorney for Seamen, 9 State Street, New York City. 10-6-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

UNION LABEL
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
NYMAN BROS.
Bee Hive Store
Men's Furnishings, Hickory Shirts, Hats, Oil Clothing.
Home of the union made Co-operative Shoe
302 So. F Street, ABERDEEN, Wash.
on the Water Front.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

Portland, Or., Letter List

Ahren, Wm.	Laine, A. A.
Andersen, A. C.	Laine, John
Andersson, Axel	Larsen, Hans
Andersson, Carl	Larsson, Ragnar
Anderson, A. B.	Larson, C. J. -1632
Anderson, J. A.	Leisig, John
Anderson, Ed.	Lindner, John P.
Anderson, Gunnar	Lovell, G.
Andersson, Bill	Lundgren, Gust
Anderson, Herman	Malech, Frank E.
Anderson, Carl E.	Malkoff, Peter
Austin, Ed.	Matson, R. M.
Amundsen, Ben	McCroskey, Ray A.
Alakaihn, Moses	McGregor, Thos.
Allen, I. J.	McLeod, Angus
Alsic, Karl	McLean, M. R.
Bach, Soren	Mikkelsen, Harry
Backman, Peter	Moyer, Geo. E.
Bieler, Ben	Neilsen, H. J.
Blake, Frank	Nelson, Nels
Bohm, Gust	Nelsson, C.
Bohm, Franz	Neuling, G. A.
Carmelie, Guiseppe	Nilsen, Christ
Custer, Kenneth R.	Norberg, John E.
Danilson, Albin	Olsen, Michael
Darlington, Wm.	Olson, T.
Davison, Jim	Olson, John
Dies, H.	Pederson, Geo.
Dooly, Frank E.	Peterson, Mauritz
Douglas, Joseph	Petersen, Knut
Durett, J. E.	Pehte, Frank L.
Erickson, J.	Preston, E.
Erickson, Hans E.	Pyne, J. W.
Ellegard, M.	Raanes, Johan
Engler, S. H.	Rader, Allen
Enberg, Einar	Rautio, Jack
Fogelberry, Harry	Reiman, Tovo H.
Forsberg, Swen S.	Rier, Earl W.
Fugman, Arthur	Robertson, E. J.
Gilkison, A. F.	Robles, Frank
Golden, Roy L.	Ross, Geo.
Graff, John D.	Saine, Arthur A.
Gronbeck, H.	Salonen, Victor
Gruber, J.	Salin, Toivo H.
Halley, W.	Sandvik, S. G.
Hanson, August	Scott, M
Hanson, Oskar W.	Shalin, Nils
Hardie, Wallace	Sibley, M.
Hogstrom, Karl I.	Sinclair, P.
Hoiland, E. A.	Smith, Carl J.
Heino, Gust	Slade, I. S.
Henrikson, Geo.	Spencer, Tom
Huber, Charles S.	Stout, R. E.
Hurley, Michael	Sutse, Michel
Irmey, Feodor	Svansson, Ernest
Jacobs, Fulton	Taylor, Bert
Jernberg, Alfred	Thomson, Henry
Jespersen, Martin	Thorsen, Chas.
Johnson, Emil	Tinstrom, A. R.
Johanson, S.	Tuhkanen, John J.
Johnson, Louis	Walmough, P.
Jones, E. L.	Walter, E.
Kalfholm, Edw.	Wallace, Chess C.
Kauko, Axel	Wikstrom, Carl
Kelly, Norman	Willis, Samuel
Kennedy, B. L.	Wood, E. E.
Kjellberg, A. C.	Wolf, Herbert
Klaver, R.	Walters, Fred L.
Krause, Frank	Worn, Otje
Kristiansen, Wm. A.

San Pedro Letter List

Andersen, J. -2157	Golden, Roy
Anderson, Sven	Grason, Joe
Anderson, C.	Gunnerud, Ulrick
Anderson, Bartines	Gronthal, Albert
Andowiz, H.	Greenwall, J. E.
Arentsen, John	Gotz, Rudolph
Arnesen, Isack	Gallagher, Denny
Asaksen, Asak	Galke, Roy
Aspe, Teodor	Gaede, W.
Arnold, Tom	Hurley, Michael
Bentley, Clifford	Holland, Jonny
Berglund, Emil J.	Hermanson, Carl
Bergstrom, J.	Hellesten G.
Bengston, Sigfried	Hansen, Claf
Brown, Irwing	Hogsted, Chas.
Burge, Lawrence	Houston, Robert
Braden, W. A.	Hey, Ben
Bye, Kristian	Hickey, John
Brast, Sjomans	Herlin, W.
Bjorklund, Erick	Hogstedt, Chas.
Benson, Chas. A.	Haman, O. W.
Bergeson, B.	Hangman, Ed.
Belmont, Joe	Holtkamp, C.
Boe, John	Ikaanes, Edward
Carr, R. W.	Isakson, J.
Cowan, Wm. L.	Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Carlera, Peter	Jacobsen, Tom
Craig, Thomas	Johnsen, P. -2313
Church, C. A.	Jensen, Marius
Cage, Thomas	Johnson, George
Christoffersen, C.	Johansen, Carl
Cumalet, J. H.	Johnson, Waldron
Castle, H. C.	Johansen, J. -1432
Carlson, C.	Jonaseon, Johanes
Doty, Erwin	Janofy, Axel
Desmond, Albin	Jeeden, George
Daw, Walter	Jensen, Kristian
Daunt, C.	Johnson, Carl E.
Deaver, Alwin	Johansen, Anton
Dreger, Jack	Johansson, Gustav
Dragich, Peter	Jonson, K. A.
Davis, Orville	Kenrich, Richard
Drennen, William	Kelty, Peter D.
Disney, Robert	Kessa, Th.
Devine, John	Keel, Jewel
England, Thomas	Knudsen, Andrew
Evans, Wilbert	Kristoffersen, Hans
Eliasen, John	Kleman, Otto
Evensen, Alex	Kepplar, C.
Edwich, Leonarel	Killat, Dau
Engel, F.	Karki, Juho
Eliassen, Emil	Kluge, Frank
Fottinger, Karl A.	Klahn, Karl
Frair, Enoch	Kemmulsen, Alf.
Feeder, George	Kappen, Bernt
Franzel, A. H.	Krumholz, Edwin
Freitag, F.	Lind, Gustav
Fansel, H. D.	Lindstrom, John A.
Fahey, M.	Lindholm, Charles
Fairbrothers, Ed.	Lowrey, John
Fish, Ralph	Loderson, John

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST.

SAN FRANCISCO

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

—when baby comes

The birthright of every new Baby is proper care and attention so that his future may be well guarded against all emergencies. Parents who have thoughtfully saved their money can give Baby a right start in the world.

However uncertain the future may seem to you now—you can provide definitely for that future by beginning a savings account today.

Open an account at this personal service bank.

ANGLO-CALIFORNIA TRUST CO.

COMMERCIAL-SAVINGS-TRUST

"The City Wide Bank"

Market & Sansome Streets

San Francisco

THIRD & TWENTIETH SIXTEENTH & MISSION FILLMORE & GEARY 101 MARKET ST.

Larsen, Johan 1542	Mato, Alex	Pastrillen, H. K.	Soder, Paul
Landborg, Chas.	Murphy, Frank	Petersen, Hugo	Sandberg, A.
Lorgeman, Fred	Moller, J.	Perry, William	Seland, Hans
Laine, John	Moutcso, Joe	Parr, Robert M.	Sahlberg, Rudolf
Lill, Karl	Mueller, John	Pedersen, Harold S.	Smith, Carl Johan
Lund, F. V.	Nankinen, F.	Petterson, Axel K.	Steffensen, Hans
Lauritzen, Ole	Nelson, Ernest	Rossdam, Ha.	Scheumberg, Wm.
Levine, Carl	Nilsson, Edward	Robert, Bob	Swanson, Mr.
Lobeles, Jose	Nelson, Gust	Rohman, Pet	Scottel, Andrew
Lehmus, Bill	Nelson, Charlie	Rueter, Aman	Steen, Ivar
Langeman, W.	Njutrom, Uno	Raaum, Harry	Sterndock, John
Lund, Alal	Nilsen, A.	Rod, Halfdam	Swindells, William
Lundquist, Axel	Nelson, Ham	Rosenthal, Walter	Scrivers, W.
Lutzen, W.	Nielsen, P. F.	Robertson, E.	Sullivan, Jack
Moor, Peter	Nelson, Andreas	Robinson, Fred	Swanson, Erick K.
McNell, John	Nelson, Emil	Roberts, J. W.	Strom, Oscar
McRay, Jack	Nelson, Hans	Runge, R.	Strahle, Chas.
Mize, J. H.	Ogren, V. E.	Rosamund, J.	Stenard, Percy
McGhee, E. J.	Olofson, Oscar	Roberts, Pisney	Swenson, A. -1932
Martinson, John	Olson, Toney	Ruiz, Jose	Sundgrau, Walter
Maahs, Willi	Oleson, Chars. C.	Sanders, Chas.	Sunnesvig, Olaf
Magnusson, John	Olsen, Emil	Saxby, Charles	Skaanes, Edward
Moritz, W.	Ono, Jolias	Sandstrom, O. H.	Svendsen, Fred
Monson, Ed.	Petersen, August	Sunde, O. H.	Sveortary,

Home News

There can be no immediate reduction in the price of furniture, according to a statement made by John L. Young, Cleveland, president of the Retail Furniture Dealers' Association of the United States following a conference with the National Council of Furniture Associations.

General W. W. Atterbury, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, addressing the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce, said in his opinion the "nationalization of the railroads through national agreements and national boards of adjustment" is one of the most important questions now before the public. Labor leaders, he added, do not deny that they have it in mind.

Within the next eighteen monhts or two years flying machines will be going from San Francisco to New York in eight hours' time, said Major Reed Chambers, an American ace, before the Pacific Aero Club. Further than that, he said that he expected such a craft would be built with a vacuum chamber and would take advantage of the high velocity air currents that exist considerable distance above the earth and which have an easterly movement of about 200 miles an hour.

Senator Harry S. New, chairman of the speakers at Republican headquarters, announced that plans were being made for national observance of Roosevelt day, October 27. That is the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt. Senator New has sent out a letter to every State chairman calling his attention to the date and requesting that a Republican meeting be held on that date in every county in the United States. It is proposed that prominent Republican speakers shall deliver addresses on the anniversary in memory of Roosevelt and giving emphasis to the idea of "America first."

The Austrian Government's view that Italy favors a union between Austria and Germany is correct according to a high Italian authority in Washington. The Italian view, as given by this authority, is that the peace treaty has left Austria without resources for the maintenance of its population, and that a union between Austria and Germany is absolutely necessary to the very existence of the Austrian people. It is understood that the results of the plebiscite soon to be taken in Austria will be laid before the Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva in November as the basis for a proposal that the peace treaty be so as to permit the union of Austria and Germany.

Cities are increasing in population seven and a half times as fast as rural districts, the Census Bureau disclosed in a compilation of figures covering approximately 85 per cent. of the new census. The figures indicated that the completed census would show the majority of the population to be city dwellers. For the last ten years rural growth was but one-third as it was in the previous decade, but the cities almost maintained their rate of growth, getting five new inhabitants from 1910 to 1920 for each six added during the preceding ten years. All population centers, even the small country hamlets and towns, showed a greater proportionate increase than the purely rural districts. The greatest increases, however, were by cities of 10,000 or more inhabitants.

Domestic and Naval

Secretary Daniels has authorized a flat denial of the report that Admiral Hugh Rodman is to be displaced as commander-in-chief of the fleet on the Pacific Coast of the United States.

The Newcastle Shipbuilding Company, Damariscotta, Me., will build a five-mast schooner for the Boston Maritime Corporation under plans approved by the Shipping Board in conformity with the Jones Act governing investment of remitted excess profits in new construction.

The Texas Steamship Company, which is to build two steel tankers and three steel seagoing barges at its Bath (Me.) plant, has been notified that 100 cars have been allocated by the Government to handle the necessary steel from the Pittsburgh district to Bath.

It is reported that the stockholders of the Great Lakes Engineering Company have approved the sale of its shipbuilding plants at Detroit and Ecorse, Mich., and Ashtabula, Ohio, to Antonio C. Pessano, former president of the company. It is understood that operating plants will be continued for shipbuilding and repair work.

The sea service bureau of the Shipping Board has placed 160,863 officers and men on American vessels during the fiscal year ending June 30, according to figures just announced. Of this number 65.7 per cent. were Americans and about 15 per cent. were graduates of the Shipping Board's recruiting service, which is maintained at twenty-one ports.

The naval government of the American group of Samoan Islands, now under the administration of Commander Warren J. Terhune, is to be investigated by the Navy Department and the battleship "Kansas" has been ordered to proceed from the Atlantic Coast to Pago Pago. Lieut. Commander Creed H. Boucher, deposed captain of the navy yard in the Samoans, has been ordered to join the "Kansas" at Guam and to proceed with the battleship to take part in the investigation.

More than 13,000 officers have been trained for duty on American merchant ships by the Shipping Board's sea training bureau during the last two years. Owing to the rapid growth of the American mercantile fleet additional recruits are needed and a campaign has been instituted along this coast for 500 youths to take up the study of navigation. Candidates, it is specified, will receive a monthly allowance while in training, and when graduated are fitted to be officers on American vessels. Of the number graduated during the last two years 72 per cent. have been granted licenses.

Fear on the part of Great Britain and Scandinavian countries that abrogation of commercial treaties would work to the advantage of Japan were reported to have been one of the factors entering into the decision of President Wilson to refuse to carry out instruction contained in the merchant marine act. The reason for such fears, it was reported, was that while provision is made in some of the treaties for a six months' notice of abrogation, this treaty with the Japanese cannot be terminated except on a notice of two years. It is stated that that country would retain advantages during the two-year period not enjoyed by the others.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. W.
Adolfsson, John
Alhstrom, Ellis
Alto, John
Almon, L.
Andersen, Axel F. C.
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Anderson, G. Alexius
Anderson, Edwin
Anderson, James
Anderson, S. E.
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Anderson, Frank
Andersson, C. -2001
Anderson, John
Aronson, Gunnar
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Attaberry, Clarence

Baardsen, Hans
Backman, Paul
Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Baker, B. A.
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Bengtson, Oscar
Blomgren, C. A.
Bloom, Pete
Boerner, P. F.
Borjesson, H. J. B.
Bosshardt, H.
Bothe, O.
Boutwell, Billie
Botsford, R. D.
Bower, Gordon
Brander, Wm.
Braun, James
Broshear, A. O.
Broshear, A. O.
Brown, Dudley S.
Bryning, Wm.
Burr, W. H.

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, Andy
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Peter
Carpenter, Harold
Chilcott, Geo.
Clausen, Louis
Corey, Eldridge
Coulyou, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dahl, Otto
Dahl, Oskar
Dahls, Ogden
Davis, Warren
Daunt, C.
DeMario, Thos
Dickensen, T.
Domke, Willi
Drennen, W. N.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Duff, Peter W.
Dushane, Matt.

Eastman, J. W.
Eaton, Lawrence
Elde, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Eriksson, Martin
Ellis, F. L.
Enamez, Joe
Endemann, M.
Enarus, Pito
Erickson, Gustaf W.
Erickson, -997
Estman, Estell
Estellmen, Erick
Even, Frank

Farevoog, C. M.
Fletcher, Jos
Fredricksen, O.

Gabrielsen, Lars
Gallery, R. B.
Garrigal, F.
Gartzitzky, Fritz A
Germenis, Socrates
Gerstley, Albion
Gesler, R. L.
Gibson, Thos.
Graham, Ray
Grainge, Arnold
Granberg, Fred
Green, Lawrence
Green, Granville
Greeman, Gusta
Grondahl, Arnal W.
Gustaffson, Walter
Gunderson, H. T.

Haider, Henry
Hale, Kingsley
Hallit, Frank
Hallowes, L. N.
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, H. V.
Hansen, Magnus
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Harbst, J. D.
Harvey, Earl S.
Hawkins, L.
Hein, M.
Henke, Erick
Hennum, Ludvig
Hessin, B.
Higgins, P.
Holbrook, G. A.
Hoskin, Alex
Houlak, John
Hoglander, Martin
Hood, Alex

Ibsen, Christian
Ibsen, V. L.
Ingebretsen, Christian
Ireland, H.
Irving, John
Iversen, Iver

Jacklin, Charles
Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jacobsen, Alfred
Jacobsen, Joakim
Jahnke, Paul
Jahnke, Richard
Jansson, Fredrik
Janssen, Carl
Jensen, A. Chr.
Jensen, Carl O.
Jensen, Joe
Johansen, Johan R.
Johansen, Waldemar
Janson, John A.
Jansson, John
Jensen, Martin
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jepperson, Chris
Jespersen, M.
Johansen, Emil
Johannsen, Carsten
Johnston, C. B.
Johnson, John -2840
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johnson, E. L.
Johannesen, Ole
Johansen, Eilert
Johansson, C. -2094
Johannson, Albert
Johnson, Edward S.
Johnstone, Leslie
Jonsson, J. H.-2951
Jonson, Arnold
Josefson, Ben
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaasik, G.
Kaernbach, Hugo
Kaki, Lauri
Kaplan, I.
Karlgren, -644
Karlsson, E. -1738
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Katkin, Ed.
Keeney, F. W.
Kelly, Geo.
Kierne, G. H.
Kindt, Frederico
Kine, Conrad
Kinnie, E. J.
Kinze, Martin
Knutson, R. B.
Knudsen, Ragnval
Kokko, Martin
Kolontow, A.
Koetz, Fridrick
Koster, Walter
Kraal, J.
Krugero, C. M. J.
Kristensen, J. P.
Kristjan, K. W.
Kristofferson, A. B.
Krueger, Harry

Laine, John E
Laine, Frank
Lanse, Walter
LaMadrid, R.
Lambert, Jos.
Lamprear, D.
Larsen, Alex 1777
Larsen, John -2012
Larsen, Alexis
La Rue, C. B.
Lauritzen, Ole
Lee, Albert
Leeder, W. -2287
Leonar, H. S.
Leegaard, Rasmus
Leskinen, F. A.
Liesen, W.
Lind, C. -2314
Lindahl, G.-2342
Lindroos, Geo.
Livingston, H.
Lidsten, Chas.
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Lindquist, Chas. S.
Lindroos, Fred
Liljedal, Ludv.
Loberg, Bror
Loning, Herman
Lorentzen, Jean
Lund, Wm. J.
Lybeck, Theo.
Lyons, John

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
MacKay, Wm.
Maki, Ivar
Mahoney, F. J.
Mannila, Oscar
Manning, H. H.
Mannonen, Niels
Manzano, Luis
Martinsen, Ingvald
Masalin, Uno
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Matheis, Herman
McFarlane, Dougal
McGauley, Geo.
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McCarthy, Harood
McWade, W. C.
Meier, Otto
Melgand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Meyer, George
Mikelsen, Bernard
Mitchell, David
Mooi, Peter
Monroe, N. S.
Monsen, Charlie
Mol, J. W.
Moller, Fritz
Moritz, W.
Moore, H. L.
Morin, E. H.
Morrison, Donald
Mohr, Chas.
Morgan, R. B.
Morrison, Phillip
Mortensen, Thomas
Moulas, Nicholas
Muller, Werner
Muldrose, W. L.
Murray, E. J.

Naylor, Geo. D.
Nelson, N. H.
Nelson, C. R.
Nelson, Karl
Nesson, Ralph
Ness, Aksel
Neveau, Thomas
Newton, A.
Nickerson, P. C.
Nicolaisen, Ancker
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nielsen, -1116
Nilsen, Christ
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nielsen, C. -1303
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordling, Sven
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nurken, H.
Nurmi, Wm.
Nuter, Alex
Nyman, John A.

Oad, John
O'Connor, Dennis
O'Connor, John J.
Ogren, V. E.
Olafson, O. B.
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, J. H.
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, Magnus
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsen, I. M.
Olsson, Ernst
Olsson, C. G.-1101
Olsson, V.
Olsson, Charle
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Osen, Aksel
Osted, Fred
Ortman, Carl
Owervick, Thos.
Ozolin, Jan

Page, J. N.
Pankratz, Bruno
Paulsen, E. A.
Paul, Ben
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, Lewis
Pederson, George
Pedersen, Frederik
Pedersen, S.-1888
Perdock, A.
Peterson, Axel
Peterson, Elias
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Phillips, Bob
Pope, G. N.
Post, Albert
Powers, G. A.
Pree, E. Deu
Publicatus, August

Raasu, Matti
Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Regnill, Gustaf
Renstrom, Axel
Reynolds. T. T.
Richardson, Edwin
Rian, H.
Roach, Steffen
Robson, Carr
Roberts, John
Robertson, Robert
Rodriquez, Antonio
Rogers, Thos. G.
Ronn, E.
Ronning, O. B.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Rupp, A.-1029
Ryan, James

Saharoff, John
Salil, Rudolf
Sanne, Rudolf
Sandstrom, Olaf
Sassi, M.
Saxby, C. H.
Schmees, Herman
Schutte, Richard
Sexton, Harry J.
Sigrist, George
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Skaug, Hans
Skeries, Hans
Small, E. R.
Smith, Geo. B.
Sodergren, Ragnar
Solberg, Bernt P.
Sorensen, E.
Sovdsnes, O. Peterson
Speckman, Max
Sprogoe, Theodor
Stanford, Harry
Stenberg, Hj. N.
Stjernstrand, Bror
Stone, M. C.
Strom, John
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Strele, F.
Stenensen, A.
Stewart, William
Stuhr, Olaf
Swansen, August
Swanson, Elis

Tennison, George
Thomas, Fred
Thode, Rudolph
Tillman, Chas.
Tingstrom, A. R.
Torson, Andrew
Tovano, A. R.
Tufty, C. J.
Vitol, A.

Watkin, E. A. H.
Wakrom, J.
Wallenius, Kaarlo, E.
Walstrom, Albert
Waterfall, L. N.
Weatherby, Thomas
Weigel, Gustav
Weisshaard, Rudolf
Werkhoven, G.
Wezwagar, Andrew
Wessberg, E. H. N.
West, Frank
Whiting, Russell
Wichman, Carl H
Wijchgel, J. -970
Wilhelm, Erich M.
Winther, Johan
Wiklund, Wiktor
Wilks, J.
Wittenburg, D.
Wohlers, Diedrich
Woods, Dick
Wolfe, E. O.
Wolff, Paul E.
Wray, P. R.

Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Fowler, R. J.
Fredricksen, Otto
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Gallery, R. B.
Grienne, Fred
Goodman, Tony
Henrikson, Ernst
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Olsen, O. J. -1020
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Travers,
Tillsten, Jack
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

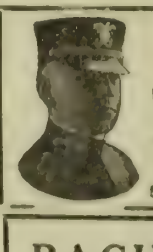
INFORMATION WANTED.

The following named members of the crew of the S. S. "Kenebec," who helped salve the schooner "Thomas L. Wand" on November 19, 1919, have vouchers ready to be distributed at our office:

Demetre Sakelaris, $46.80; Carl Puika, $56.72; Isidro Flores, $50.55; Janes Franco, $50.55; Daniel Rodrigues, $50.55; Rafael Corrillo, $50.55; Dimity Sacelarius, $50.55; Siegor Sorensen, $50.55. Levy & Levy, Lawyers, Trust Bldg., Galveston, Texas. 10-6-20

Anyone who was acquainted with the late Chas. Erickson, discharged from the U. S. Navy in 1896, and subsequent thereto sailing on the Pacific Coast, will confer a great favor upon his widow, Mrs. Charles Erickson, by communicating with her at P. O. Box 15, San Pedro, Cal. Mrs. Erickson is anxious to establish certain facts relating to the physical condition of her late husband prior to his discharge from the U. S. Navy. 1-28-20

Any one knowing the whereabouts of the brother of August W. Strasdin, will please communicate with B. I. LaSelle, 924 Crocker Bldg., San Francisco. 9-15-20



FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the
CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

CHRISTENSEN NAVIGATION SCHOOL ESTABLISHED 1906 SAN FRANCISCO S.F. CAL.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

AT THE FOOT OF THE FERRY BRIDGE
GEO. A. PRICE
DEMANDS THE UNION LABEL

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SHOES SALE SHOES
YOU CAN SAVE FROM $3 TO $5 A PAIR AT THE SALE PRICE THAN YOU CAN PURCHASE THEM ELSEWHERE. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SALE.
AGENTS—W. L. DOUGLAS, JUST WRIGHT, STRONG & GARFIELD, WALK EASE
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET, S. F. Between Market and Mission

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y. — 30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
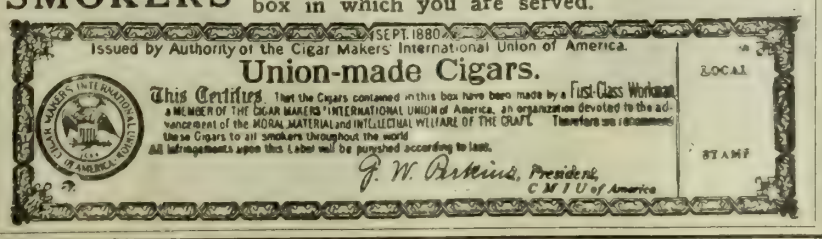
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President — CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.



News from Abroad

Cardinal Dubois has been appointed archbishop of Paris. He succeeds the late Cardinal Amette.

At present 60 trawlers are reported to be laid up at Hull owing to expenses being greater than the proceeds of the fishing.

Italy and Jugo-Slavia, it is reported, will open direct negotiations in Switzerland at an early date with a view of reaching a definite settlement of the Adriatic question.

Fifty-two persons were killed, according to the best available figures, in a typhoon which swept Tokio and the harbor of Yokohama recently.

The American forces in Germany will have an aviation unit in operation within the next few weeks. The newest type of United States Army airplanes, which have been developed recently in America, have been shipped to Germany and a group of aviators already has arrived.

The Japanese railway authorities have decided to substitute electricity for steam on all lines within the empire, acccording to reports reaching the Department of Commerce. The change, which, it is estimated, will cost 200,000,000 yen, is expected to reduce the number of locomotives in service by 40 per cent.

Ignacio Leon, heading a Chilean syndicate said to be capitalized at $25,000,000, has, according to a Chilean publication, obtained from the government of Ecuador a concession for the construction of a railway connecting the Pacific Coast at Port Bolivia with the Amazon at Port Borza and traversing rich regions heretofore untapped by railways.

The ordinance recently passed by the Municipal Board of Manila prohibiting the sale of liquor to American soldiers and sailors is illegal, according to an opinion handed down by the City Attorney. He characterized it as class legislation and an unwarranted interference with affairs of the United States Army and Navy. The Municipal Board, in enacting the ordinance, alleged that soldiers and sailors, while under the influence of liquor, disturbed the peace.

Carpenters are unable to build enough coffins for cholera victims in West China, declared a letter received by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society from Dr. Joseph Taylor, its representative in Cheng-Tu. Under date of August 10, Taylor wrote: "The cholera is raging in Cheng-Tu. People are dropping dead in the streets and the supply of coffins has run out. Although carpenters are working day and night, the dead have to be buried in trenches."

The French Foreign Office is seriously aroused over the Chinese seizure of the Russian concession in Tientsin. Chinese troops formally took possession of the city, raised the Chinese flag, installed police in Chinese uniforms and suppressed the foreigners' courts, special rights and other privileges they held. The French Government is agitating for an international complaint against the Chinese Government, as the French, British, American, German and other nationals enjoyed privileges under the Russian control of the city. It is reported that the Chinese are preparing to seize the Russian concession of Hankow.

With the Wits

"I heard the speech last night was extempore." "It was nothing of the kind. It was rotten."—Baltimore American.

West—Barson has gone to California for his health. North—How did he lose it? West—Earning the money to go to California!—Life.

"Smith is a queer fellow, isn't he?" said Brown. "Yes," agreed Jones. "Why, he thinks as much of his family as he does of his political party."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Vicar (wishing to be very severe) —Do you know, John, whenever I see you in an intoxicated condition I think of a certain animal? John —Aye! I know, parson. Yo' thinks, "Lucky dog, lucky dog!"—Tit-Bits.

"Esther," questioned the teacher of a member of the juvenile class, "what is the difference between electricity and lightning?" "You don't have to pay nothing for lightning," came the prompt reply.—Everybody's Magazine.

Unequal Losses. — Frederick was sitting on the curb, crying, when Billy came along and asked him what was the matter. "Oh, I feel so bad 'cause Major's dead—my nice old collie!" sobbed Frederick. "Shucks!" said Billy, "My grandmother's been dead a week and you don't catch me crying." Frederick gave his eyes and nose a swipe with his hand and, looking up at Billy, sobbed despairingly: "Yes, but you didn't raise your grandmother from a pup."—Harper's Magazine.

Awful Possibility.—An Australian dignitary was being entertained by New York society. For what seemed to be endless nights he was dragged through the intricacies of the pigeon-walk, the fox-trot, the camel-limp, and the rest. At last came his day of departure. "Please, madam," he implored of his late hostess as they parted at the gangplank, "don't ever come to Australia." "But, wh-wh-why not?" gasped that surprised and offended lady. "Because," answered the Australian, wiping his brow, "I don't want you ever to see a kangaroo at play."—The American Legion Weekly.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ — Phone Douglas 5752 — ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James R. Sorenson
Pres. and Treas.

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

718 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's Good Goods

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell
UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization.

VOL. XXXIV, No. 8. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1920. Whole No. 1724.

THE SHOP COMMITTEE

An Analysis of Its Functions as Related to Trade-Unionism

One of the many legacies left by the world war is the shop committee. Regarding its usefulness to the workers opinions are, as usual, divided. Much of the opposition to it in this country is undoubtedly due to the fact that it has become associated in the public mind with the so-called "Rockefeller Plan." But it is also certain that the shop committee served a most important purpose during the war, when the ordinary machinery for straightening out differences between the workers and their employers was virtually suspended. Admitting this, the question may yet be fairly asked: Is the shop committee, from a trade-union standpoint, a desirabe or necessary peace institution?

An answer to that question may, perhaps, be found in the following article reprinted from The Nation.

One of the first developments in the United States involving the principle of employe representation was that called the "Rockefeller Plan," adopted by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, after the unsuccessful strike of miners in 1913. This strike was a bitter and bloody one, but the company was not ready to prevent the recurrence of such trouble by recognizing organized labor and seeking its assistance in curbing the rule of local managers. It therefore installed what came to be known as a "company union," that is, a system of grievance and adjustment committees elected by and from among its own employes alone, without regard to their union affiliation. The leaders of the unions thought they recognized in the plan a design to forestall the growth of organized labor, and have been indefatigable in pointing out its defects. To them any new "employe representation" scheme savors of oil, and automatically arouses their resistance.

For some time the matter rested there. but during the war a new quarter was heard from. In England workmen could not negotiate in the ordinary way, because the national officials had tied their hands by understandings with the Government, and the Munitions act forbade strikes. Furthermore, the workers in any one shop found it difficult to exert a unified pressure, because they were likely to belong to half a dozen separate craft or occupational unions, each with a highly centralized system of negotiation.

Nevertheless, each of these unions was represented in the shop by a "shop steward"—sometimes elected by the local men, sometimes appointed from above. His duties had been largely nominal—for instance, to see that every member of his union in the shop had paid his dues. Now, however, the shop stewards stepped in to fill the breach. They formed shop committees representing the various crafts, and began to negotiate directly with individual employers, and to call strikes. Unofficial shop stewards were elected for this purpose in many localities. The practice spread and developed into a "movement" with a nebulous philosophy. Among the ideas of its adherents were the old ones of industrial unionism and direct action in the form of general strikes, coupled with the new ones of participating in the management of the shop and workers' control in the industry as advocated by the National Guildsmen. Here was a development of the shop committee which, though it was vehemently condemned by the officials of the unions as the Rockefeller plan, arose from the left of the labor movement rather than from the right of the employers.

Progressive employers and industrial engineers saw in this new movement something which might be molded to their special purposes. They were interested, not in contending with unions, but in increasing productivity. Experience had shown that the rock upon which many attempts at improved management had foundered was the indifference or active opposition of the worker. If they could interest him in production, even at the cost of granting him some share in management, so much the better. Furthermore, they preferred dealing with the representatives of their own workmen about practical problems to allowing discontent to simmer until they were forced to deal with representatives of a national union about issues which easily became converted into abstract principles.

It was in this form that the shop committee movement came back to our shores during the war. The National War Labor Board and the United States Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board both installed, in accordance with their own models, shop committees to localize disputes and deal with questions that normally arise between employer and employee from day to day. In some cases these committees were bodies to establish piece rates by joint negotiation. In all, however, they were created with the consent of the unions, and had no jurisdiction which would interfere with that of the national union officials. During the war shop committees, each representing a number of crafts with separate national organizations, were installed in some of the arsenals and navy yards, in ship yards, and in many munition plants. Here the movement came neither from radical workers nor conservative employers, but from experts sincerely interested in increased production and in the best methods of labor adjustment.

Each of these plans, however, had results not anticipated by its founders. The company union as a substitute for national unions has been adopted by a number of large corporations during the last two years—notably by the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, the Inland Steel Company, and the International Harvester Company. In many of these cases, when the employer had no dealings with a powerful national union, the objections urged against the Rockefeller plan by labor officials proved to be well founded. The committees were not really representative of the wishes of the men, but were packed with petty bosses and foremen. They lacked the courage or the independence to demand major concessions such as shortening of the workday or a general increase in pay. The superiority of an independent union organization become so obvious that the agitation for it was carried on more efficiently by the company union itself than it could have been by a dozen walking delegates. The steel strike was actually strongest in many of the plants which had installed employee representation.

The British shop steward movement, because it was at odds with the national labor organizations, did not become effective except as a protest against extraordinary conditions. Its larger ambitions are obliged to await the further trend toward industrial unionism. to be accomplished by the slow process of amalgamation and federation in the "regular" trade union movement.

In America, many of the unauthorized strikes have arisen from shop committees organized merely as instruments of local adjustment by the Government or by employers. Here the British conditions which gave rise to the shop steward movement were in effect duplicated. The national union officers were incapable, for one reason or another, or securing relief to offset the rapidly rising cost of living; so the rank and file took matters in their own hands. regardless of agreements, and naturally turned for leaders to the shop representatives. The inferences to be drawn from these facts seem to be:

1. Both employers and employees will be disappointed in the results of shop committees adopted as a substitute for, or unconnected with, national unions. The labor movement as a whole, however, has little to fear from them in the long run.

2. The simultaneous existence in any establishment of the shop committee and the conservative, national craft union creates an unstable equilibrium, which is likely to result in the shelving of one or the other.

This leads to a question: What is the status of the shop committee connected with an industrial union rather than with a number of craft unions? We may find one answer in the clothing industry. Here the shop form of organization was natural, because there were an extraordinary number of employers averaging only a few employees apiece. And the successful unions have been industrial in form from the first—that is, they included all crafts and all shops of the main clothing trades. Here the shop committee, instead of an element of weakness to the national union, is one of its main clothing trades. Here the shop committee, instead of an element of weakness to the national union, is one of its main sources of strength. The shop chairman, who is a union official, for years has been the first point at which adjustments of grievances are sought, and he is a recognized part of the conciliation machinery which reaches above him. through various agencies, to the "impartial chairman."

The final conclusion may well be, therefore, that the proper environment for the shop committee is an intimate connection with a national industrial union. There it exercises the function of expressing the workers' will and aspirations and at the same time creates the possibility of satisfying the engineer's desire for better organization of production. But those used to labor negotiation and management in the ordinary sense must, in dealing with a union of this sort, revise some of their practices. They must abandon the fixed, long-term trade agreement and accept instead a continuous machinery of adjustment, flexible in the extreme. They must be prepared really to entertain a substantial and growing share of control over production on the part of labor. They must, in other words, admit to industry a vital force which substitutes for the unorganized and restless employee, or for the conservative union protecting him in a negative manner, a powerful instrument for making effective his normal tendency to assume control of the industrial system.

THE FRESNO CONVENTION.

Delegates' Report.

To the Sailors' Union of the Pacific.

Dear Comrades:

Your delegates beg leave to report the following:

The Twenty-first Annual Convention of the California State Federation of Labor was called to order on Monday, October 4, in Fresno, California, at 10:30 o'clock by Dan Doggett, chairman of the local Committee of Arrangements. After a brief address of welcome he introduced the Rev. Thomas T. Giffen, pastor of the First Congregational Church, who delivered the invocation.

The chairman then introduced Chase Osborn, publisher and editor of the Evening Herald, who welcomed the delegates in a speech that spoke of the good feelings that existed between employer and employe in Fresno.

Wiley Giffen, president of the California Associated Raisin Company, was introduced and spoke of his early manhood regarding his ideas of organization. The speaker assured the delegates that his heartiest goodwill goes out to the toilers; and Mayor William Toomey, introduced as one of the best friends of labor in Fresno, was in his usual good humor and reminded the delegates that as he was living in the garden spot of California, he was of the opinion that the representatives of labor in this convention would in a very short while become imbued with the feeling that overcame him 35 years ago and change their place of abode to the Raisin City. In conclusion, Mayor Toomey presented to President Murphy the key of the city.

Judge H. F. Briggs, the next speaker, welcomed the assemblage in a manner that showed his friendship for the rights of organized labor, bringing attention to the fact that now as never before there should be a general get-together for the uplift of the employer and employe.

There were present over 300 delegates representing 192 affiliated local unions and central labor bodies.

In addition to the reports of officers, the General Organizers and delegate to the Montreal convention of the American Federation of Labor. 80 resolutions were presented to and acted upon by the convention. The reports of the Officers show a decided progress both in point of increase of membership and improvement of working conditions in nearly every part of the State. The report of the Secretary-Treasurer states that in spite of approaching dull times and prevalent unemployment and determined, organized opposition from the employers in many localities, the paid-up membership has increased from 94,900 to 104,200 during the year. The following statistical information gives an idea of the growth of the Federation during the last decade:

	1910	1920	Increase
Paid-up membership..	45,000	104,200	59,200
Number of affiliated locals	244	569	325
Number of city central bodies	12	27	15

The income of the Federation during the year was $12,286.08 and its expenses $12,948.96.

The work of the Federation is along two lines: First, promoting the passage of legislation in the interest and for the protection of the men and women who work; second, to strengthen and further organization in all fields of labor.

Propositions Submitted and Action Taken on Same.

Proposition No. 1—Presented by Daniel C. Murphy, setting forth the activities of the so-called Better America Federation and calling the attention of the delegates present to the menace that confronts the labor movement and advising them to warn all fair employers of the danger that lies behind the so-called federation and to work to the end that its establishment in every community be contested to the end that it will be driven out of existence. The report of the committee for concurrence was adopted by a rising vote.

Proposition No. 2—Relating to the eight-hour day for all street and electric railway men, was concurred in and the California State Federation of Labor pledged to give all of its support to the end that a law be enacted giving the relief requested.

Proposition No. 3—Relating to the construction of the Hetch-Hetchy project and relating to unorganized conditions and antagonistic attitude of contractors. Referred to the Executive Council for such adjustments as may be made.

Proposition No. 4—Relating to the sanitation of all restaurants, bakeshops and all places where food for consumption is prepared be required to have same rat and vermin proof, was concurred in and the Legislative Committee requested to seek the relief through proper legislation.

Proposition No. 6—Relating to the now existent rules affecting the rates of interest in certain banking institutions and seeking to remedy same through proper legislation; concurred in.

Proposition No. 7—Relating to the payment by the employer for the license of chauffeurs; concurred in.

Proposition No. 8—Relating to the unsanitary conditions in blacksmith shops as well as in machine shops and asking for relief through legislation; concurred in.

Proposition No. 10—Relating to the freedom of Ireland; concurred in.

Proposition No. 11—Relating to the proper inspection of all foods as well as the places wherein they are stored; concurred in.

Proposition No. 12—Relating to the Asiatics in California; concurred in.

Proposition No. 13—Relating to the San Francisco water front, same to be controlled by the city; concurred in.

Proposition No. 14—Relating to safety appliance for cranking machines on all trucks; concurred in.

Proposition No. 15—Relating to the interest rate for State highway bonds; concurred in.

Proposition No. 19—Relating to holidays for hospital employes in State institutions; concurred in.

Proposition No. 21—Relating to the licensing and regulating of persons engaged in certain branches of the electrical profession; concurred in.

Proposition No. 22—Relating to compensation for certain work now performed by teamsters and which liability for same is denied; concurred in.

Proposition No. 23—Relating to the establishing by commission of the wages of adult workers, applying particularly to workers engaged in the fruit industry; concurred in.

Proposition No. 24—Relating to remuneration as established by the workmen's compensation laws and asking for readjustment of same; concurred in.

Proposition No. 25—Relating to the waiting period as established by law in the State compensation act and seeking to change same to establish liability and compensation from date of injury; concurred in.

Proposition No. 27—Relating to payment of employes by check and requesting that law be sought that will compel payment in U. S. currency; concurred in.

Proposition No. 28—Relating to the use of airguns in the painting trades and seeking relief from same by law; concurred in.

Proposition No. 31—Relating to the operation of San Francisco fire boats in accordance with Federal laws; concurred in.

Proposition No. 32—Relating to pensions for State employes; concurred in.

Proposition No. 33—Relating to the rehabilitation of injured service men; concurred in.

Proposition No. 34—Relating to placing Continental Manufacturing Furniture Company, located in San Francisco, on unfair list; concurred in.

Proposition No. 36—Relating to the employment and sanitary care of workers in the oil fields as well as those employed on construction camps; concurred in.

Proposition No. 37—Relating to making an effort to organize the non-union workers in the employ of the American Can Company in New Jersey and to prevent the introduction of the bonus system in said plant; concurred in.

Proposition No. 38—Relating to gambling and debauchery on the U. S. and Mexican borders; concurred in.

Proposition No. 39—Relating to the social and fraternal spirit among organized workers be fostered by all Central Labor Councils; concurred in.

Proposition No. 40—Relating to the proposi-

(Continued on Page 7)

AN A. B. HEARD FROM.

Editor SEAMEN'S JOURNAL: After having read different statements concerning the intentions of capital to smash or cripple organized labor on the American continent, I am tempted to draw the attention of the sailorman who sails the seven seas to an incredible state of affairs. Incredible is the only word that is applicable in this case. Now, boys, we mustn't be offended if capital tries to crush our several seamen's unions, for that is only natural, and it is, therefore, easy for us to combat the evil by intelligent organization, but when it comes down to ship's officers trying to cripple us, then, indeed, are we faced with a serious situation. Here are the facts: In the first place, the British Columbia coast (as far as my experience goes) is the only place in this world where ships can clear with unqualified crews, therefore rendering effective organization extremely difficult, and, added to that, is the apparently hostile attitude to the Mates and Masters' Guild which I have noticed. I cite the following instances: During the British Columbia coast strike, in which we obtained nearly everything demanded, these ships' officers broke their word of honor to the sailors, inasmuch as they told the union that, in the event of a strike, the guild would under no circumstances whatever perform the work of the sailors, but would continue to do their usual duties faithfully, such as the navigation of the ship and safety of passengers and mail. This statement was also inserted in the press of Vancouver. Now, on the second day of the strike, I saw those officers doing the work of the sailors. Their word of honor wasn't worth the paper it was written on, yet we went to war over a scrap of paper, as it were. There is also another glaring case: One of those captains had a son scabbing during the strike, and is still a non-union man. What does it all indicate? Why, it is not the capitalist who is the real menace; it is the working plug himself, for, after all is done and said, those men of the guild are as poor as the common sailor. They put in their twelve hours a day and are not too well paid. They have their trials and troubles and their own little union, just the same as us, yet they don't seem to have any sympathy with organized labor. Mind you, it is not the individual members who are at fault, for I'm sure some are the finest fellows I've ever sailed with—some of them, in fact, fought in the war, but I certainly blame the organization for their lack of integrity. Sometimes, when I think of the mental and physical agony we have gone through during the war, I find myself asking: O! Democracy, where art thou?

Yours for a fair show-down,

JAMES FORBES.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The attention of all concerned is respectfully directed to the revised list of branch offices of the Marine Cooks and Stewards' Association of the Atlantic and Gulf, as amended in the usual column of the SEAMEN'S JOURNAL by official order.

No sub-agencies of the association will be hereafter established or maintained in any port, and those previously established have been discontinued. All local offices in any port will hereafter be conducted under the general supervision of the port agent in that port or vicinity. The local office established at 1641 Thames street, Baltimore, is intended for the special convenience of colored members in that port, and will remain under the immediate jurisdiction of the Baltimore branch at 913 Fell street.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Oppose Shoddy Wool.

In urging the passage of a law that would compel manufacturers to label the amount of virgin wool in their goods, the National Sheep and Wool Bureau of America says this proposal is being resisted by textile manufacturers and the rag-picking and waste salving industries.

The bureau says cloth is being sold under cover of the term "all wool," which the public understands to mean virgin (new) wool.

No chemical reveals the presence in cloth of wool substitutes made of reworked woolen rags, it is stated. Only the lack of wearing qualities tells the tale. Last year there were used in this country three pounds of virgin wool per capita. The need was twelve pounds per capita. The difference consisted of unidentified wool substitutes.

To remedy this condition, and establish a market for wool, the bureau is urging the French-Capper "truth-in-fabric" bill, now pending in Congress, and is calling upon friends of this legislation to protest to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for its treatment of the French-Capper bill and its publicity of the Rogers bill, alleged to correct the shoddy wool evil, but which would legalize the practice, according to the bureau.

Piecework Favored.

President Loomis, of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, is mad clear through because the government abolished piece work when it controlled the railroads. Mr. Loomis says the railroad administration killed incentive, but that our American system makes it unlikely that ambitious workers will be satisfied to be "on the same basis with mere time servers."

This story is weakened, however, by Editor Brown, of the Pennsylvania Labor Herald, who declares that when the government took charge of the railroads the Lehigh Valley paid the lowest wage in the United States.

"We can understand why the officials of this railroad objected to government operation," says the labor editor, who shows that the Lehigh paid as low as 32 cents an hour to machinists when other roads had a minimum of 50 and 54 cents. Through its system of classification the Lehigh had other machinists listed as helpers, who were paid as low as 19 cents an hour.

"This was under the wonderful system of 'individual incentive' as advocated by Mr. Loomis," is the labor paper's final shot.

News to Britishers.

While cable dispatches tell the story of wage demands by British workers to meet present-day living costs, this information is worthless, according to statements by Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, department of chemistry, University of Pennsylvania.

In his address to a convention of employers in the bakery industry at Atlantic City, Dr. Taylor announced that the British people have solved the high cost of living by using the same rations as in war time, although in larger portions.

The educator painted a glowing picture of conditions in the land of John Bull because people have voluntarily abandoned the use of choice meat cuts and are eating cereals. Bank deposits, said Dr. Taylor, are increasing as a result of sticking to war rations.

Wrong Immigration Plan.

"No country during recent years has had as unwise, unsound and uneconomic an immigration policy as the United States," writes Editor Frey, of the International Molders' Journal.

"The policies which should regulate immigration to the United States are simple and easily understood. Immigration should never be greater than the ability of the country to absorb and Americanize the immigrant. Where immigration is too rapid to permit of Americanization, foreign colonies spring up and perpetuate themselves, resisting rather than welcoming Americanization.

"Secondly, immigration should not be permitted where idleness exists within our country, for the arrival of immigrants only adds to the numbers already unemployed.

"There is no law which prevents the manufacturer from shutting down his plant, but when corporations begin to do this, our immigration laws should be such that the shutting down of large establishments for any reason would automatically close the doors to immigration.

"There is no such thing as shortage of labor in the United States. There is at the present time a surplus for the seasonal occupations, as was shown during the wheat harvest of this year, when thousands of those who went to the western States to help harvest the wheat crop found that there was no work for them, as more men had applied for positions as harvest workers than there was wheat to harvest, although this year the crop was a record one."

Anti-Crusade Revived.

The anti-union shop crusade of 15 years ago has been revived by cheap labor employers, who have learned no lesson from past events.

The present movement is identical with that of the days of Parry, Post and Van Cleave. The same literature is being circulated, and the same claims are made with no attempt at originality. These employers are against unions; they want individual bargaining, and they have resurrected the threadbare charges that the unions are "un-American" and that they "destroy individuality."

The present agitation is being resisted by the organized workers, who are better equipped to combat low wage advocates than they were two decades ago. A significant feature of the fight is labor's refusal to use phrases of the employer who talks of the so-called "open" shop. He is against collective bargaining or recog-

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Internationale Transportarbeiter-Federation Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de Sâo Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

White Russia has been proclaimed a soviet republic, according to delayed advices received from Kovno, Lithuania. The proclamation, signed by White Russian and Lithuian Communists and representatives of the "bund," or workmen's organization, was issued in Minsk September 7.

Press dispatches from Rome indicate that an agreement has been reached between the iron and steel workers and the factory owners by which labor will share in the control of industry. A commission of twelve men, it is said, will "work out a plan which will be enacted into industrial reform legislation by Parliament. According to the tentative agreement the workers will get the following benefits. 1. Increase in wages; 2. Workmen, through accredited representatives, to have certain authority in directing the work in factories; 3. Annual vacations to be granted.

At the annual convention of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, President Moore and Secretary Draper were re-elected without opposition. All vice-presidents were also re-elected. The convention proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the Canadian labor movement. More than 600 delegates attended the convention. Officers reported a membership nearing 200,000, and a gain of 25,000 last year. The Trades and Labor Congress is composed of trade unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. and devotes itself primarily to legislation of interest to Canadian wage-earners.

The New South Wales trade union movement asks the government to amend the arbitration act by providing that preference to unionists be mandatory in all awards, and that the government, in its administration, give preference to trade unionists in all branches of the public service. The unionists base their claim on the ground that organized labor sets the standards of wage-earners and that trade unionists are entitled, by every moral right, to this recognition. Attorney-General McTiernan, of New South Wales, agrees that this claim is just. In a recent speech he said: "I think it most outrageous that any person should deliberately remain outside the ranks of a union and then have the 'cheek' to share the benefits the union has procured. It is arrogance of a very high order, indeed."

The 70-hour work week is common in Japan, according to a report to the British government by its commercial secretary to the British embassy at Tokyo. It is stated that the present tentative and imperfect Japanese factory laws provide for a 12-hour day, "but factories employing only male operatives over 15 years of age may exceed this limit." The 70-hour week is common, it is stated, but there is agitation for the eight-hour day. Speaking broadly, continues the report, the Japanese laborer prefers to work long and leisurely, and requires little time for rest, food and recreation. In spite of great advances in cost, it is a fact, the report says, that Japanese labor is still considerably cheaper than labor in the West, but the comparative efficiency is much lower, mass authorities placing it at one-half.

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

Union Made Shoes for Men Exclusively

YOUR OLD FRIEND JOE WEISS
WHITE PALACE SHOE STORE
92 FOURTH ST. nr. MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO
Repairing Done While You Wait
by the Latest Machinery
We use only the best leather that the market affords

IS INDEPENDENCE YOUR GOAL?
INVEST YOUR SAVINGS
in
GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES
PRICES IN JUNE
Thrift Stamps at Twenty-five Cents

$ 5	Government Savings Stamps for	$ 4.17
$ 100	Treasury Savings Certificates for	83.40
$1000	Treasury Savings Certificates for	834.00

FOR SALE AT BANKS AND POST OFFICES
GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
SECOND FEDERAL RESERVE DISTRICT
120 Broadway - - - New York

INFORMATION WANTED.

Arturo Longueira, age 18, who mysteriously disappeared at South Ferry, New York, on August 25th, or any one knowing his whereabouts, will please communicate with Secretary, Marine Firemen's Union, 70 South St., New York City. 10-20-20

Chas. T. Smith, Roy Dresser, Joe Ban, Autti Hanks, Thos. Wolstenholme, Chas. Fraser, W. B. Pierce, Karl Olson, William Holmes kindly communicate with John T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 10-6-20

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney-at-law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 676 Mills Bldg. Telephone Sutter 4673. Residence Phone Prospect 2908.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Mrs. Jean Taylor. 940 Pender Street, West Vancouver, B. C., is anxious of ascertaining the whereabouts of Robert Gilchrist Cassar, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific. 10-13-20

Honolulu Letter List

Bading, G.	Johnson, Ralph
Bradley, Ed.	Larsen, John
Buck, Harry	Lilyborge, Will.
Bjorkqvist, R.	Lundgren, Karl
Bott, James	Lind, Gust
Caldwell, John	Makinnon, Kanno
Campbell, Edd	Mulligan, Ed.
Ellberson, Ward	Myers, Georg
Harms, Ed.	Parker, A. L.
Haraldsen, Alf.	Sondel, Franklyn S.
Howard, John	Seevers, Howard L.
Helling, J. S.	Stewart, R. T.
Jorgensen, H. F.	Solberg, B. P.
Johnsen, Hilding	Takostelny, Jos.

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM
A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
R. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth
This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.
LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE
will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.
Send in your order today.
$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of George Mace Monroe, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, last heard of at Charleston, S. C., March, 1916, will please communicate with his mother, Mrs. Alice Monroe, 918 Spruce street, Seattle, Washington. 6-9-20

AXTELL'S BOOK
"Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen" for the use of seamen and officers, just out. Copies may be obtained by addressing
RIGHTS & DUTIES OF SEAMEN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
9 State Street, New York City.
$1.00 Per Copy.

To Scandinavian Sailors:
Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.
LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

With a flange on her main steam pipe fractured, the British steamer "Dadg 76," en route from the River Tyne for Portland, Ore., arrived in Falmouth for repairs.

The prices offered by Australian agents of California gasoline shippers are said to be so lucrative that several new companies have started business at San Pedro to ship the California fuel.

The American ship "Golden Gate," 2,273 tons, has been chartered to carry barley from San Francisco to the United Kingdom by Strauss & Company. The price quoted is $21 a ton, but if the vessel discharges at Leith the charter calls for $22.50 a ton.

San Francisco's training school for merchant seamen, conducted by the United States Shipping Board, will be discontinued shortly after January 1, according to a communication received from Chairman Benson of the Shipping Board. Training of student officers will continue, both in the technical schools and on training ships, it was stated.

After considerable patience the fishermen at Meiggs Wharf succeeded in securing from the State Harbor Commissioners an electric winch for the hoisting of their small craft from the inlet to the docks. A petition asking for such a convenience had been filed with the board, it is said, many months ago.

Dismantling of the naval station at Olongapo, Philippine Islands, has begun, according to a dispatch from Manila. The machinery and equipment is being moved to Cavite, which will be the only naval station on the islands. Principal among the equipment to be moved from Olongapo is the famous Dewey drydock.

One of the most attractive numbers of Aloha, the magazine published by the Matson Navigation Company, has been issued this month. Interesting articles on the scenic points in the islands and pages of illustrations make the October number an exceptionally valuable handbook for tourists.

Fire which broke out on the British steamer "Canadian Exporter" while en route from Vancouver to Auckland slightly damaged the vessel's cargo. The blaze was confined to the vessel's bunkers on the port side and was extinguished before the craft arrived at the New Zealand port. There was no damage to the vessel.

Formation of three new steamship lines from Brazil to the Atlantic and Pacific coasts are announced in a report of U. S. Consul Thomas H. Bevan at Bahia. The new lines will be organized by the Lloyd Brasiliera Company and the vessels to be operated on the lines were taken from Germany by Brazil during the war.

Direct pipe lines from the large Southern California oil refineries to San Pedro are said to be the chief reason for the southern encroachment on San Francisco's long established oil trade. More than 15,000,000 gallons of case and other oils have been shipped from San Pedro in the last month, and so promising is the business that five new companies have been organized to engage in it.

San Francisco, with 1,042,811 tons, was fifth among the ports of the United States in handling Shipping Board tonnage during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, according to a report by the Shipping Board. No other Pacific Coast port was among the first six. The figures for the first six are: New York, 5,730,702 tons; Baltimore, 2,065,465 tons; Philadelphia, 2,061,268 tons; New Orleans, 1,560,729 tons; Norfolk, 1,470,349; San Francisco, 1,042,811; and Newport News, 972,479 tons.

Announcement was made recently of the closing of five charters for vessels from north Pacific ports. Three Shipping Board steamers, not yet designated, will carry ties from Puget Sound to the United Kingdom. The "Eastern Belle," 1934 tons, has been chartered by the American Export Lumber Company to take lumber from Puget Sound to Cuba, at $25. Balfour, Guthrie & Company chartered the steamer "Waban," 3821 tons, for wheat from Portland to Callao; terms private.

Suspension of the United States coastwise act permitting foreign vessels calling at Honolulu to carry passengers to and from San Francisco will cease at the end of this month. Extensions have been granted on two occasions, the last being for one month, from October 1. The extension has been granted from time to time due to the heavy passenger congestions here and in Honolulu. Honolulu advices state that this situation has been cleared and it is doubtful if the coastwise act will again be extended.

Warning from the United States consul at Bordeaux was received in shipping circles here that a heavy penalty will be imposed by the French government on all owners who fail to manifest all articles of foreign origin on board before arriving at a French port. Personal property of the crew and especially tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and matches, must be placed in the manifest of the vessel and be ready when the ship is 12 miles from shore. The tobacco and cigars are a monopoly of the French government.

New recripocating engines recently purchased by the Matson Navigation Company from the Shipping Board are to be installed in the steamer "Enterprise." The work will be done at the Moore yards in Oakland, and the steamer will be given a general overhauling, and her deck accommodations improved. While the "Enterprise" is laid up, the steamer "Eastern Guide" will take her place in the Hawaiian service. Being the first steamer in the Matson service, the "Enterprise" is considered a favored vessel and everything possible will be done at Moore's to make her spick and span. She was built by Wigham and Richardson and Company at Newcastle on Tyne, 38 years ago.

Advices received here announcing that the Cuban Government had awarded to the Cuban Steamship Company for operation five German freighters seized in Cuban ports upon the declaration of war has stirred several local shipping firms to action. It is said that these vessels would prove valuable in the coastwise trade, and a movement will be inaugurated to secure them for trade out of California ports. The vessels allotted to the Cuban Steamship Company are the "Bavaria," 5,900 tons; "Constantia," 4,500 tons; "Adelheid," 4,200 tons; "Kydonia," 4,500 tons, and "Olivant," 5,800 tons. Cuban advices say the ships have been refitted and renamed by the Cubans.

Notwithstanding adverse exchange rates, imports into New Zealand from this country are continuing to be exceptionally heavy, according to information reaching local shipping circles. This condition, explains the information, will continue to exist for many months to come and the Pacific coast can look for increased business in this direction. One of the chief reasons for the heavy demand of American goods is the fact, that merchants of New Zealand are absolutely unable to secure goods from Great Britain. Motor cars, hardware, rubber goods, fencing wire and drugs are needed badly in New Zealand ports. California canned fruits as well as dried fruits and canned fish are much sought after by the New Zealand agents.

The status of twelve German ships, totaling 30,000 tons, which were interned in Mexican ports at the outbreak of the war in 1914, has caused much speculation in shipping circles. These vessels for some time have been listed as being prepared to leave for the North Pacific to load. Although operators who formerly looked after the fixing of German vessels here are quiet on the subject, it is understood there has been a large exchange of negotiation between the owners and the British. One report states that the British made a proposition to permit the German owners to move the vessels to Europe with cargo, provided they would recondition them and later turn them over for allied disposition. The ships involved are the "Lasbek," now at Guaymas, and the following, which are at Santa Rosalia in the Gulf of California: "Adolf Vinnen," "Egon," "Hans," "Harvestehude." "Helwig," "Orotava," "Reinbek," "Schurbek," "Thielbek," "Walkure" and "Wandsbek." Before the war these ships, like many of the Frenchmen that have resumed trade, often came to the Pacific to join the annual grain fleet. After their long sojourn in semi-tropical waters, it is admitted their reconditioning would entail no small outlay.

After a two months' investigation of the freight congestion at the harbor of Havana. Captain J. H. Bennett returned here and reported that there were over sixty freighters from all parts of the world lying in the Cuban port. Cargoes valued at millions of dollars are reposing in the holds of these vessels, while their captains and the representatives of the steamers are in a quandary how to unload the crafts, which have been in port from periods of sixty to eighty days waiting to discharge. Heavy losses are facing the shippers and steamship operators whose shipments and vessels have been tied up by Cuban merchants, who refuse to take delivery. Warehouses and docks are piled high with goods and foodstuffs shipped from all over the world, which cannot be distributed to interior Cuban points, due to the action of these merchants. The situation is beginning to clear up in a measure, according to Captain Bennett, due to the action of operators in refusing to send their vessels to Havana. Prior to the embargo placed on the port by steamship operators, freighters laden with cargoes, valued at millions of dollars, were arriving there daily only to be forced to drop anchor and join the rest of the fleet. Captain Bennett, who proceeded to Havana as the special representative of the Robert Dollar Steamship Company, said that cargoes of rice from Japan could be purchased in the city of Havana by the trade for 9 cents per pound, while in the interior points of Cuba the product was hard to purchase at 21 cents.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C...ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. ROREN, Agent
260 President Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....F. NELSON, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
510 Trust Building
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
332 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....A. BOGE, Agent
21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 West Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
123 West Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....J. VALLE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....R. BELL, Agent
669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....816 River Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1920.

COOLIE LABOR FOR AMERICA?

A report from the Legislative Committee to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, published in the November issue of the American Federationist, opens with a rather startling statement. It is a statement, moreover, of peculiar interest to California and the Pacific Coast in general.

"The people of the United States are faced with a most dangerous menace," begins the report. "Plans have been carefully and insidiously laid to present to the regular session of Congress a bill providing for the admission of Chinese coolie labor, provided the elections result satisfactorily to the industrial autocrats and reactionaries. The agitation has been going on for several years intermittently. In the last Congress members received frequently a postal card alleged to have been sent them by the 'Producers' Association of Brooklyn.' This advocated the repeal of the Chinese Exclusion Act in order that 'through coolie labor the high cost of living could be reduced.'"

The report then goes on to quote from a letter sent to various employers by F. C. Harley, chairman of the Western States Agricultural Development Committee, San Francisco, California. Says Mr. Harley, referring to a visit he made through the east and its results:

> The writer was more than pleased with the spirit shown by the business men of Chicago and their familiarity with the Chinese as laborers, thus rendering the sojourn in your city of longer duration than anticipated, to assist them in organizing the Central States Agricultural and Industrial Committee to obtain the needed legislation permitting the admission of Chinese into the United States to do the menial work our white labor will no longer do. My only regret is that I could not meet you all personally but trust that I may have that pleasure at some future time during which interval I hope you will not hesitate to lend your co-operation to the Central States Committee, with headquarters in the First National Bank Building, Chicago, under the guidance of Mr. Chas. T. Henderson, Associate Chairman, as success can only be achieved by educating others to the importance of the movement. For without immigration we must stand still

Mr. Henderson, according to the committee's report, corroborates the statements made by Mr. Harley. The corroboration is contained in a letter, also "sent to various employers," and reads as follows:

> These raids of the Reds, Communists and I. W. W.'s emphasize the desirability of bringing into this country hereafter a class of labor that does not organize, has no foolish notions of six-hour days or five-day weeks, and does not wish to upset our present form of government.
>
> The raising of the ban on Chinese labor will, we believe, go far to solve the problem of our present danger. Our representative will call on you shortly and we trust you may be able to give him a few moments of your time in which to explain to you matters of interest in connection with our work.

The committee next points out that "the present Congress is the most reactionary of any in history. And this reactionary Congress will be in possession of the affairs of our nation until the 4th of March, 1921. If the people of the United States do not elect men to the next Congress who will place the interests of the country above those of conscienceless corporations the gates will be opened and hordes of Chinese coolies will be admitted."

The report winds up with a strong appeal to the workers everywhere to demand of their respective Congressmen, both Senators and Representatives, that they vote against "such a cruel, despicable and contemptible proposition." Taken by and large it is a document that should be read by every man and woman who believes that this country should forever remain a heritage of the white race. Its logic will be found especially convincing to the people of California, where the danger to the community from imported Chinese coolie labor is better understood than in any other section of the United States.

HAPPENINGS IN ITALY

Many a worker in America is asking the question, What is really taking place in Italy?

Last week's JOURNAL contained a résumé of the situation in Italy by Mr. Arthur Livingston. This week, in the Atlantic department, we are enabled to give encouraging details upon the progress of the Italian seamen's co-operative enterprise. No one, desiring to keep posted on really important current events, should fail to read these two articles.

Apparently things are moving swiftly over there. The London Times' correspondent at Milan sends a dispatch saying that Italy now gives the impression of being on the brink of a military coup d'etat. "The Nationalist press," he asserts, "is calling for a military dictatorship as a remedy against rampant Bolshevism, and hails D'Annunzio as a suitable dictator. Avanti, the Socialist organ, however, alleges that D'Annunzio recently appealed to Moscow for military aid and moral aid, and was approved by Lenine as an instrumnet of the Soviet Government."

Altogether, it is difficult to follow the rapid developments and the conflicting reports as announced in the daily press. The editor of the JOURNAL spent a few weeks in Italy recently and made an earnest effort to get at the truth of things in matters affecting the men and women of labor.

In Italy, as elsewhere, the war presented an opportunity to profiteer—to rob the weak and defenseless.

The same war—and the aftermath of the war—has brought or created many other opportunities. To the idealists, for example, the days that are passing present an opportunity that may not come again for generations. It is an opportunity, they think, to carry out some of their visions, and among these is the Socialist Commonwealth. Now is the time, they believe, to lay the foundations of the new society which will assure to every man, woman and child a decent livelihood. But, as usual, the idealists are at war among themselves; and due to widespread and increasing misery the extremists are overpowering the moderates. Constituent assemblies, universal suffrage, elections, parliaments, etc., make no appeal to hungry men who demand food, a division of all available wealth and a workers' government which shall decree that hereafter he who does not work shall not eat.

Of course, such demands seem absurd to comfortable Americans. Yet, everyone must see how natural and inevitable such a theory of life becomes in the midst of general near-starvation.

Where practically everyone has work and some of the comforts of life, the few men who do not work seem to be of little importance, but when masses are starving it is comparatively easy to arouse bitterness and resentment because a few live in idleness and plenty. This is not typical of Italy and it is not simply an after-war psychology. It is the psychology that would exist right here in America if we were facing famine. Men who have for over four years been fighting desperately in the trenches returned as poverty-stricken heroes to find their loved ones literally starving to death. They fought for their country, including those who made fortunes out of the war, and their first thought when observing the misery in their homes was to tear to pieces those who profited in the war that brought them untold suffering.

Their state of mind is about like this: We have been at the front and fought battles never before equaled in the history of the world; we have fought to protect you and your property, and now that we are home again do you expect us to starve to death while you live like swine at the trough? And with a rage that is indescribable they are turning upon all who stand for the existing order of things. The great mass of the soldiers of Italy have not read Marx, nor have they suddenly become constructive Socialists. Some have become destructivists and divisionists; others, perhaps unconsciously, instinctive Socialists. However, they would not have become either the one or the other in such vast numbers if food were not lacking. But as a state bordering on famine exists, they declare that nothing is too good for those who have fought and labored, and they are now taking by force, food and other property.

We may call this state of mind anything we please, Socialism, Anarchism, or Bolshevism. That is of little importance—the next stage, if industry remains paralyzed, may be cannibalism; but the vital matter is that this state of mind exists and that it will not change so long as economic conditions in Italy remain substantially what they are and have been since the signing of the armistice.

DON'T FORGET THE LIBRARY

San Franciscans may justly "point with pride" to their magnificent public library, with its chain of branches throughout the city. The architectural beauty of the buildings is of the highest order. The service and accommodations afforded the public are unexcelled anywhere. Few cities, indeed, have a finer or better managed library system.

Yet with all these excellences San Francisco has acquired the unenviable reputation of setting aside the smallest appropriation of any for the maintenance of its library system. It was for this reason that it was found imperative to place Charter Amendment No. 40 on the ballot to be voted on next Tuesday. This amendment provides for a tax levy of not less than 2½ cents and not more than 3¾ cents on each $100 of assessed valuation, so as to make it possible to keep the library up to its present standard.

The increase thus asked for is to stock the library with modern and up-to-date books, which are badly needed to meet the ever-growing demand. How extensive this demand is may be inferred when it is stated that over 70,000 persons take books for home use, and over 1,400,000 books circulated during the year.

It will thus be seen how important it is that Charter Amendment No. 40 be adopted. The public library is the people's university. It meets the demands of all. The student, the business man, the mechanic, all seek there the latest information found in books and periodicals relating to their special lines. And remember that the measure of a city's progressiveness is its facilities for diffusing knowledge. No city or nation can long hold its own in this world whose people are ignorant. Vote "Yes" on Charter Amendment No. 40.

DIRECT LEGISLATION

Seamen who are voters in San Francisco, and happen to be in port next Tuesday, should not fail to vote on the 48 proposals printed on the ballot.

Labor's attitude on the first twenty proposals is published in the adjoining column. On the remaining twenty-eight proposals the San Francisco Labor Council has endorsed the following: No. on Ballot—23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 39, 40, 41, 44, 46, 47, and 48.

The Council put itself on record as opposed to Amendment No. 25.

Of the amendments endorsed by the Council No. 23, No. 41 and No. 48 are especially deserving of the votes of workingmen and women. No. 23 provides for an increase of one dollar a day in the pay of the city's policemen. Their present salary amounts to $4.66 a day, a ridiculously inadequate compensation these days for the service rendered to the city.

Amendment No. 48 provides for a similar increase in the pay of the city's firemen. They are entitled to the raise equally with the policemen.

Amendment No. 41 provides for an increase of one dollar a day in the pensions of three aged veterans of San Francisco's original fire department. Each one of these three men is over 70 years of age.

THE FRESNO CONVENTION.

(Continued from page 2)

tion of having contracts of craft organizations expire simultaneously; concurred in.

Proposition No. 41—Relating to the violation by the U. S. postal department to the laws governing the employment of women more than eight hours a day; concurred in.

Proposition No. 44—Relating to the enactment of a law changing the age limit at which postal employes may be retired; concurred in.

Proposition No. 45—Relating to overtime and asking the assistance of the Federation to assist in the enactment of laws for the protection of postal employes; concurred in.

Proposition No. 46—Relating to increases in pay for postal employes and asking the aid of the Federation; concurred in.

Proposition No. 48—Relating to the establishing of a court of appeals for postal employes in cases where they are concerned, there being no provisions made at this time for their protection; concurred in.

Proposition No. 51—Relating to the Red Cross relief; concurred in.

Proposition No. 52—Relating to proposed changes in the compensation act to include in its provisions those engaged in railroading and other occupations not now covered by the law; concurred in.

Proposition No. 54—Relating to the Waterfront Employers' Union and its activities; concurred in.

Proposition No. 55—Relating to the election laws and to party affiliations and the present disenfranchisement of voters; concurred in.

Proposition No. 57—Relating to the observance of Labor Day and the establishing of same by law to apply to all schools; concurred in.

Proposition No. 59—Relating to the creation of an additional Vice-President, the district embracing Redding to the Oregon State line; concurred in.

Proposition No. 61—Relating to the installation of proper sanitary equipment in Moving Picture operating rooms; concurred in.

Proposition No. 63—Relating to constitutional amendment known as Proposition 16 on the ballot; concurred in.

Proposition No. 64—Relating to Teachers and asking protection through civil service laws to be enacted; concurred in.

Proposition No. 70—Relating to the Workmen's Compensation Act, raising compensation to provide a minimum of $10.72 and a maximum of $35.00 per week; concurred in.

Proposition No. 71—Relating to the approval of the United Labor Press of California; concurred in.

Proposition No. 72—Relating to the Referendum in which it is proposed to increase the number of signatures to 25% wherein any measure affecting taxation is concerned; concurred in.

Proposition No. 73—Relating to the establishing of laws governing the examination and licensing of plumbers; concurred in.

Proposition No. 74—Relating to the establishing of the 44-hour week in all branches of the printing industry; concurred in.

The Convention concurred in the recommendations of the Executive Council relating to the following propositions which will appear on the November ballot:

No. on Ballot.	Ballot Title.	How to Vote.
1.	"Alien Land Law."	YES.
4.	"Initiative." (Increasing percentage of signatures required for certain initiative petitions.)	NO.
9.	Relating to "Highway Bonds"	YES.
10.	"Constitutional Convention."	NO.
11.	"Alien Poll Tax"	NO.
16.	"School System."	YES.
17.	"Absent Voters."	YES.
18.	"Exempting Orphanages from Taxation."	YES.
19.	"State Aid to Institutions."	YES.

The Entertainment Committee of Fresno trade-unionists did all in its power to make the stay of the delegates pleasant and one and all voted the convention a great success.

Seth R. Brown of the Los Angeles Labor Council was unanimously elected to represent the Federation at the next convention of the American Federation of Labor at Denver.

All the incumbent officers were re-elected and Napa was chosen as the next convention city.

In conclusion your delegates wish to convey to the Union appreciation for the honor conferred in electing us to the Twenty-first Annual Convention of the State Federation of Labor and believe the results accomplished will be of greatest advantage to the organized workers of California.

Fraternally,
HARRY OHLSEN,
R. INGWARDSEN,
GEO. LARSEN,
PAUL SCHARRENBERG,
C. F. MAY,
ED. ANDERSEN.

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 25, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Andrew Furuseth presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; plenty of members ashore.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 18, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.
R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Oct. 18, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 18, 1920.
Shipping dull.
P. B. GILL, Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Oct. 18, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Oct. 18, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.
JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Oct. 18, 1920.
Shipping fair; members ashore plentiful.
HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Oct. 11, 1920.
Shipping slack; prospects uncertain.
JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 23, 1920.
Shipping quiet.
EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 20, 1920.
Shipping slow.
LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Oct. 16, 1920.
No meeting. Shipping fair; few members ashore; shortage of cooks.
JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

Christian Ibsen, No. 178, a native of Denmark, age 28. Died at Latoka, Fiji, July 26, 1920.

Ernest George Nogat, No. 927, a native of Germany, age 41. Died at San Francisco, Calif., October 22, 1920.

Imposition of a $10 visé charge upon American passports issued to aliens under certain conditions has caused a vigorous protest from Honolulu. Hawaii has been enjoying a considerable tourist trade from passengers on steamers bound from Australia and the Orient to Canada and other foreign lands, and the $10 fee has materially reduced this patronage, it is said. Rather than pay out this sum for a few hours or a few days ashore, many remain on shipboard. Foreign nations are talking of retaliation by similar charges against American tourists, it is said.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

THE "CO-OPERATIVA GARIBALDI."

Seven Ships Owned by the Organized Seamen of Italy.

(By Captain A. Raimondo)

After the unfortunate strike of the Italian Sailors and Firemen's Union in 1905, the leadership of the organization passed into the hands of a new secretary. This was Captain Giulletti, a man of large intelligence, broad vision, greatness of heart and unquenchable faith, who still remains at the helm of the Italian Seamen's Union.

It was under his wise guidance that the Italian seamen began to seek emancipation from the thraldom of contract slavery, which had bound and exploited them for centuries. But little real advancement could be seen until the deck and engine room officers had decided to cast in their lot with the unlicensed seamen composing the deck and fire-room crews, thus composing one solidly amalgamated union of all branches concerned. In 1913 the Italian shipowners, realizing the danger ahead, founded an officers' association called "Yellow," and made every effort to deprive the seamen of the few benefits and advantages they had obtained during the Turko-Italian War.

In order to terrify the seceding navigators, they declared a general "lockout" through all their fleets, and for many months thousands of seamen remained idle while hundreds of ships in all our ports lay rusting in their "neglected brine." And meanwhile the wealthy shipowners, shivering in fear of losing their influence and their towering fortunes both at the same time, stood waiting in vain for the seamen to surrender and return to their labors, with hopes blasted and their union disintegrated. But the faith of the Italian seamen in their magnificent leader was already so strong and universal that every one of them would rather have died of starvation than betray their union. The outbreak of the War of Nations in 1914 ended this momentous strike. The owners, attracted by the sudden and unprecedented rise in freight rates, forgot all minor disputes in their haste to get their ships in commission. We also, from motives of patriotism and love of fatherland, likewise laid aside our personal concerns for the time being and rushed to our country's defense. But that fight convinced us of our collective power, and caused us to realize that no permanent and lasting improvement in our economic or industrial conditions could ever be established while parasitical shipowners were permitted to continue their blood-sucking tactics. It was at this great period in the World War and maritime history that the idea of a collectively owned merchant marine, owned, operated, navigated and controlled entirely by the organized seamen of Italy themselves, first occurred to the directing mind of our great leader, Captain Gulletti.

But the time was not yet ripe for such a novel attempt. The wages of a sailor at that time, so much complained of by grasping owners, was $22 per month. It was therefore impossible for seamen to subscribe to shares of capital stock in a collective enterprise of this magnitude just then. But the experiences of the war, which had hastened the solution of many other long-unsolved problems, likewise brought home to us with renewed force the importance of putting into practical effect our long-cherished theory that seamen should be lords of their own destinies and enjoy full ownership and unquestioned control of the vehicles of their own employment—the ships.

In 1918 the "Co-operativa Garibaldi" was founded at a banquet given on board the liner "Giuseppe Verdi," attended by every member of the ship's company, from master to messboy.

The aim of this society is to make all ships the property of the men who sail or operate them, thereby cutting off the princely incomes of the ancient and idle class of predatory shipowners, who fatten on our industry, and squander the surplus proceeds of our hard and dangerous labor in luxurious amusements and extravagant excesses.

Having accomplished this much-to-be-desired improvement, the profits of our industry and enterprise would be divided only among the men who actually earned them—the seamen. There will be no profiteering dividends nor middlemen's rake-offs.

Shortly after the formation of the society one assembly of seamen declared unanimously in favor of a general assessment to be levied upon the membership in order to create a capital fund with which to buy ships.

In May, 1920, we began by buying five steamers from the Italian Government, and now our fleet, sailing under the red flag of the "Co-operativa Garibaldi," numbers seven well-found ships. The president of the "Co-operativa" is the great fighter, Captain Giulletti, now elected to Parliament by all the sailors of Italy.

Our business manager is Captain Rizzo, R. N. R., who became world famous by his daring exploits against the Austrian navy during the late war. He was for three years the terror of the Austrian navy, sinking three of her best dreadnaughts, one of them in the mined harbor of Trieste.

The Italian seamen believe that under the direction of such able and invincible leadership the "Co-operativa Garibaldi" can accomplish wonders for their complete emancipation and economic and industrial improvement, and we are all looking forward to the time, which God grant is not far distant, when the entire Italian merchant marine will be in our hands and operated by us for the benefit of our members and the glory of our flag.

The task will be a stupendous one even for such great leaders as our two gallant and devoted captains undoubtedly are. The shipowners, thoroughly organized, closely amalgamated, combined and consolidated, clearly foresee and fully appreciate the towering menace which now threatens their long-cherished monopolies and exploitation of Italian commerce in the rapidly gathering array of the advancing Co-operativa, and will fight it to the death, rejecting no weapon, either fair or foul, to encompass their lawless ends or perpetuate their power to revel in the ill-gotten gains if public plunder and corporate greed.

In this impending struggle we rely upon the mass homogeneity, loyalty and national spirit of the organized Italian seamen, and our sense of right, but mainly we trust in the moral and conscientious support of all seamen and workingmen throughout the world.

This assured, there can be no doubt of our success. The present fleet of the "Co-operativa Garibaldi" embraces the following named steamships:

"Mazzini" (former "Brescia").
"Luigi Rizzo."
"Pietro Gori."
"Andrea Costa."
"Goffredo Mameli."
"Amilcare Cipriani."
"Pietro Chiesa."

To furnish and maintain the working capital of the "Co-operativa Garbialdi" the following graded monthly assessments are levied upon all members of The Italian Federation of Sea-Workers:

Captains and chief engineers	Lire 60—$12
Officers	Lire 50—$10
Crews, individually	Lire 45—$ 9

In last week's issue of the SEAMEN'S JOURNAL we had the good fortune to report a brief, personal interview with Captain Raimondo of the steamship "Brescia," owned and operated by the "Co-operativa Garibaldi," organized and incorporated by the Italian Seamen's Federation on the collective ownership plan. In this week's issue we take pride as well as pleasure in publishing a signed statement, kindly submitted by Captain Raimondo from Norfolk, Va., where his ship, now renamed "Mazzini," called for bunkers to take her home to Genoa on her maiden voyage as a union ship.

Captain Raimondo's instructive contribution will be read with absorbing interest by all seamen, and with equal alarm by all monopolistic shipowners, for it serves timely and distinct notice upon the world that maritime monopolies are in danger if not doomed.

It arouses the long-slumbering truth that all created and visible wealth, permanent or transitory, belongs to the workers —not to the winners. To the producers, not to the gamblers and jugglers of finance.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

SECTION THIRTY-FOUR.

The Congress-be-damned attitude assumed by President Wilson by his tardy and autocratic action in deliberately nullifying Section 34 of the Jones Merchant Marine Act, solemnly enacted in good faith and deliberately approved under his own hand on June 5, 1920, demolished the last fond hope, if any ever existed, of a continuation of Democratic policies at the White House after March 4, 1921.

We are not politicians, but we dare to predict that the result of the November election will abundantly testify that the American voters and taxpayers will never again allow their own merchant marine to be tampered and trifled with, or juggled off the seas, in accordance with the demands of ambitious foreign rivals.

That President Wilson's belated action has caused some consternation at home and fleeting jubilation abroad is obvious, but that it has been long expected and in some measure provided against by American shipping interests should, to some extent, mitigate the inevitable loss to the merchant marine, which it is bound to impose. The precise reason for President Wilson's refusal to execute the Congressional mandate by abrogating treaty restrictions on the full and fair development of American commerce is not easily divined. It is easy to talk of foreign leanings, Presidential prerogatives, overweening idealism, mental or physical incompetency, or executive despotism, or to threaten impeachment proceedings. But who shall establish all these theoretical charges against the President or institute impeachment proceedings during the short session of Congress, and so near the close of a stormy and prolonged administration? As between the legislative, the judicial and the executive branches of our Government there appears to be an outstanding question of final authority which has never been decided.

The President, in refusing to abrogate treaty provisions in order to restore the former privilege of discriminatory duties in favor of American ships, and to impose protective tonnage dues on foreign ships entering our ports, in accordance with the instructions of Congress, questions the right of the legislative branch of the Government to pass such an Act, even though he has already approved it. Congress, on the other hand, resents the President's arbitrary attitude, and there, for the present, the matter stands. It is probable that had President Wilson acted according to the instructions of Section 34 of the Merchant Marine Act, the foreign nations involved would have appealed to the United States Supreme Court to have that particular section of the Act set aside as being unconstitutional, even as they did in the case of abrogating the man-hunting treaties commanded by the provisions of the Seamen's Act. Whether the Supreme Court would administer an emetic or a cathartic decision to the subject may be a dubious question, but as to the right of the American people, through their representatives in Congress, to demand discriminating legislation in favor of their own maritime expansion there can be no doubt.

America has adopted such a discrimatory policy before and built up the banner merchant marine in the world by it—under canvas—why not under steam?

Great Britain, according to our esteemed contemporary, The Marine News, maintained just such a protective policy for 200 years, 1651 to 1850, in order to beat the Dutch, and did beat them out of their sabots and off the seven seas.

America is the greatest producing and exporting nation on the face of the globe, and for fifty years she has been the helpless prey of foreign maritime leeches, who have feasted on her life's blood. During our Civil War Britain did her utmost, short of actual declaration of war on her own part, to sink and destroy the American merchant marine beyond redemption, and unfortunately succeeded.

The $15,500,000 awarded the United States by the Court of Claims may have served in some measure to reimburse private ship owners for their individual or corporate losses, but it counted not one dollar's worth toward the rehabilitation of the American merchant marine, which was already defunct beyond recovery or repair, and fully replaced by foreign bottoms.

Foreign nations have now enjoyed a practical monopoly of the American carrying trade so long that they acutally resent as well as dread the intrusion of American laws, as well as the introduction of American ships, to cut short their blissful orgy of cut-throat traffic.

The greatest fleets, and the finest, fastest and largest ships ever constructed in Great Britain and other foreign countries have been those designed and built exclusively for the American trade, and largely paid for with American capital.

There is an old law still operative down New England way, probably transcribed by the early Puritan fathers from the ancient statutes of Old Albion, which provides that twenty years unchallenged possession of land constitutes a clear and irrevocable title to the same.

Perhaps Great Britain is seeking to have this ancient land law incorporated as a recognized article of maritime law as well. One thing, however, is clear: The merchant marine should be taken out of politics, and divorced from the dillydallying methods of an already overworked Department of Commerce as well.

As one of the greatest, gravest and most important of all the national and international problems confronting the American people and their Government today the present protection and future development of our merchant marine in the face of hostile foreign competition is one that deserves the most solemn and serious consideration of all concerned.

We must not allow the American merchant marine to be used as a political pawn by any party, nor to be submerged through the laxity, indifference, laziness or overtaxed powers of administrative functioning or deadheads.

The merchant marine, from its colossal proportions, innumerable ramifications, its international relations, its national importance, and its ever-increasing and difficult problems, deserves, desires and should demand a separate, responsible and untrammeled administrative head of its own.

In view of present conditions, and under the pressure of existing problems, and still more exacting ones yet to be dealt with in the world race for maritime supremacy, we believe the time has arrived for the establishment at Washington of a new and independent Department of Marine and Shipping, under the direction and control of a new Cabinet Minister, and embracing all existing bureaus of navigation, operation or personnel now being mismanaged under other departments.

The refusal of the President to demand the abrogation of treaty stipulations with foreign nations, held to be inconsistent with Section 34 of the Merchant Marine Act, does not nullify any other sections of the Act. This is specifically provided against by Section 36 of the same Act, which provides:

"That if any section of this Act is declared unconstitutional or the application of any provision to certain circumstances be held invalid, the remainder of the Act and the application of such provisions to circumstances other than those to which it is held invalid shall not be affected thereby."

Section 31, 32 and 33, relating to the rights of seamen, in regard to half wages, prohibition of advances in foreign ports, damages for personal injuries, and the right of trial by jury in damage suits, remain unaltered and intact and in full force and applicative in all cases. But any act, administrative or legislative, which affects ministrative or legislative, which effects the success of the merchant marine adversely, affects the interests of its personnel in the same way and in the same ratio.

The Merchant Marine Act is the first law ever passed by Congress, in so far as we know, the terms of which were equally satisfactory to shipowners and seamen.

In upholding that Act alone both sides could agree to co-operate.

We are inclined to the opinion that the flare-up between the President and Congress in this instance is caused by a difference in political complexion.

A Republican Congress and a Democratic administration do not appear to make a willing team. Congress was not in session, and because the trace horse had been turned out to grass, the shaft horse lay down and balked.

But all is not lost that's in danger. President Wilson's refusal to act may retard the purpose of the law for six months, or possibly for a year, but Congress reassembles on December 6th, and there will be a new Administration after March 4th.

We believe, therefore, that more is to be gained by a little patience than there is to be lost by a great deal of worry.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

"PURE BUNK."

An insignificant little bunch of mossgrown wiseacres down Boston-way sneeringly refer to Mr. Andrew Furuseth's proposal to found a nautical training school at the Headquarters of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association in New York as "pure bunk."

Mr. Furuseth's proposal met with the entire approval of the regular meeting of the Association on August 30, as was reported in the Seamen's Journal on September 15, 1920.

The world has always been annoyed by a minor class of doubting Thomases and purblind obstructionists who have to thrust their hands against a buzzsaw to find out whether it is moving or not.

They all belong to the same See Nothing tribe and are lineal descendents of the original Ignor-Amus.

They are of the tribe which in fine weather scoffed at the prediction of a flood, ridiculed the spherical form and diurnal revolutions of the earth, but believe "the sun do move." Like creatures born in a pit, they believe only what they see around

(Continued on Page 11)

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

(By Laurence Todd.)

Can organized labor stop the making of wars, by the simple process of stopping the making of armaments and munitions?

The recent convention of the International Association of Machinists adopted a resolution declaring, in effect, that it can and must. It called upon the International Federation of Trade Unions, at Amsterdam, to arrange for a conference of the organized workers in the metal trades throughout the world, for "the purpose of effecting an agreement for concerted action against war in the future," the time and place and basis of representation in this conference to be fixed by the International Federation. The officers of the I. A. of M. were instructed to provide for proper representation of that body in the conference.

President Johnston and Secretary-Treasurer Davison of the Machinists say that they are soon to communicate with Amsterdam, as instructed, and they believe the conference will take place within the next year. The recent meeting of the International Seafarers' Federation at Brussels took action looking toward refusal of the maritime and dock workers to assist in wars, while the similar meeting of the coal miners of all nations—including the United Mine Workers of America, recently held in Switzerland, proposed that all coal production be stopped when the next war is begun. The workers on armaments and munitions will, therefore, be in good company when they agree on plans to knock out the war-making industry.

Early in the present summer the secretary of the international federation of the metal workers' unions of Europe, with headquarters at Geneva, visited Machinists' headquarters here and proposed that they affiliate. This the Machinists are now going to do. But their anti-war plan is to be launched directly through the International Federation of Trade Unions, with which the A. F. of L. executive recently refused to affiliate, and which they denounced as pro-Bolshevik and anarchistic in its methods and purposes.

In its preamble the resolution says: "The statesmen who are responsible for the recent war and the war of peace have demonstrated their utter inability to restore order and security in the war-torn nations of Europe, and who, by their blind stupidity, are once more dragging the world to the brink of bloody slaughter; therefore it behooves the men and women of labor to raise their voices against the repetition of the madness that swept the world for five years and which cost such tremendous sacrifice of lives and wealth.

"Modern wars are fought with machinery created and fashioned by the hands of machinists and their related craftsmen in all countries, who, in the light of recent events, must bear the responsibility for future wars. We believe that the peace and safety of the world rest in the skilled hands of the world's artisans who fashion steel and iron into armaments and munitions of war. We believe that this power wisely used will do more to abolish forever the menace of war than all the statesmen and diplomats in whose hands the destinies of the world have been entrusted."

This does not mean any immediate strike agitation, nor sabotage, nor ruinous wage demands. It does mean that the metal workers of the world are to get together and plan some means of inducing the nations to reduce the production of armaments and munitions. It means that they will demand that the governments consent to some practical plan for gradual transformation of arsenals, munition plants and navy yards into plants for the production of things useful to the world in time of peace—the making of agricultural machinery, structural steel, vessels of commerce, and so forth. Such is the meaning as explained to your correspondent by Secretary Davison.

"We, after all, are the basis of all wars, because we make the materials of war," said Davison. "We can no longer plead innocence of the bloodshed, when we know that we possess the power to prevent it. We shall use our power, through conference and worldwide agreement. The world will be better off, for our labor will be put to beneficial instead of destructive uses."

A significant warning was given the organized farmers of the South and Middle West by Secretary of the Treasury Houston, on Thursday, when they appealed to him to take steps to give them better bank credit, so that the panic in farm products may be stopped. Market prices are now far below the actual cost of production for wheat, corn, oats, livestock, cotton and tobacco. Millions of farm families face debt, mortgages, the taking of their children out of college and school, and the return of such misery as was endured during the terrible years of 1893-96. Houston told them that he could do nothing for them. They would have to try to get through the "period of a lower price level" with as little suffering as possible—for the next two or five or ten years, whatever the period might be.

That statement was a pronouncement of doom to the hopes not merely of the farmers of the United States, but to millions of industrial wage workers also. There cannot be hard times for the farmers with prosperity for wage-workers. A cog in the machine of competitive industry has been broken by the war. Economic breakage all along the line is resulting. The Esch-Cummins railroad law, with its guaranty of profits for our bankrupt privately-owned railroads, was an attempt to cover up the breakage instead of repairing it. Every day now adds to the damage which that fraudulent measure is doing to industry and to the farmers. Yet the country appears to be about to elect a partisan President and a bi-partisan Congress wholly sympathetic with this fraud and ready to meet criticism with force, and then with worse blunders in legislation.

There is a great deal to interest American labor in the decision of the British coal miners to strike. Should this strike last for any considerable number of days, England will be without railroads, docks, streetcars, electric lighting and many other "necessary" services. Her food and domestic fuel supply will quickly be exhausted. Then one side or the other must give way. But whatever the effect in England, Italy and Denmark and Portugal and other European countries will be hard hit by the shutting off of their regular supply of coal from the British mines. Railroads and lighting plants and even steamship lines will be crippled. Hundreds of thousands of men will be thrown out of work. The strike will be supported by a refusal of the coal miners of other countries—under mutual pledge in their conference at Geneva last summer—to produce any coal for export to take the place of British coal.

The United Mine Workers of America are not especially disturbed by the question as to whether they would mine coal for the British during the strike in England. In the first place, the American coal supply now above ground is smaller than ever before—less than two weeks' supply. To attempt to ship any large part of the domestic coal out of the country, at a time like this, would bring upon the operators and dealers the wrath of the nation. The miners would be fully supported by public opinion in a refusal to take a part in any such betrayal of American interests. But in the second place the British could not find ships to carry the coal to their own shores, and even if they did, our Irish longshoremen would refuse to load them, and the British dockers would refuse to unload them.

Again, the United Mine Workers realize that the time may come when they will want support from abroad, and they feel that their own prosperity would be seriously endangered if, for example, the coal miners and the labor movement of Europe as a whole should ever feel justified in declaring American coal "unfair." During the past eight months little Denmark has bought over 600,000 tons of American bituminous coal, paying for it, laid down in Copenhagen, about $33 a ton. Italy got a million tons, and Sweden is buying heavily. This export coal means wages for American miners. But its delivery and use in Europe depends upon union men in Europe.

It is these direct and powerful bonds between organized workers here and abroad that make the final separation of the A. F. of L. from the International Federation of Trade Unions disastrous—indeed, impossible. As President Johnston of the Machinists says, the denunciation of the Amsterdam International by the executives of the A. F. of L. is the expression of Mr. Gompers, but it is not the attitude of the Machinists nor of the membership of the A. F. of L. itself. James Simpson of Toronto, editor of the Industrial Banner and manager of the Labor Temple, adds that the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress will keep its affiliation with the Amsterdam International, while the secessionist elements in the labor ranks in Canada will claim that Mr. Gompers has himself now taken to secession.

Mr. Gompers, however, is undisturbed by the criticisms leveled at his separatist policy abroad or his pro-Cox policy at home. He is out on the stump for the Democratic presidential nominee, as are many of the other officials of the A. F. of L., while his official mouthpiece, the American Federationist, publishes this message, in its November issue:

"The threat of Reaction is over the land to-day. It is brazen and bold. It means oppressive laws, restrictive measures wherever the hand of government reaches, an open door to those who live only by exploitation, added strength to those employers to whom workers are merely numbers and 'hands,' and a general lowering of our national standards of honor, liberty and humanity.

"Upon the banners of today there is only one word—'Forward.'

"Forward toward new things, better things, nobler deeds, a greater freedom!

"Let the dead past bury its dead!"

In the midst of the campaign Judge Anderson of Indianapolis has called in Assistant Federal Attorney Sims and "called him down," it is reported, for wanting to delay the trial of the officials of the Mine Workers, when the Supreme Court is about to decide whether the Lever Act, under which they are being prosecuted, is constitutional. Sims has resigned. Judge Anderson seems determined to get the satisfaction of convicting somebody from the labor movement before his pretext is destroyed.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

nition of any committees or representatives that his employes select to adjust grievances. Under these conditions a shop is non-union, because it ignores the first essentials of trade unionism.

Insists on Non-Unionism.

Industrial peace and non-unionism go hand in hand, according to Alba B. Johnson, President of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce, in an address before the annual meeting of that body.

The time has come, thundered the speaker, when the laborer must exercise his right to work "where he will at wages satisfactory to him, and that the right of employers to manage their business and employ whom they will, be recognized." (Loud applause.)

After making this moth-eaten Citizens' Alliance plea that workers adopt a cut throat wage policy for the benefit of employers, Mr. Johnson asked if all there was to show after the efforts of the war, the turmoil and the sacrifices, was "a sordid struggle of man against man and class against class for a larger share of the material things which minister to the wants of the body rather than to the growth of the soul and the spirit."

Every owner of natural monopoly, every profiteer, every gouger, every tax dodger, every exploiter of women and children, and every advocate of individual bargaining who was present, applauded this beautiful plea for spirituality and soul development.

Trading Ban Is Lifted.

The State Department announces that "on and after October 2 all persons in the United States are authorized to trade and communicate" with "all persons with whom trade and communication was prohibited" by the trading-with-the-enemy act.

Although the United States is still technically at war with Germany, practically all restrictions upon trade with that country are removed. It is provided however, that "the above mentioned general license does not authorize any trade with respect to any property that has been reported to the alien property custodian."

ATLANTIC COAST AND GULF

(Continued from Page 9)

them. If they had been born in a snowbank they would inevitably conclude that that was their permanent abode, unquestionably assuming from local appearances that the snow had always been there and would always remain.

They assume to deride the constructive thinker as an aimless visionary, mock the sturdy pioneer as a stubborn fool, and discredit all progressive ideas as idle, imbecile notions formulated by fools.

When a brave little group of devoted seamen met on the historic lumber pile on Folsom street dock in San Francisco and founded the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, the calamity howlers all yelled in discordant unison: "Pure bunk." When The Coast Seamen's Journal first made its appearance with the stentorian announcement: "The Seafarers' Cause It Is Ours," it was greeted with a merry and hilarious ha-ha by the empty-headed, addle-pated reactionaries, and the rancous yell of "pure bunk" resounded from Bangor, Me., to Portland, Ore., and from Sou'west Pass to the Lake-o'-the-Woods.

When Mr. Furuseth and a few loyal comrades met at New Orleans and planned the organization of the International Seamen's Union of America, their earnest, devoted and far-seeing labors were greeted with the ancient verdict, "pure bunk."

All our efforts at organization and class improvement on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts have met with the same senseless reception and always will. Nevertheless, we have made commendable progress in spite of the obstructionists.

Thirty-one years ago the local seamen's comforters wanted to know where we'd like to be buried. Our reply was prophetic as well as historical. "We'll live," we retorted, "to eat the goose that fattens on the grass that grows up on your God-forsaken graves!"

And now, behold! The crimping system and buckoism, and their ancient provider, the advance system, are all dead; persecution has been tamed; maritime slavery has been abolished, and the goose hangs high.

We hope our near-sighted critics down in hoary old Boston won't be too much excited, but we are going to have a nautical training school, as previously announced, and many more improvements after that.

Last winter, when the New Orleans Branch of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association adopted resolutions in regular meeting, proposing the collective ownership and operation of ocean-going ships by the Seamen's Unions as a subject for consideration by the 1921 convention of the International Seamen's Union of America, our vociferous "pure bunk" critics took up the subject and laughed it to scorn.

And lo, and behold, here comes an Italian Seamen's Union from across the sea and takes the wind completely out of our sails with a fleet of seven big cargo ships, already in commission under the Union banner, and more in view.

We are strongly of the opinion that certain conservative and class-cultured residents of Boston are suffering from acute attacks of bellyache and blatherskite, superinduced by an invariable and indigestible diet of bunk and beans.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION
D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175
BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588
CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842
MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street
TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666
SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue
CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer
Branches:
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W
SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823
CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543
CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary
Branches:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street
VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
Agencies:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 43
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG.....Alaska
UNGA.....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION
C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION
FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

Demands for wage increases and overtime pay by the National Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association were refused by the American Steamship Owners' Association.

More than 4,000 claims for annuity have been filed by aged employes of the Government who are entitled to annuity under the civil service retirement act. Of the total of 4,005 filed, 2,077 have been acted upon in the retirement division.

Organized oil workers have established another record by adjusting grievances with the fuel department of the Southern Pacific Company. This is the first time representatives of these workers were granted a conference by this company.

A membership gain of 55,000 in one year was announced by President Golden at the annual convention of the United Textile Workers. At the present time the membership is 105,000. The delegates are determined to push their organization campaign that the forty-eight-hour week may be secured.

The International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' convention decided to file charges with the Federal Trade Commission that the National Erectors' Association has held up and delayed the erection of new buildings in New York City and other localities. These employers control the supply of structural steel in this country.

Demand for women workers continues to grow in Chicago, while the supply of male workers now exceeds the demand, the women's department of the Illinois Free Employment Bureau reports. Records show that during August there were 600 more calls for women at the Chicago office, than there were women applicants for work. In the same month 404 more men asked for work than there were jobs.

A non-union shop campaign has been launched by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association. Or, more strictly speaking, low-wage methods of these employers will be intensified. John M. Glenn is spokesman for the manufacturers. As secretary of their association he is the hired man behind whom child labor exploiters and low-wage advocates hide. Glenn says the non-union shop "is the most vital question now before American industry."

Right of assemblage has been denied striking miners throughout the coal fields in Alabama by soldiers armed with machine guns. The miners are demanding that coal owners pay wages agreed to by the commission appointed by the President, following last fall's nation-wide strike of bituminous coal miners. The miners were enjoined at that time by Federal Judge Anderson. Alabama coal owners refuse to abide by the award.

The New York City employes' retirement system, created by the State Legislature, became effective October 1. All employes, except those in the exempt class, entering the city service after that date shall become members of this system, and all present employes may become members by filing with city officials a statement waiving all present or prospective benefits in other city retirement systems. Teachers, policemen, firemen and street cleaners do not enter into this system as they have their own pension systems

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson. Jack
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George

Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.

Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling

Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry

Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38

Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor

Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan. Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar

Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.

Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.

Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.

Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liquest, Rudolf
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.

Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James

Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.

Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.

Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplore, J.
Prinz, Carl

Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van

Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N
Schurr, Harm
Scholenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S
Simondsen, H.
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L
Solum, M
Sorcos, S.
Sobel, R
Sterndoch, J
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M.
Svenson, Thure
Svendrup, Walter
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Talce, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.

Aberdeen, Wash., Letter List

Anderson E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Anderson, Fred.
Brackberry, Geo.
Bunte, Paul
Bjorkquist, Ragnar
Berke, C.
Bedford, A.
Barton, M.
Carlson, Oscar
Caitan, Jose
Gardel, C.
Hanson, H. O.
Johanneson, Jonas
Johannesen, Alf.
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Olssen, Chas.
Olsen, L. -1099
Otill, W. A.
Parker, Arthur L.
Randle, C. W.
Skarvetun, Hansen Hans -315
Saro, P. Wm.
Smith, Johan, Carl
Vejvoda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO

Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson Gust
De Blom, A.
Ericson, Rob.
Erickson, John
Eisen, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Levele, Ed.
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lindroos, Oscar
Lauren, William
McNeil, Daniel Ross
Monson, Jacob
McVeiar
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbi, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R.
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren, Hilmer
Registered Letters
Granzzi, Boraline
Meyer, Hans
Mittenmeyer, J.
Rassmussen, T.

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Gronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgail, Mikel
Person, Fritz, Leonard
Rainhard, H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J..... 22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Members of the crew of the "West Katan," whose claims for salvage services rendered to the S. S. "Flavel" is being handled by the undersigned: It has just come to my attention that the Shipping Board have asked you to sign vouchers in settlement of the salvage claim. I was offered one-half-month's wages which was refused. It appears that they are endeavoring to get you men to settle directly. I advise that none of you accept this as it is grossly inadequate. At least you have no right to accept any settlement without consulting me. Silas B. Axtell, Attorney for Seamen, 9 State Street, New York City. 10-6-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

UNION LABEL
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
NYMAN BROS.
Bee Hive Store
Men's Furnishings, Hickory Shirts, Hats, Oil Clothing.
Home of the union made Co-operative Shoe
302 So. F Street, ABERDEEN, Wash.
on the Water Front.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

Portland, Or., Letter List

Ahren, Wm.	Laine, A. A.
Andersen, A. C.	Laine, John
Andersson, Axel	Larsen, Hans
Andersson, Carl	Larsson, Ragnar
Anderson, A. B.	Larson, C. J. -1632
Anderson, J. A.	Leisig, John
Anderson, Ed.	Lindner, John P.
Anderson, Gunnar	Lovell, G.
Andersson, Bill	Lundgren, Gust
Anderson, Herman	Malech, Frank E.
Anderson, Carl E.	Malkoff, Peter
Austin, Ed.	Matson, R. M.
Amundsen, Ben	McCroskey, Ray A.
Alakaihn, Moses	McGregor, Thos.
Allen, I. J.	McLeod, Angus
Alsic, Karl	McLean, M. R.
Bach, Soren	Mikkelsen, Harry
Backman, Peter	Moyer, Geo. E.
Bieler, Ben	Neilsen, H. J.
Blake, Frank	Nelson, Nels
Bohm, Gust	Nelsson, C.
Bohm, Franz	Neuling, G. A.
Carmelie, Guiseppe	Nilsen, Christ
Custer, Kenneth R.	Norberg, John E.
Danilson, Albin	Olsen, Michael
Darlington, Wm.	Olson, T.
Davison, Jim	Olson, John
Diez, H.	Pederson, Geo.
Dooly, Frank E.	Peterson, Mauritz
Douglas, Joseph	Petersen, Knut
Durett, J. E.	Pehte, Frank L.
Erickson, J.	Preston, E.
Erickson, Hans E.	Pyne, J. W.
Ellegard, M.	Raanes, Johan
Engler, S. H.	Rader, Allen
Enberg, Einar	Rautio, Jack
Fogelberry, Harry	Reiman, Tovo H.
Forsberg, Swen S.	Rier, Earl W.
Fugman, Arthur	Robertson, E. J.
Gilkison, A. F.	Robles, Frank
Golden, Roy L.	Ross, Geo.
Graff, John D.	Saine, Arthur A.
Gronbeck, H.	Salonen, Victor
Gruber, J.	Salin, Toivo H.
Halley, W.	Sandvik, S. G.
Hanson, August	Scott, M.
Hanson, Oskar W.	Shalin, Nils
Hardie, Wallace	Sibley, M.
Hogstrom, Karl I.	Sinclair, P.
Holland, E. A.	Smith, Carl J.
Heino, Gust	Slade, I. S.
Henrikson, Geo.	Spencer, Tom
Huber, Charles S.	Stout, R. E.
Hurley, Michael	Sutse, Michel
Irmey, Feodor	Svansson, Ernest
Jacobs, Fulton	Taylor, Bert
Jernberg, Alfred	Thomson, Henry
Jespersen, Martin	Thorsen, Chas.
Johnson, Emil	Tinstrom, A. R.
Johanson, S.	Tuhkanen, John J.
Johnson, Louis	Walmough, P.
Jones, E. L.	Walter, E.
Kalfholm, Edw.	Wallace, Chess C.
Kauko, Axel	Wikstrom, Carl
Kelly, Norman	Willis, Samuel
Kennedy, B. L.	Wood, E. E.
Kjellberg, A. C.	Wolf, Herbert
Klaver, R.	Walters, Fred L.
Krause, Frank	Worn, Otje
Kristiansen, Wm. A.

San Pedro Letter List

Andersen, J. -2157	Golden, Roy
Anderson, Sven	Grason, Joe
Anderson, C.	Gunnerud, Ulrick
Anderson, Bartines	Gronthal, Albert
Andowiz, H.	Greenwall, J. E.
Arentsen, John	Gotz, Rudolph
Arnesen, Isack	Gallagher, Denny
Asaksen, Asak	Galke, Roy
Aspe, Teodor	Gaede, W.
Arnold, Tom	Hurley, Michael
Bentley, Clifford	Holland, Jonny
Berglund, Emil J.	Hermanson, Carl
Bergstrom, J.	Hellesten G.
Bengston, Sigfried	Hansen, Claf
Brown, Irwing	Hogsted, Chas.
Burge, Lawrence	Houston, Robert
Braden, W. A.	Hey, Ben
Bye, Kristian	Hickey, John
Brast, Sjomans	Herlin, W.
Bjorklund, Erick	Hogstedt, Chas.
Benson, Chas. A.	Haman, O. W.
Bergeson, B.	Hangman, Ed.
Belmont, Joe	Holtkamp, C.
Boe, John	Ikaanes, Edward
Carr, R. W.	Isakson, J.
Cowan, Wm. L.	Jacobsen, Jack -2445
Cariera, Peter	Jacobsen, Tom
Craig, Thomas	Johnsen, P. -2313
Church, C. A.	Jensen, Marius
Cage, Thomas	Johnson, George
Christoffersen, C.	Johansen, Carl
Cumalet, J. H.	Johnson, Waldron
Castle, H. C.	Johansen, J. -1432
Carlson, C.	Jonaseon, Johanes
Doty, Erwin	Janofy, Axel
Desmond, Albin	Jeeden, George
Daw, Walter	Jensen, Kristian
Daunt, C.	Johnson, Carl E.
Deaver, Alwin	Johansen, Anton
Dreger, Jack	Johansson, Gustav
Dragich, Peter	Jonson, K. A.
Davis, Orville	Kenrich, Richard
Drennen, William	Kelty, Peter D.
Disney, Robert	Kessa, Th.
Devine, John	Keel, Jewel
England, Thomas	Knudsen, Andrew
Evans, Wilbert	Kristoffersen, Hans
Eliasen, John	Kleman, Otto
Evensen, Alex	Kepplar, C.
Edwich, Leonarel	Killat, Dau
Engel, F.	Karki, Juho
Eliassen, Emil	Kluge, Frank
Fottinger, Karl A.	Klahn, Karl
Frair, Enoch	Kemmulsen, Alf.
Feeder, George	Kappen, Bernt
Franzel, A. H.	Krumholz, Edwin
Freitag, F.	Lind, Gustav
Fansel, H. D.	Lindstrom, John A.
Fahey, M.	Lindholm, Charles
Fairbrothers, Ed.	Lowrey, John
Fish, Ralph	Loderson, John

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

Books for You While at Sea

ADVENTURE — SEAMANSHIP
ROMANCE—HISTORY—TRAVEL
SCIENCE—GREAT MEN'S LIVES

Books to Help You Spend Idle Hours in a Pleasant and Worth While Way

For a Free Crew's Library Exchangeable at Any Time

Apply to

American Library Association

34 Sacramento Street San Francisco

Phone Sutter 6985

Or to other A. L. A. Agencies in Almost Any American Port

These books are provided free for your use by the people of the United States through the American Library Association.

When you have finished with them, they may be exchanged for another collection at any office of the American Library Association, or they may be exchanged for any A. L. A. collection on board another boat.

In fairness to the men on the next ship receiving this collection you should take reasonable care to prevent loss or damage to any book.

Larsen, Johan 1542	Olsen, Emil
Landborg, Chas.	Ono, Jolias
Lorgeman, Fred	Petersen, August
Laine, John	Pastrillen, H. K.
Lill, Karl	Petersen, Hugo
Lund, F. V.	Perry, William
Lauritzen, Ole	Parr, Robert M.
Levine, Carl	Pedersen, Harold S.
Lobeles, Jose	Petterson, Axel K.
Lehmus, Bill	Rossdam, Ha.
Langeman, W.	Robert, Bob
Lund, Alal	Rohman, Pet
Lundquist, Axel	Rueter, Aman
Lutzen, W.	Raaum, Harry
Moor, Peter	Rod, Halfdam
McNeil, John	Rosenthal, Walter
McRay, Jack	Robertson, E.
Mize, J. H.	Robinson, Fred
McGhee, E. J.	Roberts, J. W.
Martinson, John	Runge, R.
Maahs, Willi	Rosamund, J.
Magnusson, John	Roberts, Pisney
Moritz, W.	Ruiz, Jose
Monson, Ed.	Sanders, Chas.
Mato, Alex	Saxby, Charles
Murphy, Frank	Sandstrom, O. H.
Moller, J.	Sunde, O. H.
Moutcso, Joe	Soder, Paul
Mueller, John	Sandberg, A.
Nankinen, F.	Seland, Hans
Nelson, Ernest	Sahlberg, Rudolf
Nilsson, Edward	Smith, Carl Johan
Nelson, Gust	Steffensen, Hans
Nelson, Charlie	Scheumberg, Wm.
Njutrom, Uno	Swanson, Mr.
Nilsen, A.	Scottel, Andrew
Nelson, Ham	Steen, Ivar
Nielsen, P. F.	Sterndock, John
Nelson, Andreas	Swindells, William
Nelson, Emil	Scrivers, W.
Nelson, Hans	Sullivan, Jack
Ogren, V. E.	Swanson, Erick K.
Olofson, Oscar	Strom, Oscar
Olson, Toney	Strahle, Chas.
Oleson, Chars. C.	Stenard, Percy
Swenson, A. -1932	Voth, Gus
Sundgrau, Walter	Wilson, John
Sunnesvig, Olaf	Wrobluske, Paul
Skaanes, Edward	Winkelman, Otto
Svendsen, Fred	Wennerquist, Anton
Sveortary,	Wihemson, Karl
Seppel,	Woods, Claude
Sundquist, Walter V.	Wich, Ole
	Wrig, P.
Schultz, W.	Werne, John
Treiberg Peter	Young, William
Thal, R.	Yeoman, W. E.
Torsman, Niels	Zoerb, Walter
Thompson, James	Zimmerman, Fritz
Veckenstedt, Wm.	Zunderer, Theo.
Vitol, Alex.

INFORMATION WANTED

Members of the crew of the S. S. "J. E. O'Neil," which salved the motor ship Oregon. A settlement has been made and I wish the following men would communicate with me in order that they may be paid their share of the salvage due them: P. Anderson, seaman; W. Kendall, seaman; J. C. Thompson, third assistant; Joe Brady, wiper; H. F. Morressy, messboy. S. B. Axtell, 9 State street. 5-12-20

Olaf Nyhagen, a native of Bergen, age 36, is inquired for by his mother, Mrs. Dina Nyhagen, Bergen, Norway. 4-28-20

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST

SAN FRANCISCO

Home News

Price cutting has taken hold of the wholesale trade to an extent that soon must be felt substantially in lower prices to consumers, according to the Federal Reserve Board's monthly business review.

America's tax bill for the fiscal year ended June 30th amounted to $5,408,075,468, approximately a billion and a half dollars more than was paid into the Federal Treasury in the previous twelve months.

Gimbal Brothers, a large New York department store, will be tried on a charge of profiteering, December 1. This date was set by Federal Judge Shepard on motion of counsel for the defense.

Appointment of a special Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States is understood to have been indefinitely postponed. Canada's interests in this country thus will be left in the hands of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador.

A loan of $2,460,000 to the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railway Company to aid the road in meeting its 1920 short-term maturities and making improvements to promote the movement of freight cars was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

United States mints during September coined 780,000 pieces of silver money for Cuba and 640,000 pieces of silver for Peru. No gold coins were executed for the United States during the month, but coinage from other metals amounted to 61,615,000 pieces, aggregating $2,780,930.

The possibility of negroes taking the place of Asiatics as farm workers in California was discussed at the National Convention of the Industrial and Commercial Council of People of African Descent. W. H. Saunders, a Los Angeles delegate, said he was in direct touch with at least 5000 negroes who will come to California to take up truck gardening in case persons of Oriental races are denied the privilege of further colonization in this State.

Thomas A. Edison is now at work on a delicate apparatus which he has designed to effect indisputable communication between those whom death has removed from this earth and those who yet live. It is Edison's hope to complete the instrument within a few months, and he himself realizes what a tremendous sensation it would create should it prove to be successful. He says he would not be surprised if responses on his new apparatus should first come from telegraphers or scientists or those thoroughly familiar with the use of delicate instruments and electric currents.

Mrs. Alma Williams, formerly of Sweden, back from a visit to her motherland, was held up temporarily at Ellis Island, but was sped on her way to the West when she told the story of her right to re-enter Uncle Sam's domain. She is the mother of the only twins born at Castle Garden, nearly thirty years ago, when she arrived for the first time with her husband, as an immigrant. When she and the twins, girls, were ready to travel they went to Colorado. The twins grew up and married. Americans, which they had missed being themselves by mere hours, as their parents were not officially landed when they made their appearance. Mrs. Williams is to go to join the twins.

Domestic and Naval

Twelve members of the crew of the schooner "W. P. Heat" were lost two miles off Santiago de Cuba when the vessel collided with the American steamer "Cayo Mambe," says a dispatch from Santiago de Cuba.

The new turbine steamer "Versailles," for the Newhaven-Dieppe service, was launched recently at Havre. She will sail under the French flag, and her speed is expected to exceed 25 knots.

A cut in its personnel of 3224 employes, resulting in a decrease in the payroll of $5,530,372 during the fiscal year of 1920, was announced by the Shipping Board. On July 1, 1919, the board stated its employes numbered 11,706, with an annual payroll of $22,299,676, and on July 1, 1920, there were 8482 employes with a payroll of $16,769,304.

State Department officials hold that Great Britain is well within her rights in closing the port of Queenstown to transatlantic vessels. The opinion was elicited by the report that passengers aboard the American steamship "Panhandle State" had prepared a protest to the department because that vessel was not permitted to enter Queenstown harbor. The British order, it was stated, neither involves the question of freedom of the seas nor violates any international rights.

The Canadian Government Mercantile Marine (Ltd.) has started a fortnightly service between Trinidad and Montreal. During the winter months the service will be between Trinidad and St. John and Halifax instead of Montreal. Freight rates from Trinidad to Montreal by the two next steamers, the "Canadian Otter" and the "Canadian Beaver," are being advertised locally as follows: Sugar, per 100 pounds, $0.58; cocoa, per 100 pounds, $0.80; cocoanuts, per bag, $0.80; and molasses, per puncheon, $9.50, these rates being payable in Canadian gold or its equivalent.

An announcement of the withdrawal of the American Line steamships "St. Paul," "New York" and "Philadelphia" from the transatlantic passenger business between New York and Cherbourg and Southampton for the winter was made by P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company. The action, Franklin said, was temporary and was prompted by "exceedingly heavy operating expense, particularly the high cost of coal in England." The run of the ships will be taken over for the winter by the "Kroonland" and "Finland," both American flag vessels.

Due to a slump in the charter market and the lack of freight, more than thirty steel ships of the United States Shipping Board have been tied up by the board at New York and New London, Conn., according to advices received from Washington. The reason assigned for the retirement of these steamers from the trade routes is that the operators are finding difficulty in securing cargoes which will permit them to operate the Government owned vessels at a profit. It is said that the volume of cargo offering is not great on the Atlantic and the Shipping Board has been reluctant to place the ships in service as coal carriers because of the low rates offered. The vessels tied up represent an investment of $[illegible],000,000, according to the Washington advices.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. W.
Adolfsson, John
Alhstrom, Ellis
Alto, John
Almon, L.
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Anderson, Edwin
Anderson, James
Anderson, S. E.
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, C. -2001
Anderson, John
Aronson, Gunnar
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Attaberry, Clarence

Baardsen, Hans
Backman, Paul
Baggs, H. L.
Baggs, Morris
Baker, B. A.
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Baris, N.
Barlow, R.
Bengtson, Oscar
Blomgren, C. A.
Boerner, P. F.
Bosshardt, H.
Bothe, O.
Boutwell, Billie
Botsford, R. D.
Bower, Gordon
Brander, Wm.
Braun, James
Brown, Dudley G
Burr, W. H.

Callahan, Patrick
Carlsen, Sverre
Carlson, Andy
Carlson, G. -776
Carlson, Peter
Carpenter, Harold
Chilcott, Geo.
Clausen, Louis
Corey, Eldridge
Coulyou, Joseph
Culman, F.

Dahl, Otto
Dahl, Oskar
Dahls, Ogden
Davis, Warren
Daunt, C.
DeMario, Thos
Domke, Willi
Drennen, W. N.
Duarte, John
Duis, John
Duff, Peter W.
Dushane, Matt.

Eastman, J. W.
Eaton, Lawrence
Eide, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Eliasson, Martin
Ellis, F. L.
Emmerz, Joe
Endemann, M.
Ennus, Pito
Erickson, Gustaf W.
Erickson, -997
Eriman, Eskil
Eskelinen, Erick
Even, Frank

Fagerlie, Odell
Farevoog, C. M.
Federbach, Carl
Fergerson, Thos.
Fiedman, Georg
Flotten, James G.
Fletcher, Jos
Frudera, T. F.
Fuenson, A. E.
Fuerer, H. W.
Fuelberg, Carl
Fredricksen, O.

Gabrielsen, Lars
Georgal, F.
Gerretzky, Fritz A
Germenis, Socrates
Glessner, Albion
Golden R. L.
Graham, Ray
Grainge, Arnold
Granberg, Fred
Green, Lawrence
Groman, Gusta
Grondahl, Armus W.
Gustaffson, Walter
Gunderson, H. T.

Hakansson, Ingvar
Hallit, Frank
Hallowes, L. N.
Hamilton, Walter J.
Hansen, G. A. -2837
Hansen, Knud
Hangers, H. -1980
Handley, Chas.
Hansen, H. V.
Hansen, Magnus
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Harris, J. S. -3161
Harbst, J. D.
Hellman, Rowland L.
Hellpap, A.
Henrikson, K. Hj.
Hein, M.
Henke, Erick
Hessin, B.
Hicks, Wm. H.
Holbrook, G. A.
Hoskin, Alex
Hoglander, Martin
Hunter, Ernest

Ibsen, Christ(n
Ibsen, V. L.
Ingebretsen, Christian
Ireland. H.
Irving, John
Iversen, Iver

Jacobsen, E. Th.
Jacobsen, Alfred
Jacobsen, Joakim
Jahnke, Paul
Jansson, Fredrik
Janssen, Carl
Jensen, A. Chr.
Jensen, Carl O.
Jensen, Joe
Johansen, Johan R.
Janson, John A.
Jansson, John
Jensen, Martin
Jenson, Jens
Jensen, Klaus
Jepperson, Chris
Johnston, C. B.
Johnson, John -2840
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johannesen, Ole
Johansen, Eilert
Johnson, Edward S.
Johnstone, Leslie
Jonsson, J. H.-2951
Joyce, Daniel
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaasik, G.
Kaki, Lauri
Kaplan, I.
Karlgren, -644
Karlsson, E. -1738
Karlsson, Gustaf
Kasperson, E.
Keeney, F. W.
Kelly, Geo.
Kierne, G. H.
Klindt, Frederico
Kline, Conrad
Kinnie, E. J.
Kluge, Martin
Knutson, R. B.
Knudsen, Ragnval
Kokko, Martin
Kolustow A.
Kootz, Fridrick
Koster, Walter
Kraal, J.
Kragero, C. M. J.
Kristensen, J. P.
Krishjan, K. W.
Kristoffersen, A. B.
Krueger, Harry

Laine, John E.
Laine, Frank
LaMadrid, R.
Lambert, Jos.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen, Alex 1777
Larsen, John -2012
Larsen, Alexis
La Rue, C. L.
Lauritzen, Ole
Lee, Albert
Leeder, W. -2287
Leonar, H. S.
Leppard, Rasmus
Liesen, W.
Lindahl, G.-2342
Lindroos, Geo.
Livingston, H.
Lidsten, Chas.
Lindgren, A. A.

Lind, H. -2314
Lindroos, Fred
Liljedal, Ludv.
Loning, Herman
Lorentzen, Jean
Lund, Wm. J.
Lybeck, Theo.

Maalo, Rasmus
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
MacKay, Wm.
Maki, Ivar
Mahoney, F. J.
Manning, H. H.
Manzano, Luis
Martinsen, Ingvald
Masalin, Uno
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Matheis, Herman
McFarlane, Dougal
McGauley, Geo.
McCallum, Chas.
McClintic, Frost
McWade, W. C.
Melgand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Meyer, George
Mitchell, David
Mooi, Petei
Monroe, N. S.
Monsen, Charlie
Mol, J. W.
Moller, Fritz
Moritz, W.
Moore, H. L.
Morin, E. H.
Morrison, Donald
Mohr, Chas.
Morgan, R. B.
Morrison, Phillip
Mortensen, Thomas
Moulas, Nicholas
Muller, Werner
Muldrose, W. L.

Naylor, Geo. D.
Nelson, N. H.
Nelson, C. R.
Nelson, Karl
Nesson, Ralph
Ness, Aksel
Neveau, Thomas
Nickerson, P. C.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nilsen, Christ
Nilsen, Martin L.
Nielsen, C. -1303
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordling, Sven
Nordstom, Hans
Nordenberg, Alf.
Nurken, H.
Nurmi, Wm.
Nyman, John A.

O'Connor, Dennis
O'Connor, John J.
Olafson, O. B.
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsen, I. M.
Olsson, Ernst
Olsson, V.
Olsson, Charle
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Osen, Aksel
Ortman, Carl
Owervick, Thos.
Ozolin, Jan

Page, J. N.

Pankratz, Bruno
Paulsen, E. A.
Paul, Ben
Pearson, Edw.
Pedersen, Lewis
Pederson, George
Pedersen, Frederik
Pedersen, S.-1888
Peterson, Elias
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Peterson, O. -1595
Phillips, Bob
Pope, G. N.
Post, Albert
Pree, E. Deu

Raasu, Matti
Ramasse, Joe
Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Rasmussen, Karl V.
Regnill, Gustaf
Renstrom, Axel
Richardson, Edwin
Roach, Steffen
Robson, Carr
Roberts, John
Robertson, Robert
Rodriquez, Antonio
Rogers, Thos. G.
Ronn, E.
Roth, M.
Rubins, Ch.
Ryan. James

Saharoff, John
Salli, Rudolf
Sanne, Rudolf
Sandstrom, Olaf
Saxby, C. H.
Schmees, Herman
Schutte, Richard
Sexton, Harry J.
Simpson, Joseph H.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Skaug, Hans
Small, E. R.
Smith, Geo. B.
Sodergren, Ragnar
Solberg, Bernt P.
Sorensen, E.
Sovdsnes, O. Petersen
Speckman, Max
Sprogoe, Theodor
Stanford, Harry
Stenberg, Hj. N.
Stjernstrand, Bror
Stone, M. C.
Stout, R. E.
Stragseth, Svend
Strele, F.
Stenensen, A.
Stewart, William
Stuhr, Olaf

Tallry, Russell B.
Tammola, Waino
Tellefson, Emil
Tennison, George
Thiel, Werner
Thode, Rudolph
Thomas, Andrew
Thomas, John
Thomas, N. S.
Thomas, Fred
Thompson, Clifford
Thompson, James
Thomsen, Ebbe Peter
Thornquist, Adolph
Tillman, Chas.
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tolano, A. R.
Torwick, H. S.
Torson, Andrew
Tovano, A. R.
Tufty, C. J.
Twigg, Harry M.

Vadum, N. Kr.
Veckenstedt, Wm.
Velure, Harry Verhoef, A.
Vitol, A.
Vihavainen, George
Vogelhuber, Albert
Vorst, C. A.

Wakrom, J.
Wallenius, Kaarlo, E.
Walstrom, Albert
Waterfall, L. N.
Weatherby, Thomas
Werkhoven, G.
Wezwagar, Andrew
Wessberg, E. H. N.
West, Frank
Whiting, Russell
Wichman, Carl H
Wijchgel, J. -970
Wiklund, Wiktor
Wilks, J.
Wittenburg, D.
Wohlers, Diedrich
Woods, Dick
Wolff, Paul E.
Wray, P. R.

Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Fowler, R. J.
Fredricksen, Otto
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Garrick, J. B.
Gallery, R. B.
Grienne, Fred
Goodman, Tony
Henrikson, Ernst
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Olsen, O. J. -1020
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Travers,
Tillsten, Jack
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

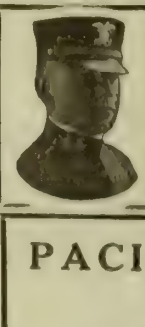
INFORMATION WANTED.

The following named members of the crew of the S. S. "Kenebec," who helped salve the schooner "Thomas L. Wand" on November 19, 1919, have vouchers ready to be distributed at our office:

Demetre Sakelaris, $46.80; Carl Puika, $56.72; Isidro Flores, $50.55; Janes Franco, $50.55; Daniel Rodrigues, $50.55; Rafael Corrillo, $50.55; Dimity Sacelarius, $50.55; Siegor Sorensen, $50.55. Levy & Levy, Lawyers, Trust Bldg., Galveston, Texas. 10-6-20

Anyone who was acquainted with the late Chas. Erickson, discharged from the U. S. Navy in 1896, and subsequent thereto sailing on the Pacific Coast, will confer a great favor upon his widow, Mrs. Charles Erickson, by communicating with her at P. O. Box 15, San Pedro, Cal. Mrs. Erickson is anxious to establish certain facts relating to the physical condition of her late husband prior to his discharge from the U. S. Navy. 1-28-20

Crew of the S. S. "Wasco," which signed on at New York March 19th and were discharged and arrested at the Cape Verde Islands about October 19th, will be good enough to report or communicate with the undersigned. The trial of some of the crew will come up shortly and I should like to join as many of the crew as possible in their action.—S. B. Axtell, New York, N. Y. 8-4-20



FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

AT THE FOOT OF THE FERRY BRIDGE
GEO. A. PRICE
DEMANDS THE UNION LABEL

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

SHOES SALE SHOES
YOU CAN SAVE FROM $3 TO $5 A PAIR AT THE SALE PRICE THAN YOU CAN PURCHASE THEM ELSEWHERE. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SALE.
AGENTS—W. L. DOUGLAS, JUST WRIGHT, STRONG & GARFIELD, WALK EASE
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET, S. F. Between Market and Mission

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

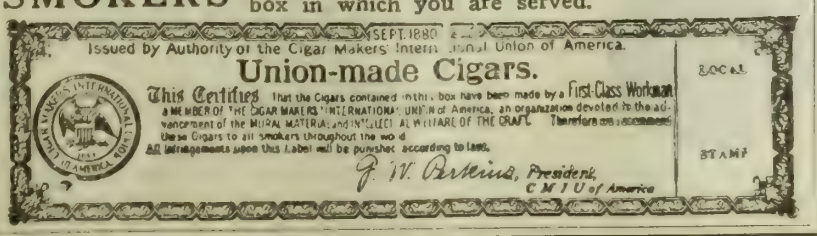
SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.



News from Abroad

The Turkish Cabinet decided that the Sultan must personally lead Turkish troops against the Turkish Nationalists in Anatolia, to prevent dissolution of the empire.

Four thousand doctors of Vienna who have been treating patients under the auspices of sick benefit associations have gone on strike. They are refusing to make visits except for the regular fees of their private practice.

Canton, one of the most important cities in southern China, has been captured by Cantonese troops under General Chen-Chung Ming, according to a Reuter's telegram from Shanghai quoting reports printed in Peking newspapers. The correspondent says he has been unable to confirm the report.

Members of agricultural societies which occupied property owned by King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, near Naples, have been driven out by troops. Several peasants were wounded in the fighting, says a Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Exiled German colonists from Samoa and South Africa continue to tell stories of the treatment they received at the hands of the British authorities who, on short notice, seized their possessions and bundled men, women and children aboard transports.

Fire destroyed the interior of the Philippine Senate building, making it necessary to provide another building for the Legislature session opening October 16. Records of the last session of the Senate were destroyed, together with private papers of many Senators. Estimates place the loss at $100,000.

A wireless dispatch from Moscow says that Poland has received large supplies from the Allies through Danzig. England, the message declares, sent seven steamers loaded with munitions and three tanks and twelve small vessels with provisions, while the United States sent six ships with volunteers. From France two ships arrived with more than 1000 infantrymen and fifteen tanks, the message says.

Leaders in the American community in Tokio, including the American Christian Ministers' Association, have decided to draft a resolution to be forwarded to Secretary of State Colby, Roland Morris, American ambassador to Japan, and Governor William D. Stephens of California, declaring that the proposed California legislation prohibiting ownership and leasing of land in the State by Japanese threatens to strain American and Japanese relations and is a menace to American and Japanese friendship.

Low-speed cargo airships for towing other aircraft were suggested by Wing Commander T. R. Cave-Browne-Cave in an address before the engineering section of the conference of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. When no speed greater than thirty-five miles an hour is required, and when reasonably favorable weather can be waited for, even small airships can be used for transport over otherwise impossible country, he stated. Such an airship service, the commander said, would be of inestimable value in civil engineering, such as the construction of railways and in prospecting for oil and minerals by transporting material.

With the Wits

"Pop?" "Well, Junior?" "Are 'politics' plural?" 'No,' my boy, there isn't anything in the world more singular than politics."—Youngstown Telegram.

Wifey—I heard a noise when you came in last night. Hubby—Perhaps it was the night falling. Wife (coldly)—No, it wasn't; it was the day breaking.—Blighty.

Poet—I seek a phrase that shall express the joy of life in two words. Can you suggest anything? Unfeeling Friend — Received payment.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

"So our novelist friend has obtained a divorce, eh? On what ground?" "On the ground that his wife acted like the heroines in his novels."—Kansas City Star.

"Those people never read a newspaper from one year's end to the other." "That doesn't matter; they've engaged a maid who's lived in about every family on the block."—Baltimore American.

Wouldn't Stand It—Free Verse Writer—Ah, father, poets are born, not made.

Father (angrily)—See here, son! Write all that durn rot ye want, but don't you go blamin' mother an' me for it. We won't stand it.

"Do you say that your hens 'sit' or 'set'?" asked the precise pedagogue of the busy housewife. "It never matters to me what I say," was the quick reply. "What concerns me is to learn, when I hear the hen cackling, is whether she is laying or lying."—Farm and Fireside.

A Modern Homer.

When Homer smote his bloomin' lyre
He smote his way to fame;
But many million simple souls
Have never heard his name.
When Babe Ruth smites the bloomin' ball,
And smites it o'er the fence,
His homer makes the Grecian one
Resemble thirty cents.
—Chicago Tribune.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR
500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS
Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.
COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE
72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office
Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Original Size

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET
High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit
THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL
Most Complete Line of Union Made
SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS
In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR
28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James R. Sorensen
Founder and Owner

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS
Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds
WEDDING RINGS
Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes
WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO
JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS
Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's GOOD GOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE
Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods
Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN
You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell
UNION HATS
at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.
JOHN B. STETSON hats, too
If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.
You'll find me at

72 Market Street
next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE
RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS
133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS
UNION MADE
ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization

VOL. XXXIV, No. 9. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1920. Whole No. 1725.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR LAWS

Arguments for and Against World-Wide Regulation

At present there is no international law of labor, nor has there ever been, because no code of economic principles or of legal enactments for the protection of labor has ever been so generally accepted as to attain the authority of international law. But powerful influences are now working toward that end.

A historical survey of international action affecting labor has just been completed by the U. S. Department of Labor. Seamen, by the nature of their calling, are more directly concerned in this subject than any group of workers ashore. The following arguments for and against international labor regulation (contained in the survey referred to) should therefore be of special interest to the Journal's readers.

The movement for the international protection of labor, like all reform movements, has met with determined opposition. Included among its opponents have been all the various parties affected—Governments, employers, and workingmen—and in order to have a fair understanding of the issues involved it is necessary to know the grounds on which such opposition is based, as well as the reasons for advocating these measures.

With the first effort on the part of a State, that of the Swiss Federal Council in May, 1881, to bring about international regulation through governmental action, objection on one ground or another was made by most of the countries approached, France stating that it was not within the province of the State to interfere with contracts between employers and employes, either nationally or internationally, except possibly in cases of extreme necessity.

Opposition to international restrictions from employers has been based largely on the two following points: (1) That it obliges them to compete with goods produced by the cheap labor of an industry unhampered by restrictive labor law; (2) that production may be limited as a result of restrictions placed upon them, such as, for example, the non-employment of women at night, reduction of the length of the workday, and the like.

The movement has been opposed among workingmen, but only to a very limited extent. Labor has also foreseen a possible lowering of its standards in those countries in which the best conditions of work, hours, and wages prevail, in order to meet conditions in countries in which these standards are lower, since it has been considered probable that compromise would have to be effected to meet the varying economic conditions in the countries concerned.

These difficulties, which seemed perhaps insuperable to the earlier advocates of the movement, have largely disappeared through gradual changes in laws and habits of thought. The principal objection now raised by National Governments is that action taken by international concert involves an infringement upon the sovereign rights of the nations. The National Governments are jealous of any interference in the sphere of their legislative activities.

While employers have found fault with such intervention in many cases, it is true that their objections have been much more strenuous in the field of national than in that of international regulation. They continue to view excessive regulation as a limitation upon the interests of production and business profits, regardless of whether such regulation is national or international.

No organized opposition on the part of labor to protective measures now exists. For over half a century labor has been a propelling force behind the movement for labor legislation. It believes in protection from dangerous machinery and occupational diseases, the abolition of child labor, such a regulation of the hours of labor for women as will safeguard the physical and moral health of the community, suppression of the sweating system, and the reduction of the hours of labor to the lowest practicable point. Labor advocates that degree of leisure for all which is the condition of the ideal life, a release from employment one day in seven, a living wage as the minimum in every industry, and the highest wage that each industry can afford, suitable provision for the old age of workers and for those incapacitated by injury in industry, the lifting of the crushing burdens of the poor, the reduction of the hardships of labor, and the upholding of its dignity.

Certain other objections to regulation of industry have been advanced. It has been argued that dissimilarities in climate and in peoples are a serious hindrance to international regulation, since a rule applicable to the workmen of the temperate zone would not be equally applicable to laborers of the torrid zone, and that laws relating to child labor would not be suitable in all cases since children of some lands mature more quickly than those in others. Abolition of night work for women is criticized on the score that in tropical countries the only cool period of the day extends from sunset to sunrise, and to prohibit women from working at night in these countries might cause serious difficulties, while differences in soil, mineral resources, supplies of water and fuel, seasonal changes with their effect on goods handled, all making for dissimilarity in manufacturing processes, have also been cited as reasons against international regulation. All these points, however, are, as a matter of fact, provided for in such treaties and conventions as have been entered into. Exceptions are made in the agreements respecting seasonal occupations and adjustments are made to suit the regulations to the nature of the climatic conditions and the character of the working force in each country.

The different systems of labor legislation and administration in different States, which have been built up by the long and slow process of evolution and which are therefore adapted to their peculiarities of situation—geographical, social, and economic—and to their differing constitutional systems, rendering labor legislation difficult under one form of government and easy under another, have also been urged as militating against effective regulation. In practice, however, differences in government and industrial organization have not presented any insurmountable difficulties. The Berne conventions have been applied by autocracies, monarchies, and republics with all sorts of differing labor laws. The relation of the United States, however, is peculiar. After the convention banning white phosphorus had been agreed to by other leading industrial nations, the Congress of the United States, which was unable to pass a prohibitory law owing to constitutional limitations, passed a tax measure which was practically equivalent to a prohibitory law.

The movement presents a problem to the United States. If, as some authorities hold, jurisdiction over labor matters is one of those powers wholly "reserved to the States and the people thereof," and one that can not under any circumstances be exercised by the Federal Government by treaty any more than by legislation, changes may be necessary in the theory and practice of American labor administration. There are, however, other authorities who hold equally firmly that a treaty entered into by the executive power and the Senate becomes the "supreme law of the land," regardless of any State legislation to the contrary. In interpreting any treaty the only question which the Supreme Court may assume to pass upon, these authorities hold, is whether or not the subject matter of the treaty is one which may be referred for international negotiations.

Probably the chief obstacle to the securing of international agreements modifying industrial standards is the present basic conflict between employer and employe. Within each country the various economic groups are continually in conflict. The attempts to raise standards, shorten hours, and increase wages are considered by employers as attacks upon the interests of production, because such changes increase costs and thus limit business returns. While some countries, in spite of this ceaseless struggle of interests, have brought labor standards to a fairly high level, other countries, "where labor is cheap, plentiful, and impotent," are still submitting to the 12-hour day and a regime of low wages. For the latter countries, it is obvious that any considerable upward movement of standards will mean a relatively greater loss to their employers as a group, hence the opposition of employers to such proposed agreements. Although long periods of transition for adaptation to higher labor standards were allowed in the agreements, the countries of low labor standards almost invariably declined to participate in international labor conventions.

The agitation for the regulation of labor conditions began, as already observed, among closely contiguous European countries. The tendency is for labor to move to the countries having improved labor standards, while the knowledge among the workers of any country of better labor conditions in neighboring countries is provocative of unrest in the home country. Thus the threatened loss of labor and the disaffection among the workers have brought home to employers the desirability of considering some united action on their part with the employers of other countries.

With the increasing education of the workers and the gradually enlarging facilities of communication, the more urgent will become the demand to raise labor standards by international action. Enlightened manufacturers see in such raising of industrial standards no diminution in the long run of their ability to compete with those manufacturers who can avail themselves of masses of cheap and helpless workers; while the working man sees in international action a means of improving the conditions of life of those who constitute the great majority of the population.

THE ANCIENT HUNGER STRIKE.

The fast of the late devoted Lord Mayor of Cork and his fellow hunger-strikers has become an international drama, its tension heightening week by week. This lonely and hideously slow adventuring into the Dreadful Valley is different from any other kind of martyrdom: it demands a courage which only scientific or religious fanatics have shown. Indeed the psychology of suicide as a means of defense, a method for justice, is hardly known today although every hunger-strike tends to establish this form of social protest more potently. The roots of this method go deep. It was practiced by ancient Hindu and Celt and in modern India survived to be condemned in the English penal code as "barbarous and immoral." In Ireland today its recurrence takes on for those who know Irish legend the character of repeated episode in a long epic tradition. The "fast for constraint" as it was practiced in Irish antiquity has been learnedly dealt with in the Putnam Anniversary Volume of Anthropological Essays (1909) and elsewhere. Only a few examples need be given to prove the brotherhood, not only by blood but by custom, of the Lord Mayor of Cork and his dying associates with those who have so long gone before them.

The Brehon laws of Ireland, traditionally ascribed to St. Patrick's fifth century day, give some curious details. Fasting upon debtors was evidently one way of getting swift settlements. If the faster died, his debtor owed not only his original debt but also the death fine, a kind of Celtic wergild. If the debtor offered food to the faster but gave no pledge of payment, he owed, according to law, double the amount of his original debt. On the other hand if he offered the pledge and gave security and still the faster would not break his fast, the latter forfeited his legal rights. If the debtor would give no pledge, he was in the eyes of the law "an evader of all," to be paid neither by man nor God.

In old Irish literature the fastings are of the most picturesque character. Thus, a father fasts against three rebellious sons to make them grant him a month's truce; three landless men fast even on the Tuathade Danann until they are given a domain. St. Finnen and his followers fast on a recalcitrant pagan until he admits them to his home. Evil living men, whether kings or nobles, were fasted upon by the saints until ruin or remorse overtook the sinners. In them turn mere mortals made fasts upon saints to constrain them to grant victories or to intercede with God on their behalf. In such cases it was conceived that mortal will and mortal suffering created as it were immortal obligation. At need the saints might even fast upon God himself. In a recently published sixteenth century Life of Columcille (University of Illinois, 1918) the story is told that St. Columba did thus so fast upon God that he obtained from Him a victory for his friends though the boon was so ill-pleasing to God that He required in expiation Columbia's perpetual exile from Erin.

There are many other beloved legends of a people always mystically minded, to prove that what has seemed an incongruous resistance to imperial law has merely followed a custom and spirit older than the British empire itself. It is a dull heart, indeed, that does not feel something echo from "the hid battlements of Eternity," before this spectacle of historic continuity.—The Nation.

THE HUDSON BAY RAILWAY

Agitation is being renewed in western Canada for the resumption of work on the Hudson Bay Railway, now needing only 92 miles of construction to complete a short cut across the narrow end of the globe, reducing the distance from Calgary to Liverpool by about 1,350 miles. The deep-water development of the harbor at Port Nelson, consisting of an artificially constructed island, situated near the outer edge of the tidal flats, about two-thirds of a mile from shore, connected with the mainland by a bridge of 17 spans, has created some opposition by those who favored Port Churchill for the railway terminus. The island as built is now one-half mile in length and inclosed on all but the deep-water face by timber crib retaining works, and the interior has been partly filled with material dredged from the site of the deep-water wharves and channel. The work was greatly interfered with on account of the war.

The total expenditure for the Hudson Bay Railway up to March 31, 1918, was $20,233,887. It is stated that the cost of the terminals is $10,000,000, so that the total expenditure of this undertaking would be $30,000,000. While the completion of the railway is being agitated by people of western Canada, it is not likely that the construction will be gone on with until financial conditions improve.

AREAS BELOW SEA LEVEL

All the continents possibly, except South America, include areas of dry land that lie below sea level. According to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, the lowest point in North America is one in Death Valley, California, that lies 276 feet below sea level, but this depression is slight compared to the basin of the Dead Sea, in Palestine, Asia, where the lowest point on dry land is 1,200 feet below sea level. The lowest point in Africa is one in the Desert of Sahara that lies about 150 feet below sea level. The Sahara as a whole stands above sea level, although until recently the greater part of it was supposed to lie below sea level. The lowest point in Europe at present known is one on the shores of the Caspian Sea that lies 86 feet below sea level. The lowest point in Australia is one at Lake Torrens that lies about 25 feet below sea level.

BIG FUEL SAVING PLAN

A saving of 30,000,000 tons of coal and $300,000,000 every year would be effected by the linking of power plants of the Atlantic seaboard, declared W. S. Murray, electrical engineer, before the convention of the American Electric Railway Engineers' Association.

The speaker explained the super-power system, which he is surveying for the government.

The zone now under investigation comprises the Atlantic seaboard from Boston to Washington to a depth of 150 miles. In this district, the engineer stated, 17,000,000 horse power is required to turn the wheels of industry and of the railroads. By the introduction of the super-power system the horse power would be cut to 5,000,000, thus saving an enormous amount of fuel and money.

According to the survey, huge steam turbine units, each with a capacity of 300,000 kilowatts, will be established at tidewater and at the mines. To these will be added hydro-electric stations on the Hudson, Delaware and Potomac rivers and other streams of the district. The large efficiency plants in the big cities will be connected with the line. Twenty per cent. of the railroads will be electrified.

Materials that go to make up our paper money are gathered from all parts of the world. Part of the paper fiber is linen rag from the Orient; silk comes from China or Italy; blue ink is made from German or Canadian cobalt; black ink is made from Niagara Falls acetylene gas smoke, and most of the green ink is green color mixed in white zinc sulphite made in Germany. The red color in the seal is obtained from a pigment imported from Central America.

THE MENACE.

I claim the Right to Work—
For whatever the Boss will pay;
If the wage is low, why out you go
And in I come to stay!
I've not your skill,
But I've got the will
To do as my masters say.

I claim the Right to Work—
Till my very soul is raw;
I claim the right for day and night
So long as a cent I draw;
For when you quit
I earn my bit;
So I'm for a twelve-hour law.

I claim the Right to Work—
In a shop where few may thrive;
In dust and smell, or fire trap's hell,
From five o'clock till five;
Though every breath
Is sick with death,
What matter if I'm alive?

I force the wages down?
Or the many to slave and shirk?
Although I quicken, the hundreds sicken
Amid the muck and mirk.
Well, what care I
If the workers die—
I claim the Right to Work!

—From "The Judas," by Kaufman.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

"Wall St. Control" Grim Reality

In a statement issued by Comptroller of the Currency Williams, it would seem that the term "Wall Street control" is more than a figure of speech.

The Comptroller exercises general supervision over national banks. He declares that a group of New York bankers have the Nation by the throat, and that this "hold up" policy hampers railroads, industry and even country store keepers, and is followed by a shut down of factories and unemployment.

The Treasury official says that every day in New York a group of from four to eight men set the rate of interest for call loans, and that this rate is posted on the stock exchange and is accepted by banks in that city and elsewhere. Sometimes the group arrange matters over the telephone.

Between October 1, 1919, and August 1, 1920, loans for a total of $600,000,000 were made at rates of 15, 20, 25 and 30 per cent. per annum, he says. Much of this money had been loaned to the banks by the Government's Federal Reserve banking system at interest rates that ranged from 4½ to 6 per cent.

The Comptroller declares that the power exercised by this small group "is a grip on the heart of our commerce."

"It permits," he says, "such interference as fallible human judgment, whim or interest may direct with the natural and orderly movements of money, the life blood of business."

Women in Industry

Approximately 2,400,000 women and girls are employed in industry in this country, according to a report by the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

Since 1916 women in the iron and steel industry have increased 40 per cent.; in the automobile industry, 300 per cent.; instrument making, 200 per cent.; wood working, 100 per cent. The number of girls between 14 and 16 is between one-third and one-half of the total number of employed youth.

The Federal Board says: "The public needs to understand and face the facts of the presence of large numbers of women in industry."

The report shows that women and girls are going into these industries without sufficient training. Under the Federal vocational education law of 1917 every State has an appropriation designed to be used for trade and industrial classes for women and girls and men and boys. It is stated that the labor organizations of southern California are responsible for trade and industrial classes in factories under the direction of public school authorities.

"Public Convenience" Overlooked

Federal Judge Mayer has granted the request of the receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company that operation on nine lines of that system be indefinitely suspended because they are losing money.

The Public Service Commissioner ordered the receiver to operate the lines for the public convenience. This order has been set aside by the court.

Trade unionists call attention to the Federal court's oversight of "the public's convenience," a stock phrase when workers say they are losing money and possibly tie up the street car system that wage increases may be granted. In that case injunctions, police and strikebreakers are forthcoming.

In the present case the public is given less consideration than in strike times, for no attempt is made to operate the cars. The corporation makes a complete tie-up by suspending operations, because it says it is losing money.

The local press treats the affair as "a business proposition," and all hands from the court down, forget their strike time war cry.

Dust Explosion Costly.

The unlimited need for caution in industry is shown in a statement issued by the Department of Agriculture that grain dust explosions cost 80 lives and $7,000,000 in property loss in this country in nine months last year. It is stated that such an innocent thing as mill dust will assume the rending capacity of TNT when mixed with air in certain proportions and ignited and that the strongest fireproof structure is not proof against the resulting explosion. Explosions have been traced to such simple causes as a spark from belt friction, a workman's pipe, and even the breaking of incandescent light globes.

The department says the epidemic of dust explosions has been checked by its educational work among employes.

Stop High Wage Cry.

In discussing price cutting that has started in some industries, financiers, business men and editors have forgotten their cry that "high wages and a lessening of production" is responsible for high prices.

For months the public has been told of workers who "lay down on the job" and who are only interested in boosting wages. No change is possible, it was declared, until the workers accept lower wages and work harder.

Now the profiteers are forced to acknowledge that storehouses are budging with commodities and that banks are refusing further credit until these goods are unloaded.

By cutting prices, which it is agreed will not reach the retailer "for some time," the profiteers have acknowledged their guilt.

Children Go To Work.

Within a year after they were legally permitted to go to work, one child out of every four in Connecticut left school for that purpose, reports the Federal Children's Bureau.

This does not include newsboys and those engaged in agriculture and domestic service. Three-fourths of the children went to factories, the largest number of boys going to the metal industries and

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Transportarbeiter Verband, Reichsabteilung Seeleute Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de Sâo Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

The report of the Swedish Co-operative Union for 1919 shows a very marked growth, the number of societies belonging to the union having increased during the year from 849 to 920.

Serious riots on the color question are reported to have taken place at Decazeville, France. While civilians and black workmen from the French African colonies engaged in serious fighting. After many casualties troops quelled the disturbances.

J. H. Thomas, chairman of the British Trades Union Congress, in his opening address at the annual meeting at Portsmouth, predicted the hardest winter for labor it has experienced in many years. He made a plea for industrial peace in view of the bad trade outlook, saying that labor did not want to fight, but was at the same time determined not to give up the results of years of struggle and privation at the demand of the capitalists.

The rapid spread of Bolshevism in Mexico has resulted in alarming advices sent to the State Department and other Government departments in Washington, where the sudden increase in Bolshevik activities beyond the border is credited to the lessening of military action in Europe. The increase in Bolshevik propaganda and political intrigue is reported to be due to a certain tolerance of the activity of the agents of the Moscow Government by the constituted authority in Mexico, and the Bolshevik organization is now well intrenched throughout the length and breadth of the country.

"The problem of unemployment is daily growing more acute," writes the labor editor of Reynolds' Newspaper. "Not only in dockland, but throughout the whole of industrial England an alarming situation has developed during the past two months. It is safe to say that such a percentage of out-of-works has not been reached since pre-war days. Many schemes calculated to relieve the distress have been formulated by borough councils, but except in very few cases has any real attempt been made to cope with the problem. In and around the docks the pinch of poverty is being felt more and more."

The Socialist "Bateaglie Sindacal" has made public the program decided upon by the commission of workmen appointed to present to the Government concrete proposals concerning participation of the workmen in the technical, financial and disciplinary management of the industrial establishments. It provides that the workmen's council must: (1) Control the purchase of raw materials. (2) Supervise the sale of finished products. (3) Fix the price of finished products. (4) Superintend the grading of wages. (5) Control all goods unloaded. (6) Decide what task each workman is better adapted to accomplish. (7) Obey the conditions of employment of the industrial establishments. (8) Control the general expenses of the establishments and especially limit the expenses of the present proprietors and directors, who will participate in the profits. (9) Decide when new machinery is necessary. (10) Supervise hygienic and sanitary conditions in industrial establishments. (11) Insist that the proprietors furnish necessary utensils. (12) Not resort to artificial industrial crises. (13) The employers must prevent "dumping"

M. BROWN & SONS
SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL
529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

Union Made Shoes for Men Exclusively

YOUR OLD FRIEND JOE WEISS
WHITE PALACE SHOE STORE
92 FOURTH ST. nr. MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO
Repairing Done While You Wait
by the Latest Machinery
We use only the best leather that the market affords

Oilers and Firemen

EVER EXPECT TO GO UP FOR A MARINE ENGINEER'S LICENSE?

If so, do not fail to get the

"Blue Book of Facts of Marine Engineering"

because it contains all the questions, answers and problems that are required for a license. The problems are all worked out in simple arithmetic so that you can easily understand them. The price is $3.00 per copy, and is on sale at most Marine Firemen's Union Halls, or a money order mailed to us will bring you one by return mail.

OUR OTHER BOOKS

"THE BLUE BOOK OF OIL BURNING AND BURNERS." It gives you practical information on oil burning and burners, their care, operation and safety hints. Price, $2.00.

"THE MARINE TURBINE POWER PLANT." A practical book on the Marine Turbine, covering Gears, Auxiliaries, Boilers and all oil burning equipment. It is free from difficult processes of reasoning and is written in language that you can readily understand. Price, $3.00.

"THE MACHINISTS' BLUE BOOK" covering general Machine-Shop Practice, Shortcuts, Shop Kinks and Quick Methods. 592 pages and 400 illustrations. Price, $4.00.

Address Department C

OCEAN PUBLISHING CO.
25 West 42d St. New York City

INFORMATION WANTED.

Arturo Longueira, age 18, who mysteriously disappeared at South Ferry, New York, on August 25th, or any one knowing his whereabouts, will please communicate with Secretary, Marine Firemen's Union, 70 South St., New York City. 10-20-20

Any one knowing the whereabouts of John B. Isaacs will please notify Chas. F. Bullock, Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, 321 Twentieth street, Galveston, Texas. Matter of great importance. 3-31-20

Chas. T. Smith, Roy Dresser, Joe Ban, Autti Hanks, Thos. Wolstenholme, Chas. Fraser, W. B. Pierce, Karl Olson, William Holmes kindly communicate with John T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 10-6-20

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney-at-law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 676 Mills Bldg., Telephone Sutter 4673. Residence Phone Prospect 2908.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Mrs. Jean Taylor. 940 Pender Street, West Vancouver, B. C., is anxious of ascertaining the whereabouts of Robert Gilchrist Cassar, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific. 10-13-20

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of George Mace Monroe, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific last heard of at Charleston, S. C. March, 1916, will please communicate with his mother, Mrs. Alice Monroe, 918 Spruce street, Seattle Washington 6-9-20

Honolulu Letter List

Badling, G.	Johnson, Ralph
Bradley, Ed.	Larsen, John
Buck, Harry	Lillyborge, Will.
Bjorkqvist, R.	Lundgren, Karl
Bott, James	Lind, Gust.
Caldwell, John	Makinnon, Kanno
Campbell, Eddl	Mulligan, Ed.
Etherson, Ward	Myers, Georg
Harms, Ed.	Parker, A. L.
Haraldsen, Alf.	Sondel, Franklyn S.
Howard, John	Seevers, Howard L.
Helling, J. S.	Stewart, R. T.
Jorgensen, H. F.	Solberg, B. P.
Johnsen, Hilding	Takostolny, Jos.

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM
A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
B. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

SEAMEN'S HEADQUARTERS
The Griffin House
NORFOLK, VA.
Furnished Rooms Reasonable
Hot Baths Free
Phones:
27454 613 Plume St.
27852 420 West Buts St.

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth
This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE
will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.
Send in your order today.
$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

DEMAND THE UNION LABEL

AXTELL'S BOOK
"Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen" for the use of seamen and officers, just out. Copies may be obtained by addressing
RIGHTS & DUTIES OF SEAMEN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
9 State Street, New York City.
$1.00 Per Copy.

To Scandinavian Sailors:
Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.
LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

At $82,623, the Moore Shipbuilding Company won the contract for converting the engines of the Shipping Board tanker "Imlay," 10,000 tons, from turbines to reciprocating type.

Charleston will be an east-bound port of call of the American-Hawaiian coast-to-coast line. according to an announcement by Williams, Dimond & Co.

Iron barge "Acapulco," 1220 tons, has been purchased from Lee D. Devlin by the Peruvian Steamship Company, according to advices from Callao, where the barge arrived October 1, in tow of the tug "Relief."

The tanker "W. S. Miller" was launched from the Alameda plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation on Oct. 28, for the Standard Oil Company. The vessel has a carrying capacity of 75,000 barrels. The craft was named in honor of the first president of the Standard Oil Company in California.

Damage received by the Standard Oil tanker "Bradford" by striking an obstruction while passing through the Panama Canal has been repaired. The vessel's cargo, which was lightered to repair the damage, has been reloaded and the craft will proceed to Pisagua, Chile, to discharge her cargo of oil loaded at Tampico, Mexico.

The American barkentine "Hawaii," 930 tons. has been chartered to carry lumber to Adelaide from the Columbia River at $32.50 by Balfour, Guthrie & Co. Many charters have been made for lumber to the United Kingdom from Puget Sound and Columbia River ports. It is expected that many vessels which have been awaiting more favorable rates on grain will load lumber instead.

Thirty-two vessels of 5300 deadweight tons each are to be placed in the coast-to-coast trade, specializing in lumber cargoes, according to an announcement by Sudden & Christenson, who will act as Pacific Coast agents for the Submarine Boat Corporation of New York. The first steamer will be the "Suricho," sailing from Newark November 10. Calls will be made at San Pedro, San Francisco, Willapa Harbor, Grays Harbor, Portland and Seattle.

Three lumber concerns operated in territory along the lower Columbia River by the Charles R. McCormick's interests will be consolidated and operated as one, according to plans just announced. They are the St. Helens Lumber Company, the Columbia County Lumber Company, and the Island Lumber Company. The combined output of the mills of the consolidated concerns is approximately 600,000 feet each eight-hour day.

The extensive repair job to the Shipping Board steamer "West Eldara." which was damaged on Barber's Reef outside of Honolulu, has been awarded to the Los Angeles shipyard. There were three bids. The Moore yards bid $261,728; the Bethlehem, $236,698, and the Southern yard, $219,980. One hundred and forty-nine plates on the "West Eldara" must be replaced, besides considerable stanchion replacement in the interior.

Reorganization of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's staff by Vice-President and General Manager A. E. Haines is in preparation for the great increase in business that is assured by the allocation of five big passenger ships to the corporation for operation in the Seattle-Orient routes. The vessels will be placed in service early next year and will give the company a regular fleet of thirty-two ships—eighteen being owned by itself and the others by the Shipping Board.

That the steamship business is due for several years of a most severe test, in which it will be necessary to proceed with caution, is the opinion of Lord Inverforth (Andrew Weir), the British shipping authority, according to W. R. Kennedy, San Francisco representative of the Bank Line Trading and Transport Company, who has returned from a visit to London, during which he conferred with Lord Inverforth. All branches of commerce will be generally subjected to a strain, Lord Inverforth told Kennedy.

The coal problem on the Pacific Coast will be solved as soon as the Government railroad in Alaska provides an outlet for the vast mines in that territory, according to F. G. Hirth, purchasing agent for the Alaska Engineering Company, who is here to get the winter's provisions. A new coal trade will be opened up for shipping men on the coast when the project is completed. It is estimated that the coal resources of Alaska will keep a fleet of vessels operating the greater part of the year.

Increase in the demand for vessels to carry lumber in the coastwise trade as well as to Australia and the United Kingdom has created renewed activity in shipping circles along the Pacific Coast. One company has been induced to withdraw three of its steamers from the west coast trade to handle the big shipments of lumber which are being offered in the North. Several sailing ships have already been chartered to carry lumber to Australia and the supply of ships for this trade has not been sufficient up to date.

The United States Government has decided to remove the coal barge "Electra," which was scuttled about a year ago a short distance off the Potrero plant of the Union Iron Works in San Francisco Bay. Claim to the barge having been abandoned by the owners, the Government decided to assume the expense of removal to eliminate the menace to vessels passing the place. M. A. Taylor of Oakland has secured the contract for raising the "Electra." Work will commence immediately to divide the sunken hull into three sections preparatory to raising. G. O. Abrahamsen, located with the Peterson Launch Company, will do the diving. The "Electra" was scuttled last year after it had been irreparably damaged by fire. Three hundred tons of coal have been salved from the wreck.

Refusing to answer any questions pertaining to his visit to this country other than to state that his arrival here was not in reference to the Jones bill, Ryozo Asano, managing director of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha and son of S. Asano, leading figure in Japan's commercial life, arrived at San Francisco during the past week on the "Korea Maru." He stated that he will remain here for three days and then proceed to Washington and New York. As soon as his mission in those cities is completed he will depart for England and Germany. Asano refused to state whether or not he was proceeding to Germany for the purpose of entering negotiations with German steamship interests for the starting of a steamship line between that country and Japan via the Suez Canal. Passengers arriving from Tokio stated that it was virtually decided by the four leading steamship companies of Japan to combine under one flag for economy reasons.

Only three of the six projects for San Diego harbor improvements submitted by port and naval authorities to the Board of Army Engineers headed by General Harry Taylor met with the approval of the board, it was announced by the engineers shortly before their departure for Washington. The harbor improvements that had the unqualified indorsement of the Army engineers and for which recommendations for appropriations will be made at the next session of Congress are the removal of two shoal areas near the mouth of the harbor, which now constitute a menace to navigation, and the removal of the silt on the north side of the main harbor channel abreast Municipal Pier unit No. 1. The board recommended that additional aid to navigation be placed in the vicinity of the submerged section of Zuninga shoal jetty, but refused to consider recommendations bearing on the raising of the submerged section, which is nearly one-half mile in length.

The trial trip of the freighter "Jenelew," 9400 tons, on San Francisco Bay last Thursday marked the completion of the last of six vessels which were launched within a period of fifty-five minutes by the Moore Shipbuilding Company, December 20 last. This feat was a world's record, never equaled, despite the efforts of Eastern yards to do so. The vessels launched at that time were the "Salina," "Jenelew," "Sapulpa," "City of Reno," "Moselle" and the "Jalapa." Three of the crafts were of the type of the "Jenelew" and the others were 10,000-ton tankers. George A. Armes of the Moore Company stated the "Jenelew" is the eighteenth vessel completed by his company since February 1 last, and that efforts are now under way for the delivery of six more vessels ready for operation to the United States Shipping Board in the next two months, making a grand total of twenty-four vessels constructed by the company for the Government in eleven months.

Perfection of a marine diesel engine which. with one-half the number of cycles in use on the present type of engine, can be operated with one-third the amount of oil generally used by oil-burning steam machinery, is the invention of Arthur Wise, a designer for the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company. A thorough test of the new type of diesel installed on the steamer "Cubore," one of the company's vessels, on a run from an East Coast port to Cuba, showed the invention was a success in every respect. Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, after an exhaustive inspection of Wise's new diesel, stated that it was as far ahead of the present type of oil-burners as the oil-burning ships are superior to coal-fired ships. He stated that the new diesel can be successfully operated on vessels of any size. Two phases of the engine are: For the first time a two-cycle internal combustion heavy oil engine has been perfected, which produces the same horsepower as a four-cycle engine practically twice its size, and is at the same time adapted to large cargo ships, while saving 66 per cent. in fuel costs alone, compared with steam-driven oil-fired vessels, and secondly, that it is the first time that an internal combustion engine has been perfected for either marine or land uses.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street

Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....L. A. PARKS, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
121½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C...ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841

Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. ROREN, Agent
260 President Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....F. NELSON, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
510 Trust Building
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
332 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....A. BOGE, Agent
21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 West Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
123 West Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....J. VALLE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....R. BELL, Agent
669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976

Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue

Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....816 River Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1920.

JAPANESE AS FISHERMEN.

In the statement made by V. S. McClatchy before the House Committee on Immigration and Naturalization during its hearings in California this summer, in connection with the subject of Japanese immigration, was included much interesting and startling and theretofore unpublished matter casting light on various phases of the problem which is now receiving not only State, but National attention.

For instance, the Japanese were shown to have invaded and taken practical control of some of the important fisheries of the State, as they have secured control of the various agricultural activities. In the southern part of California, it has been represented to the Federal Government that, in violation of the Federal statutes, the greater portion of the fishing fleet centered about San Pedro is owned or manned by Japanese to the number of 2,000 or more.

Complaint has been made recently as to this situation, but it develops that while the operation of these fishing boats by aliens is a clear violation of the Federal statute, through a curious omission in the law there is no penalty provided under which the law can be enforced.

This matter has been called to the attention of the Administration, and of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, through Hon. C. F. Curry, from California, and in a bill introduced by Chairman Green of the committee named, House Resolution 12102, there has been inserted a provision, Section 5, which it is assumed will remedy the defect in the law. This section provides a penalty of $500 at every port of arrival for any vessel engaged in the American fisheries and not documented as a vessel of the United States, it being understood that vessels owned or manned by aliens cannot be so documented.

The State of Washington has protected itself against a similar situation by passing a law under the provisions of which vessels engaged in the fisheries within the State's jurisdiction must be owned and manned by those who are citizens of the United States, or who have declared their intention to become such.

To leave the fisheries in practical control of the Japanese creates a very serious situation: First, they assist materially in smuggling Japanese into California from Mexico. Second, they place in the hands of aliens an adjunct to the Navy which was found most valuable to Great Britain in the recent war. Third, the fisheries in the Territory of Hawaii are an absolute Japanese monopoly, and in the event of war with Japan, the sampans and power boats of the Japanese, which are sea-going vessels, could very easily secure from Japanese cruisers or transports arms and munitions and land them on the coast of Oahu, the principal island, on which are located our defenses, and therewith arm the Japanese population, the greater portion of whose adult male members are trained soldiers.

Japan and the United States are friends, and, it is hoped, will always remain so, but it is doubtful whether any great power on the face of the earth other than careless United States would permit conditions of this kind to develop or to be maintained.

DOINGS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Behind the strike of the British coal miners is the usual story of exploitation and enormous profits by the coal owners. Recently the British government appointed the so-called Sankey commission to investigate the coal industry, and it was understood that the commission's findings would be the basis for remedial coal legislation. Several reports were made, and all of them indicated dissatisfaction with present conditions. The miners' representatives favored nationalization of the mines, while other reports declared for State control.

In the end nothing came of the recommendations.

The hearings by the commission showed that many coal owners had no title to their coal lands, which have been in their families for years. They only knew they had them and had no idea how they were acquired. This evidence, followed by the publication of terrific profits by the coal owners has added to the general dissatisfaction. It is claimed that prices on export coal means three times the profit of pre-war times, while the remaining surplus goes into the treasury to relieve from taxation those who would otherwise be compelled to pay. The miners originally proposed that this surplus be used to raise wages and reduce the price of coal to English householders.

The miners are allied with the railway men and dock workers in what is known as the triple alliance. Somehow; this widely advertised triple alliance has failed to function. Evidence of dissatisfaction with the alliance has not been lacking. At any rate the three groups represented in the alliance have joined with other crafts in Great Britain to establish a General Council "to the end that solidarity of effort and unity of command in enforcing the demands of labor may be secured —in brief, a sort of general staff for directional effort." Under the scheme announced the General Council will be composed of 30 members, representing 17 trade groups, which, worked out on the basis of representation at the trade-union congress of a year ago, would be as follows:

	Members
Mining and quarrying	3
Railways	3
Transport other than railways	2
Shipbuilding	1
Engineering, founding, and vehicle building	1
Iron and steel enginemen and minor metal trades	2
Building, woodworking and furnishing	2
Printing and paper	2
Cotton	2
Textiles other than cotton	1
Clothing	1
Leather, boot and shoe, and hat making	1
Glass, pottery, chemicals, food, drink, tobacco, brushmaking and distribution	1
Agriculture	1
Public employes	1
Nonmanual workers	1.
General workers	4

The number of representatives allotted to each group will vary from year to year according to their membership, and on this year's figures mining and quarrying would claim five members on the General Council. The basis of representation is one delegate for each 5000 members of an organization.

Altogether, this seems to be an effort to get away from executive boards on which only the strongest organizations, numerically speaking, have had representation. Whether or not this form of an executive council will be more successful than existing executive boards remains to be seen. This much is certain—a labor general staff "for directional effort" will always have to reckon with that considerable element in the rank and file which positively declines to be directed by any number of mere men. But it will be decidedly interesting to watch this experiment.

A FARMER-LABOR BANK.

The national political campaign just closed failed to inspire any group of citizens with genuine enthusiasm.

By contrast there is much compensating encouragement in the reported nation-wide rally to the support of the Bank of North Dakota. Organizations representing every class of labor and every part of the United States, are said to be sending their spare funds for deposit and investment in the farmer-labor State-owned Bank of North Dakota. Individuals, also very frequently business men and manufacturers are joining in this united effort to protect this People's Bank, the first and only one of its kind in America, from the attacks of organized wealth.

The people of North Dakota, it will be remembered, endeavored some months ago, to market some $17,000,000 worth of State bonds through their State-owned Bank of North Dakota. At once the enemies of the organized farmers and organized labor got busy with their ever ready injunction suit to question the validity of the bonds and prevent their sale. They lost of course. They lost in the lower courts. And they lost in the Supreme Court at Washington. They lost, but they at least delayed the sale of the bonds and thereby hindered the sale for the time being.

Now, however, the Supreme Court of the United States, having by its unanimous decision given the last guaranty of validity to the program of the people of North Dakota and the State bonds and State institutions involved, the Bank of North Dakota is now proceeding with all dispatch to market the bonds. Wall Street of course, will not buy them. Hence the appeal of the farmers of the great Northwest to the organized labor movement of America. And the appeal is not only for the purchase of bonds, but also for the deposit of funds both as checking accounts and as time deposits. And the Bank of North Dakota is able to give not only the best security of any bank in the country, but also to pay as good if not a little better rates of interest than the ordinary bank.

It is to this appeal that organized labor is responding. One of the Railroad Brotherhoods sent fifty thousand dollars recently for a time deposit. Others have sent sums in varying amounts, ranging from a few hundred to $5,000 and $10,000 and $50,000.

Some day organized labor will master the fine art of making its stored-up dollars work in the interest of labor rather than against it. When that day comes we shall make progress more rapidly than in the past.

The current issue of Die Schiffahrt, official paper of the German Seamen's Union, announces another increase in wages for all hands aboard ship under the jurisdiction of the Union. The new rate, which became effective October 1, represents an increase (in German marks) ranging from 600 to 1100 per cent. over pre-war years. But when the present purchasing power of the mark is compared with former days it will be seen that instead of an increase in wages the German seamen have suffered an actual decrease. Before the war wages of German sailors and firemen were 70 marks per month. At the then existing rate of exchange a mark was worth about 24 cents, U. S. coin. To-day wages of sailors and firemen are 735 marks, but a mark is barely worth 1½ cents. At any rate, such is its actual purchasing power in the world's markets. In other words, German seamen's wages were $16.80 (70 marks) before the war. To-day the union scale is 735 marks—or $11.02.

The co-operative ownership and operation of a large fleet of fishing vessels is to be given a real test. With their purchase from the British government of 200 steam trawlers, the Mine Sweepers' Co-operative Society has acquired the largest fishing fleet in the world under one management. The boats were built for naval service during the war, and the co-ops. will pay for them during the next 20 years. It is proposed to operate the fleet on co-operative lines, from coaling and storing the vessels to selling the fish, principally to members of the British co-op. movement. The required capital of $10,000,000 is being subscribed by the co-operative societies of Great Britain.

What American worth his salt will stand up in public and say our merchant marine is a menace to this nation or any other? Yet we find men hid behind corporate names and organizations who have the audacity to create such an impression. But when you tear off the mask you find that these same men are basking in the favor of foreign shipping interests or have hopes in that direction.—Admiral Benson.

The necessity of industrial organization knows no law except that of human progress.

THE GERMAN "SHIPPING PLOT."

Published Objections to the Harriman-Hamburg-American Shipping Deal Held to Be Groundless.

That another German plot to injure the United States has been discovered must now be apparent to every one who peruses the daily press. The contract between the Hamburg-American Line and the Harriman shipping interests has been so beclouded by charges and counter-charges, by criminations and recriminations, by revelations as to the conduct of Hamburg-American officials during the war, that any reader is entitled to feel that the Germans have been caught once more at their old tricks. True, Admiral Benson is most emphatically in favor of the contract, and somehow one does not regard a Harriman as the kind of person who readily has the wool pulled over his eyes; but even this will not avail. Plainly, America has been gulled once more.

Yet the simple facts of the case are worth recalling. What is the one outstanding difficulty in the way of the establishment of a great American Merchant Marine? It is that while we have the ships and the men to man them obviously we lack technical experience and knowledge in the handling of ocean-going vessels. No one can go into the business of running ships with complete success if his business has hitherto been the buying of bonds or the selling of automobiles. This business has its technical difficulties and pitfalls, like any other trade which requires experts to manage it. No new owner of American tramp ships can hope to compete off-hand with the great English firms whose experience in handling tramp steamers has been acquired by more than a century of familiarity with the handling of cargo vessels. Such a family as the Runcimans of Newcastle-on-Tyne, for instance, inherits skill in this field from the labors of four successive generations. All the great English, French, and German lines have brought together technical staffs of the highest training and of long service; and these were kept together during the war even when the ships of the various lines were taken over for war purposes by their governments. No such staffs existed in America when the war broke out, with possibly two or three exceptions. They cannot be created over night. Every new group of capitalists which since the sudden expansion of our fleet has entered the field with the idea of running ships on regular routes or of handling tramps that wander from harbor to harbor, has been confronted with this difficulty.

It is no wonder, therefore, that Americans like Mr. Harriman and Admiral Benson saw in the opportunity of bringing together American ships and German technical skill an arrangement the advantages of which were overwhelmingly on the American side. The German lines are stripped of vessels; up to this time they have been able to purchase no vessels abroad, not even to repurchase any of their old vessels turned over to the Allies. They may not be able to build or buy for years to come. Naturally they welcome the opportunity to turn over their former trade lines to American ships, giving them all their facilities, such as docks and wharves in foreign ports, and the benefit of their technical knowledge and equipment so that they may keep their staffs intact toward the day when in the far distant future they may be able to re-establish their own great fleets. The informal initiative in this matter came from the United States and at the very time the contract was concluded at least a half-dozen other countries were seeking the privileges which Mr. Harriman obtained. Of course, this will not satisfy the super-patriots who think that we should never deal with Germans again, but it looks to us suspiciously like good American business sense and enterprise.

It may well be that certain clauses of the contracts are vague, and that the arrangement, if successful, will improve Germany's trade status and that ships built by American taxpayers' money will help to bring about this result. It does not seem true to us that rates may be so fixed by the Germans as to enable them to underbid us in the export markets of the world. There is, moreover, a clause in the contract that it may be terminated by either side if it does not work out well. If the Germans profit unduly the arrangement can be ended at once. We have no hesitation in saying that if this contract does not stand Great Britain or some Scandinavian country will be remarkably happy to take it over. At any rate, the contract is now before the public. If there are jokers in it which are not apparent to the naked eye, they can be unearthed by the experts. If Congress wishes to appoint a committee to overhaul the whole shipping situation, as it is likely to, the facts are now open to it. Now the contract is being attacked, as Admiral Benson has said, chiefly by rival business interests, and he himself regards the contract as a "heaven-sent opportunity." Certainly, we have not too many such. The task of keeping an American fleet upon the seas is going to be tremendously difficult and will call for wisdom and statesmanship in unusual degree. Can use really be found for all the ships now in commission as well as purchasers? Truly, Admiral Benson is justified in seeking legitimate aid in any quarter.—The Nation.

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 1, 1920. Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Ed. Andersen presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; members ashore plentiful.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 25, 1920. Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Oct. 25, 1920. Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 25, 1920. Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL, Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Oct. 25, 1920. Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Oct. 25, 1920. Shipping dull; prospects uncertain.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Oct. 25, 1920. Shipping dull; members ashore plentiful.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Oct. 18, 1920. Shipping slack; prospects uncertain.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 28, 1920. Shipping slow; some men ashore.

EUGENE BURKE,
Secretary pro tem.

No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 21, 1920. Shipping slow; prospects uncertain.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro, Oct. 21, 1920. Shipping very brisk; no members ashore.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

Fred Bittner, No. 1795, a native of Russia, age 37. Died at Palo Alto, Calif., October 29, 1920.

Karl Gustav A. Cassberg, No. 1131, a native of Sweden, age 36. Died at Palto Alto, Calif., October 25, 1920.

Carl Theodor Johnston, No. 2320, a native of South Africa, age 47. Died at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, February 22, 1919.

Passengers and officers of the steamship "Santa Cruz" were accorded a rare treat when a free-for-all battle started among 200 monkeys brought to San Francisco from Calcutta on the vessel. So ferocious was the battle that several of the animals were killed, while at least three of them were forced to walk the plank when they were cornered in ticklish positions along the vessel's rail. The monkeys, along with a 22-foot python, were part of a shipment of animals consigned to a San Francisco "pet" animal and bird store.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

THE REVIVAL OF BUCKOISM

For a long time past we have been endeavoring by intensive study and deep thinking to locate and isolate the obscure and treacherous bucko bug; or it may be a beetle, which occasionally bites our ships' officers in foreign ports and inoculates them with the insane bucko mania so prevalent in the days of our daddies. We were under the comforting impression for some time that legislative science and modern sentiment had laid the insidious varmint or robbed it of its virulence for all time.

But the frequently recurring reports of its sinister activities in foreign ports, continued to mystify and obscure our mental processes until we finally gave up the quest in despair. Concluding that the critter was born in the breed and could not be extradited, we left its effects to be treated by the courts, and turned our valuable attention to less elusive and more popular subjects.

But just as we are settling down complacently to our normal way of thinking, feeling conscious of having done our best, along comes a brisk report from Comrade Jack Pearson, first delegate of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association at New Orleans, and thumps us in the eye with the discovery and the evidence that buckoism abroad is a direct result and outward manifestation of prohibition at home.

In his opening paragraph Jack says, in substantiation of his alleged discovery, that in Rotterdam, where his investigations were conducted, "gin flows in the gutters, and it doesn't cost a fortune to get it either."

We're not acquainted in Rotterdam, glory be! But we are acquainted with Jack and his ways. He's a whimsical cuss and a genius with the long bow. If Jack had solemnly informed us that gin was piped through the city mains of Rotterdam for public convenience, we might have believed him; but in the gutters! Why waste it?

Jack's report deals specifically with the insane antics of Mr. J. G. Clinch, chief mate of the steamship "City of Flint," while inspired by the exciting influence of Dutch courage in Rotterdam. From Jack's version of the exciting affair, it appears that while the "Flint" lay quietly moored at her berth in Rotterdam, the gentlemen forrard, while resting up from the effects of a long and arduous passage across, were generously permitted to indulge in their favorite and time-honored pastime of chipping rust and daubing paint. While thus amusing themselves one day, Mr. Clinch, loaded to the scuppers with the overplus of Schiedam Schnappes, staggered up to the boat deck and began to upbraid two able seamen who were industriously painting ventilators, about loafing. The two able tar fists retorted that they were smearing the color on as fast as possible, as they were anxious to finish their job before knock-off time. Just then Mr. Clinch was stung by a fleeting bucko bug. The venom instantly penetrated his brain pan, arousing all his inherent instincts of dormant buckoism to a violent and acute stage of fever heat. He peremptorily ordered both men down from the ladders on which they were standing, so that he might get a crack at them. Both seamen hesitated for a moment, but one of them, Constantine Nicholas, finally descended, and as soon as he stepped off the ladder the brave bucko drew a concealed blackjack and struck him, first on the head, and again in the face therewith. Constantine thereupon grappled with the drunken brute and wrested the blackjack from him. The leather thong to which it was attached was broken off in the melee and remained dangling on the mate's wrist. Drawing the strap from his wrist and dropping it on deck, where it was afterwards picked up by the bos'n, the mate made a grand break for the bridge with all the legs he had, hotly pursued by the now thoroughly aroused Nicholas. Upon reaching the bridge, Nicholas promptly corraled the mate and challenged him to come down on deck and fight like a man. But the mate did not seem keen about accepting the challenge—his Dutch courage had apparently left him with the loss of his blackjack. But here the Master, Capt. Larrabee, interfered and tried to get possession of the blackjack which Nicholas still held tightly clutched in his hand. Acting upon the advice of his shipmate, Andrea Peleuros, however, who shouted to him in Greek to cling fast to the weapon, Nicholas refused to relinquish it for the skipper or anyone else, preserving it as exhibit "A." The next day several members of the crew who had been eye-witnesses to the affair, prepared to go to the American Consulate with Constantine Nicholas and testify to the mate's assault upon him. When the mate heard of their intentions he demanded to know how many of them were American citizens. Upon learning that five of them were citizens he tried to dissuade them, asserting that they would only get trouble for their pains. The master then interposed an objection, declaring the ship would sail that day at 3 p. m., with crew or no crew aboard. Not to be deterred by bluffs or threats, however, the seamen witnesses went loyally to the consulate to testify for their shipmate.

Upon hearing the complaint the American Consul sent his monition to Capt. Larrabee ordering him to appear at the Consulate forthwith, but it was after 2 p. m. before he arrived. The witnesses, as well as complainant, all asked to be discharged from the ship, unanimously insisting that a broken voyage was preferable to the risk involved in sailing further with a drunken, quarrelsome mate, packing concealed weapons, and afflicted with an homicidal mania. To this demand the captain is said to have replied: "You men need not fear him again; he is harmless now. I took two guns away from him yesterday, and now you've got his blackjack. I'll see that he behaves hereafter; he can't hurt anybody again anyway. So you'd all better go on board and proceed to sea."

Inasmuch as the consul was inclined to sustain the master's argument, the men returned to their ship, where, after a blustering reception from the disarmed bucko, they were officially logged a day's pay for appealing to the consul.

Immediately upon arriving at New Orleans, the aggrieved seaman and his witnesses reported to the office of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, and through our attorney, Mr. H. W. Waguespack, the case was at once brought to the attention of the United States Commissioner. But that prehistoric functionary delayed a whole week before granting them a hearing. Eventually, however, the mate was held in $2000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury, the 2d Monday in November. And there, for the time being, the matter rests.

"But," concludes Comrade Pearson in his letter, "the men are still here standing by their bags, and all of them fully determined to remain and prosecute this amateur bucko to the final limit of the law."

"Their names are," adds Mr. Pearson: "Complainant, C. Nicholas; Witnesses, A. Peleuros, H. Hansen, R. Taylor, and Hulberg."

And we poor deprived and dejected mortals can sit here and sorrowfully imagine those thrifty Dutch wives blithely washing their dirty linen in good schnapps to save rain water, and—but forget it. What's the use o' wishin' when the well runs dry!—J. H. W.

A DELEGATE'S REPORT

As ship's delegate for the Engine Department, S. S. "Eastern Merchant," the men in the engine crew came to me at Yokohama, Japan, on May 10th, 1920, and asked if steam could not be turned on in the wash rooms aft so that they could take a bath and wash their clothes. I went to the Chief Engineer, Thomas D. Thomson, and took the matter up with him, and he refused to let us have steam. I then went to the Master, Captain A. Ahman, and stated the case to him, and the next day, May 11th, in company with the Chief Engineer, he came aft on the main deck and looked things over and then said that the crew could not have any steam, as the Chief Engineer stated that it would consume too much fuel and water.

At sea, May 26th, 1920. When we first left San Francisco the food was not very good, but we had an idea that it would improve after things got to running more smoothly. On the contrary, the food got worse and the men came to me and demanded that I, as delegate, take the matter up. I went to the Chief Engineer and was referred by him to the Captain. I went to the Captain, but got no results.

Manila, P. I., June 8th, 1920. The condition of the food continued without improvement until we arrived at Manila. Upon our arrival there the men in the Engine Department demanded that the matter be placed before the U. S. Shipping Commissioner at that port, which I did, taking two other members of the crew along to testify. The Commissioner sent for the Captain and had an interview with him, after which the food was good for about a week. All U. S. Shipping Board ships are furnished with a set of menus from the Shipping Board which the Chief Steward of each ship is supposed to go by, and these menus are supposed to be posted in the different mess rooms. We have these menus posted in the messrooms on board this ship, but we never get what they call for.

At sea, June 18th, 1920. Five days out of Manila we ran short of potatoes, which was due to the fault of the Chief Steward leaving the supply of potatoes purchased at Manila out on the hatch in their bags with the sun beating down on them, instead of storing them in the bins aft built for them. We had no potatoes from June 18th to June 23d.

Calcutta, India, July 2d, 1920. While lying in port at Calcutta the food got so bad that all hands went up to the Captain and asked that they be given better food, but he ordered the men down below and we got no results.

At sea, August 18th, 1920. On this date we had meat for supper that would knock over any government mule. We called the Chief and First Assistant Engineer to smell the meat, but they could hardly enter the messroom on account of the smell. The Chief and First Assistant then went to each messroom and told the men not to eat any of the meat. The Chief Engineer then went to the Steward and called him down about giving the men meat of that sort to eat, but the Steward went to the Captain and the Captain upheld the Steward.

Bizerta, Tunis, September 14th, 1920. Upon arrival at Calamata, Greece, R. Lellman, one of the oilers, was taken very sick and the Steward would not go back and see if he could do anything for him. We were lying in port at Calamata six days and no effort was made to have a doctor see him. Upon arrival at Bizerta a doctor came on board at 4:30 p. m., September 14th, and examined Lellman. He gave orders that Lellman be put on a diet of fresh milk and said that he would send some medicine on board as soon as he went ashore. He waited three days and no medicine came aboard. The Chief Steward, in the meantime, stated that it was impossible to get fresh milk, when at the same time the Third Officer, G. E. Purdy, was getting four bottles of fresh milk delivered on board every day. Lellman had started to turn yellow, so I went to the First Assistant Engineer, J. J. Macakes, and he went to the Captain. The Captain sent for Lellman, looked him over and said he "didn't look sick." Upon hearing this the men in the Engine Department all went up to the Captain and demanded that Lellman be given the medicine and the fresh milk that the doctor ordered. The Captain said he would let Lellman go ashore and see the doctor, but changed his mind and said he would send for him. Up to the time of sailing, however, the doctor had not come on board and the ship set out for New York, and Lellman had to get along as best he may. A man going to sea shouldn't make the mistake of getting sick, according to some people's ideas.

While at Piraeus, Greece, the Chief Steward laid in a supply of Greek cigarettes. The retail price of these cigarettes, which is printed on the cover, is 1 drachma 20 leptas, or about 12c gold. The Steward is charging us 25c gold for each package and the packages only contain about twenty cigarettes. According to the Navigation Laws governing slop chests, they are only allowed to charge 10 per cent. above the wholesale cost price. At the most the cigarettes should cost not more than 15c.

While at Manila, P. I., the Steward laid in a supply of cigarettes and tobacco. He started in selling Camel cigarettes for 25c gold a package that cost him 12½c, and Bull Durham tobacco for 10c gold that cost about 6c or 7c gold. The Supercargo referred this matter to the Acting Purser and the prices were lowered. The matter of the cigarettes purchased at Greece has been brought to the attention of all concerned, but nothing has been done and the Steward has assured us that nothing will be done.

These are only a few incidents out of many that have happened on board this ship, and I respectfully request that some action be taken in the matter.

CHAS. H. McCARTE,
Ship's Delegate.

The foregoing statement was vouched for and signed by 31 members of the crew.

The voyage of the "Eastern Merchant," referred to in delegate McCarte's report originated, and was to terminate on the Pacific Coast, but owing to the long continued and arbitrary abuses complained of by the crew, and so faithfully set forth and diligently chronicled in the delegate's very capable report, and continually disregarded by Capt. Ahman and his "dutiful" engineer, they were all discharged and freed from their intolerable condition of starvation and drudgery, official neglect and pettifogging tyranny by the United States shipping commissioner at New York. Delegate McCarte's well-written and very lucid report has been kept in strict conformity with log-book methods. The time, place, and in some instances, the circumstances surrounding each entry are faithfully recorded, and all dates are entered in regular and chronological order. The report is also signed by thirty members of the crew, and except by the usual form of general denial, has not been contested by the master. It may, therefore, be safely accepted as an authentic and trustworthy document.

The following ship notices signed by Capt. Ahman and his faithful steam compressor, are copied verbatim from the original slips torn from the forecastle door and submitted to us by the engine-room crew.

On Board S. S. "Eastern Merchant,"
"At Sea," Sunday, June 6, 1920.

Notice

Owing to the increased dissatisfaction of the men connected with the Engine Department of this ship, if anyone not satisfied with conditions, they will be paid off at Manila by mutual consent if requested.

A. AHMAN,
Master.
THOMAS D. THOMSON,
Chief Engineer.

Warning

Any man whose stomach and bowels are not functioning regularly should report immediately to the Chief Steward for medicine.

A. AHMAN,
Master.

It will be noted that both bear Capt. Ahman's signature, and one is countersigned by Thomas D. Thomson, his chief engineer. Both these notices serve to confirm the truth of Delegate McCarte's statements and substantiate the general belief that Capt. Ahman was simply trying to work his crew out. The logical inference to be deduced from an intimate and unbiased study of the facts in this case is that the shameless neglect of Capt. Ahman, his engineer and steward toward the health, comfort and well-being of the crew of the "Eastern Merchant" was premeditated and intentional, and maliciously and purposefully carried out. All the evidence supports and justifies such an inference and leads to the inevitable conclusion that the ill treatment and neglect of the firemen on this ship was the result of a deliberately planned and unlawful conspiracy on the part of these three gilt braided and guilty-minded partners in petty persecution to starve and otherwise defraud, neglect and browbeat the crew into leaving the ship at the first port of call.

If a mutinous conspiracy among the crew can be suppressed by force and punished by law, then in common justice, a deliberate conspiracy among ships' officers to starve, cheat and bulldoze efficient members of the crew, neglect the sick, deny them medical treatment as prescribed by a physician, or threaten them with becoming bags of cold meat unless they submit to swallowing the aimless samples of official belly wash dosed out by an ignorant and indifferent ship's flunky, should be, and we believe is, legally punishable also. A ship flying the burgee of the United States Shipping Board comes distinctly within the existing provisions of American maritime law, and her master and officers should at all times feel themselves doubly bound by oath and patriotic sentiment to uphold and obey the principles and provisions of said law in dealing with seamen under their command or protection. It is the official duty of every ship's steward to see to it at all times that his stores are properly stowed and kept in a safe and wholesome condition for daily consumption by the crew, it is the duty of the chief engineer to see that all bath or wash rooms on board are kept supplied with both hot and cold water and steam, according to statute, for the convenience and cleanliness of the crew, and more especially for the men in his own department who are in constant need of washing facilities when coming off watch. It is the lawful duty of every master to hear and inquire into all complaints and rectify them, and in cases where any of his subordinate officers have been guilty of neglect which causes discomfort, sickness or justifiable unrest among his crew, he has the power to penalize or replace them with others more attentive to duty.

And likewise, any master who neglects his own duty in such matters when appealed to by his crew or who encourages and conspires with his officers to promote or instigate such neglect, should be penalized by his owners as well as by law, and in very serious cases the Admiralty Court hearing the case should have power to suspend his license, or disrate him altogether and send him back to the forecastle to be tried and dealt with "by a jury of his peers."

ACCIDENTS ABOARD SHIP

Another avoidable accident case brought to our notice by Attorney Frederick R. Graves is that of Niecalas Tsumouris, a Greek seaman injured on board the S. S. "Tullard," owned by the Emergency Fleet Corporation and operated by the United States Transport Co., Inc.

Tsumouris signed as an able seaman on the Tollard at New York on May 6, 1919, at the rate of $75 per month, the going wages at that time. While the Tollard lay anchored in the harbor of Venice about June 28, 1919, a boat was being lowered to let the captain and pilot ashore, Tsumouris being one of a crew of four ordered to man the boat and row to the landing.

The four men were seated in the boat and the davit tackles started when both bow and stern releasing hooks disengaged, simultaneously dropping the boat suddenly into the water.

Tsumouris was more severely injured than any of his mates and was taken to a hospital in Venice, where it was found he had sustained a fracture of the right thigh and a compound fracture of the right shin and ankle bones.

He remained in the hospital ten months and one day, until April 29, 1920, when he was discharged, but not completely cured.

Tsumouris arrived in New York a consular passenger on the S. S. "Chetopa" on May 28, 1920. That no attempt has been made so far to deport him is probably due to the fact he has a record of nineteen years of service in the Merchant Marine and has attained to American citizenship. A suit in his behalf is now pending in the Supreme Court, Kings County, New York, and meanwhile he remains penniless and dependent upon the generosity of friendly seamen for support.

The appalling frequency with which these distressing and painful incidents are being reported is a matter of very grave concern to all men who follow the sea, for none of us even knows whose turn will come to be maimed, or crushed, or killed upon the altar of Mammon next. The present list of preventable casualties in the American Merchant Marine already accounted for is comparable only to the unspeakable atrocities of the ruthless Turks in Armenia, nor is it more justifiable. Each passing day brings its toll of direful happenings among unprotected merchant seamen and the court calendars are always cluttered with insistent claims from injured seamen or their widows or dependents for damages, relief or redress.

There must be some method of effective surcease and protection for suffering and wantonly exposed seamen from the constant danger of being mangled in the insatiable jaws of remorseless Mammon.

Not long since a seaman was reported to have been killed by the breaking of a heat and rust burnt funnel bolt while painting the smokestack.

In falling he crashed through the galley skylight and was scalded to death in a tub of hot water standing on the floor directly beneath.

In another case a seaman came down by the parting of a funnel gantline and broke his spine and now remains a living corpse.

At Robbins drydock in Brooklyn, N. Y., Robert Barnes, a member of the British Seamen's Union, was drowned by the breaking of a rotten ladder while climbing up the side of the S. S. "Garfield" in order to get on board his own ship, the "Susquehanna."

Immediately after the tragedy a safe and secure gangway plank was extended between the ship and the drydock. Why not before?

Barnes leaves a widow in Liverpool, England.

Samuel Thomas, a fireman, was badly injured on the S. S. "Oconee" recently by being struck on the head by a falling ash bucket, which fell back into the fireroom when the hook broke. He was left behind in the hospital at Deal, England, where the ship called to land him. And further deponent saith not.

H. Labrie, messman on the S. S. "Wyanoochie," was killed in September last by falling from an unguarded gangway while the ship lay in her berth in the North River, New York. Within an hour afterwards new holes were bored in the gangplank and manropes rove off. Any witnesses among the crew of the "Wyanoochie" having knowledge of this accident are requested to report without fail to Delegate Hugh Edmundson of the Marine Firemen's Union, 70 South street, New York, or to Attorney Silas B. Axtell, 9 State street, New York City, who has the legal interests of the deceased messman in charge.

In view of the many distressful maimings and mortal accidents constantly occurring on shipboard, and the brutal disregard of hidebound ship-mongers for mortal suffering, it is high time all seafaring men got together on this bone-crushing subject and conferred with sad and serious intent and solemn determination upon some sane and practical measures to minimize the murderous recklessness of the money maniacs controlling our Merchant Marine.

Federal legislation on this subject has become as essential a life saving program as was the law outclassing unseaworthy ships.

The number of serious accidents to seamen continues to increase in precise ratio with the increasing number and rivalry of merchant ships.

Ninety-nine per cent. of the terrible accidents daily occurring in the Merchant Marine are directly due to hasty and faulty construction, reckless driving, official ignorance and criminal carelessness.

Funnel bolts, gantlines, mart ropes and winches are put in in haste and deteriorate at leisure. They are never overlooked nor overhauled until something breaks. Then any unfortunate seaman who may be injured by the long expected mishap can be charged with contributory negligence for being in the way—presumably he should have avoided danger by remaining ashore.

In the olden days, when commerce was under sail, serious personal accidents to seamen were rare indeed. In thirty years of practical experience in sailing ships we can recall but surprisingly few accidents of this nature which were not attributable to elemental causes. In those days seamen were seamen, and knew how to rig and inspect their own gear. Seamen would promptly and invariably report to the officer of the watch, or the bos'n any material defect aloft in gear, rigging, or sails which was likely to cause or contribute to an accident, and it would be immediately examined and repaired.

In the better class of ships the bos'n was required to go over all the mastheads every Sunday morning; examine every detail of top humper and report to mate.

Nowadays nothing is examined until it breaks and the damage is complete.

This is certainly an appealing subject well worthy of serious legislative consideration.

As the ward of the nation the seaman is certainly entitled to national protection, for the country's sake as well as for his own.

We are also firmly of the opinion that all personal causes of seamen, whether for wages, damages, protection or relief, should be considered and decided by special courts of admiralty separately established for that purpose. Under the present system seamen's causes listed upon a common court calendar are pending from six months to as many years before being reached and decided.

Meanwhile the plaintiff remains in destitution, misery and anxiety over his claim, which may eventually either be dismissed or appealed because his witnesses are scattered and his cause hopeless.

If the claims of seamen whose wages are wilfully and arbitrarily withheld, whose injuries have resulted from deliberate neglect or whose personal complaints arise from unlawful conduct, either on the part of their officers on board or employers on shore, could be promptly and effectively disposed of by a special court in admiralty, and all costs and charges, including counsel fees and incidentals invariably thrust upon the plaintiff seaman in a lawful effort to reclaim his due, assessed against the guilty defendants, we feel assured that a very noticeable decline in the present increasingly large number of personal injury claims and complaints of unlawful injustices against seamen now assailing the overwrought courts in admiralty would immediately result.

Ship-owners must be convinced that legs and arms are more highly esteemed properties than well-spun rope or welded iron, and that the lives of loyal seamen are of more value to their country than corporate dividends.

The only way to teach them is through their pockets, since heart or conscience they have none.

J. H. W.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

(By Laurence Todd.)

John Donlin, president of the Building Trades Department of the A. F. of L., is about to revoke the charter of the New York Building Trades Council, because Robert P. Brindell, president of that organization, has expelled the entire New York District Council of Painters and has seated in the Council a local of strike-breaking painters formed by Brindell for that purpose.

The seating of this scab local in the Council, a week ago, in open violation of the laws of the A. F. of L. and of its Building Trades Department, was answered by a curt letter from Donlin, giving notice that unless the scabs were promptly unseated, and the regularly affiliated members of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators seated, the charter would be suspended and probably revoked.

Donlin's letter was greeted by laughter in Brindell's personally conducted organization. No formal answer was made. The Department was set at defiance. At the same time, Brindell sent word to his personal friends here that if Donlin tried to discipline him he would appeal to the executive council of the A. F. of L.

This appears to be the next to the final chapter in the "romance" of the big boss of New York's building trades, who has risen like a rocket, these past five years, and now is coming down like the proverbial stick. He rose by inventing a system whereby every member of the Dock Builders' local of the Carpenters paid 50 cents monthly to Brindell to act as his business agent. Brindell now draws $2,400 a month from this source. It is all perfectly democratic and voluntary—the man who doesn't like it can leave New York. There are neither constitution nor by-laws for the Building Trades Council over which Brindell rules, acocrding to his recent testimony before the legislative committee that is probing the housing shortage in New York. His business agents form the Council.

It seems that the Building Trades Department of the A. F. of L. has come to the conclusion that New York is big enough to support a regularly constituted and legally organized council of the building trades unions. It is therefore quite possible that Mr. Brindell will finally have to fall back, for his income, upon his already lucrative business in automobiles, which he now conducts as a side-line.

Before he retires to his salesroom, however, it is possible that Brindell will have to explain some curious things that have been taking place in New York in connection with building operations. For example, the New York World today prints an account of the sworn testimony of witnesses before this legislative committee, in which one witness swore that $25,000 was given by him to two business agents with the understanding that it was to go to Brindell "for the committee." He further testified that after this $25,000 had been paid, the sympathetic strike on the building in question was promptly settled, and work resumed.

When this testimony had been given, Brindell's lawyer warned the newspaper men that if they published anything reflecting on Brindell in that connection their papers would be sued for libel. He added the hint that "newspapers can have labor troubles, too."

This bluff of exercising control of the allied printing trades in aid of a private threat did not stop the publication of the testimony. And the testimony has been read with keen interest in A. F. of L. headquarters here, where Brindell has claimed recognition as an "anti-red."

While the Building Trades Department is preparing to clean house in New York, the political committees of the Plumb Plan League, the sixteen standard railroad labor organizations and the A. F. of L. executive council are making their final efforts of the presidential and congressional campaigns. Three thousand trade union speakers will be on the stump as four-minute men during the final days of the fight. Tons of literature has been distributed. For the fourth time, the voting records of all members of the House and Senate who are now running for re-election have been laid before their constituents.

One of the most encouraging results of the campaign on the part of the labor committees this year has been the development of a belief that if organized workers are to get the utmost benefit from these political efforts they must keep their political committees on the job all the year round. The Plumb Plan League is in itself a continuous political committee, in so far as the program of the railroad workers for government ownership and democratic operation of the railroads is concerned. But that is not enough. Some of their larger unions and brotherhoods are now considering a recommendation that legislative committees be elected in every local lodge throughout the country, and that these legislative committees be directed to report regularly on the records and tendencies of all public servants in legislative bodies chosen by that constituency.

When the railroad men get representation upon the executive council of the A. F. of L., that policy may become the general one for the whole movement. At present, having no spokesman on the directing body, the railroaders "herd by themselves" across the way in the Machinists' building and discuss what they are going to do independently.

The independent railroad brotherhoods say that they no longer care to apply for affiliation with the larger body. The Street Railway Employees, who dispute their jurisdiction on electric interurban lines, challenge them when they try to enter, and they are tired of arguing the issue. As long as the Big Four remain outside, the A. F. of L. executive council will perhaps refuse to reinstate the Maintenance of Way Employees, whose jurisdictional dispute with the Carpenters has kept their 200,000 men outside the Federation this year. As long as these stay out, the railroaders inside the Federation cannot hope to win a seat in the council by their own unaided votes. This in turn delays a constructive political policy on the part of the Federation.

News from abroad shows that the Germans, with their usual diligence, are trying to regulate the shutting down of factories and mills, when raw materials and fuel cannot be had, or when the market collapses, or labor makes demands. Our consuls report that the Federal Economic Council of Germany has adopted resolutions forbidding the closing down of factories, or the restriction of production, or the sale of machinery used for production, except after official permission has been granted. In each case a government committee of experts makes an investigation to determine whether the shut down or reduction is necessary. Co-operation of the trade unions is sought, to keep plants running. Where owners are obdurate, the government committees may lease and operate the plants.

This scheme was adopted after the Italian workers had met similar shut-downs with their unique tactics of occupying the plants and running them on a co-operative basis.

More news of labor developments abroad will soon be coming into the United States. We shall hear much, direct from the leaders and the rank and file, of the great British miners' strike, and of its industrial and social consequences.

If the Lloyd George government had its way, of course, we would not get a word about it. Just yesterday an order of immediate deportation was served, at his London lodgings, on E. J. Costello, managing editor of the Federated Press, who was awaiting passage home after arranging for a cable news service from British and Continental labor for American labor papers. Costello's papers and documents were seized and carried off by the detectives from Scotland Yard. It seemed that he had committed the crime of talking with George Lansbury, editor of the London Daily Herald, organ of British labor and mouthpiece of the strike.

Immediate demand for an inquiry was made upon our State Department here, but no satisfaction was given. Our State Department is still, apparently, of the same mind toward organized labor as when, in July, Secretary Colby deplored the "sticking up" of the government by shipyard workers during the war.

To be identified with a labor paper and to go to Europe, unless as the official of a powerful labor organization, is to expose oneself to the treatment formerly accorded pickpockets, smugglers and absconding bank cashiers.

If we have reached this point in only two years of a world made safe for democracy, how far will we get in two years more?

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

girls to textile and clothing factories. Of the boys, 18 per cent. left the first job within a month, and more than one-half shifted work before six months. The greatest amount of shifting for both girls and boys occurred in the clothing industry and the least in the textile industry.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION
D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn ..... 13½ Collis Street

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175
BUFFALO, N. Y. ..... GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588
CLEVELAND, O. ..... E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842
MILWAUKEE, WIS. ..... CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich. ..... K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street
TOLEDO, O. ..... S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666
SUPERIOR, Wis. ..... W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue
CONNEAUT, O. ..... W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer
Branches:
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... 74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W
SUPERIOR, Wis. ..... 332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O. ..... 992 Day Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666
TOLEDO, O. ..... 618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823
CLEVELAND, O. ..... 1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866
MILWAUKEE, Wis. ..... 162 Reed Street
Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich. ..... 44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... 122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary
Branches:
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O. ..... 308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis. ..... 162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... 74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O. ..... 992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O. ..... 618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... 122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 59 Clay Street
VANCOUVER, B. C. ..... P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash. ..... 2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash. ..... P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore. ..... 88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T. ..... P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 58 Commercial Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore. ..... 242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... 613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 42 Market Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 49 Clay Street
Agencies:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 43
ASTORIA, Ore. ..... P. O. Box 188

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca Street
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada ..... 437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada ..... P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska ..... P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG ..... Alaska
UNGA ..... Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC
ASTORIA, Ore. ..... P. O. Box 188

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION
C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal. ..... F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION
FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C. ..... 311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2 Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

The six-hour day and the abolition of night work will be the object of a nation-wide campaign by the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union.

Officers of the Texas State Federation of Labor report continued gains despite attacks by politicians, who seek to curry favor with the anti-union element in this State.

A strike of longshoremen at New York has been averted by these workers agreeing to a one-year continuance of present rates. Working conditions are improved.

A wage increase of $1 a day has been secured by the Typographical Union of Los Angeles for its commercial shop members. The union is now negotiating new rates for its newspaper members.

The Ohio State Federation of Labor has called on affiliates to appoint committees to acquaint workers with the State compensation law and to give information to those who are unacquainted with the purposes of this legislation.

There are more than 142 local unions, with a membership of 10,000, now enrolled in the American Federation of Teachers, according to reports by officers of that organization to A. F. of L. headquarters. These teachers have built up their organization despite strong opposition by every anti-union influence.

More than 250 delegates attended the annual convention of the Oklahoma State Federation of Labor. Reports of anti-union agitation in some sections of the State were made. These unionists are awake to the purposes of employers, who are resorting to patriotism and the American flag to hide their cheap wage plan.

In a little over one year the Brotherhood of Railroad Patrolmen, affiliated with the A. F. of L., has spread all over the United States and is actively engaged in bettering conditions of railroad watchmen and patrolmen. A ladies' auxiliary has been established and a monthly magazine (the "Patrolman") has a wide circulation among these trade unionists.

The convention of the South Carolina State Federation of Labor declared in favor of a department of labor. At the present time labor is included in the Department of Agriculture, Commerce and Industry. The convention urged increased appropriations for the public school system and for a minimum wage of $1200 a year for public school teachers.

State cossacks are running amuck in the non-union coal fields of West Virginia and rival the thuggery of Baldwin-Feltz detectives. The cossacks are under the control of the State "Department of Public Safety." Trade unionists declare that the cossacks are the greatest violators of law and that they are but tools of coal owners, who would destroy trade unionism in that industry.

The convention of the International Association of Machinists rejected every suggestion to withdraw from the A. F. of L. Progress is not made fast enough, according to the aviators and advocates of so-called "industrial unionism." The members agreed they would like to progress faster, but insisted that this is not possible by smashing the machinists' organization or dividing workers for the employers' gain.

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle, Wash, Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson, Jack
Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liliquest, Rudolf
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Peterson, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N.
Schurr, Harm
Scheienz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H.
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Heritz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E.
Pinerd, F. H.
Piplone, J.
Prinz, Carl
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L.
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R.
Sterndoch, J.
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M.
Svenson, Thure
Svardrup, Walter
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash, Letter List

Anderson E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Anderson, Fred.
Brackberry, Geo.
Bunte, Paul
Bjorkquist, Ragnar
Berke, C.
Bedford, A.
Barton, M.
Carlson, Oscar
Caitan, Jose
Gardel, C.
Hanson, H. O.
Johanneson, Jonas
Johannesen, Alf.
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Olssen, Chas.
Olsen, L. -1099
Otill, W. A.
Parker, Arthur L.
Randle, C. W.
Skarvetun, Hansen Hans -315
Saro, P. Wm.
Smith, Johan, Carl
Vejvoda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson, A. G.
Carlson Gust
Ericson, Rob.
Erickson, John
Eisen, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Levele, Ed.
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lauren, William
McVeiar, Gus
McNeil, Daniel Ross
Monson, Jacob
McVeiar
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbi, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Paulsen, Axel
Pettron, W.
Peterson, Louis
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R.
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren, Hilmer
Registered Letters
Meyer, Hans
Rassmussen, T.

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Gronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgail, Mikel
Person, Fritz, Leonard
Rainhard, H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J..... 22.50

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Members of the crew of the "West Katan," whose claims for salvage services rendered to the S. S. "Flavel" is being handled by the undersigned: It has just come to my attention that the Shipping Board have asked you to sign vouchers in settlement of the salvage claim. I was offered one-half-month's wages which was refused. It appears that they are endeavoring to get you men to settle directly. I advise that none of you accept this as it is grossly inadequate. At least you have no right to accept any settlement without consulting me. Silas B. Axtell, Attorney for Seamen, 9 State Street, New York City. 10-6-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

UNION LABEL
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
NYMAN BROS.
Bee Hive Store
Men's Furnishings, Hickory Shirts, Hats, Oil Clothing.
Home of the union made Co-operative Shoe
302 So. F Street, ABERDEEN, Wash.
on the Water Front.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

Portland, Or., Letter List

Adams, Hugo	Learstad, Peter
Ahlstrom, Killan F.	Leisig, John
Ahlstrom, Ellis	Lovell, G.
Allen, Wm.	Lundgren, Gust
Allen, W.	Malech, Frank E.
Allison, Benjamin	Malkoff, Peter
Amundsen, Albert	Maline, Stanley
Andersson, Axel	Matson, R. M.
Anderson, J. A.	McDermott, W. M.
Anderson, Ed.	McCarlif, Gail
Andersson, Bill	McCroskey, Ray A.
Anderson, Herman	McGregor, Thos.
Anderson, Carl E.	McLean, M. R.
Austin, Ed.	Meyer, W.
Axmussen, Ben	Mikkelsen, Harry
Alakaihn, Moses	Monroe, N. S.
Allen, I. J.	Nelson, Nels
Alsie, Karl	Neilsen, Harry
Austin, Melvin	Nelson, Nels E.
Backman, Peter	Nilsen, Christ
Baker, Eddie	Nilson, Herman
Benton, G. W.	Norman, A
Bieler, Ben	Nurmisto, Ovio
Blake, Frank	Olsen, Michael
Bohm, Franz	Olson, T.
Carr, B.	Olson, John
Carmelie, Guiseppe	Pederson, Geo.
Custer, Kenneth R.	Peppert, Fred
Danilson, Albin	Petersen, Wm.
Darlington, Wm.	Petterson, Charley
Dikkensen, S.	Petersen, Knut
Diez, H.	Pobie, Frank L.
Doehring, Otto	Pohl, W.
Dooly, Frank E.	Pope, Bert
Douglas, Joseph	Prestoff, S.
Durett, J. E.	Preston, E.
Fisher, Chas.	Rever, John T.
Erickson, J.	Robinson, G. H.
Erickson, Hans E.	Robertson, E. J.
Ellegard, M.	Robles, Frank
Engler, S. H.	Ross, Geo.
Forsberg, Swen S.	Runge, R. L.
Fugman, Arthur	Saine, Arthur A.
Gallery, Russell B.	Schmeltning, M.
Gilkison, A. F.	Scott, M.
Golden, Roy L.	Shalin, Nils
Graff, John D.	Sibley, M.
Handt, Wm.	Skogmo, Paul
Halley, W.	Sinclair, P.
Hansen, Thorolf	Smith, Carl J.
Hanson, Carl	Slade, J. S.
Hanson, Oskar W.	Spatig, Harvey L.
Hardie, Wallace	Spencer, Tom
Hatland, R.	Stout, R. E.
Hogstrom, Karl I.	Sullivan, Fred L.
Holm, Harry	Suvaal, A.
Helmo, Gust	Svansson, Ernest
Huber, Charles S.	Taylor, Bert
Hurley, Michael	Tensfeldt, John S.
Jacobs, Fulton	Thorsen, Chas.
Jespersen, Martin	Tinsman, J. T.
Johnson, C. Eilert	Tuhkanen, John J.
Johanson, John	Viets, Clayton L.
Johnson, Alfin	Walmough, P.
Johnson, Anton	Walter, E.
Johnson, Emil	Wallace, Chess C.
Johanson, S.	Wallace, E. J.
Johnson, Louis	Wehtje, Wm. H.
Kaltholm, Edw.	Whiteside, Thos.
Kelly, Norman	Wilson, J. W.
Kelly, Albert J.	Wikstrom, Carl
Kennedy, B. L.	Wood, E. E.
Kjellberg, A. C.	Wolf, Herbert
Klaver, R.	Walters, Fred L.
Laine, A. A.	Worn, Otto
Larsen, Hans	Young, Carl Henrey
Larsen, Christ	Yeoman, W. E.
Lauritzen, Ludvik	York, Chas. E.
Lavsen, Carl C.

San Pedro Letter List

Aldo, K. Nestor	Fickle, Omer
Alfredsen, Adolf	Fisher -707
Albertson, John	Fottinger, Karl A.
Andersen, J. -2157	Frair, Enoch
Anderson, Sven	Fuglig, F.
Anderson, C.	Gallagher, Denny
Anderson, Bartines	Galke, Roy
Anderson, Gus	Gayton, H. L.
Anderson, John	Gerrity, John
Andowiz, H.	Gotz, Rudolph
Arentsen, John	Grason, Joe
Arnell, John	Grue, Theodor
Arnesen, Isack	Gunnerud, Ulrick
Bentley, Clifford	Gullaksen, Hans
Berglund, Emil J.	Godmundsen, John
Bengston, Sigfried	Guthrie, Raymond
Beschorner, Robert	Gustafson, Johan
Boyce, R. H.	Hansen, Claf
Brickman, Harold	Hasko, Anton
Bridges, R. H.	Harnick, Julius
Brusbard, Ewalt	Hansen, B.
Brown, Irwing	Harvey, Earl
Braden, W. A.	Hamilton, Walter
Brast, Sjomans	Hartog, J.
Bush, Peter	Hagen, George
Carr, R. W.	Hellesten G.
Carlera, Peter	Herlin, W.
Carrol, Kenneth	Hey, Ben
Church, C. A.	Hill, Chas.
Christoffersen, C.	Hickey, John
Costley, F. L.	Hingren, John
Cormie, William	Hogsted, Chas.
Daunt, C.	Houston, Robert
Davis, Orville	Holland, Jonny
Daw, Walter	Holtkamp, C.
Deasy, William P.	Hurley, Michael
Desmond, Albin	Isakson, J.
Deaver, Alwin	Janson, Fr.
Dischler, Peter	Jacobsen, Tom
Disney, Robert	Janofy, Axel
Doty, Erwin	Jensen, Marius
Dragich, Peter	Jeeden, George
Drennen, William	Jensen, Kristian
Eckhardt, William	Johnsen, P. -2313
Eliasen, John	Johansen, David
Engdahl, Robert	Johansen, Carl
England, Thomas	Johnson, George
Evans, Wilbert	Johnson, Matt.
Farrell, H. D.	Johnson, Tom.-3014
Fallbom, J. A.	Johnson, Waldron
Fahey, M.	Johansen, J. -1432
Feeder, George	Jonaseon, Johanes

KELLEHER & BROWNE

THE IRISH TAILORS

716 MARKET STREET

at Third and Kearny

SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices

Established for 20 years

All work done in our own sanitary workshop

Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

—when you're ready to buy your home

To say "my home" and mean it, gives a man a sense of independence. Sooner or later, every man wants his own home—if it's only a four-room bungalow.

You may not be planning for your home now—but you will. Then you'll be glad you have saved your money.

What your future wants may be is uncertain—but you can definitely provide for them by starting a savings account now with this city-wide bank.

ANGLO-CALIFORNIA TRUST CO.

COMMERCIAL-SAVINGS-TRUST

"The City Wide Bank"

Market & Sansome Streets

San Francisco

THIRD & TWENTIETH SIXTEENTH & MISSION FILLMORE & GEARY 101 MARKET ST.

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST

SAN FRANCISCO

Johnson, Carl E.	Lind, Gustav	Melander, G. L.	Ogren, V. E.
Johansen, Anton	Lindstrom, John A.	Mehrtens, C. H.	Olsen, Emil
Kallio, Frank	Lindholm, Charles	Mize, J. H.	Olsen, Olaf V.
Kenrich, Richard	Lill, Karl	Michelson, Erik	Olsen, Ole
Kelty, Peter D.	Lobeles, Jose	Miller, Frederik	Olsen, Ole M.
Keel, Jewel	Lowrey, John	Moor, Peter	Olsson, Otto
Ketelson, Fred	Loderson, John	Moritz, W.	Olsen, Sander
Killat, Dau	Lorgeman, Fred	Morisse, Henry	Olsen, Harold
Kepplar, C.	Knudsen, Andrew	Monteiro, John	Ostedal, Caspar
Kirshfeld, J.	Lund, F. V.	Mueller, John	Pastrillen, H. K.
Kluge, Frank	Lund, Alal	Murray, Ernest	Petersen, August
Klahn, Karl	Luther, Frank	Murphy, Frank	Petersen, Hugo
Kramer, O.	Mathiesen, Nic	Nelson, Emil	Pera, Gust.
Klementsen, Alf.	Martinson, J. L.	Nelson, Gust	Pett, Dick
Larsen, Johan 1542	Matson, Hilding	Nelson, Charlie	Perry, William
Langeman, W.	Magnussen, Karl	Nelson, C. A.	Porthan, M. T.
Laine, John	Martinson, John	Nelson, Nicholas	Raaum, Harry
Landen, A.	Maahs, Willi	Nielsen, Jens.-780	Rasmussen, S. J.
Lelrevaag, Halvor	Mato, Alex	Nilsen, Alfred	Rensen, Albert
Lehmus, Bill	McGhee, E. J.	Nilsson, Edward	Rosenthal, Walter
Lindquist, Emil	McHelvey, T. B.	Nielsen, P. F.	Rossdam, Ha.
Lindahn, Al.	McNeil, D. R.	Njutrom, Uno	Rod, Halfdam

Home News

Upton Sinclair, considered by most European critics to be America's greatest novelist, and recognized universally as one of the greatest living journalists and pamphleteers, recently took out a membership in the Pasadena, Calif., branch of the Pacific Co-operative League.

Oregon had a total of 703 men who were officially recorded as draft evaders during the World War, according to data received from the War Department by Adjutant General George A. White. Benton, Lincoln and Wheeler were the only counties having none.

President Wilson has confirmed the sentence of dismissal from service and fifteen years' imprisonment at hard labor imposed by court-martial upon Second Lieutenant John C. Gottenkiene of the 5th Field Artillery. The officer was convicted of deserting his command at Neuhausel, Germany, in June, 1919, after embezzling $36,051 of military funds.

Officials of the Department of Justice confirmed a report from Hackensack, N. J., that Dr. Walter Schleele, explosive expert of that place, had submitted a report to William J. Flynn, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, declaring that fifty pounds of blasting gelatine caused the Wall street explosion. Dr. Schleele's report was taken from testimony of witnesses.

Congressman Albert Johnson, chairman of the House Committee on Immigration, announced in a statement that he will advocate limiting immigration to relatives of naturalized citizens, when the immigration committee meets in Washington November 15th. Johnson predicted that a bill will be framed by the committee in time for presentation soon after Congress assembles in December.

The State Federations of Labor of California and of Arizona, in conventions recently held, went on record as favoring and supporting the work of the Pacific Co-operative League. This is the second endorsement received from the California State Federation of Labor. The league and the federation have worked together for some time in the Triple Alliance, better known as the California Union of Producers and Consumers.

Warrants for several alien enemies (issued during the war, but never served) are being canceled by the Department of Labor. No grave charges were ever made against the aliens, but the warrants were issued mainly on the ground that the men were alien enemies and had shipped on vessels out of San Francisco, against war-time regulations. Most of those for whom warrants were issued have disappeared, according to officials of the Immigration Service.

Income taxes must be paid on contributions to political campaigns, according to an announcement made by John P. Carter, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Southern California district. He made public the following communication from Internal Revenue Collector Williams: "Members of all parties are advised that in making returns of 1920 income they will not be allowed to deduct campaign contributions. Income tax regulations on this point are brief, but explicit. They provide that contributions for campaign expenses are not deductible from gross revenue."

Domestic and Naval

Japan will, during 1921, pay a subsidy amounting to 1,038,000 yen ($530,000) to the steamship companies trading with South America.

The Belgian Government has forbidden the sale of any Belgian river or canal craft of whatever character to foreigners or foreign companies, except under the previous authorization of the Government.

Admiral Borowski, the Polish Naval Commander at Danzig, says he does not place any credence in the report that Russian Bolsheviki submarines are operating in the Baltic or elsewhere. The Admiral says the report came from a British source.

A combine formed by leading Danish ship owners has applied to the Government for a concession enabling them to erect their own wireless stations and business in Denmark. The plan, it is understood, is viewed with approval in Government quarters.

Vessels of the United States on arriving on and after December 1, 1920, at ports of the United Kingdom will be subject to the provisions of the British wireless act of 1919, so far as applicable. This act requires every seagoing passenger steamer or ship of 1600 tons gross tonnage or upwards shall be provided with a wireless telegraph installation.

It is the intention of the Canadian Government, if given proper support by the citizens of Vancouver, to expend millions of dollars in making the port of Vancouver one of the best in the world, the Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries. told a delegation from the Board of Trade, which addressed him on port changes, according to a report in the Montreal Gazette.

Calls by vessels at Punta Arenas, Chile, in the calendar year 1919, exclusive of those made by small coasting craft, totaled 104, as against 99 in 1918. Thirty-four of the vessels made the transit of the Straits of Magellan, from ocean to ocean. The calls by steamships that ply regularly between Punta Arenas and Valparaiso and other Chilean ports numbered 14, and those by steamships regularly in service between Buenos Aires, Argentina, and Punta Arenas, 13. The nationalities of vessels calling at the port in 1919 were as follows: Argentine, 35; British, 26; Chilean, 25; American, 6; Dutch, 5; German, 5; and Swedish, 2.

The United States Shipping Board has announced its intention to dispose of all housing projects in which it owns the capital stock. When the housing program of the United States Shipping Board was inaugurated, money was advanced to local realty companies or housing companies organized by the shipbuilder concerned. The builder constructed the houses on the land owned by them and the Shipping Board took back from the local realty companies mortgages covering the amount of the houses in each case. The board also became the owner of various housing projects by the acquisition of the capital stock of a number of realty companies. The board now plans to dispose of such projects. The plan for the disposition contemplates selling these projects to manufacturing and business concerns of a substantial character or disposing of the houses by individual units

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN
GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. W.
Abrahamson, Berner
Adolfsson, John
Algren, Charlie
Alhstrom, Ellis
Alto, John
Almon, L.
Andersen, Adolf
Andersen, Gunner
Andersen, O.-1118
Andersen, R. P.
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas.
Theo.
Anderson, John
Nathaniel
Anderson, Johann
Anderson, Julius
Andersson, C. J. -2185
Andersson, John C.-1552
Anderson, James
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, C. -2001
Anderson, John
Aronson, Gunnar
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Arvidson, N.
Attaberry, Clarence
Austin, Tom

Baardsen, Hans
Bading, G.
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Barlow, R.
Bates, E. J. A.
Bengtson, Oscar
Berg, Arvid
Benson, Helge
Beschorner, R.
Bergman, Alrik
Bordgwardt, K.
Borjeson, Hilding
Bowman, Jack
Boyce. Fred
Boylan, C. J.
Bosshardt, H.
Boutwell, Billie
Botsford, R. D.
Bower, Gordon
Brauner, Chas. J.
Brander, Wm.
Braun, James
Brown, Dudley V.
Brickell, Teddy
Bryning, Walter
Burggraf, Albert
Butler, James
Burr, W. H.

Carlson, Andy
Carlson, Chas. E.
Carlson, Gust.-529
Carlsson, Hj.-1348
Carlson, Julius
Carney, James
Chilcott, Geo.
Chipps, Eric
Christensen, A.-1857
Christensen, Nils
Clarke, Mathew
Clausen, Louis
Coffey, George E.
Conley, Irvin
Cornelius, Leonard
Correro, Tom R.
Corey, Eldridge

Dahl, E. L. K.
Dahl, Otto
Dahl, Oskar
Dahls, Ogden
Dahlgren, Wm. A.
Daunt, C.
Davidsen, Oskar
Davies, B. L.
Davis, Warren
Demorest, Carl
DeMarlo, Thos
Donner, R.
Domke, Willi
Drasbeck, Chas.
Drevet, Jack O.
Drennen, W. N.
Duff, Peter W.
Dunlap, George
Duchane, Matt.

Eastman, J. W
Eaton, Lawrence
Eide, W.
Elsenhardt, K.
Eriksson, Martin
Ellis, F. L.
Emmetz, Joseph
Emulate, E.

Emmerz, Joe
Endemann, M.
Englebritsen, Ale
Erickson, -997
Ertman, Eskil
Erikson, Simon
Evensen, Andreas A.
Even, Frank

Farevoog, C. M.
Fergerson, Thos.
Fjellman, Georg
Flotten, James G.
Fletcher, Jos.
Foster, C.
Frandsen, F. N.
Fradera, T. F.
Franson, A. E.
Fraser, H. W.
Freitag, W. J.
Freiberg, Carl
Fredricksen, O.
Friz, Ottmar
Fugman, Arthur

Gabrielsen, Lars
Gartzke, Erick
Gaougat, F.
Garnetzky, Fritz A
Geary, Albert
Getchell, Alton
Germenis, Socrates
Gibbons, Elmer L.
Golden R. L.
Graham, Ray
Graham, W. F.
Green, Henry M.
Grienne, Fred
Griffin, J. R.
Grundell, W. O.
Grundstrom, C. W.
Groman, Gusta
Grondahl, Armas W.
Gullaksen, Hans
Gundersen, C. A.
Gustavsson, C. B.
Gustaffson, Walter

Haakonson, Arthur
Hahn, Emil
Haider, H. T.
Hakanson, Bernt
Halvorsen, Hans J.
Hamilton, Walter J.
Hammond, Robert
Hansen. G. A.-2837
Hansen, G. A. -2837
Hansen, Knud
Hansen, H. V.
Hansen, Magnus
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Harris, J. S. -3161
Harbst, J. D.
Haunt, C.
Hayward, C. R.
Heldal, Trygve
Hendrickson, G. W.
Herner, Olaf
Hellman, Rowland L.
Hellpap, A.
Henrikson, K. Hj.
Hein, M.
Henke, Erick
Hessin, B.
Heyn, T.-2789
Hicks, Wm. H.
Hoglander, Martin
Holbrook, G. A.
Horner, Amrose
Hughes, E. B.
Hultgren, Earl A. B.

Ibsen, V. L.
Ingebretsen, Christian
Irving, John
Iversen, Iver

Isakson, Karl
Jacobsen, Alfred
Jacobsen, Jonkim
Jahnke, Paul
Jansson, Fredrik
Janssen, Carl
Jaycox, James
Jepperson, Chris
Jensen, Jens C.
Jensen, A. L.
Jensen, Niels-2630
Jensen, Carl O.
Jensen, Martin
Jentzsch, Solfred
Jewell, A. M.
Johansen, Johan R.
Johansen, Chas
Johansen, E.-2715
Johansen, G. 2189
Johansson, Algot
Johnson, Aubury F.
Johnson, C. B.
Jones, Arne M.
Jorgensen, Adelsten
Josephson, Benjamin
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johannesen, Ole
Johnson, Edward S.
Johnstone, Leslie
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaasik, G.
Kaasik, August
Kajander, Eino
Kaplan, I.
Karlson, E. W.
Karlgren, -644
Kasperson, E.
Keath, M. E.
Ketelsen, F.
Kelly, Geo.
Kierne, G. H.
Klindt, Frederico
Kine, Conrad
Kluge, Martin
Kluge, Fritz
Knoph, John O.
Knorsky, Adam
Knudsen, Martin
Knudsen, Ragnval
Kolbe, A. R.
Kokko, Martin
Kootz, Fridrick
Koster, Walter
Kraal, J.
Kragero, C. M. J.
Kristensen, J. P.
Krishjan, K. W.
Kristoffersen, A. B.
Krane, Anton
Krogseth, Svend
Krumholtz, W.
Kuckens. B.
Krueger, Harry

Lattin, W. C.
Laine, John E.
Laine, Frank
LaMadrid, R.
Lambert, Jos.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen. Alex. 1777
Larsen, Alexis
La Rue, C. E.
Lauritzen, Ole
Laursen, Max O.
Lee, Albert
Leeder, W. -2287
Leegaard, Rasmus
Leskinen, John
Levy, Luis
Linderoos, W.
Lindahl, G.-2342
Lindroos, Geo.
Livingston, H.
Lidsten, Chas.
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Liljedal, Ludv.
Loberg, Bror
Lofenberg, Pete
Loning, Herman
Lorentzen, Jean
Lund, Wm. J.
Lundberg, Oskar

Madsen, Anton
Magnusson, E. W.
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
MacKay, Wm.
Maki, Ivar
Mahoney, F. J.
Manning, H. H.
Manzano, Luis
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Matheis, Herman
McGregor, D.
McKinsey, Alex
McNeill, D. R.
McGovern, Jim
McFarlane, Dougal
McGauley, Geo.
McCallum, Chas.
McWade, W. C.
Melander, G. L.
Meyer, Henry
Melgand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Meyer, George
Millard, Martin
Mitchell, David
Moe, Harald
Morrissey, W.
Mortensen. K. A.
Mool, Peter
Mol, J. W.
Moore, H. L.
Mohr, Chas.
Morgan, R. B.
Morrison, Phillip
Mortensen, Thomas
Moulas. Nicholas
Muldrose, W. L.
Mullins, John

Naylor, Geo. D.
Nauta, H.
Neergard, A. C.
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, Jerome
Nelson, N. H.
Nelson, C. R.
Nelson, Karl
Ness, Aksel
Neveau, Thomas
Nicolaisen, Ancker
Nilsen, Anders
Nilsson, Ernst C.
Nillson, S. H. H.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nilsen, Christ
Nielsen, C. -1303
Nordlie, Christ
North, Jesse J.
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordling, Sven
Nordstom, Hans
Nurken, H.
Nurmi, Wm.
Nyman, John A.
Nundorf, F. R.

O'Connor, Dennis
Olafson, O. B.
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, Harry -885
Olsen, Kristian
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsson, Enock
Olsson, W. O.
Olsson, V.
Olsson, Charle
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Osen, Aksel
Osterholm, W.
Ortman, Carl
Owervick, Thos.
Ozolin, Jan

Pankratz, Bruno
Palmer, Ray
Paulsen, E. A.
Paul, Ben
Payne, J. E.
Pedersen. W.-1535
Pedersen, Lewis
Pedersen, S.-1888
Pels, H.
Perdock, A.
Petersen, Arthur
Peterson, Elias
Pederson, George
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Pipione, Joseph
Phillips, Bob
Pope, G. N.
Post, Albert
Pree, E. Deu
Prusch, A.

Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Reigwein, A.
Reynolds, T. T.
Regnill, Gustaf
Renstrom, Axel
Rier, Earl W.
Richardson, Edwin
Rohman, Geo.
Rosa, John
Roach, Steffen
Robson, Carr
Roberts, John
Robertson, Robert
Rodriquez, Antonio
Rogers, Thos. G.
Ronn, E.
Roth, M.
Rundstrom, Albert
Rupp, A.-1029
Russell R.-1662
Rutgersen, Oscar
Rygvig, Marius
Ryan. James

Salli, Rudolf
Sanne, Rudolf
Sandstrom, Olaf
Schmees, Herman
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Sorensen, E.
Sodergren, Ragnar
Sprogoe, Theodor
Stanford, Harry
Stenberg, Hj. N.
Stone, M. C.
Stragseth, Svend

Tammola, Waino
Tennison, George
Thiel, Werner
Thode, Rudolph
Thomas, Andrew
Thomas, John
Thomas, N. S.
Thomas, Fred
Thompson, Clifford
Thompson, James
Thomsen, Ebbe
Peter
Tolano, A. R.
Torwick, H. S.
Tovano, A. R.
Tufty, C. J.
Twigg, Harry M.

Vadum, N. Kr.
Veckenstedt, Wm.
Verhoef, A.
Vitol, A.
Vihavainen, George
Vogelhuber, Albert
Vorst, C. A.

Wakrom, J.
Walstrom, Albert
Weatherby, Thomas
Werkhoven, G.
Wezwagar, Andrew
Wessberg, E. H. N.
Wijchgel, J. -970
Wiklund, Wiktor
Wilks, J.
Wohlers, Diedrich
Woods, Dick

Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Fowler, R. J.
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Gallery, R. B.
Grienne, Fred
Goodman, Tony
Henrikson, Ernst
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Olsen, O. J. -1020
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Travers,
Tillsten, Jack
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Anyone who was acquainted with the late Chas. Erickson, discharged from the U. S. Navy in 1896, and subsequent thereto sailing on the Pacific Coast, will confer a great favor upon his widow, Mrs. Charles Erickson, by communicating with her at P. O. Box 15, San Pedro, Cal. Mrs. Erickson is anxious to establish certain facts relating to the physical condition of her late husband prior to his discharge from the U. S. Navy. 1-28-20

The following named members of the crew of the S. S. "Kenebec," who helped salve the schooner "Thomas L. Wand" on November 19, 1919, have vouchers ready to be distributed at our office:

Demetre Sakelaris, $46.80; Carl Puika, $56.72; Isidro Flores, $50.55; Janes Franco, $50.55; Daniel Rodrigues, $50.55; Rafael Corrillo, $50.55; Dimity Sacelarius, $50.55; Siegor Sorensen, $50.55. Levy & Levy, Lawyers, Trust Bldg., Galveston, Texas. 10-6-20

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the
CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Pnone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

AT THE FOOT OF THE FERRY BRIDGE
GEO. A. PRICE
DEMANDS THE UNION LABEL

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
788 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

Capt. Chas. J. Swanson
NAUTICAL BOOKS and INSTRUMENTS
MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS, $1.50
MACARTHUR'S "SEAMAN'S CONTRACT," $4
CUGLE'S NAVIGATION BOOK, 1920 EDITION, $5
UNIFORMS & SUITS, TO ORDER & READY MADE
CAPS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
OILSKINS, RUBBER BOOTS, BEDDING & BLANKETS
SLOP-CHESTS AT WHOLESALE
36-40 STEUART STREET, SAN FRANCISCO
D. W. PAUL, Outside Representative
Southern Pacific Building
Telephone Douglas 1082

S H O E S SALE S H O E S
YOU CAN SAVE FROM $3 TO $5 A PAIR AT THE SALE PRICE THAN YOU CAN PURCHASE THEM ELSEWHERE. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SALE.
AGENTS—W. L. DOUGLAS, JUST WRIGHT, STRONG & GARFIELD, WALK EASE
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET, S. F. Between Market and Mission

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y
30 India Street, Boston, Mass
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
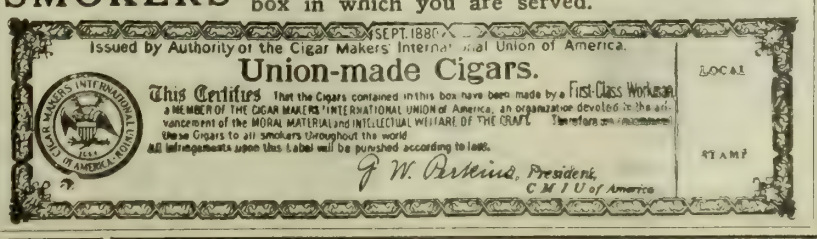
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS UNION — UNION STAMP — Factory
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.



News from Abroad

Discovery of petroleum in the eastern part of Salvador is reported by Dr. Ecrieh, an expert in geology.

The Hungarian Government has ordered 15,000 East European Jews to leave the country immediately, says a Budapest report.

The Albanian Government has asked Italy to occupy Goritza and Argyro-Castro to insure the Southern Albanian frontier against Greek invasion, says the Durazzo correspondent of the Tempo. The Italian Government, adds the newspaper, has refused this proposal.

Japan will propose placing the Chinese Eastern Railroad under joint control of the powers until peace is restored in Russia, the Yomturi says in connection with the discussion now in progress over the question of protection of Russian interests in China.

Japan's intention to forward additional troops to Manchurian towns near Korea is announced in official communiques on account of bandit raids that are terrorizing the population. The Chinese residents of the districts, the communiques say, desire the presence of Japanese troops.

French war tanks that have been little used since the armistice may be put into service again this winter, not as weapons, but as snow sweepers. Experiments recently made show that when snow cutters are attached to the front end of the tank, a path ten feet wide can be cleared with little difficulty. Many important routes that have hitherto been impassable in winter will thus be kept open, it is stated.

Recently the British Government placarded Dublin with signs of the Royal Air Force, appealing to young Irish lads to join. Those placards read, "Join the Royal Air Force and See the World." After the billsticker had departed, a loyal Irishman, with a paint bucket, painted another sign near the Government posters. It bore the simple inscription: "Join the Royal Irish Constabulary and See the Next World."

An attempt was made to assassinate Prince Regent Alexander of Serbia during his recent tour in Bosnia, according to the Montenegrin Press Bureau. The bureau adds: "A bomb was thrown under the train in which the Prince Regent of Serbia was returning from Sarajevo. Two coaches were wrecked, but the Prince was unhurt. An inquiry into the accident gave no results. The Mayor and Municipal Council of Sarajevo have resigned.

The charge that the seizure of Vilna, in disputed Lithuanian territory, took place with the connivance of President Pilsudski of the Polish Government was made in a memorandum submitted to the State Department by the unrecognized Lithuanian representative in the United States, Dr. Vileias. The memorandum further asserted Pilsudski in 1919 desired to relinquish his post as chief of the state of Poland in order to set up a new federated state to the north of Poland, embracing Vilna. In support of this charge Dr. Vileias cited the recent report of Pilsudski's resignation as President of Poland and the fact that Pilsudski himself was a native of Vilna. "In the name of the Lithunian Government," the memorandum concluded, "and in the name of humanity, I protest to the American Government against the acts of Poland against Lithuania."

With the Wits

"Josh," said Farmer Corntossel to his son, "I wish, if you don't mind, you'd eat off to yourself instead of with the summer boarders." "Isn't my society good enough for them?" "Your society is fine. But your appetite sets a terrible example."—Washington Star.

Consistency—"She makes herself ridiculous with her silly superstitions. Do you know, she looks in a dream book every morning as soon as she gets up. No, don't go out of that door." "But it is the shortest way out." "But don't you know it is bad luck not to go out the same way you came in?"

Just So.

A beautiful girl with a mission in life
May frequently make a delectable wife.
We're not much in error in mentioning, though,
Her mission is seldom to cook or to sew.

Heard at a Reception—Fair Guest—That gentleman you introduced to me is a cynic.

Hostess—Indeed, my dear! And what is your idea of a cynic?

Fair Guest—He's a person who keeps you constantly in doubt whether he is unusually clever or unusually disagreeable.

A Roast—He—I always say what I think.

She—I notice that you are extremely reticent.

His Fond Farewell—A Frenchman, guest at a London hotel, had just been presented with his bill. Though he paid it without formal protest, he was most indignant at its amount. "I vish to zee ze proprietor!" he exclaimed to the clerk. In a moment the proprietor entered. The Frenchman was all smiles. "Ah!" he exclaimed, "I must embrace you!" "But why should you wish to embrace me, sir?" asked the astonished hotelkeeper. "I do not understand." "Look at zees bill." "Yes, your receipted bill. What of it?" "What of it? Simple zees, saire, it means zat I shall nevaire, no nevaire, see you again."—London Tit Bits.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR
500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS
Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.
COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE
72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office
Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ — Phone Douglas 5752 — ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET
High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit
THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL
Most Complete Line of Union Made
SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS
In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR
28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen Trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James A. Sorensen
Pres. and Treas.

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures
ENGAGEMENT RINGS
Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds
WEDDING RINGS
Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes
WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO
JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS
Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's
GOOD GOODS
Market at Fifth
San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE
Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods
Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN
You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"
FRED AMMANN
I sell
UNION HATS
at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortinent and give you your money's worth.
JOHN B. STETSON hats, too
If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.
You'll find me at
72 Market Street
next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH
RED SEAL CIGAR
UNION MADE
RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS
133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM
OVERALLS & PANTS
UNION MADE
ARGONAUT SHIRTS

331.805
CO

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization.

VOL. XXXIV, No. 10. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1920. Whole No. 1726.

THE GENERAL STRIKE

American Federation of Labor's Attitude Clearly Defined

The Chicago Federation of Labor recently adopted a resolution declaring that if the United States aided the Poles in their contest with the Bolshevists of Russia a conference should be called by the American Federation of Labor to prepare for a general strike.

This resolution was sent to "the officers and members of organized labor." Several central bodies have endorsed the resolution. A circular also has been sent out with a similar purpose by the Seattle Central Labor Council.

As the resolution and circular are directly contrary to the attitude of the American Federation of Labor on Bolshevism and on the Soviet government of Russia, a reply, setting forth the A. F. of L. position on the subject, was sent to the Chicago Federation of Labor by the President of the American Federation of Labor.

Both communications are published herewith.

Chicago Federation of Labor
166 W. Washington St.,
Chicago, Ill., August 25, 1920.

To the Officers and Members of Organized Labor.

Dear Sirs and Brothers: At the regular meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor held Sunday, August 15, 1920, resolutions were introduced (which are self-explanatory) and unanimously adopted and ordered sent to American Federation of Labor affiliated locals and central bodies, and are as follows:

"Chicago, Ill., August 14, 1920.

Chicago Federation of Labor,
Fraternal Greetings:

Consolidated Lodge No. 113, International Association of Machinists, at its last session held on Friday, August 13, requests your concurrence in the following resolution:

"Whereas, The government of Russia, as organized by its working people, is militarily attacked by the armies of Poland under the guidance and tacit understanding of the Allies; and

Whereas, Russia defended herself against this wanton and uncalled for attack; and

Whereas, Soviet Russia succeeded in defeating this attack and is now engaged in imposing such conditions upon those that have so brutally and violently attacked her that will assure the workingmen's government of Russia safety from future attacks and peace; and

Whereas, The governments of England, France and the United States are endeavoring to start anew a terrible war by insisting that Poland fight on, promising her military aid; and

Whereas, The above named governments are trying to provoke another war under false pretenses with the only object to crush the Soviet government of Russia; and

Whereas, Organized labor of England, France and Italy have informed their respective governments that in case war should be declared against Soviet Russia, they would at once inaugurate a general strike to prevent mobilization and in every way possible paralyze industry and transportation until such time as war against Russia is prevented; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we urge upon the American Federation of Labor to call a general conference of the representatives of all affiliated organizations and those not affiliated but whose sense of justice compels them to encourage and endorse the action taken by the workers of England, France and Italy, with the view of taking such action as will prevent mobilization of military and naval forces to such an extent and period of time as will compel our government to stay its hand against Soviet Russia, should the American government decide on a war against Russia; be it further

Resolved, That this be given such publicity as the Chicago Federation of Labor is in a position to give, and that it be referred to all affiliated organizations and a copy sent to all central bodies in the United States.

Fraternally submitted,
(Signed) H. E. Aldrich, Cor. Secy.,
Consolidated Lodge No. 113,
International Association of Machinists."

Respectfully submitted,
Chicago Federation of Labor,
N. E. Nockels, Secretary.

Washington, D. C., September 27, 1920.

Mr. E. N. Nockels, Secretary,
Chicago Federation of Labor,
166 W. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir and Brother: Your letter of August 25 received and contents noted. You enclose a resolution adopted by the regular meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor August 15. The resolution declares that a general strike should be called in the United States if the government aids the Poles in their contest with the bolshevists of Russia. It also contends that the present government of Russia was organized by its working people.

You say call a general strike. Do you know where such authority exists to call a general strike? What body of men or women can assume such autocratic power as to call a general strike? I know that there are a few men here and there so obsessed with egotism and vanity that they believe they have the autocratic power or that some others have the autocratic power to call a general strike. But the American trade union movement founded upon the democratic control of the rank and file —reasonable, thinking men—know that there is no such power lodged anywhere to call a general strike of the working people of the United States.

Undoubtedly those who voted for the resolution are unacquainted with the real situation in Russia. They do not know that the workers of that country, in industry as well as in the army, are subject to military discipline and laws. Permit me to call your attention to several facts that should convince the Chicago Federation of Labor it has acted in this matter without a full knowledge of the situation. Let me quote several of the official documents which prove that the American workmen should oppose Bolshevism to the bitter end for self-preservation.

On March 31, 1920, Trotsky, the Minister of War and Marine of Soviet Russia, made this official statement:

"At the present time the militarization of labor is all the more needed in that we have now come to the mobilization of peasants as the means of solving the problems requiring mass action. We are mobilizing the peasants and forming them into labor detachments which very closely resemble military detachments. Some of our comrades say, however, that even though in the case of the working power of mobilized peasantry it is necessary to apply militarization, a military apparatus need not be created when the question involves skilled labor and industry because there we have professional unions performing the functions of organizing labor. This opinion, however, is erroneous.

"At present it is true that professional unions distribute labor power at the demand of social-economic organizations but what means and methods do they possess for insuring that the workman who is sent to a given factory actually reports at that factory for work.

"We have in the most important branches of our industry more than a million workmen on the lists but not more than 800,000 of them are actually working, and where are the remainder? They have gone to the villages, or to other divisions of industry or into speculation. Among soldiers this is called desertion and in one form or another the measures used to compel soldiers to do their duty should be applied in the field of labor.

"Under a unified system of economy the masses of workmen should be moved about, ordered and sent from place to place in exactly the same manner as soldiers. This is the foundation of the militarization of labor and without this we are unable to speak seriously of any organization of industry on a new basis in the conditions of starvation and dsorganization existing today."

It would not be out of place also to study the following from the Krasnaya Gazeta of April 18, 1920, under the heading "They have Repented":

"Of the workmen employes who were sentenced for striking in the main wagon shops of the Moscow-Kursk Railway, sentenced to deprivation of freedom for various terms, forty-four have sent in petitions asking to be freed.

"These railway men write: 'We will try to raise the productivity of labor as much as we can, and not to practice sabotage and not to carry on agitation against Soviet authority.'

"By order of the highest authority, these have been liberated."

For the further information of the delegates to the Chicago Federation of Labor I wish to call your attention to the following from the Isvestia (official organ of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee) of December 29, 1919, and headed "The Red Army of Labor":

"Comrade Trotsky has touched on the most important question of labor service and the militia system. The essence of this problem is the following:

"Any socialistic enterprise is a single economic enterprise within the limits of the State, with a single plan of production and distribution, which is guaranteed by 'universal labor service' and presupposes an obligatory 'distribution of the human labor strength between agriculture, manufacturing industry and transportation.'"

In an effort to increase the output of labor and enforce labor discipline a "Commission of Three" was appointed. It consists of representatives from the Moscow Soviet of Deputies, the Moscow Soviet of Trade Unions and the Municipal Soviet of National Economy.

Perhaps it would be enlightening as to the discipline to which the Russian workers are subjected to quote the following from the Moscow Pravada of March 12, 1920, under the heading, "Re-establishment of Labor Discipline":

"Recently, in the fifteenth section of the People's Bank several employes left service of their own account, as a result of which many institutions were unable to receive promptly money to pay the salaries to employes. The 'Commission of Three' arrested part of the employes who had left work and brought them back to work."

As the trade union movement always has fought for a decrease in the hours of work, the following official announcement made in Moscow February 19, 1920, may be of interest to the Chicago Federation of Labor:

"Now is the time for work. The week of the front has caused a longer working day to be introduced throughout Russia. At first a twelve hours' working day was introduced in different towns by the week of the front. Later this measure was introduced in other towns. The disorganized state of the transport demands united work."

These official statements were submitted to the Montreal Convention of the American Federation of Labor, held June 7-19, 1920. Feeling that the American labor movement should take a firm stand on Bolshevism, the convention declared:

"Bolshevism has been a lure for some of our people and its doctrines have been propagated with great vigor. This hideous doctrine has found converts among two classes of people principally—those intellectuals, so-called, who have no occupation save that of following one fad after another, and those so beaten in the game of life, that they find no appeal in anything except the most desperate and illogical schemes. The rank and file of the organized labor movement, as was to have been expected, has given no countenance to the propaganda of Bolshevism, but has, on the contrary, been its most effective opponent in America."

Resolutions also were presented to the convention calling upon Congress and our government to lift the blockade against Russia. The convention adopted the following:

"Resolved, That the American Federation of Labor is not justified in taking any action which could be construed as an assistance to, or approval of, the Soviet government of Russia as long as that government is based upon authority which has not been vested in it by a popular representative national assemblage of the Russian people; or so long as it endeavors to create revolutions in the well-established, civilized nations of the world; or so long as it advocates and applies the militarization of labor and prevents the organizing and functioning of trade unions and the maintenance of a free press and free public assemblage."

Lenine, the autocratic ruler of Russia, declares that all Europe will be Bolshevik within a year. If that be true it will not be long before America will feel the curse of Bolshevism. Does the Chicago Federation of Labor believe that the government of Russia is a good government and that it would be to the interests of the workers of America to have a similar government? The American workmen (and among them are members of unions affiliated with the Chicago Federation of Labor) have been struggling against a bitter crusade to introduce autocracy in industry in America, otherwise involuntary servitude. In Russia the workers are conscripted into the army and then into industry. Collective bargaining is unknown in Soviet Russia. In fact, no bargaining is done, everything is compulsory. The workers must work whether they wish to or not and they must accept wages and working conditions fixed arbitrarily by a military government.

Do you not know that French labor officials declare the world is turning against Bolshevism? They have condemned Lenine's declaration that labor must be revolutionized. The official organ of labor in Paris asks if it is necessary for a labor delegation to visit Russia in order to become convinced of the futility of Bolshevism and adds:

Sig. Argona, Secretary of the Italian General Labor Confederation, talked publicly of the guilt from which he had escaped after his return from Moscow. Senor Pestana, envoy from Spain, has intimated that he was undeceived by the same kind of trip. Both have insisted lately on the necessity of constitutional reform, a mode of action hardly acceptable to the Russian Bolshevists."

Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the British trade union official, both of whom have recently returned from Russia, declares that the terrible thing about Lenine's regime is the repression of all liberty, written or verbal, among the working men as well as among the bourgeois. The Paris Temps says that Snowden, an extreme radical in opinion, is turning against Bolshevism.

Permit me also to refer you to the enclosed pamphlet entitled, "The Truth About Soviet Russia and Bolshevism." It contains editorials republished from the American Federationist.

Is it to the interest of American workers that Bolshevism in Russia, supported by less than one-half a million of its population, should be safe-guarded even at the risk and sacrifice of a general strike of America's workers?

Is it conceivable to believe that the workers of America would strike to maintain that government? It can not be possible that a single delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor is in possession of the real facts concerning Russia and the slavery of its workers maintained by militarism. It would have been better had the Chicago Federation of Labor appointed a committee to investigate what Bolshevism is before passing a resolution of the character it adopted.

A circular was issued, whether by your central body or not, but similar in character to the resolution adopted by the Chicago Federation of Labor and the circulars were sent to the central bodies throughout the United States. From a few points information comes to this office that the circular and resolution have been adopted and quite evidently with as little knowledge of the actual situation on their part os upon the part of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Evidently "distance lends enchantment to the view" in this matter as in many others, but the American Federation of Labor has direct, absolute, accurate and authentic information regarding conditions with Russia, the militaristic, autocratic and unjust conditions which are being imposed upon the masses of labor of that unhappy country, for the people of which we entertain a deep admiration and for whose emancipation from this autocratic thraldom we most earnestly strive.

I ask in all fairness and in the interests of the men and women of the organized labor movement of Chicago and of the country, that this letter be read in full to the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

With best wishes, I remain,

Fraternally yours,

(Signed) SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President, American Federation of Labor.

SEAMEN AND THE RED CROSS

"A sailor in Shanghai gave me this card. Is this the place it speaks of where they steer a man to whatever he's looking for?"

The query did not seem at all complicated to the young doctor sitting at the desk on the ground floor office of the Seamen's Service Center, in New York City. And his friendly reception of the aged mariner who presented it seemed all the more homey because of the offices of a small black cat. Evidently considering herself chairman of the Committee of Welcome, pussy jumped down from her perch on the young physician's knee, and rubbed herself intriguingly against the stranger's legs.

"The Seamen's Service Center,
21 Coenties Slip, New York City.
For Merchant Seamen of All
Flags. Open Day and Night."

So read the legend on the address card referred to by the inquirer.

"The fellow that gave me this said you treated him for some kind of disease and gave him enough medicine to last from the time he shipped from New York until he got to the first port where they had a regular specialist in the same line."

"Yes," assented the physician. "We arrange such things. This is not a clinic, —we act as a clearing house to direct applicants to whatever hospital, boarding house, clinic, or other agency he may desire to connect with. But we first give the applicant a physical examination. This is without charge, but is necessary to diagnose the case."

The seaman's face fell, but "Thank you, sir," was all he said, as he turned toward the door.

The black cat clawed playfully at his trouser's leg in the hope of detaining him, but it was the pleasant "Can't we do anything for you, my friend?" that arrested his footsteps on the threshold.

"Well I sort of hoped I might be able to get a shore job for a little while," replied the old seaman apologetically. "You see I've got to be a witness in an admiralty suit, and I can't afford to loaf. But it's all right, I'll probably land somewhere through the want ads."

"You come down here tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and I think you can get something right away. We have a very good free employment bureau. Just a few minutes ago a man called up and said he wanted a few hands on one of the harbor excursion boats. But though the Seamen's Service Center is open day and night, and a man can get a physical examination here up to 10 p. m., there is nothing to be gained by keeping the employment department open after the business day is over, so that is open from 9 to 5."

The sailor's face was beaming. "Why thank you, doctor. That harbor boat job would fit me to a T. I'll be back in the morning."

"Have you found a good boarding house?" inquired the physician. "We have some good, clean, reasonable priced houses on our list of investigated boarding houses for seamen. And another thing, about that law suit. We take care of legal matters as well as medical and civil cases.

"Any time some unscrupulous person tries to collect a fee from you for taking on what you think is a case you come in and see us. We'll look into the matter for you, and advise you without cost."

"To tell the truth," confessed the seaman, "I did have some kind of a lawsuit I was calculating to bring, but if you say so I'll step in tomorrow and talk it over. The fellow in Shanghai said I could depend on the folks here to see me through in anything I wanted to know or have done. And say, doctor, is the American Red Cross behind this here Center?"

"It is," the doctor admitted the soft impeachment. "Co-operating with the United States Public Health Service the Red Cross is going to try to make life ashore safer, healthier, and infinitely more pleasant socially, for the merchant seaman. All sorts of good things are coming his way as soon as the dollar memberships begin to come in from the Fourth Annual Roll Call, from November 11 to November 25. Our ultimate goal is to have a Seamen's Service Center in every port of the world."

The old man had been fishing through his pockets, and with characteristic sailor generosity now laid a five dollar bill on the doctor's desk.

"Doctor," he said, "You take that five spot and buy me five memberships when the Roll Call begins. The American Red Cross is all right!"—Contributed by the Publicity Department of the American Red Cross.

Demand the Union Label.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Alabama Coal Men Use Blacklist Lash.

The bull whip that swung across the backs of Southern slaves sixty years ago has been replaced by the blacklist lash in the hands of Alabama coal owners against striking employes who are demanding a living wage.

The coal owners have refused to accept the award made by the bituminous coal commission, appointed by the President last fall when the nation-wide strike of miners was called off.

The miners are in possession of letters and notices issued by the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, a steel trust unit, which shows that many workers are blacklisted and are forever barred from re-employment by this concern. In one list in possession of the strikers, names of over half a hundred men are given as "permanently dismissed for agitation."

Other lists include those who are "undesirables" and who are charged with "enticing labor from this district."

That the mine owners are fearful of the effect on them if this slave practice is generally known is indicated by instructions by J. L. McClaren, employment officer, to all employment clerks, that hereafter the reason for a man's discharge must not be stated in the files. "We want to do away with this," writes McClaren.

As an aid to this blacklist system, the coal owners have established a peonage system and armed guards prevent miners from leaving many camps. The miners show passes that are issued to them, in support of their peonage charge.

Behind the blacklist lash and the peonage system is General Steiner and his State troops to enforce the military order against assemblage in the coal district to protest against these outrages or to discuss the miners' wrongs. The strikers demand that General Steiner be as vigilant in disarming company thugs as he is in searching for arms among the strikers. As an added restriction the miners are forbidden to march on the public highways.

Despite every denial of constitutional guaranties, the miners refuse to go back to the mines under former conditions. Every attempt to incite them has failed, and they are joining the union in large numbers.

Railroads Cost More.

Six months of private ownership of the railroads cost the taxpayers of the country more than two-thirds as much as the two years and two months of Federal control, said Robert W. Woolley, Interstate Commerce Commissioner, in an address before an association of Chicago business men.

"Two years and two months of Federal control cost the taxpayers $902,000,000, according to latest returns," said the speaker. "Assuming that the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the final accounting, will allow all the maintenance charges reported by the railroads in the period from March 1 to September 1, only six months of private ownership cost the taxpayers $634,000,000. That is the deficit in round numbers."

Under the Cummins-Esch law the Government must meet all expenses of the railroads for six months from March 1, the date the act became effective.

The railroads are preparing their claims to meet the first six months of private operation and many of them have asked the Comptroller of the Treasury to pay some of this money "on account" until they present final statements. The Treasury official refuses to pay any money until the statements are presented.

Co-Operation Urged.

The Co-operative Union of Canada has issued this appeal to Canadian citizens:

"Having relied upon others in vain, including governments and public authorities generally, to reduce the cost of living, why not rely upon yourselves by self-help in association with your neighbors in the organization of co-operative societies?

"There can be no profiteering where the people control and direct by democratic vote their own institutions in the purchase and distribution of the necessities of life and divide the surplus, or profit, made in proportion to purchases.

"Self-help in mutual association is the basic and central principle of the whole movement. It was the one which distinguished the successful activities of the world-famous Rochdale pioneers from their unsuccessful and paternalistic predecessors. It provides opportunities for the cultivation of the latent talents and the employment of the associated energies of the masses for mutual service in the production, as well as the wholesale and retail distribution, of the necessaries of life."

Mexicans Nonpartisan.

The Mexican people are no longer interested in the fancies and distractions of political parties, says R. P. De Negri, Mexican Consul-General in New York, writing in the "Mexican Review."

"The Mexican people live in an age of grim reality and are demanding just, rational and tangible remedies for the problems confronting them. It is no longer enough that a government shall dignifiedly confine its activities to the maintenance of the status quo. It must search out and lead in those movements which will promote the continued economic betterment of the majority of the people. Those who for their own egotistic advantage stand in the way of such achievement have yet to learn from the lessons of sad experience writ large in the recent history of the world."

Organized Workers Lead.

"The present agitation against the Japanese once more forcefully illustrates the fact that nothing is ever done for labor unless it is done by labor," says the Los Angeles Citizen.

"Years ago the trade unionists of San Francisco, operating through the Asiatic Exclusion League, started the agitation

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Transportarbeiter Verband, Reichsabteilung Seeleute. Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de Sâo Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

According to an Associated Press cable from Manila, trade unionists in the Philippines are organizing a campaign against proposed legislation to admit Japs and other Oriental laborers to these islands. The Filipino workers will have four-minute speakers make addresses wherever crowds gather to voice opposition to new Oriental immigration.

Thousands of street cleaners of Bombay have gone on strike for higher wages and shorter hours. At present a street cleaner receives Rs. 18 ($6.00) a month. They are demanding Rs. 25 ($8.32). They are also demanding one day's leave, with pay, besides Sundays, and full pay for the period of strike. It is predicted in well-informed circles in the city that the British Raj will soon have to bow low before the sweepers of Bombay, who are standing adament in their demands.

The Melbourne Trades and Labor Council is taking steps to establish what will be known as a "union's strike fund." The purpose is to help unionists who have been compelled to strike to secure justice, it being agreed that whatever union strikes to secure better conditions, all other unions are indirectly benefited. It is planned to raise $250,000 as a fund to start with. The Australian workers are beginning to realize that the old method of trying to starve out the boss by first starving themselves is not much use, and that financial assistance is needed before strikes can be thought of in the future.

Australian unions are organizing to make the 44-hour week universal. Already many unions are working under the 44-hour week, and it is thought that with a little close organizing it can be brought into operation for all unions. It is claimed that this is the only solution for the growing unemployment that has arisen because of the reconstruction after the war, and the closing down of many activities that existed while the war was on. The 44-hours are to be worked on five days of the week—from Monday to Friday, inclusive, leaving Saturday and Sunday as free days.

In response to numerous communications, the Friends of Freedom for India has compiled the following figures showing the tremendous growth of the co-operative movement in India: In the Bombay Presidency in 1907 there were seventy such societies, with capital of $50,000; in 1909, 209 societies, with a capital of $242,000; in 1916, 992 societies, with a capital of $3,235,000, and in 1919 there were 2083 societies, with a capital of $6,700,000. In the Madras Presidency in 1905 there were only 27 societies, with 2733 members and $35,883 in capital; in 1914-15 there were 1446 societies, 90,088 members and $2,151,862 in capital. In this year the Punjab had 3267 societies, with 154,065 members and $4,557,577 in capital. In 1914-15 there were all over India 16,295 co-operative societies, with 761,935 members, with a share capital of $4,372,-495. Deposits from members amounted to $3,833,160. During this year loans were issued to 2,613,994 members and other societies. In 1905-6, the first year of this movement, there were only 283 societies, 28,629 members, share capital of $43,735 and deposits of $41,310, and 22,670 members and other societies received loans.

REMOVAL and REDUCTION SALE

GREATEST IN THE HISTORY OF SAN FRANCISCO'S WATERFRONT

Our Store Will Be Moved to

37 MARKET STREET

Corner of Steuart on or About December 10, 1920

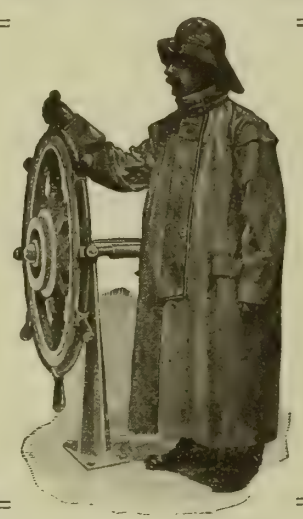
Commencing Nov. 10, We Will Offer For Sale

Can't Bustem and Headlight

Union-Made Waist Overalls, each	$1.50
Bib Overalls	2.00
Blue or Khaki Boiler Suits	3.75
Argonaut Union-Made Double-back Hickory Shirts	1.50
Blue Chambray Shirts	.90
Khaki Pants	2.50
Chalmers Heavy Cotton Ribbed Union Suits	2.00

ARGONAUT UNION-MADE HEAVY WOOL FLANNEL SHIRTS—BLUE, GRAY, OR BROWN, $3.50

MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS
CAPT. CUGLE'S BOOK ON NAVIGATION



FREE INFORMATION OF THE MOVEMENTS OF ALL VESSELS UNDER EVERY FLAG

Lawrence Balbriggan Underwear, Ankle-Length Drawers and Half Sleeve Undershirts, each $ .75
Heavy Wool Underwear, per garment 1.75
Sweater Neck Navy Undershirts 40c and .65
Cotton Socks 15c and Heavy Wool Socks 40c to .90
Regular $3 Dress Shirts for 1.50
Brown Flannel Shirts 1.75

Nautical Instruments and Uniforms

SUITS, OVERCOATS, HATS AND SHOES IN PROPORTION

CAN'T BUST'EM UNION-MADE CORDUROY PANTS, REGULAR $6.50 AND $7.50 VARIETY, NOW FOR SALE AT $4.75

A visit to this store will convince you.

CAPTAIN CHAS. J. SWANSON

36 Steuart Street, near Market

In the Southern Pacific Building
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
Telephone Douglas 1082

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J. 22.50

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney-at-law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 676 Mills Bldg., Telephone Sutter 4673. Residence Phone Prospect 2908.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Chas. T. Smith, Roy Dresser, Joe Ban, Autti Hanks, Thos. Wolstenholme, Chas. Fraser, W. B. Pierce, Karl Olson, William Holmes kindly communicate with John T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 10-6-20

Crew of the S. S. "Wasco," which signed on at New York March 19th and were discharged and arrested at the Cape Verde Islands about October 19th, will be good enough to report or communicate with the undersigned. The trial of some of the crew will come up shortly and I should like to join as many of the crew as possible in their action.—S. B. Axtell, New York, N. Y. 8-4-20

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM

A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
B. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth

This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE

will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.

Send in your order today.

$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Arturo Longueira, age 18, who mysteriously disappeared at South Ferry, New York, on August 25th, or any one knowing his whereabouts, will please communicate with Secretary, Marine Firemen's Union, 70 South St., New York City. 10-20-20

AXTELL'S BOOK

"Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen" for the use of seamen and officers, just out. Copies may be obtained by addressing

RIGHTS & DUTIES OF SEAMEN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
9 State Street, New York City.
$1.00 Per Copy.

To Scandinavian Sailors:

Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.

LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

Approximately 3,000,000 pounds of frozen fish stored at the Seattle port commission's Spokane street terminal, established a high record this year over all previous years. Movement to Eastern points has also broken records.

Captain W. W. Gilmer, deposed Naval Governor of Guam, has been named president of the general court-martial board at the North Island naval aid station, it was announced by Rear Admiral Roger Welles, commandant of the San Diego naval base.

Work was started on the construction of the first group of six permanent buildings for the two-million-dollar naval hospital at Balboa Park, San Diego. The contract for these buildings was awarded recently by the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Navy Department, to the W. E. Kier Construction Company of this city. The contract price of the six buildings was $707,350.

During the month of October nine vessels, with a total tonnage of 34,075 tons, entered at the custom house at Astoria, Or., from foreign ports. Sixteen vessels, with a tonnage of 41,608 tons, cleared for foreign ports. Seventy-nine vessels, with a tonnage of 130,154 tons, entered in the coastwise trade, while seventy-seven vessels with a tonnage of 33,486 tons sailed for domestic ports.

Application has been made by the Robert Dollar Steamship Company to the Shipping Board for the freighter "West Harts," which has been under their operation in the trans-Pacific, to be placed on their service between this port and New York. Should the Board sanction the petition the company will operate the craft in conjunction with the steamer "Stanley Dollar" on the run from this port to New York.

Savannah has been added as a port of call for vessels of the Pacific Mail in their service between San Francisco and Baltimore, according to word received here recently from Horace W. Cross of the traffic department of the company. The terminals of the Central of Georgia Railway will be used by the steamship line. All vessels of the Pacific Mail in the run from here to Baltimore will call at the Georgia port.

That the Admiral Line intends to maintain four vessels on its Portland-Oriental service is evidenced in a report received in San Francisco Saturday. The Shipping Board vessel "Montague" has been assigned to this service, and will sail for the Orient with a general cargo November 15. Other steamers on this run are the "Abercos," "Coaxet" and "Pawlet." North China, Japan and the Philippine Islands are included in the ports of call.

Twenty-three vessels cleared foreign from Portland during the month of October. Of these, twelve were American steamships, four American sailing craft, four British steamships, one Dutch steamship, one Danish motorship and one French bark. Most of the vessels cleared for the United Kingdom. The steamship "Wawalona" cleared for Cadiz in Spain, the "Waban" for Callao and the "Wm. H. Talbot" for Mollendo. With the exception of the schooner "Florence Olsen," for Santo Domingo, the others went to the Orient.

Reports from London stated that the bark "Harvard" had put into the port of Papeete, Tahiti, with serious leaks. The "Harvard" was bound with cargo for Valparaiso, leaving Sydney, Australia, September 16. According to the report received at the marine exchange of the Chamber of Commerce, the "Harvard" is in a serious condition. A severe gale encountered a few days before Papeete was reached was responsible for the damage. Departure for the South American port will be delayed until full repairs have been made.

J. O. Davis, Collector of Customs at San Francisco, is in receipt of a communication from the Commissioner of Navigation, stating that the British Board of Trade has decided to withdraw all concessions in connection with the carrying of timber deck loads to the United Kingdom, which were made during the war and allowed during the winters of 1919-1920. The message states that the enforcement will be made of section 10 of the British Merchant Shipping Act of 1906, and the regulations made thereunder will be in force during the coming winter.

A curious phenomenon is being witnessed by divers who are working on the wreck of the steamer "Prince Rupert." The ship was beached at Swanson Bay and a cofferdam is being constructed around her before she can be refloated. She is within a few hundred yards of a pulp mill where quantities of sulphuric acid are being used to bleach out paper and pulp. The residue from this acid is discharged into the sea. Though the resulting mixture is perhaps a million of water to one of acid, yet brass work and polished steel in the ship are rapidly corroded on the surface by the action of the acid. No permanent damage is expected to result, though a very troublesome rust is now taking hold of the metal. The salvage work generally is getting along well, but it is realized that refloating and refitting the vessel, being done by the Pacific Salvage Company, will be an all-winter's job.

Statistics compiled by the Seattle port warden's office indicate that the revival of the intercoastal trade via the Panama Canal is beginning to have a tremendous effect on the domestic commerce of the Pacific Coast. In the case of Seattle alone, as set forth by the port warden's figures, domestic cargoes in June, July, August and September, this year, increased 183,167 tons as compared with the same period in 1919. The tonnage for the four months this year totataled 1,497,154 as against 1,313,987 for the same period last year. Virtually all the gain is credited to the revived intercoastal service. The same ratio of increase holds good for San Francisco and other coast ports sharing in the new intercoastal trade. From now on an even greater average monthly increase is expected than during the period mentioned, due to the influx of more vessels.

Sixty-four bottoms is the grand total of the fleet of the Washington Tug and Barge Company of Seattle since the company placed in commission its new towboats, the "Wasp," "Hornet" and "Bee." The new tugs are Diesel-powered, sixty feet long, with a beam of sixteen feet and a depth of seven feet. These vessels going into service strengthened the company's fleet into one of the biggest on the Pacific Coast, comprising fourteen tugs, eight ocean-going barges and forty-two barges and scows for inland waters. The three new tugs were all built under the supervision of Capt. J. C. Brownfield in Seattle. He is general manager of the company. The "Wasp" and "Hornet" are products of the Marine Iron Works, West Seattle, while the "Bee" was built in the company's own plant in the East Waterway.

The San Diego power schooner "Newark," that stranded on San Carlos Point, Lower California, October 14, is being pounded into driftwood by the heavy southwest swells prevailing off the lower coast, according to A. E. Sherry, former engineer of the illfated craft, who arrived in San Diego on the power schooner "Rex." Sherry said that huge foam-crested combers smashed against the "Newark's" sides, caving them in and forcing the large blocks of onyx stowed in the hold upward through the hatches. The jagged rocks on which the schooner stranded have pierced the hull, and Sherry believes it is only the question of a few days before the beach will be strewn with the "Newark's" wreckage. A large part of the running rigging, including blocks and tackle, were salved by Sherry and two other members of the "Newark's" crew before the high seas began running. This gear will be brought to San Diego on the schooner "Jennie Griffin."

The report that the Norway-Pacific Co. of Everett, Wash., had received a contract from Norwegian sources for six 12,000-ton deadweight tankers has not aroused much enthusiasm in shipbuilding circles for the reason that not so very long ago the same concern was reported to have booked an order for an even larger batch of such boats. It is now said that the company will deliver the first ship under the contract in August next year and the last one in 1922. If it does so with its present equipment, which is limited to but a single building berth, the company will have accomplished something unique in the history of shipbuilding. According to report, the construction of the Everett shipyard involved the Norwegian capitalists interested therein in a tremendous outlay, considering the size of the plant and it is generally believed that the tankers now reported as about to be built will be constructed on account of the owners of the yard.

Four freighters of the United States Shipping Board are to be laid up at San Francisco. The vessels are the "Mursa," 4386 tons; "Janelew," 4391 tons; "Eastern Gale," 2872 tons, and the "Mohinkia," 3782 tons. It was decided to tie the vessels up indefinitely, following the return of the last two vessels by the Matson Navigation Company to the Government. The other two crafts were ordered laid up following their completion by the Moore yards. Overberthing of tonnage on trade routes and the slump in the freight markets of the world will result in the withdrawal of other freighters plying out of San Francisco, according to operators. San Francisco was the last of the seaports of the world to be forced to withdraw freighters from service. Throughout the world months ago vessels were ordered withdrawn. There are more than 200 vesesls, most of them Shipping Board craft, tied up in East Coast ports. Other ports of the Pacific, months ago, were forced to withdraw vessels plying out to the Orient on account of the freight slump.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco. Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street

Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....ROBERT OLSEN, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841

Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RORENS, Agent
260 President Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....F. NELSON, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
510 Trust Building
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
332 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....A. BOGE, Agent
21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 West Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....J. VALLE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....R. BELL, Agent
669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976

Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue

Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....816 River Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES LABOR COUNCIL SAN FRANCISCO

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1920.

LAW AND ORDER

An organizer for the International Timber Workers' Union was literally run out of Susanville, California, recently for no apparent reason except that he was not wanted there by the Westwood Lumber Company. The running out was done with the assistance, or at least with the connivance of sworn officers of the law. It is the old story of men who talk much about law and order but who by their very action create disrespect and contempt for authority.

Susanville is a village situated in a lumber district controlled by the Westwood Lumber Company. In several of these California lumber towns, where labor is unorganized, there are signs with this inscription:

"This street and all others in this town are private property. The right to use them is revocable at any time."

In Susanville wages are exceptionally law, and the 10-hour day still prevails. Room rents range from $1.25 to $1.75 a day and from $2 to $3.50 a day in the hotel. Living costs are higher than in almost any other section of the State, and in the mills there is a labor turnover of 75 per cent.

Naturally an active organizer would find ready response to the hopes for improvement always held out by unionism. No one knew this better than the little Czar of the lumber company. And, therefore, this organizer was arrested by an "officer of the law" with the results stated.

It is a sad commentary on "law and order" when officials entrusted with the enforcemnet of law themselves become the principal violators of law. But that is just what transpired at Susanville.

To be sure organized labor cannot be seriously hurt, much less destroyed, by lawlessness. The real sufferer is organized government and the free institutions which distinguish America from so many countries on earth.

The record of trade unionism shows that, after all, man was not made to mourn.

PAPER VS. LUMBER.

One of the reasons for the high cost of paper may be hidden in this press item:

Montreal, Quebec, Nov. 1.—Total profits of the Spanish River pulp and paper mills equaled 22½ per cent. on its common stock, last fiscal year, it is announced. This profit was made after liberal allowance for depreciation and all other charges, including royal salaries to managers, were met.

The cost of the paper used in publishing the JOURNAL was from 4½ to 5 cents per pound just before the war. Today it is 22¾ cents per pound.

Of course there are other reasons for the high cost of paper.

In response to a Senate resolution, the United States Forest Service has recently studied the situation. It was found that high prices of lumber paper, turpentine and other forest products, not to mention lumber, have seriously affected many industries and in various ways have imposed formidable burdens on the public. House building has been checked, farm development and upkeep hampered, and cost of furniture, vehicles, tool handles, agricultural implements and other articles heavily increased. The pulpwood and paper industry is in straits for raw material from the forests.

"Depletion of timber supplies in the eastern part of the United States has reached the point," says a Forest Service bulletin, "at which Eastern and even Southern markets are being invaded by West Coast lumber, hitherto barred by the high cost of transportation."

The timber of the country as a whole is being used and destroyed four times as fast as new timber is growing, and the saw timber, the most valuable and most needed part of the stand, is being cut five and a half times as fast as it is produced. More than 80,000,000 acres of land that should be growing timber is unproductive waste, much more is only partially productive, and fires are steadily causing further deterioration.

The new study of the situation made by Forest Service contains many facts never before brought out, regarding both individual industries and conditions in individual States and regions. It discusses also the relation between forest depletion and lumber prices, depletion and exports, and concentration in timber ownership, manufacture and marketing.

Finally, a program is outlined for bringing about a fundamental and permanent change in the situation. Timber in large quantities will always be an economic necessity, and we must prepare to grow it. The measures required for this are outlined in full in two Forest Service publications just issued. One of these is the complete text of the report on Senate Resolution 311, and is entitled "Timber Depletion, Lumber Prices, Lumber Exports, and Concentration of Timber Ownership." It is sold, price 25 cents per copy (stamps not accepted), by Superintendent of Public Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. The second publication is U. S. Department of Agriculture Circular 112, "Timber Depletion and the Answer." This is a summary of the report, and will be sent free, on request, by Department of Agriculture

WARS AND TAXES.

Talk about disarmament!

Data compiled by the United States Bureau of Standards show that 93 cents out of every dollar of Uncle Sam's money this year goes for war, past, present or to come.

Only one cent out of every dollar goes for education and the improvement of the public health.

Copies of this remarkable analysis of our national budget may be secured on application to Dr. E. B. Rosa, United States Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

Whereas the cities spend an average of $6 per capita for education per year, and the States and private agencies about $3 per year per capita for education, Uncle Sam with his huge billions only spends 6 cents per capita for education,—and some of that goes to the "land grant" colleges for military drill!

Without anybody in the country realizing it, your Uncle seems to have become obsessed with militarism to the exclusion of the normal, balanced interests of government. Of course the truth is merely that the army and navy have developed a "technique" for extracting from Congress huge appropriations whereas the other departments have not.

According to the analysis quoted above, the national government is levying a tax of $50 this year upon every man, woman and child in the United States, and of this amount $46.50 goes for war and militarism.

Now on top of it comes our own Congressman Julius Kahn of San Francisco and genially proposes a system of universal military training which will cost the country, according to Congressman Mondell, the Republican floor leader and watchdog of the Treasury, in the neighborhood of one billion dollars a year!

A MID-PACIFIC WEATHER BUREAU.

Plans have been completed for the installation of a weather bureau on Midway Island, the British cable station. This island, as its name indicates, lies about midway between the Pacific Coast and the Orient, at a spot some 1,100 miles northwest of Honolulu. It was once a bleak, sandy atoll, visited only by seabirds, but the Commercial Pacific Cable Company has expended a deal of money to make it habitable, until now it blooms like a tropical oasis in the watery waste surrounding it.

When the weather bureau has been duly installed, trained meteorological experts will make daily observations of the weather conditions. Data will be collected on the tides, currents, temperature of the water, and related phenomena. The information thus obtained will be cabled daily, or as often as may be necessary, to Honolulu, Pacific Coast ports, and the leading ports in the Orient, for comparison and compilation. In this way a scientific system of transpacific weather observations will be worked out that will enable the weather sharps to make correct forecasts of typhoons and other disturbances, and send timely warnings to shipping. Ships at sea will be notified by wireless, giving details of the oncoming blow, such as its location, probable velocity, direction in which it moves, etc. The ships, in turn, will co-operate with the weather bureau by sending in correct reports of the weather conditions in their locality. Warnings will also be sent by the bureau to inhabited stretches of low-lying, exposed coast lands of approaching tidal waves.

That the weather bureau on Midway Island will be of great value to shipping is a certainty. There is a stretch of more than 3,000 miles in the Western Pacific ocean where, at present, little definite information on weather conditions can be obtained. Yet it is in this region where the typhoon has its habitat. The only warning mariners now receive of its coming is afforded by the barometer and a certain threatening appearance of the sky. How inadequate these warnings are is shown by the frequency with which ships are caught and damaged in typhoons, to say nothing of those that founder.

JAPANESE IN CALIFORNIA

By a three-to-one vote the people of California have adopted a new anti-alien land law, aimed in particular at the Japanese. Under the terms of the old law, land owning by aliens not eligible to citizenship is prohibited, and the leasing of land to such people limited to three years. Under the new law leasing is stopped entirely. Several other minor changes are made in the old law, but in the main the vote cast for this Initiative is California's answer to a very pointed problem—namely, the gradual withdrawal of the white American agriculturist when confronted with Japanese competition.

The following quotations from a recent report on the subject by the State Board of Control tells the story:

It is interesting to note that in some of the richest counties of the State, Orientals occupy a total acreage ranging from 50 per cent. to 75 per cent. of the total irrigated area; notably, San Joaquin County, with a total of 130,000 irrigated acres with Orientals occupying 95,829 acres; Colusa, with a total of 70,000 acres, with Orientals occupying 51,105 acres; Placer County, with 19,000 total, Orientals occupying 16,321 acres; and Sacramento County, 80,000, Orientals ocupying 64,880.

Having these, and a mass of similar facts and figures at their disposal, the people of California voted to preserve the Golden State as a heritage to the white race. For, it should be known that in California agriculture is "the" basic industry, leading all other industries in value of production by $500,000,000 annually.

The solemn referendum on "going in" or "staying out" of the League of Nations was a rather conclusive affair as far as the so-called Wilson League is concerned. Nevertheless, the Wilson League by no means ceases to exist just because America refuses to "go in." The League of Nations is a going concern with twenty-six members. That it is actually functioning will be noted by a perusal of the article upon the question printed in another column of this issue. But without the United States and Russia, not to mention the defeated empires of Central Europe, the League can never be successful. President Wilson's confident but sadly mistaken assumption that the American people were back of him and his League is destined to become one of the great emotional tragedies recorded in history.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS AT WORK

Third International Labor Conference Scheduled To Be Held at Geneva, Switzerland, in April 1921.

The third meeting of the general conference of the International Labor Organization, functioning under the auspices of the League of Nations, will convene at Geneva on April 4, 1921, according to advices received from M. Albert Thomas, Director of International Labor Office.

The preparation of the Agenda has been completed by the International Labor Office and a questionnaire has been sent to the governments of the members as well as to representative employers' and workers' organizations.

As soon as replies to this questionnaire have been received, the Office will prepare preliminary reports on each item of the Agenda for use of the delegates and their advisers at the conference.

The Agenda for the third International Labor Conference adopted by the governing body, is as follows:

1. Reform of constitution of the Governing Body of the International Labor Office.
2. Agricultural questions:
   (a) The adaptation of the Washington decisions to agricultural labor:
      I. Regulation of the hours of work.
      II. Measures for the prevention of or providing against unemployment.
      III. The protection of women and children.
   (b) Technical agricultural education.
   (c) Living-on conditions of agricultural workers.
   (d) Guarantee of the rights of association and combination.
   (e) Protection against accident, sickness, invalidity and old age.
3. (a) Disinfection of wool infected with anthrax spores.
   (b) Prohibition of the use of white lead in painting.
4. The weekly rest day in industrial and commercial employment.
5. (a) The prohibition of the employment of any person under the age of 18 years as trimmer or stoker.
   (b) Compulsory medical examination of all children employed on board ship.

The Director of the International Labor Office has dispatched to the governments of the members, the following letter convening the conference and communicating the Agenda to the delegates:

League of Nations
International Labor Office

Sir:

I have the honor to communicate to you herewith the Agenda of the third meeting of the General Conference of the International Labor Organization which is to be held at Geneva on April 4, 1921.

The three first items of the Agenda were inscribed by the Governing Body of the International Labor Office during its session held in London, March 22-25, 1920. The fourth item was added during the session of the Governing Body held at Genoa, June 8-9, 1920. The fifth item was inscribed on the Agenda in accordance with paragraph 3 of Article 4-2 of the Treaty of Peace, as the result of a decision taken by the General Conference, which, during its second meeting at Genoa, June 15 to July 10, 1920, approved of the insertion of this item in the Agenda during its sitting of June 29, 1920, by a majority of 70 votes to 10 in the case of paragraph (a) and of 78 votes to 2 in the case of paragraph (b).

These five items compose the actual Agenda to which apply the various articles of the Treaty of Peace. There will also be laid before the Conference a report of the Chairman of the Governing Body dealing with the work of the International Labor Office from the time of its creation after the Washington Conference, and a report of the Director of the International Labor Office dealing with the application of the Draft Conventions and Recommendations adopted by the Washington Conference. The Conference will also be furnished with a report from the International Commission on Emigration set up by the Governing Body in conformity with a resolution adopted by the Washington Conference.

In accordance with the Treaty of Peace, each of the Members of the International Organization of Labor has the right to be represented at the General Conference by four Delegates, of whom two shall be Government Delegates and the other two shall represent the Employers and Workers respectively. Each Delegate may be accompanied by two Advisers for each of the items of the Agenda. The provisions of Article 389 of the Treaty of Peace lay down that the non-Government Delegates and Advisers are to be nominated in agreement with the industrial organizations which are most representative in each country of the Employers and Workers respectively. The same article provides that when questions particularly affecting women are to come up for discussion at the Conference, as is the case for the Geneva

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 8, 1920.
Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Ed. Andersen presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; members ashore plentiful.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.
This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 1, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Nov. 1, 1920.
Shipping dull.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Nov. 1, 1920.
Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL, Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Nov. 1, 1920.
Shipping medium; prospects uncertain.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Nov. 1, 1920.
Shipping dull; prospects uncertain.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Nov. 1, 1920.
Shipping dull; members ashore plentiful.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Oct. 25, 1920.
Shipping slack; prospects uncertain.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4, 1920.
Secretary reported shipping slow; some members ashore. Balloting for officers for ensuing term and delegates to I. S. U. of A. Convention was proceeded with.

EUGENE BURKE,
Secretary pro tem.

No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Oct. 27, 1920.
Shipping slow; some members ashore.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Oct. 27, 1920.
No meeting; shipping good; no members ashore.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED

Malte Wm. G. Trabaudt, No. 1007, a native of Germany, age 23. Died at Port Ludlow, Wash., September, 1919.

The steam schooner "Pacific," third of the vessels to be completed with machinery installed at the Kruse & Banks Shipyard at Coos Bay, which was put to her trial tests recently, is now taking on nearly two-thirds of a million feet of lumber for foreign delivery. The remainder of the cargo will be taken at Portland before the craft leaves for South America. The American Bureau of Shipping has given the three steam schooners finished at Coos Bay the highest rating in their class, a matter of real commercial significance.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

THE SORROWS OF SEAMEN.

For some time past we have purposely refrained from publicly recording the frightful accidents sustained by unfortunate seamen in the course of their ordinary employment on shipboard, nearly all of them directly traceable to defective gear, failure to supply suitable preventives or gross carelessness and gross indifference on the part of hoggish shipowners.

Since writing up the revolting details of Comrade John Swanson's terrible ordeal in a life-and-death tussle with a windlass on the steamship "Bellbrook," and his subsequent sufferings, maltreatment and harrowing experiences, we have been training our pen to portray other topics and leave the bone-breaking, soul-wracking, blood-curdling subjects out, in deference to the feelings of our readers as well as our own.

But the hideous reports and excruciating details of such dreadful happenings continue to pour in with such alarming frequency and regular increase that we feel that longer silence on our part would be taken by our fellow-seamen to indicate an attitude of cold indifference and callous disregard of appalling dangers and direful injuries to which seamen are being constantly exposed.

For a long time the heartless shipmongers were able to shift their responsibilities in such instances upon the rule of fellow servants, contributory negligence, imperceptible defects and the acts of God. But since Congress has wisely revoked the ancient legal subterfuges, and God can no longer be blasphemously charged with the deed of the devil, the crafty shipowners are now to insure their purses against litigation to assess damages for seamen crippled, maimed or murdered through their criminal carelessness and brutal neglect. Of course it is cheaper for the shipowner to pay insurance than to be mulcted in damages. It is likewise more dangerous for the seamen; for the shipowner having succeeded in transfering his own burden of guilt on to the shoulders of one of the keenly competing insurance gougers, becomes himself financially immune from prosecution or damages and is blithely unconcerned as to accidents to seamen.

But now, as we are about to disclose, the enterprising and astute shipowners have hatched up another plan to protect them against damage suits in certain classes of crimes.

Whenever an injured seaman happens to be an alien born, no matter how long or how faithfully he may have served in the American merchant marine, the cheapest, surest and safest way to dispose of him and avoid mulcting is to have him deported. Whenever the immigration officials can be persuaded that because of the effects of his injury or crippled condition, the victim of their grasping enterprise is no longer seaworthy, is therefore likely to become a public charge, and should be deported, the rest is easy and uninteresting unless—— In a few cases of record recently brought to our attention by Attorney Frederick E. Graves of New York it appears that in some instances at least the shipowners have been checkmated in their cold-blooded attempts to dispose of the hapless victims of their insidious and treacherous business methods by the deportation route.

In appeals taken before the Department of Labor in Washington on behalf of two injured seamen in cases of this kind, Mr. Graves has succeeded in obtaining stays of execution from the decisions of the Board of Special Inquiry at Ellis Island to deport the unfortunate subjects until they have been given time to institute and prosecute legal proceedings to recover damages in the United States courts.

One of these petitioners, Antonio Cisilia, is a native of Dutch West Indies. He states in his petition that he has been a seafarer 19 years and has served six years continuously in the American merchant marine. His last unfortunate voyage was made in the American steamship "Guantanamo." He signed at New York on June 15, 1920, as an A. B. On June 24, while the ship was at Cienfuegos, Cuba, Cisilia sustained an injury to his left leg which necessitated amputation. From the scant excerpts from the testimony submitted to us in this case, it appears that Cisilia's accident was the result of attempting, with the help of a shipmate, to hang off a derrick lift from a winch by hand after the boom had been hoisted.

Cisilia testifies that when the boom had been peaked up to the desired height, he and his watchmate were ordered to hang off the wire fall from the winchhead and carry it in to the mast and belay.

But the fall being very slippery, having been freshly greased with fish oil, could only be held by the utmost exertion on the part of the two seamen, and as they became drawn toward the winch, which appears to have been still in operation, Cisilia's companion, fearful of being caught in the revolving gears, suddenly released his hold, and the boom being too heavy for one man, fell to its bed with a crash. Cisilia's left foot became tangled in the coil of slack wire on deck and with the falling of the boom he was carried aloft until his foot was jammed in the gin through which the fall led at the masthead. Cisilia's foot was released by the impact and he fell to the deck. He was taken to the civil hospital at Cienfuegos, where it was found that his limb was so badly crushed that amputation was imperative.

Cisilia remained in the hospital until September 20, 1920, when he was returned to the United States, but was promptly detained by the immigration authorities upon reaching New York.

On October 1, 1920, Cisilia was brought before the Board of Special Inquiry at Ellis Island, and, after a hearing, the board decided that he should be deported, because, on account of his crippled condition, resulting from service in the American merchant marine, he was liable to become a public charge, and because he was unable to pass the literacy test required of immigrants.

On October 2 Mr. Graves filed an appeal in Cisilia's behalf with the Department of Labor at Washington, and as a result an order has just been issued by the department granting a stay of deportation in Cisilia's case, and admitting him to the United States for two months, under bond, to enable him to enter suit for damages against the owners of the "Guantanamo" and straighten out his personal affairs.

Another case similar to that of Cisilia's also brought to our attention by Attorney Graves is that of Louis Albert, late bos'n of the United States Shipping Board's steamship "Lake Mattato," who lost an arm while on duty as the result of the sudden and unexpected reversing of a defective and long-neglected winch.

From the record of testimony taken in his case it appears that the accident to Albert, which resulted in the loss of his arm, likewise happened in Cuba, though the name of the particular port is not stated in the abstract before us. From the evidence, however, it appears that while in a Cuban port the crew of the "Lake Mattato" were about to hoist in a pontoon which had been floating alongside.

The fall had been hooked on to the float, and the winch started when the runner became foul on the drum. The reversing lever on the winch had been out of order for some time previous to this occurence, so that it would not remain in a neutral position without support. For this reason it had long been the usual practice to chock the lever with a stick of wood to hold it in position, as was done in the present instance. But as Albert leaned over the winch to clear the runner, the stick dropped out, allowing the lever suddenly to reverse, the bights of the cable (relaxed from the drum) sprung upward and struck Albert on the back of his left hand and the flesh was lacerated by the straggling end of a broken steel thread, thickly infested, no doubt, with the usual accumulation of grease, grime and rust. The ship's steward applied casual dressing to the wound, but Albert's hand soon became badly swollen, discolored and painful, nevertheless, and four days later he was sent to a hospital. But the infection continued to increase, despite expert medical attention and care, and eventually developed into a remorseless case of blood poisoning. As a necessary result of which Albert's arm had to be amputated between the elbow and shoulder one month and fifteen days after his admission to the hospital. The steamship "Lake Mattato," being operated by and under charter to the Ward Line, Albert was returned to New York as a consular passenger in the "Mexico" of the same line, arriving here September 7, 1920.

But on arrival he was immediately grabbed off the ship by the vigilant immigration authorities and detained at Ellis Island for deportation as an undesirable alien.

From an abstract of the proceedings before the Board of Special Inquiry at Ellis Island, Albert is recorded as testifying that he is a native of Dutch West Indies, born at Curacoa, to which place he now desires to return of his own volition as soon as his personal affairs in the United States have been arranged. He further testifies that he is 29 years of age, single and in good health, and has served four years in the American Merchant Marine. He holds an identification card issued by the U. S. Inspector of Immigration in Baltimore, Md., showing that he has made a number of consecutive trips in the steamships "Decatur Bridge" and "Lake Mattato" since April 28, 1919.

Albert is also shown to have $400 deposited to his credit in the Dime Savings Bank, New York City, besides $24 in his possession at the time he was detained, and he has also been offered a permanent shore position by the Ward Line out of consideration for his injuries.

The "unanimous opinion" of the Board, founded entirely upon the medical certificate submitted by Drs. Ramus and Roberts, seems absolutely to ignore all other factors in his case.

In the medical certificate Albert is grimly referred to as an "immigrant afflicted with the loss of his left arm above the elbow which may affect his ability to earn a living."

Basing its opinion upon the finding of the doctors, the Board unanimously decides that after four years' faithful service in the American Merchant Marine, Louis Albert ceased to be a seaman and became an undesirable immigrant from the moment he was crippled for life through the criminal neglect of his employers to provide safe and suitable machinery or appliances to protect the lives and limbs of their employes, and must therefore be deported as a worthless social incumbrance. Convenient scheme, isn't it?

Neither his record of previous service, his possession of $424.00, his lien upon the ship, nor the willingness of his late employers to furnish him employment commensurate with his power of performance in his crippled condition, seem to carry any weight affecting the decision of the austere and dignified Board of Inquiry.

At the close of its deliberations Albert was notified by the board of his exclusion and advised as to his right of appeal.

"Do you understand your rights?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

Then go to 'em, is the advice given him by implication at least, and that is what Albert is now doing. Through an appeal entered by Mr. Graves at the Department of Labor in his behalf, Louis Albert has been admitted to the United States and granted a stay of one year to enable him to press his claim for damages against the New York and Cuba Mail S. S. Company (Ward Line), operating the "Lake Mattato," and the U. S. Shipping Board, her actual owner.

Quite apart from any considerations of equity that may be inspired by a sympathetic study of the foregoing, we feel it doubly incumbent upon us to repeat our oft-reiterated admonition to all American seamen to become American citizens also. An alien seaman is protected by the flag only as long as he remains in the actual service of an American ship, and no longer. The moment he signs clear he resumes his alien status to all intents and purposes, and ceases to be legally regarded as an American seaman.

The route to full-fledged American citizenship is open to all right-minded foreign seamen except Asiatics, and special laws and regulations are provided to facilitate their admission.

In a great many instances neither the union nor its attorneys have been able to assist members who have either purposely or carelessly neglected to become naturalized.

In both cases cited above, the injured seamen were unable to pass the literary test, which offered the board an additional and legal reason for their summary deportation.

In the United States abundant facilities for the study of English and for naturalization abound everywhere, and the seaman who fails to take advantage of them is apt to find himself in a very unpleasant position sooner or later in consequence.

Neither the shipowners nor the immigration authorities are likely to be very inquisitive regarding a seaman's political status or literary attainments until something happens to him or he is compelled to assert his rights. Then he suddenly and invariably becomes one of those detested foreigners, by gosh, and must be deported forthwith to save the land from anarchy.

J. H. W.

MODERN HORRORS WITH ANCIENT DETAILS

That the ancient hell-ship practices of bucko mates and brutal masters have not been completely suppressed by modern enlightenment and humane legislation is evidenced by the frequent reports of union officials covering the complaints of tortured and outraged seamen coming into their various spheres of influence at the different seaports along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

The latest report of this kind to reach us comes from Comrade A. Andrade, agent of the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders' Union at Portland, Me.

Comrade Andrade reports the brutal and inquisitorial beating and tricing up of Comrade Alvaro de Carvalho, coalpasser on the S. S. "Polar Star," by the chief mate, O. Atkinson, during a recent voyage to Europe and return.

The unrestrained ferocity and atrocious cruelty manifested by Atkinson in this instance, in persecuting, beating and torturing a defenseless and crippled seaman, mark him as an inhuman monster of the lowest brute type, better qualified to decorate a gibbet than a ship's bridge.

According to Mr. Andrade's report, Comrade Carvalho sustained a broken arm by an accident to an ash-winch on board the "Polar Star" while en route from Norfolk, Va., to a French port. Upon arriving in France the master and chief mate endeavored by every means known to the craft (and there are many) to chase, coax, entice or otherwise induce the injured coalpasser to vamoose and hit the beach. But Carvalho steadfastly refused to leave the ship under any conditions except to go to the hospital. The mate then unslung his pipe line bunk and compelled the poor cripple to lie about the deck on benches, or as best he might.

When the ship reached Fowey, England, a marine surgeon came on board and set and dressed Carvalho's broken arm and ordered him to lay up for six weeks.

On her return voyage the ship called again at a French port and, after a two-weeks' stay, cleared on July 15, 1920, for Portland, Me.

On the following day, July 16, Mister Mate came to the forecastle door, dragged the crippled coalpasser out by the neck and, after beating and punching him unmercifully for some time, ordered him to shovel the two-weeks' accumulation of ashes, heaped on deck, overboard.

This Carvalho was manifestly unable to do with a broken arm, and so protested his helplessness. Thereupon the mate took Carvalho forward where no one could observe his actions, and strung him up by his toes beneath the forecastle-head, keeping him suspended in that excruciating predicament half an hour.

Why slander the unspeakable Turk after reading this? The Turk at least is immune from the censure of his creed or the reprobation of his fellows, but the unprovoked barbarities of unbridled buckoism deserve the execration even of brute beasts.

Upon arriving at Portland, Carvalho and five of his messmates promptly reported the above recorded events to the Union Agent, and shortly afterwards the mate was arrested and taken from the ship by the U. S. Marshal on a warrant sworn out before the U. S. Commissioner.

The mate was held in three hundred dollars bail for a hearing the following morning. After the hearing his bail was raised to five hundred dollars, and the seamen witnesses were detained in one hundred dollars bail each to await the opening of the fall term of the District Court on Sept. 21.

The mate furnished his own bond and the five seamen were released on bail furnished by the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders' Union. The names of Carvalho's witnesses are as follows: Paul Daniels, Jose Lorca, Wm. Derrigan, Edwin M. Dahlgren and Andere Martinson.

All the witnesses shipped together with the expectation of returning to Portland in time to testify at the trial, but through a change of orders their ship finished her voyage at Mobile instead of Portland. They at once communicated with the Portland Agent, however, from Mobile, and arrangements were at once made for their transportation back to Portland, and orders to that effect were telegraphed the Mobile Agent from the headquarters of the Marine Firemen's Union in New York.

At Portland all the witnesses responded to the call of the Federal Grand Jury and submitted their testimony. The mate failed to appear, but we understand a true bill

(Continued on Page 11)

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

(By Laurence Todd.)

If election returns show that the reactionaries succeeded in fooling the people into sending back to Washington as dangerously stupid and cruel a set of men as comprise the present Congress, then labor and the farmers will be forced into a defensive position at an early date. Labor will be driven to defend its right to organize and to quit work, while the farmers will be told that they must keep up production regardless of the cost, and regardless of whether they receive a subsistence wage. In self-defense, labor and the farmers will turn to co-operative plans—both economic and political.

Just this week Secretary Frank Morrison of the A. F. of L. and William Johnston, general president of the Machinists, went before the Farmers' Emergency Credit Protest Conference here, and told the farmers that organized labor was ready to help them fight their common enemy—the gambler in commodities and in money credit. Morrison denounced Congress for its attacks upon organized labor, told of the program of the anti-union forces to enact laws "compelling workers to remain at their jobs against their will," and suggested to the farmers that the same profiteers, holding political and financial power, might next pass laws compelling the farmer to raise certain crops, even at a price below the cost of their production. The workers on the land and the workers in the cities, he concluded, must stand together for a real democracy in America, and to rid the nation of the profiteer.

Johnston, who brought a message also from Warren S. Stone of the Locomotive Engineers, whose organization is launching a million-dollar co-operative bank, said that labor and the farmers must clean out Congress and send men there who had the economic and political freedom and safety of the masses as their first concern. He said that the city workers and farmers are robbed by the same middlemen, and must co-operate to do away with the poverty suffered by the many and the extravagance wasted upon the few. His union was lending its funds to the Non-partisan farmers of North Dakota to help them in marketing their wheat; the Chicago unions were doing the same. They were strengthening themselves by aiding the farmers.

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, sent a similar message of sympathy and co-operation to the farmers.

The farmers, in turn, were ready to pledge their political support to measures desired by labor from the next Congress. The most powerful factor among the organized farmers is, naturally, the least progressive—the Farm Bureau Federation. Its legislative agents here supported the Esch-Cummins bill. But now they are seeing the light, and with the rapid fall in prices of farm products their position has shifted to one of aggressive opposition to the financial powers in Congress and in Wall Street. The other farm organizations had already taken a pro-labor attitude, more or less hastened by the alliance between the Non-partisan League and the labor movement in the Northwest.

So we shall probably see a close alliance of the labor and farmer lobbies in Washington this winter, with the result that a farmer-labor political tide will begin to gather force, to reach a crest in 1922.

One of the many items that go to make up this conclusion is the failure of the Wilson administration to grant the political amnesty which was half-promised by Attorney-General Palmer to Mr. Gompers' committee which visited him in September. At that time the labor officials were given to understand that, while no "general" amnesty would be considered, yet most of the political prisoners, including Eugene V. Debs, would probably be released from prison before election day. This hint was spread broadcast as an argument for further confidence by labor in the Democratic party. It now appears that this half-promise was not to be taken seriously.

Reports from the field to labor headquarters here show that business is not improving. Unemployment is steadily growing. The so-called "American plan" of the non-union shop with a company-run association of the employes to spy upon and drive out trade unionists, is to be made the issue in great numbers of manufacturing plants where union agreements have been signed during the past three years. Bankers are largely directly this campaign against the unions—a fact which gives color to the suspicion that it is being staged from one central source of authority. While in Philadelphia the textile manufacturers declare war on "radical" unionism, they actually try to break down the locals of the United Textile Workers of America in that industry. In New York the Teamsters' membership, which is conservative to the last degree, has been served with a notice from the organized employers that the ten-hour day must be restored. In Detroit and in the centers of rubber manufacture, thousands of men are being laid off. It is no secret that manufacturers who are willing to fight the unions can get credit, to tide over a bad market, more readily than can employers who are at peace with unionism.

A crisis may be hastened by the election of Harding and a reactionary Republican majority in the House. Speculation is current as to the possible decision of President Wilson to resign, and virtually give over to his elected successor the control of national policy. He is quite unlikely to do anything of the kind, because he has no confidence in his successor's ability to run the Government. But as soon as a change of administration has been ordered at the polls the President will find that his successor will be the man consulted by the business forces as to what they will be permitted to do. If Harding gives the word, organized business will feel perfectly safe in turning loose all its guns against organized labor within a week after the ballots are counted.

Last-minute predictions are that neither Congressman Nolan of San Francisco nor Raymond Robins of Chicago will be Secretary of Labor in the Harding cabinet. Nolan will get some appointive position, but its character has not been determined. Robins is now mentioned as the first Ambassador to Soviet Russia, with whose conditions he is familiar. This brings up the question of whether Hutcheson of the Carpenters, Lee of the Railway Trainmen, or Lewis of the United Mine Workers, may not get the cabinet job. Lewis is out speaking for Harding, and it is said that his displeasure has fallen upon several organizers of the U. M. W. A. who were on the stump for the A. F. of L. Non-partisan Political Committee in aid of Cox.

The investigation into reasons for lack of house building in New York City, now being conducted by a legislative committee, has thus far shown chiefly the astonishing relations of R. P. Brindell, president of the New York Building Trades Council, with contractors, scabs, wars against regular A. F. of L. unions, and Tammany politicians. Testimony from officers of unions cast out and destroyed by Brindell indicates that members of his irregular local of house wreckers had to pay $10 a week to him or his agents, from a $44 weekly wage. Contractors who employed any of the 1,800 members of the regularly affiliated local of house wreckers—belonging to the Hod Carriers' international—were unable to get any work done on their other jobs. The testimony is filled with stories of big bribes, of charges which made the completion of new school buildings impossible, etc.

Building Trades Department and A. F. of L. officials here refuse to discuss the Brindell mess until the public authorities shall have completed their inquiry and until the courts shall have acted. They do not wish to prejudice the case either way, and hence the suspension of the charter of Brindell's council, determined upon by the Department, has not yet been ordered. A curious sidelight on the affair is the disclosure that the House Wreckers' big local which Brindell has absolutely driven from employment, was compelled by the A. F. of L. executive council to affiliate with the Hod Carriers, although it protested that by so doing it would be committing suicide. This fact may bring the executive council into the case.

War upon the tin-can trust is declared by the Machinists, whose demands for a wage increase and collective bargaining have been refused. Strikes have been called in fifty-six of the factories of the American Can Company, from coast to coast. A report on this concern's war profiteering, made to the Machinists here by W. Jett Lauck, shows $22,000,000 profits in 1917 and an average profit of $15,472,796 for the past four years—this last being twice as much as it made in its most prosperous year before the war. Prices of tin cans have been forced up, due to the company's control of production, and the monopoly is supported by a close alliance with the American Tin Plate Co., producer of its raw material, and with the chief corporations buying tin cans. The fight will be a hard one.

A DIFFICULT SALVAGE.

The S. S. "Main," 900 tons, topedoed off the coast of Scotland in August, 1917, has just been refloated. During the salvage operations three different kinds of lifting appliances were in use. These were two submersible balloons, two submarines, and the ordinary surface lifting craft. The vessel presents a peculiar spectacle after being for three years under water. Shell holes are visible on many parts of the ship, and her deck is almost a tangled mass of rusty iron.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

against the Japs which now is being seized upon by politicians of every degree. This is history repeating itself. The same thing occurred with the woman's eight-hour day, child-labor laws and woman's suffrage. Labor pioneers. The 'pollies' lead the procession with a brass band after they become convinced that the marching is good. But, after all, progress is made."

Taxes Will Shrink.

Uncle Sam will be hit through the cut in prices for automobiles and other commodities because of a decrease in returns from income profits and excess profits taxes. It is estimated that before the cuts these tax returns would aggregate $3,750,000,000 but now the revenue from this source will not amount to more than half that amount.

Treasury officials declare that a reduction of Government expenditures is impossible this year, and they are inquiring how the deficit can be raised.

Would Use U. S. Loans.

Congressman Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania favors enlarging the functions of the United States Postal Savings Bank so that loans can be made to home builders.

The Congressman said $175,000,000 is on deposit in postal savings banks, bearing interest at 2 per cent. This money is loaned by the Post Office Department to banks at 2½ per cent. and the banks in turn loan it back to the Government at 6 per cent.

ATLANTIC COAST AND GULF

(Continued from Page 9)

has been returned against him and the case has been docketed for trial at the December term in the criminal part of the U. S. District Court.

The Federal Judge has ordered the bail bonds and transportation expenses of the witnesses, amounting in all to one thousand dollars, refunded to the Firemen's Union, and so for the present the matter rests.

And how long shall it rest, and then again, how long?

The court is squarely confronted, in this shocking instance, with a case of refined barbarity imposed upon a crippled seaman which beggars belief and disgraces civilization, yet fully substantiated by the appearance of the victim and five credible witnesses.

Such crimes have been mandatorially prohibited and made punishable by successive and increasingly severe acts of Congress solemnly enacted at sundry times from March 3, 1835, to March 4, 1915.

The Act of Dec. 21, 1898, holds the master of the ship responsible in damages to the aggrieved seaman in case he allows the offending officer to escape; while the Act of March 4, 1915, renders both master and owners severally responsible in the same circumstances.

The evidence in this case plainly implicates the master conjointly with the mate in causing the brutal punishment inflicted upon the helpless coalpasser, else why did he conspire with the mate to chase the poor fellow ashore after he had been injured?

The only apparent reason why Justice is so frequently and flagrantly disregarded by these buckos is because they have learned to despise its laxity and deliberation.

"Barking dogs seldom bite," they reason, and usually with good cause.

If the law was enforced against bucko mates, masters and owners, as summarily and severely as against insubordinate seamen, we believe that both buckoism and insubordination would soon be suppressed. In the majority of cases, insubordination, if the issue were to be definitely probed, would prove to be merely an act of self-defense.

Thus a seaman, able and manly enough to defend himself against a criminally inclined master or mate, thereby incriminates himself and is sent to the "Reef" by the shortest route; whereas a mate who maltreats a crippled seaman simply jumps his bail and absconds, leaving his trusted master and opulent owners to cover his tracks.

When the courts become more alert in these bucko cases, fix bail at an amount commensurate with the nature of the crime, and hold it as a seaman's lien in case of default; or when they provide iron bonds instead of paper ones to hold offenders of this class, buckoism may be subdued, but not before.

J. H. W.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS AT WORK

(Continued from Page 7)

Session, one at least of the persons nominated as Advisers should be a woman.

In view of the very wide range of the items inscribed on the Agenda, the part to be played by Advisers of Delegates will be notable, and consequently, in order to ensure full authority for the decisions of the Conference, it will be necessary for the persons designated as Advisers to be of recognized competence and to enjoy the confidence of the different interests concerned.

I have also to draw your attention to the fact that paragraph 5 of Article 389 of the Treaty provides that the names of Delegates and their advisers shall be communicated to the International Labor Office by the Government of each of the Members, and I have also to point out that the succeeding paragraph of the same article provides that the credentials of Delegates and Advisers shall be subject to scrutiny by the Conference. In accordance with Article 3 of the Standing Orders of the Conference, of which a copy is enclosed, these credentials should be deposited with the International Labor Office not later than 15 days before the date fixed for the opening of the Conference.

It is, however, most desirable that the names of the Delegates and Advisers should be communicated to the International Labor Office, at the earliest possible date and I should be much obliged if you would accompany such communication with a statement as to the qualifications of the Government Delegates and Advisers, and as to the organizations in agreement with which the Delegates and Advisers of Employers and Workers have been chosen.

It is also desirable that the credentials of the Delegates and Advisers should be carefully drawn and should indicate that the appointments have been made in accordance with the terms of Article 389 of the Treaty. They should be forwarded to the International Labor Office as far in advance as possible of the date fixed by Article 3 of the Standing Orders, i. e., before March 21 and should in the case of non-Government Delegates and Advisers contain particulars of the associations in agreement with which they have been nominated.

A questionnaire relating to the different items of the Agenda will be forwarded to you in a few days and it is requested that answers may, if possible, be forwarded so as to reach the Office not later than January 15, 1921, in order that summaries may be prepared for presentation to the Conference.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ALBERT THOMAS,
Director.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION
D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn.....13½ Collis Street

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175
BUFFALO, N. Y.....GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588
CLEVELAND, O.....E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842
MILWAUKEE, WIS.....CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich.....K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street
TOLEDO, O.....S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666
SUPERIOR, Wis.....W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue
CONNEAUT, O.....W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer
Branches:
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W
SUPERIOR, Wis.....332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823
CLEVELAND, O.....1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich.....44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543
CHICAGO, Ill.....332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary
Branches:
CHICAGO, Ill.....355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O.....308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis.....162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O.....74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill.....3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O.....992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O.....618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.....122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....59 Clay Street
VANCOUVER, B. C.....P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash.....2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash.....P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore.....88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T.....P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....58 Commercial Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....64 Pike St. Vladuct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore.....242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....42 Market Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash.....Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214
SAN PEDRO, Cal.....P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
Agencies:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SEATTLE, Wash.....84 Seneca Street
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada.....437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada.....P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska.....P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG.....Alaska
UNGA.....Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC
ASTORIA, Ore.....P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION
C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.....166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal.....F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION
FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C.....311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

South Chicago butchers have reduced hours and increased wages. The parties negotiated for three weeks before they reached an agreement.

A trade union school for trade unionists has been organized by the Chicago Federation of Labor and the Women's Trade Union League, in co-operation with the Chicago Board of Education. The study course includes English, public speaking, parliamentary law, modern writers, textures and colors, and social hygiene. A labor chorus will also be organized.

The International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers has purchased a home in Kansas City, Kan. Other international unions that have adopted this plan include the machinists, at Washington; pressmen , at Pressmen's home, Tenn.; hodcarriers, at Quincy, Mass.; carpenters, at Indianapolis; sheet metal workers, at Chicago; brewery workers, at Cincinnati; street car men, at Detroit and locomotive engineers, at Cleveland. The A. F. of L. is housed in its own building in Washington.

There is an annual loss in livestock of over $25,000,000 because of improper handling and shipment. Stock producers, packers, shippers and railroads have recently conferred in Chicago to attempt to reduce this loss. It is claimed that three-fifths of this loss is because of bruises sustained by stock between the time they leave the farm and their arrival at stockyards. This is but one of the numerous losses sustained in production that are ignored by lawmakers, editors and publicists who shout that workers must be handcuffed to their jobs if they quit their employment as a last resort to improve conditions.

Among the more progressive group of trade unions in the American Federation of Labor is the International Association of Machinists. During the last four years the machinists have had a remarkable growth. At the Baltimore Convention in 1916 the union included 105,400 members. At the close of 1919 the organization had more than 330,000 members. During the last year there has been a slight falling off, but apparently the membership is still in the neighborhood of 300,000. The machinists started a co-operative banking business in Washington on May 15 last, and at the close of the first three months' period had deposits exceeding one million dollars.

In his report to the convention of the Arizona State Federation of Labor President Feeley called attention to the co-operative movement, which has grown so rapidly among wage earners the last two years. In urging the extension of this movement, President Feeley said: "The co-operative store and the co-operative bank will become our most powerful weapons to fight anti-unionists and to stabilize and intrench union labor against the onslaughts of its enemies. Five successful stores are now in operation in this State and others are being organized. Tucson has a co-operative bank well under way which will start business with a capital of $100,000. A co-operative store should be organized in every industrial community where there are enough workers to insure success."

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Your Old Friend JOE WEISS

WHITE PALACE SHOE STORE
92 FOURTH ST. nr. MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO
Union-Made Shoes for Men Exclusively
Repairing Done While You Wait
We use only the best leather that the market affords

Seattle, Wash , Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson, Jack
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George

Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.

Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling

Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry

Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38

Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor

Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar

Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.

Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.

Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1018
Kempsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh
Kerton, Lester
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.

Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liliquest, Rudolf
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.

Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James

Nelsen, Anton
Nelson, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.
Person, Johan
Pool, P.
Peterson, John E.
Pinerd, F. H.
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Richarusen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N.
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, S.
Simondsen, H.
Sjoberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Taice, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Piplore, J.
Prinz, Carl
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L.
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R.
Sterndoch, J.
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M.
Svenson, Thure
Swardrup, Walter
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

Aberdeen, Wash , Letter List

Anderson E. F. (registered)
Anderson, James
Anderson, Andrew
Anderson, Fred.
Brackberry, Geo.
Bunte, Paul
Bjorkquist, Ragnar
Berke, C.
Bedford, A.
Barton, M.
Carlson, Oscar
Caitan, Jose
Gardel, C.
Hanson, H. O.
Johanneson, Jonas
Johannesen, Alf.
Jorgensen, Jack
Kepper, Henry
Olssen, Chas.
Olsen, L. -1099
Otill, W. A.
Parker, Arthur L.
Randle, C. W.
Skarvetun, Hansen Hans -315
Saro, P. Wm.
Smith, Johan, Carl
Vejvoda, Frank
Wattel, P.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson, A. G.
Carlson Gust
Ericson, Rob.
Erickson, John
Eisen, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O.
Levele, Ed.
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lauren, William
McVelar, Gus
McNeil, Daniel Ross
Monson, Jacob
McVelar
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbl, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Paulsen, Axel
Pettron, W.
Peterson, Louis
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R.
Skovba, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren Hilmer
Registered Letters
Meyer, Hans
Rassmussen, T.

Tacoma Letter List.

Dominguez, Joseph
Gronlund, Oscar
Johnson, John
Kuhlmann, Emil
Mattson, Walter
Melgail, Mikel
Person, Fritz,
Leonard
Rainhard, H.
Reilly, Ralph
Rydelius, Rolp
Shumko, Nick
Smith, John
Smith, Carl, Johan
Svanson, Harold
Swanson, H. -1216
Thaysen, Arthur
Thompson, T.

Honolulu Letter List

Bading, G.
Bradley, Ed.
Buck, Harry
Bjorkqvist, R.
Bott, James
Caldwell, John
Campbell, Eddl
Etthorson, Ward
Harms, Ed.
Haraldsen, Alf.
Howard, John
Hofling, J. S.
Jorgensen, H. F.
Johnsen, Hilding
Johnson, Ralph
Larsen, John
Lilyborge, Will.
Lundgren, Karl
Lind, Gust.
Makinnon, Kanno
Mulligan, Ed.
Myers, Georg
Parker, A. L.
Sondel, Franklyn S.
Seevers, Howard L.
Stewart, R. T.
Solberg, B. P.
Takostolny, Jos.

INFORMATION WANTED

Mrs. Jean Taylor. 940 Pender Street, West Vancouver, B. C., is anxious of ascertaining the whereabouts of Robert Gilchrist Cassar, a member of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific 10-13-20

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

UNION LABEL
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
NYMAN BROS.
Bee Hive Store
Men's Furnishings, Hickory Shirts, Hats, Oil Clothing.
Home of the union made Co-operative Shoe
302 So. F Street, ABERDEEN, Wash.
on the Water Front.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

Portland, Or., Letter List

Adams, Hugo
Ahlstrom, Kilian F.
Ahlstrom, Ellis
Ahren, Wm.
Allen, W.
Allison, Benjamin
Amundsen, Albert
Andersson, Axel
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakaihn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsic, Karl
Austin, Melvin
Backman, Peter
Baker, Eddie
Benton, G. W.
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Franz
Carr, B.
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Dikkensen, S.
Diez, H
Doehring, Otto
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. E.
Fisher, Chas.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gallery, Russell B.
Gilkison, A. F
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Handt, Wm.
Halley, W.
Hansen, Thorolf
Hanson, Carl
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hatland, R.
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Holm, Harry
Heino, Gust
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Jacobs, Fulton
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, C. Eilert
Johanson, John
Johnson, Alfin
Johnson, Anton
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kelly, Norman
Kelly, Albert J.
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Laine, A. A.
Larsen, Hans
Larsen, Christ
Lauritzen, Ludvik
Lavsen, Carl C.
Learstad, Peter
Leisig, John
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank E.
Malkoff, Peter
Maline, Stanley
Matson, R. M.
McDermott, W. M.
McCarlif, Gail
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLean, M. R.
Meyer, W.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Monroe, N. S.
Nelson, Nels
Neilsen, Harry
Nelson, Nels E.
Nilsen, Christ
Nilson, Herman
Norman, A.
Nurmisto, Ovio
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peppert, Fred
Petersen, Wm.
Petterson, Charley
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Pohl, W.
Pope, Bert
Prestoff, S.
Preston, E.
Rever, John T.
Robinson, G. H.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Runge, R. L.
Saine Arthur A.
Schmeltning, M.
Scott, M
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Skogmo, Paul
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spatig, Harvey L.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sullivan, Fred L.
Suvaal, A.
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Tensfeldt, John S.
Thorsen, Chas.
Tinsman, J. T.
Tuhkanen, John J.
Viets, Clayton L.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wallace, E. J.
Wehtje, Wm. H.
Whiteside, Thos.
Wilson, J. W.
Wikstrom, Carl
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Fred L.
Worn, Otje
Young, Carl Henrey
Yeoman, W. E.
York, Chas. E.

San Pedro Letter List

Aldo, K. Nestor
Alfredsen, Adolf
Albertson, John
Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, Sven
Anderson, C.
Anderson, Bartines
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, John
Andowiz, H.
Arentsen, John
Arnell, John
Arnesen, Isack
Bentley, Clifford
Berglund, Emil J.
Bengston, Sigfried
Beschorner, Robert
Boyce, R. H.
Brickman, Harold
Bridges, R. H.
Brusbard, Ewalt
Brown, Irwing
Braden, W. A.
Brast, Sjomans
Bush, Peter
Carr, R. W.
Cariera, Peter
Carrol, Kenneth
Church, C. A.
Christoffersen, C.
Costley, F. L.
Cormie, William
Daunt, C.
Davis, Orville
Daw, Walter
Deasy, William P.
Desmond, Albin
Deaver, Alwin
Dischler, Peter
Disney, Robert
Doty, Erwin
Dragich, Peter
Drennen, William
Eckhardt, William
Eliasen, John
Engdahl, Robert
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Farrell, H. D.
Fallbom, J. A.
Fahey, M.
Feeder, George
Fickle, Omer
Fisher -707
Fottinger, Karl A.
Frair, Enoch
Freitag, F.
Gallagher, Denny
Galke, Roy
Gayton, H. L.
Gerrity, John
Gotz, Rudolph
Grason, Joe
Grue, Theodor
Gunnerud, Ulrick
Gullaksen, Hans
Godmundsen, John
Guthrie, Raymond
Gustafson, Johan
Hansen, Claf
Hasko, Anton
Harnick, Julius
Hansen, B.
Harvey, Earl
Hamilton, Walter
Hartog, J.
Hagen, George
Hellesten G.
Herlin, W.
Hey, Ben
Hill, Chas.
Hickey, John
Hingren, John
Hogsted, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Holland, Jonny
Holtkamp, C.
Hurley, Michael
Isakson, J.
Janson, Fr.
Jacobsen, Tom
Janofy, Axel
Jensen, Marius
Jeeden, George
Jensen, Kristian
Johnsen, P. -2313
Johansen, David
Johansen, Carl
Johnson, George
Johnson, Matt.
Johnson, Tom.-3014
Johnson, Waldron
Johansen, J. -1432
Jonaseon, Johanes

The James H. Barry Co.

"THE STAR" PRESS

PRINTING

1122-1124 MISSION ST
SAN FRANCISCO

M. BROWN & SONS

SAN PEDRO

Clothing and Furnishing Goods

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL

529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.

Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.

TERMS ARE REASONABLE

Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Kallio, Frank
Kenrich, Richard
Kelty, Peter D.
Keel, Jewel
Ketelson, Fred
Kiliat, Dau
Kepplar, C.
Kirshfeld, J.
Kluge, Frank
Klahn, Karl
Kramer. O.
Klementsen, Alf.
Larsen, Johan 1542
Langeman, W.
Laine, John
Landen, A.
Leirevaag, Halvor
Lehmus, Bill
Lindquist, Emil
Lindahn, Al.
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John A.
Lindholm, Charles
Lill, Karl
Lobeles, Jose
Lowrey, John
Loderson, John
Lorgeman, Fred
Knudsen, Andrew
Lund, F. V.
Lund, Alal
Luther, Frank
Mathiesen, Nic
Martinson, J. L.
Matson, Hilding
Magnussen, Karl Martinson, John
Maahs, Willi
Mato, Alex
McGhee, E. J.
McHelvey, T. B.
McNeil, D. R.
Mehrtens, C. H.
Mize, J. H.
Michelson, Erik
Miller, Frederik
Moor, Peter
Moritz, W.
Morisse, Henry
Monteiro, John
Mueller, John
Murray, Ernest
Murphy, Frank
Melander, G. L.
Nelson, C. A.
Nelson, Nicholas
Nielsen, Jens.-780
Nilsen, Alfred
Nilsson, Edward
Nielsen, P. F.
Njutrom, Uno
Nelson, Emil
Nelson, Gust
Nelson, Charlie
Ogren, V. E.
Olsen, Emil
Olsen, Olaf V.
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Ole M.
Olsson, Otto
Olsen, Sander
Olsen, Harold
Ostedal, Caspar
Pastrillen, H. K.
Petersen, August
Petersen, Hugo
Pera, Gust.
Pett, Dick
Perry, William
Porthan, M. T.
Raaum, Harry
Rasmussen, S. J.
Rensen, Albert
Rosenthal, Walter
Rossdam, Ha.
Rod, Halfdam
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred
Rosamund, J.
Rueter, Aman
Runge, R.
Ruiz, Jose
Rupp, Albert
Sanders, Chas.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Schroeder, Ernest
Schmidt, H. G.-3619
Schmees, Herman
Schlachte, Alfred
Scheumberg, Wm.
Scrivers, W.
Schultz, W.
Seppel,
Seland, Hans
Sillman, Robert
Smith, Carl Johan
Smedsvig, Oluf
Soder, Paul
Steen, Ivar
Sterndock, John
Strom, Oscar
Strahle, Chas.
Stenard, Percy
Steere, Ernest
Sundquist, Walter V.
Sunde, O. H.
Sunde. C.
Sundholm, Franz
Sundquist, Walter
S. C.-887
Svendsen, Fred
Swenson, A. -1932
Takhunen, Hugo
Tanum, Helge
Thompson, M.
Thompson, James
Thal, R.
Thorsen, Henrik
Torvik, Hans
Tommola, Vaino
Torsman, Niels
Treiberg, Peter
Treiberg Peter
Ullman, Emil
Veckenstedt, Wm.
Vitol, Alex
Voth, Gus
Vitol, Alex.
Voth, Gus
Wanquist, Ernest
Ward, Wallace C.
Wennerquist, Anton
Weiprecht, E.
Wennerquist, Anton
Werne, John
Winkelman, Otto
Wilson, John
Wihemson, Karl
Wich, Ole
Wilck, Ole
Wilhelmson. Karl
Wilson, John
Winkelman, Otto
Wilhelm, Eduard
Wieprecht, Ernest
Whiteside, Thomas
Woods, Claude F.
Woods, Claude
Wrobluske, Paul
Wrig, P.
Wrobluwski, Paul
Wyerman, William
Young, William
Yeoman, W. E.
Zoerb, Walter
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

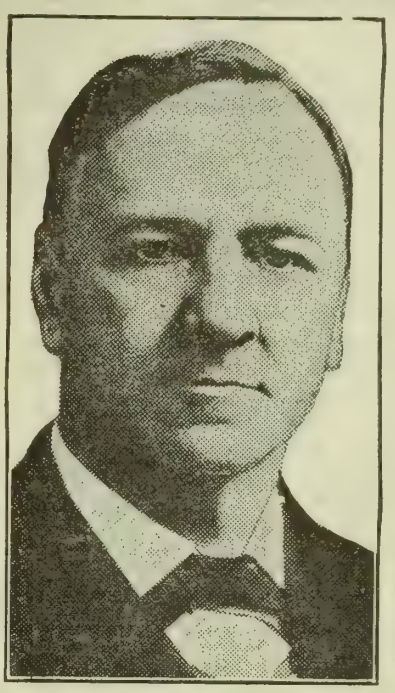
Registered Mail.
Packages and Photos.

O'Brien, J. S.
Norlund, Albert
Gotz, Rudolf
Lauritzen, Ole
Jones, Ernest L.
Tamm, Helge
Peters, J. M.
Langman, William
Olsen, Ole
Jensen, J.
Ericksen, E. R.
Jones, Ernest L.

INFORMATION WANTED

The members of the "Elizabeth," who salved the "South Coast" August 16, 1920, can get their awards by calling on Attorney Hogevoll, Pacific Building, Fourth and Market, San Francisco. 11-10-20

Members of the crew of the S. S. "J. E. O'Neil," which salved the motor ship Oregon. A settlement has been made and I wish the following men would communicate with me in order that they may be paid their share of the salvage due them: P. Anderson, seaman; W. Kendall, seaman; J. C. Thompson, third assistant; Joe Brady, wiper; H. F. Morressy, messboy. S. B. Axtell, 9 State street. 5-12-20



Secretary Daniels Says:

"I NEED not tell you of my deep interest in the American Red Cross, and my appreciation, both as Secretary of the Navy and as a citizen, of the monumental work it did during the war, and its beneficent work in times of peace. I feel that every patriotic American will be serving his country if his name is on the Roll Call of the Red Cross."

Josephus Daniels

Secretary of the Navy.

BE SURE TO RENEW YOUR MEMBERSHIP DURING

RED CROSS FOURTH ROLL CALL

November 11-25, 1920

INFORMATION WANTED

Members of the crew of the "West Katan," whose claims for salvage services rendered to the S. S. "Flavel" is being handled by the undersigned: It has just come to my attention that the Shipping Board have asked you to sign vouchers in settlement of the salvage claim. I was offered one-half-month's wages which was refused. It appears that they are endeavoring to get you men to settle directly. I advise that none of you accept this as it is grossly inadequate. At least you have no right to accept any settlement without consulting me. Silas B. Axtell, Attorney for Seamen, 9 State Street, New York City. 10-6-20

Home News

The Supreme Court refused to advance the hearing of the suit brought by Charles S. Fairchild for an injunction restraining Secretary Colby from promulgating the Federal suffrage amendment.

The Texas State Criminal Court of Appeals has upheld the minimum wage law. A fine of $100 against a restaurant keeper was affirmed. He discharged a girl because she testified before the industrial welfare commissioner. The defendant held that the law violates the obligation of a contract, but the court ruled that contracts must comply with the law as well as expressing the will of individuals making them.

Compulsory education and prohibition of child labor by Federal enactment were advocated by Herbert Hoover in an address before the eleventh annual convention of the American Child Hygiene Association. The entrance of young children into industry, Hoover asserted, "results in the progressive degeneration of the race and tends to impair the human resources of the country on which the coming generation must rely."

Coal owners are "padding" operating costs in their reports to the government for the purpose of evading the excess profits tax, is the charge made by Governor Goodrich of Indiana. Coal owners who were drawing salaries of $5000 and $10,000 a year now pay themselves $30,000 to $40,000. Other expenses are increased by these law-abiding, patriotic gentlemen, who are thus relieved of paying the government a large excess profits tax.

The New York State Industrial Commission has issued startling statistics on deaths of workers engaged in building construction. It is shown that there are four times more workers employed in factories than in building, but during the four years from October, 1910, more fatalities occurred in building construction. Of the 1641 fatalities during this period, 545 were due to falling, and of this number 154 deaths resulted from scaffolds and 29 from ladders.

Renewed activity of the Federal authorities in the suppression of illicit distilling has not lessened their watchfulness over the purity of non-alcoholic beverages. The Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture has started a campaign against so-called orange drinks which have no more relation to that fruit than root beer has to the product of malt and hops. It discovered that under such terms as -ades, squashes, punches, crushes, or smashes, beverages are sold which contain no edible portion of the fruit or juice named in conjunction with them.

Stephen T. Mather, director of the National Park Service, recently opened the latest addition to the national park area at Zion, Utah. The Governor, the two Utah Senators and prominent citizens, many of them from Salt Lake City, were in attendance. The new park is in the southwestern part of Utah and contains 120 square miles; its principal feature is Zion Canyon, fifteen miles in length, with walls from 800 to 2000 feet high. In these walls, which are of considerable geological interest, ruins of cliff dwellings of a prehistoric race have been discovered.

Domestic and Naval

The imports by sea into Italy during the month of May, 1920, amounted to 1,446,386 tons, compared with 857,490 tons in January, 1,064,779 tons in February, 886,132 tons in March, and 869,664 tons in April.

From January to June, 1920, 58 American vessels, representing a net register tonnage of 269,554 and cargo tonnage of 176,251, entered the port of Marseille. During the same period 52 American ships, with a sailing tonnage of 238,093 and a cargo tonage of 156,494, cleared from Marseille for the United States.

The United States Shipping Board announced that in the future it will be the policy of the board to make all incoming voyage repairs and such other repairs as may be necessary to retain class. This policy will revise the "as is" clause in future sales of new steel vessels, but does not, however, apply to the sale of seriously damaged vessels which are in need of such extensive repairs that the board would not be justified in assuming the cost thereof.

Tenders for only eight of the thirty miscellaneous vessels recently offered for sale by the Navy Department were received when bids were opened. There were no bids for the old cruisers "Cincinnati" and "Raleigh" and the steamer "Supply," and the highest offer made was $42,000 for the gunboat "Castine" by the Inter-Colonial Steamship and Trading Company of New York. R. B. Sommerville of Pensacola submitted a joint bid of $56,000 for the "Castine" and "Petrel," the latter also a gunboat. The Snare & Triest Company, Washington, D. C., offered $25,000 for the "Petrel" alone, and Edward S. Hough of San Francisco submitted a bid of $35,000 for the gunboat "Machias."

Section 23 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1920, is designed to assist owners and operators of vessels which are documented under the laws of the United States and operated in foreign trade, and provides for certain tax exemptions for a period of ten taxable years, beginning with the first taxable year ending after the passage of the Act, on condition that the amount so exempted is invested or set aside, under rules and regulations to be promulgated by the board, in a trust fund for the construction of new vessels in shipyards in the United States. The type and kind of such vessels, however, must be approved by the board and quite a number of applications for such approval are now pending.

Sale of the Government's emergency built fleet of wooden ships to foreign buyers has been decided upon by the Shipping Board as practically the only means of disposing of the fleet. Chairman Benson announced that the provisions of the merchant marine law require that at least the question of the new board agree to the plan. The board has had two meetings over. Several proposals have been received from foreign shipowners for the wooden vessels the chairman said, and one offer for a considerable number has come from South America. As an alternative, he added, some of the ships probably will be stripped of the engines, converted into barges and used in the New England coal trade. There are now, he said, 192 wooden ships tied up in the James River, at a cost to the Government of about $100 a month each.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. W.
Abrahamson, Berner
Adolfsson, John
Algren, Charlie
Alhstrom, Ellis
Alto, John
Almon, L.
Andersen, Adolf
Andersen, O.-1118
Andersen, R. P.
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Anderson, John Nathaniel
Anderson, Johann
Andersson, C. J. -2185
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, C. -2001
Aronson, Gunnar
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Arvidson, N.
Attaberry, Clarence

Baardsen, Hans
Bading, G.
Bang, Hugo
Baptiste, Lawr.
Barlow, R.
Bengtson, Oscar
Berg, Arvid
Benson, Helge
Beschorner, R.
Bergman, Alrik
Borjeson, Hilding
Bowman, Jack
Boyce. Fred
Bosshardt, H.
Boutwell, Billie
Bower, Gordon
Brauner, Chas. J.
Brander, Wm.
Braun, James
Brown, Dudley G.
Brickell, Teddy
Butler, James
Burr, W. H.

Carlson, Andy
Carlson, Chas. E.
Carlson, Gust.-529
Carlson, Julius
Carney, James
Chilcott, Geo.
Chipps, Eric
Christensen, A.-1857
Christensen, Nils
Clarke, Mathew
Clausen, Louis
Coffey, George E.
Conley, Irvin
Cornelius, Leonard

Dahl, E. L. K.
Dahl, Otto
Dahls, Ogden
Dahlgren, Wm. A.
Daunt, C.
Davidsen, Oskar
Davies, B. L.
Davis, Warren
Demorest, Carl
DeMarlo, Thos.
Donner, R.
Domke, Willi
Drasbeck, Chas.
Drennen, W. N.
Dunlap, George
Dushane, Matt.

Eastman, J. W.
Eide, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Eriksson, Martin
Ellis, F. L.
Lundahl, E.
Endemann, M.
Englebritsen, Ale
Erickson, '97
Eriman, Eskil
Erikson, Simon
Evensen, Andreas A

Farevoog, C. M.
Fergerson, Thos.
Fiellman, Georg
Fletcher, Jos.
Foster, C.
Frandsen, E. S.
Frederiz, T. F.
Fransson, A. E.
Fraser, H. W.
Freitag, W. J.
Freiberg, Carl
Fritz, Ottman

Garnetzky, Fritz A
Geary, Albert
Getchell, Alton
Germenis, Socrates
Gibbons, Elmer L.
Golden R. L.
Graham, Ray
Graham, W. F.
Green, Henry M.
Grienne, Fred
Griffin, J. R.
Grundell, W. O.
Grundstrom, C. W.
Groman, Gusta
Grondahl, Armas W.
Gullaksen, Hans
Gundersen, C. A.
Gustavsson, C. B.
Gustaffson, Walter

Hahn, Emil
Haider, H. T.
Hakanson, Bernt
Hamilton, Walter J.
Hammond, Robert
Hansen, G. A. -2837
Hansen, Knud
Hansen, H. V.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Harris, J. S. -3161
Haunt, C.
Hayward, C. R.
Hellman, Rowland L.
Hellpap, A.
Henrikson, K. Hj.
Hein, M.
Hessin, B.
Heyn, T.-2789
Hicks, Wm. H.
Hoglander, Martin
Holbrook, G. A.

Ibsen, V. L.
Ingebretsen, Christian
Irving, John

Jacobsen, Alfred
Jahnke, Paul
Jansson, Fredrik
Jaycox, James
Jepperson, Chris
Jensen, Jens C.
Jensen, A. L.
Jensen, Martin
Jentausch, Solfred
Jewell, A. M.
Johansen, Johan R.
Johansen, Chas.
Johansen, E.-2715
Johansson, Algot
Johnson, Aubury F.
Johnson, C. B.
Jones, Arne M.
Jorgensen, Adelsten
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johannesen, Ole
Johnson, Edward S.
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaasik, G.
Kaasik, August
Kajander, Eino
Kaplan, I.
Karlson, E. W.
Karlgren, -644
Kasperson, E.
Ketelsen, F.
Kelly, Geo.
Kierne, G. H.
Klindt, Frederico
Kline, Conrad
Kluge, Martin
Knoph, John O.
Knorsley, Adam
Knudsen, Martin
Knudsen, Ragnval
Kolle, A. E.
Kokko, Martin
Koster, Walter
Kraal, J.
Kragero, C. M. J.
Kristensen, J. P.
Krishjan, K. W.
Kristoffersen, A. B.
Krumholtz, W.
Kuckens, E.
Krueger, Harry

Lafrin, W. C.
Laine, Frank
Lambert, Jos
Lanphear, D.
Larsen Alex 1777
Larsen, Alexis
La Rue, C. L.
Lauritzen, Ole
Laursen, Max O.
Lee, Albert
Leeder, W. -2287
Linderoos, W.
Lindahl, G.-2342
Lindroos, Geo.
Lidsten, Chas.
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Loberg, Bror
Lofenberg, Pete
Lorentzen, Jean
Lundberg, Oskar

Madsen, Anton
Magnusson, E. W.
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
MacKay, Wm.
Maki, Ivar
Mahoney, F. J.
Manning, H. H.
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Matheis, Herman
McGregor, D.
McKinsey, Alex
McNeill, D. R.
McGovern, Jim
McFarlane, Dougal
McGauley, Geo.
McCallum, Chas.
McWade, W. C.
Melander, G. L.
Meyer, Henry
Melgand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Meyer, George
Millard, Martin
Mitchell, David
Moe, Harald
Morrissey, W.
Mortensen. K. A.
Mooi, Petei
Mol, J. W.
Moore, H. L.
Mohr, Chas.
Morgan, R. B.
Morrison, Phillip
Mortensen, Thomas
Moulas, Nicholas
Muldrose, W. L.
Mullins, John

Naylor, Geo. D.
Nauta, H.
Neergard, A. C.
Nelson, Jerome
Nelson, N. H.
Nelson, Karl
Ness, Aksel
Neveau, Thomas
Nicolaisen, Ancker
Nilsen, Anders
Nillson, S. H. H.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nilsen, Christ
Nordlie, Christ
North, Jesse J.
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordling, Sven
Nordstom, Hans
Nurken, H.
Nurmi, Wm.
Nyman, John A.
Nundorf, F. R.

O'Connor, Dennis
Olafson, O. B.
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, Harry -885
Olsen, Kristian
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsson, Enock
Olsson, W. O.
Olsson, V.
Olsson, Charle
Osborne, E. T.
Osborne, James
Osen, Aksel
Osterholm, W.
Ortman, Carl
Owervick, Thos.
Ozolin, Jan

Pankratz, Bruno
Palmer, Ray
Paulsen, E. A.
Paul, Ben
Payne, J. E.
Pedersen. W.-1535
Pedersen, Lewis
Pedersen, S.-1888
Pels, H.
Perdock, A.
Petersen, Arthur
Peterson, Elias
Pederson, George
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Pipione, Joseph
Phillips, Bob
Pope, G. N.
Post, Albert
Pree, E. Deu
Prusch, A.

Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Reigwein, A.
Reynolds, T. T.
Regnill, Gustaf
Renstrom, Axel
Rier, Earl W.
Richardson, Edwin
Rohman, Geo.
Rosa, John
Roach, Steffen
Robson, Carr
Roberts, John
Robertson, Robert
Rodriquez, Antonio
Rogers, Thos. G.
Ronn, E.
Roth, M.
Rundstrom, Albert
Rupp, A.-1029
Russell R.-1662
Rutgersen, Oscar
Rygvig, Marius
Ryan, James

Salli, Rudolf
Sanne, Rudolf
Sandstrom, Olaf
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Sorensen, E.
Sodergren, Ragnar
Stanford, Harry
Stenberg, Hj. N.
Stone, M. C.
Stragseth, Svend

Tammola, Waino
Tennison, George
Thiel, Werner
Thode, Rudolph
Thomas, Andrew
Thomas, John
Thomas, N. S.
Thomas, Fred
Thompson, Clifford
Thompson, James
Thomsen, Ebbe Peter
Tolano, A. R.
Torwick, H. S.
Tovano, A. R.
Tufty, C. J.
Twigg, Harry M.

Vadum, N. Kr.
Veckenstedt, Wm.
Verhoef, A.
Vitol, A.
Vihavainen, George
Vogelhuber, Albert

Wakrom, J.
Walstrom, Albert
Weatherby, Thomas
Werkhoven, G.
Wezwagar, Andrew
Wessberg, E. H. N.
Wijchgel, J. -970
Wiklund, Wiktor
Wilks, J.
Wohlers, Diedrich
Woods, Dick

Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Fowler, R. J.
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Grienne, Fred
Goodman, Tony
Henrikson, Ernst
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
LaMadrid, Rafael
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Navarrete, Joe
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Olsen, O. J. -1020
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Travers,
Tillsten, Jack
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Anyone who was acquainted with the late Chas. Erickson, discharged from the U. S. Navy in 1896, and subsequent thereto sailing on the Pacific Coast, will confer a great favor upon his widow, Mrs. Charles Erickson, by communicating with her at P. O. Box 15, San Pedro, Cal. Mrs. Erickson is anxious to establish certain facts relating to the physical condition of her late husband prior to his discharge from the U. S. Navy. 1-28-20

The following named members of the crew of the S. S. "Kenebec," who helped salve the schooner "Thomas L. Wand" on November 19, 1919, have vouchers ready to be distributed at our office:

Demetre Sakelaris, $46.80; Carl Puika, $56.72; Isidro Flores, $50.55; Janes Franco, $50.55; Daniel Rodrigues, $50.55; Rafael Corrillo, $50.55; Dimity Sacelarius, $50.55; Siegor Sorensen, $50.55. Levy & Levy, Lawyers, Trust Bldg., Galveston, Texas. 10-6-20

The Centrale Bond von Transportarbeiders have placed in my hands claim of the father and mother of L. Verhoef, seaman who met his death on the S. S. "Balosaro" April 29, 1920. An old spring line broke, curled around Verhoef's left leg and yanked him on to the winch while he was operating it. Before it could be stopped his leg was taken off. He died two hours later at the hospital. Will members of the crew please report here promptly. The master has made an entry in the log book to the effect that the deceased met with his death through intoxication, which statement we believe to be utterly false. I am acting for the dependent relatives. It is the duty of seamen to tell the truth. Your dependents may be in the same position some day.—S. B. Axtell. 8-25-20

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

CHRISTENSEN NAVIGATION SCHOOL ESTABLISHED 1906 SAN FRANCISCO S.F. CAL.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

GEO. A. PRICE
Says:
DEMAND THE UNION LABEL

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

KELLEHER & BROWNE
THE IRISH TAILORS
716 MARKET STREET
at Third and Kearny
SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices
Established for 20 years
All work done in our own sanitary workshop
Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

SHOES SALE SHOES
YOU CAN SAVE FROM $3 TO $5 A PAIR AT THE SALE PRICE THAN YOU CAN PURCHASE THEM ELSEWHERE. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SALE.
AGENTS—W. L. DOUGLAS, JUST WRIGHT, STRONG & GARFIELD, WALK EASE
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET, S. F. Between Market and Mission

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS UNION LABEL
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.
SEPT. 1830
Issued by Authority of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.
Union-made Cigars.
This Certifies, That the Cigars contained in this box have been made by a First-Class Workman a MEMBER OF THE CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION of America, an organization devoted to the advancement of the MORAL MATERIAL and INTELLECTUAL WELFARE OF THE CRAFT. Therefore we recommend these Cigars to all smokers throughout the world
All infringements upon this Label will be punished according to law.
P. W. Perkins, President C.M.I.U. of America
LOCAL STAMP

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING AT YOUR POST OFFICE
GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES
PRICES IN DECEMBER
THRIFT STAMPS AT 25 CENTS
$5 Government Savings Stamps for.....$ 4.23
$100 Treasury Savings Certificates for.....$ 84.60
$1000 Treasury Savings Certificates for.....$846.00
ASK YOUR POSTMASTER
GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
120 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

News from Abroad

Anarchists attacked the Aureliano fort, situated a few miles from Rome. They were repulsed by soldiers after a short exchange of shots.

Infant mortality has reached an amazing figure in France since the war ended. In Paris it is 50 per cent. Five hundred and nine out of every thousand babies born in France die, as contrasted with 9 per cent in England and 4 per cent in New Zealand, which is said to have the best record.

High prices, penetrating to the Arctic rim of Western Canada, have brought wealth and prosperity to Eskimos of the Mackenzie river delta, who have sold their recent fur catches for record figures, according to Arthur Thompson, an American prospector who recently arrived at Edmonton, Canada, from the far north.

Switzerland imported during 1919, 55,057,640 pounds of raw cotton, compared with 17,957,940 pounds in 1918, chiefly from Egypt and the United States. According to the President of the Chamber of Commerce of Zurich, Switzerland needs about 70,000 bales of American cotton for the supply of her mills during the next 12 months.

The total of the import duties collected at Christiania for August of this year is about 2,000,000 crowns less than for August, 1919. The following figures show the receipts in crowns for the month of August from 1913 to 1920, inclusive: 1913, 1,685,700; 1914, 789,400; 1915, 1,770,300; 1916, 2,872,100; 1917, 3,616,500. 1918, 1,825,800; 1919, 6,454,600, and 1920, 4,426,600 crowns.

M. Leonid Krassin, Soviet trade representative to England, at a conference with a group of British business men, told them that Russia would be willing to assume the Czarist debts in return for recognition. "Either we are a new company carrying on the business of a defunct company, in which case we are not cern," he declared, "or we are a reconstructed company, in which case we assume all the liabilities of the old company and receive all its assets, including the good will, which is public recognition."

Reports from Danzig, Hamburg and Bremen say a great tide of Jewish emigration to the United States has set in, and that already it is flowing at the rate of thousands a day through Antwerp and toward French ports. It has been necessary to erect barracks at Danzig to house the applicants for passports and the correspondent there of the Berlin "Tageblatt" says virtually a new city has come into existence, composed of Jews organized and financed by the Hebrew Immigration Aid Society and the Joint Distribution Committee of America.

The extent of the larger losses of France is illustrated by these official figures, recently issued: 4,022 towns and villages in the invaded departments were injured; of these 1,659 towns and villages were totally wiped out and 707 destroyed to the extent of from 50 to 100 per cent. of their value. The total number of private wells destroyed or damaged is 62,900, that of real estate holdings entirely destroyed 290,300 and partially destroyed 269,870. Nearly all the towns and villages have been reestablished, at least in part; and 134,000,000 cubic meters of trenches have already been filled up.

With the Wits

Naturally.—"The hygienic experts set their faces against kissing."

"Who doesn't?"

A Coincidence.—Oberlin Times—He was born on the farm where his parents were at the time.

The All-Present Thought.—"Aren't you interested in saving daylight?"

"I am more concerned in hoarding up moonshine."

The Objection.—"Sir, may I take you apart?"

"No, you can't. I am no human puzzle."

Might Be Worse.—"I'm having trouble in supporting my wife."

"You don't know what trouble is. Try not supporting her."—Kansas City Journal.

Should Be Good.—"The young baker you knew went on the stage in character parts."

"Indeed. How did his roles pan out?"

Their Status.—"Since the Gunns made so much money during the war they are riding in handsome motor cars, I notice."

"Yes; they're machine Gunns now."

Adapted to His Case.—"Such vivid neckties Dicky wears. They're simply dazzling."

"Yes, his idea seems to be 'Best is the tie that blinds.'"

Literal Quality.—"I thought you told me you could supply me with strong drink, and here is nothing before me but water."

"Yes, sir, but it has a good deal of iron in it, sir."

Opposing Methods.—"There is one thing I would like to know about this photograph of a drinking scene in the play."

"What is that?"

"Was it made with dry plates?"

Never Recuperated.—"Aren't you going to invite Mrs. Blank to your dinner party?" asked Mrs. Blunderby's niece.

"I should say not," answered the old lady. "I entertained her once and she never recuperated."

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Original Size

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewellers

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James H. Sorensen
Pres. and Treas.

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's
GOOD FOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell
UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization.

VOL. XXXIV, No. 11. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1920. Whole No. 1727.

MOONEY FRAME-UP EXPOSED

Police Officer Makes Startling Statements to Mayor Rolph

When the Preparedness Day Parade bomb explosion occurred, on July 22, 1916, the people generally were shocked by the atrocious nature of that crime. Every normal man and woman wanted to see the perpetrators of that dastardly act apprehended and punished to the limit of the law.

This feeling caused certain anti-labor elements to evolve a plot whereby organized labor could be connected with the outrage.

From the very day this became evident —in fact, a moral certainty—the Journal has from time to time, in its news and editorial columns, exposed the manipulations of the ring that sent two men to the State penitentiary for life.

The latest bit of testimony on the subject is published herewith, being a part of the more detailed story as it appeared in the San Francisco Call of November 12th.

Draper Hand, a San Francisco police officer, most active of all the subordinates in the handling of witnesses in the Mooney bomb cases, on Friday of last week, told Mayor James Rolph Jr. that the prosecution was a gigantic frame-up from first to last. Citing names, dates and circumstances in full, he told the Mayor all that he knew of the manipulation of witnesses, and he declared that, to his own knowledge, the testimony of every witness bearing directly on the guilt of the accused was a fabrication pure and simple.

This police officer's story—the inside story of the frame-up by one of the prosecution's right-hand men—corroborates in its entirety the claims of the defense that Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings were convicted without a shred of truth to connect them with the 1916 Preparedness Parade bomb explosion.

Hand today cut the heart out of the theory of the prosecution—the theory, backed by perjury and machinations, on which Mooney and Billings were sent to prison for life on the charge of having planted the bomb that caused ten deaths.

Almost at the same time it became known that another blow had been dealt the prosecution's theory by one of the prosecution's star witnesses, Estelle Smith. She no longer is sure that the man she saw on the roof of 721 Market street the day of the Preparedness Parade—the man with the black bag—was Billings. She has told District Attorney Matthew Brady that were she to testify again, she would make her doubts clear to judge and jury.

Here are the outstanding features of the story that Draper Hand told Mayor Rolph:

That Frank C. Oxman, the Oregon cattleman, never saw the automobile of Israel Weinberg till Hand showed it to him months after the bomb explosion.

That Hand took Oxman to the North End police station under orders from Martin Swanson, private detective for corporations, and there showed him the Weinberg car.

That this move was a part of the grooming of Oxman for his testimony, in which he declared that on the day of the explosion he saw the Mooney party alight from Weinberg's car at the scene of the explosion.

That he (Hand) rehearsed in the car, at the police station, to prove Oxman's story physically possible, and that he so rehearsed at Oxman's request because the Oregonian was afraid his account, as arranged for him, could be proven an impossibility.

That Oxman did not then see, and probably at no time saw, the license plate of the car, which had been removed, but memorized the number from a memorandum given to him. Oxman testified that he noted the car number on the back of a telegram the day of the explosion.

That it was from this memorandum only that he learned the license number, though he testified (after many months) to remembering it from a fleeting glimpse the day of the explosion.

That Edward A. Cunha, assistant district attorney at that time, instructed Hand to give the memorandum of the number to him, after it had been removed, lest by some chance the defense force Oxman into admitting that he had seen the license number on the car when it was at the police station—an admission which would have discounted his testimony before the jury.

That Oxman virtually admitted to Hand that he was lying, and intimated that he was afraid of the outcome of the frame-up. Oxman wobbled—but he went through with it, and Mooney was sentenced to the gallows.

That Hand, sitting in the police bomb bureau one night in the first stage of the investigation, saw District Attorney Charles M. Fickert enter with Martin Swanson, corporation private detective, and heard Fickert say to Captain Duncan Matheson: "You'd better arrest those two fellows."

That next morning Hand was ordered to find and arrest Mooney and Billings, and he thought them, and still thinks, that the two to whom Fickert referred were Mooney and Billings.

That there was at that time not a scrap of evidence, perjured or otherwise, to connect Mooney and Billings with the explosion, and the order for their arrest came out of a clear sky.

That there was no scrap of evidence against them until the offer of large rewards began to bring a flood of leads to the police, from which they made their selection.

That Mrs. Mellie Edeau and her daughter, Sadie, were secured as witnesses by Hand, on orders from Captain Duncan Matheson, and were coached—unconsciously and by playing upon their beliefs—into positively identifying the defendants.

That when they confronted Mooney and Weinberg in the city prison, the men being mixed with other prisoners, Hand gave them the cue by addressing Mooney by name and by beckoning to Weinberg and summoning him, too, by name.

That John McDonald, another star witness, began to waver when the favor of the police waned and their allowance to him ceased, and that he said to Hand: "If I don't get a job I'll spill everything."

That James Brennan, also assistant to District Attorney Charles M. Fickert at that time, did not accept the Oxman story at its face value, questioned the use of it, and refused to go to Oregon to arrange with Oxman for his coming here as a witness.

That Brennan corroborated Hand's opinion of another important phase of the testimony, and said on one occasion: "This won't do; it's bad business. We can't stand for that."

That the occasion in question was a rehearsal, in the rooms of the Police Commission, in the Hall of Justice, of the scene on the roof of the Eilers building during the parade. The Mooneys were on that roof during the parade.

Draper Hand went to Mayor Rolph as a citizen, and not as a policeman. Hand had come to the conclusion that Mooney and Billings were innocent and he wanted to do the right thing—to help as far as he could toward righting an injustice.

As Hand had more to do than any other policeman in handling the witnesses in the bomb cases, what he has to say throws a new light on the details of the frame-up and uncovers many nooks in the mysterious path of the prosecution.

In the course of a long period of time, Hand came to regard exposure of all that he knew as the only right course in the eyes of ultimate justice. When he worked in the police bomb bureau that handled the cases in conjunction with corporation detectives and the District Attorney's office under Charles M. Fickert, Hand saw how witnesses were led by suggestion, cajoled or directed by trickery to which they were made privy. He did his duty then as he saw it. He watched witnesses and evidence taken or rejected, according to the prosecution's scenario—the corporation dictated scenario—of the crime. But Hand thought it all over as he got past the stage of anger and passions and partisanship and he made up his mind to come through with the facts. He has.

The psychology of Draper Hand is simply that of a man who, following the course of a technical fidelity, did the work assigned to him and did it as well as he could—and then, when the events and the turmoil created by them had slipped into the past, gradually saw his work in a new light and felt that through the things in which he had had a share, injustice had been done—a grievous injustice, calling for rectification.

It was to do what he might toward bringing about that restitution that he went to Mayor Rolph, in the belief that what he had to say would help reopen a case that is legally closed, but which is far from closed in the minds of hundreds of thousands of Americans.

Hand's story is one through which pass the figures that have been thrown into relief by the dramatic case covering four years—the figures of Frank C. Oxman, of Martin Swanson, the corporation detective, who had been trying for years to "get" Mooney; of John McDonald, alias McDaniels, who was going to ride back to Baltimore, as he said, on cushions—as a reward for his testimony. There are, too, the figures of the prosecutors: Fickert and Edward Cunha and the minor subordinates. And there are the figures of the defendants: Tom Mooney and Billings, both serving life; Rena Mooney and Israel Weinberg, acquitted; Ed. Nolan, whom the prosecution never brought to trial and against whom they admitted they had no evidence, although he had been held in jail for nine months, part of the time incommunicado.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS.

With official reports from vital industrial centers indicating that a period of widespread unemployment has arrived in the United States, there is urgent need of adopting a constructive, permanent program of relief and prevention along the lines of the new and far-reaching unemployment insurance act which went into effect recently in Great Britain, according to a statement issued by the American Association for Labor Legislation.

An appeal is made for immediate, concerted efforts to avert a repetition of the tragic bread line crisis of 1914-15.

"Six years ago we had months of industrial depression," says the secretary, John B. Andrews. "Hundreds of thousands of workers were without jobs. Municipal lodging houses overflowed into city morgues where foot-sore and discouraged men on bitter nights slept in rows on the floor. We even had nightly raids on the churches by men who admitted they came to sleep in the pews. We had bread lines. Committees were organized, conferences were held, and many fine dinners were enjoyed where the unemployed were discussed. Mobs marched upon city halls, and investigators gathered statistics. Meanwhile, desperate housewives overturned push-carts upon the public streets, while rude workmen accustomed to meat were gently advised to eat fish.

"In the course of months," Dr. Andrews continues, "industrial conditions improved. And with the passing of that crisis, public interest in unemployment likewise passed away. It is one of the tragedies of this problem in America that public attention can be directed to it only in time of crisis, when energies must be concentrated chiefly upon temporary, charity relief. Another peculiarity of this problem is that as surely as night follows day and sparks fly upward one industrial crisis follows another. Abundant signs now indicate that we are to be revisited soon."

Dr. Andrews asks whether legislators believe that the army of unemployed in 1920-21 will be without leaders this time to dramatize the social and industrial responsibility for the plight of the workers.

"They will have a different leadership," he says. "They will not have forgotten the prolonged committee meetings and half promises of only six years ago. They may even suggest that profiteering—excessive prices—led the public to strike, to quit buying. They are asking why industrial managers should with impunity stop production. Already there are evidences of this as in circulars spread among workers declaring that 'you have produced too much. That's why you have starved midst plenty.' They are demanding participation in the control of industry.

"Out of the conferences of six years ago did come a practical program for the permanent relief and prevention of unemployment, including a nation-wide public employment service, systematic distribution of public work, regularization of industry, and unemployment insurance. But scarcely a beginning has been made toward its adoption in the United States."

Other industrial nations, the statement asserts, are safeguarding themselves against the human distress and social dangers of a hungry army of jobless workers.

"The British unemployment insurance act, effective to-day," it declares, "marks the most significant advance of a decade in this legislation. It expands the original unemployment insurance law of 1911 so as to provide increased benefits to unemployed workers, shortens the waiting period before out-of-work payments began and extends the scope so as to cover an additional eight million workers—making a total of twelve million workers insured against unemployment—a quarter of the whole population. The United States is wholly without this protection.

"Canada, like England and other industrial nations, has now established a national system of employment bureaus, the machinery of labor distribution that is a prime essential of an effective program. Yet, in the United States, the beginnings of a Federal-State employment service, developed to meet the emergency of war, has been scrapped by Congress. Forces must be marshaled to secure the adoption of an adequate, permanent system at the December session.

"Public work must be carefully planned, increasing in slack periods of private industry, so as to help equalize the varying demand for labor. Nothing beyond a few scattering efforts has thus far been attempted toward this end in the United States.

"Much unemployment is due to irregularity of industrial operations over which the workers have no control, with fluctuations of industry causing, periodically, an abnormal excess of labor supply over labor demand. Great credit should be given the few industries that have recognized their responsibility in this respect and taken steps to regularize production."

While efforts toward prevention and placement are essential, the statement adds, nevertheless, all these combined will not completely do away with unemployment. "Further efforts are needed to care for occasional but inevitable victims of industrial organization which does not itself provide regular employment," it says. "For those who need the protection the most, saving is most impossible. When possible it is not certain or probable, or even economical. Charity is tolerated because it is usually the only refuge in extreme emergency. It has the sanction of use only. But nothing better than this will be in sight until industry has a real awakening to its own best interest and the public with the co-operation of far-sighted employers and labor determines to make an end to this greatest industrial evil by adopting a scientific social remedy through unemployment insurance legislation."

The statement quotes approvingly a recent editorial in the Boston Herald, which says: "There is something fundamentally wrong with an industrial system which declares on the one hand that greater production is essential, that thrift is essential, and yet tries to solve the problem of under-production and profligate expenditure by closing down the factories and throwing men out of work."

CANADIAN SEAMEN

(From Secretary Hanson's Report.)

The membership of the Sailors, Firemen and Cooks' Union of Canada made preparation during the summer for presentation of their claims for an increase in wages through their representatives on September 1st and as expected the Canadian shipowners underestimated the strength of the union and the temper of the men by refusing to consider the demands of the men. As a result a strike was called September 15th to which the men responded in such a manner that the owners soon found it advisable to protect their own interest by dealing with the unions' representatives.

The strike lasted less than two weeks and by October 1st the men were back on their ships having gained recognition of the union and an advance in wages of $10 per month in all departments as well as establishing a uniform scale both for the upper and lower Lake ports on all the larges Canadian vessels on the Great Lakes.

Prior to the strike the several Canadian steamship companies paid the following varied scale to the seamen:

Ordinary seamen from..	$55 to	$75	per month
Coal passers from.....	55 to	75	" "
Second Cooks & Porters	65 to	75	" "
Watchmen and Lookouts	65 to	95	" "
Wheelsmen	90 to	100	" "
Firemen and Oilers.....	90 to	100	" "
Stewards, 2nd class ships	110 to	125	" "
Stewards, 1st class ships	120 to	135	" "

The companies who paid the smallest wages granted a $10 per month bonus at the end of the season to the men.

After the settlement of the strike, the following scale of wages was agreed to between both parties and the bonus system was abolished entirely:

	Per Month
Wheelsmen, Firemen and Oilers.....	$110.00
Lookoutsmen	95.00
Watchmen	95.00
Deckhands	70.00
Coalpassers	70.00
Porters	70.00
Second Cooks.....	80.00
Stewards, second class ships.....	130.00
Stewards, first class ships.....	145.00

Some of the questions in dispute were referred to the Minister of Labor for adjustment and this both parties agreed to while the seamen expect to receive another increase of $5 per month after a board of conciliation has investigated the controversy.

The difference in wages paid to seamen on Canadian ships and that paid to seamen on American ships on the Great Lakes is now reduced to $20 per month to the lowest or inexperienced and $15 per month to the highest or experienced seamen and considering the maritime laws of Canada, which are of no value to the Canadian seamen, it must be conceded that good progress and results have been obtained for these men through their organization and from assistance rendered them by the International Seamen's Union of America.

Labor will never realize its rights until it recognizes its wrongs.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Bankers Lecture Workers.

With mills and factories closing down and operating on short time all over the country, the American Bankers' Association, at its annual convention in Washington, called on labor to "produce more" that prices may be reduced.

The insolence of these money lenders brought spirited replies from President Gompers and Secretary Morrison of the A. F. of L. President Gompers declared that a survey of the activities of the bankers would shock the nation. Secretary Morrison called attention to the shutting down of the mills and asked if the bankers believed they could fool any one but themselves.

"The outlook," said President Gompers, "would be more encouraging if the money powers in control of production were not themselves engaged in subtle efforts to restrict production for the purpose of maintaining famine prices.

"The time has come for a careful survey of the activities of bankers and others intrusted with the processes of production and distribution of the world's needs. The workers are confident that an impartial analysis of the present business practices will so shock our people that those responding to an inordinate desire for gold will be compelled to relieve the suffering of the people."

Secretary Morrison said:

"Let the bankers tell their story of the need for greater production to the thousands of workers who have been laid off. Let them tell the coal miners to work harder.

"The miners are smashing all production records, and yet we find the price of coal is prohibitive, with bankers lecturing workers on the need for greater production.

"The Government's record of exports of manufactured goods does not sustain the bankers. Let them insist that the law of supply and demand, for which they profess such high regard, be permitted to operate. Let them call upon the trusts and combines to stop fixing prices and to stop closing mills and shops to maintain these prices.

"Our banker friends may fool themselves, but they are fooling no one else."

The bankers found themselves confronted by an awkward situation because of the charge by Comptroller of the Currency Williams that New York bankers were borrowing money from the Government at 4½ and 6 per cent. and loaning it for as high as 15, 20, 25 and 30 per cent. The bankers' convention adopted the usual method of those who are "caught with the goods" by raising the "stop-thief" cry. In resolutions passed, the Federal official was not directly referred to, but the bankers deplored any move that would weaken the people's faith in the bankers.

Comptroller Williams appears to have a chip on his shoulder, and to date the bankers are not willing to knock it off. The bankers, according to the Comptroller, have made millions of dollars profit, and their rates mean a grip on the nation's commerce.

The Comptroller answered the bankers' attack by the statement that rhetoric and eloquence is not a reply to facts that are sustained by sworn affidavits.

Child Rights Guarded.

In a survey of juvenile court legislation in this country the United States children's bureau calls attention to the new viewpoint of society toward future citizens.

Twenty-one years ago the relation of the father to his child partook of the nature of a property right. The courts could enforce this right, but, on the other hand, they were powerless to enforce the duty of the father to his child. Since 1899 every State has passed juvenile courts' laws except Connecticut, Maine and Wyoming, and these three States have legislated on questions usually included in juvenile court laws.

The extensiveness of this legislation, says the children's bureau, is the best evidence of the previous unsatisfactory viewpoint of the law.

Under the old law the delinquent child was dealt with in the same manner, with certain restrictions of age, as the adult offender. He was tried before a criminal court with all the formality and notoriety of a jury, sworn testimony and confronting witnesses. If found "guilty" the child suffered the penalty. If "not guilty" he went free. In no case did the law extend any constructive help.

Recent years, however, has recognized the right of the child to a reasonable minimum of care, of decency and of well-being. Consideration has been given to the natural impulses of youth and to the adverse conditions under which the child may have been reared.

Cigarmakers Stick.

One mass meeting of striking cigar makers at Tampa, Fla., smashed the expensive educational campaign of employers who have insisted that these workers are "falsely led."

The strike was called last April, and 14,000 workers, men and women, responded. It was a protest against the discharge of 200 shop committeemen. The bosses have been claiming that these workers are intimidated. To expose this pretense the strikers held a mass meeting and thousands of them were unable to secure admittance to the hall because of the crowd.

The strikers declare they will stick as long as bread is supplied them by fellow unionists and trade union sympathizers. The Cigar Makers' International Union has charge of this movement. Its appeal to organized labor for financial aid has been indorsed by the A. F. of L.

"Nature knows no 'baby act.' We must live up to her conditions or not live at all."—Henry George.

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Transportarbeiter Verband, Reichsabteilung Seeleute. Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25. Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport. Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade Uniâo dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18. Rio de Janeiro

SOUTH AFRIÇA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

The prospect of unemployment this winter is being considered by the British government. For the week ending September 24 there were 313,281 unemployed registered at labor exchanges. This is an increase of 6,400 over the figures for the previous week.

Land which is not in use in the immediate future may now be requisitioned for playgrounds in Austria. This law was passed July 22, according to reports received by the United States Children's Bureau. The land will be placed in charge of organizations interested in the promotion of outdoor recreation and will be used both by school children and young persons above school age. Owners of land will be paid for its use.

The scheme for industrial conscription for both men and women on the Bulgarian model has been worked out fully by the German government. It is mainly the work of Professor Schuecking. Compulsory work for one year is provided as a substitute for the former army service, with a view to increasing the sense of discipline among the masses. This proposal meets with great opposition from the Socialist and Democratic elements in the country, while the Conservatives naturally are in favor of it.

The Canadian Co-operator, published in the interest of the Rochdale system of co-operation, urges co-ops. to be alert to the dangers of centralization and bureaucratic control, which British co-operators are constantly resisting. "These Britishers," says the Canadian Co-operator, "appear to have found that eternal vigilance is the price of democracy, as well as of liberty. They have discovered that as democratic institutions grow in magnitude there is an ever-increasing danger of the same gravitating in the direction of bureaucratic control."

As a result of the strike of Argentine river and coastwise steamship crews, which has continued several months without a prospect of a settlement, eight of the largest steamers of the Argentine Navigation Co., known as the Mihanovich Line, and other property of the company, have been sold to the newly organized Uruguayan Navigation Co. The price paid is said to have been 7,320,000 pesos. It is understood the Mihanovich interests are negotiating for the disposal to foreign interests of some other vessels of its fleet, numbering more than 250, which have been tied up by the strike.

The overworked English wage earner will soon be a rarity, is the opinion of the chief inspector of factories and work shops, who says the shorter workday is rapidly replacing the old system of long, monotonous toil. It is stated that the shortened working hours has had a beneficial effect on wage earners, more so than any other recent improvement in industrial conditions. Better machinery [illegible] fatigue and overstrain, and no increase in accidents, despite the fact that more men are employed in engineering (metal) trades, are other marked results. With regard to sickness, the report cites a large factory where some years ago, the average number of absentees was 40 daily. Since the adoption of the 44 hour week the average has dropped to 10 daily.

REMOVAL and REDUCTION SALE

GREATEST IN THE HISTORY OF SAN FRANCISCO'S WATERFRONT

Our Store Will Be Moved to

37 MARKET STREET

Corner of Steuart on or About December 10, 1920

Commencing Nov. 10, We Will Offer For Sale

Can't Bustem and Headlight

Union-Made Waist Overalls, each	$1.50
Bib Overalls	2.00
Blue or Khaki Boiler Suits	3.75
Argonaut Union-Made Double-back Hickory Shirts	1.50
Blue Chambray Shirts	.90
Khaki Pants	2.50
Chalmers Heavy Cotton Ribbed Union Suits	2.00

ARGONAUT UNION-MADE HEAVY WOOL FLANNEL SHIRTS—BLUE, GRAY, OR BROWN, $3.50

MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS
CAPT. CUGLE'S BOOK ON NAVIGATION

FREE INFORMATION OF THE MOVEMENTS OF ALL VESSELS UNDER EVERY FLAG

Lawrence Balbriggan Underwear, Ankle-Length Drawers and Half Sleeve Undershirts, each $ .75
Heavy Wool Underwear, per garment 1.75
Sweater Neck Navy Undershirts 40c and .65
Cotton Socks 15c and Heavy Wool Socks 40c to .90
Regular $3 Dress Shirts for 1.50
Brown Flannel Shirts 1.75

Nautical Instruments and Uniforms

SUITS, OVERCOATS, HATS AND SHOES IN PROPORTION

CAN'T BUST'EM UNION-MADE CORDUROY PANTS, REGULAR $6.50 AND $7.50 VARIETY, NOW FOR SALE AT $4.75

A visit to this store will convince you.

CAPTAIN CHAS. J. SWANSON

36 Steuart Street, near Market

In the Southern Pacific Building
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
Telephone Douglas 1082

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J. 22.50

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney-at-law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 676 Mills Bldg., Telephone Sutter 4673. Residence Phone Prospect 2908.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Chas. T. Smith, Roy Dresser, Joe Ban, Autti Hanks, Thos. Wolstenholme, Chas. Fraser, W. B. Pierce, Karl Olson, William Holmes kindly communicate with John T. Smith, Room 411, 112 Market St., San Francisco. 10-6-20

Crew of the S. S. "Wasco," which signed on at New York March 19th and were discharged and arrested at the Cape Verde Islands about October 19th, will be good enough to report or communicate with the undersigned. The trial of some of the crew will come up shortly and I should like to join as many of the crew as possible in their action.—S. B. Axtell, New York, N. Y.
8-4-20

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM
A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
R. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth

This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE

will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.

Send in your order today.

$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Arturo Longueira, age 18, who mysteriously disappeared at South Ferry, New York, on August 25th, or any one knowing his whereabouts, will please communicate with Secretary, Marine Firemen's Union, 70 South St., New York City. 10-20-20

AXTELL'S BOOK

"Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen" for the use of seamen and officers, just out. Copies may be obtained by addressing

RIGHTS & DUTIES OF SEAMEN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
9 State Street, New York City.
$1.00 Per Copy.

To Scandinavian Sailors:

Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.

LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

The two concrete tankers "Palo Alto" and "Peralta," built at Oakland, California, for the Shipping Board, have been sold to the Lincoln Steamship Line of New York. The consideration has not yet been made public.

A contract for reconditioning of the motorship "Annie Johnson" has been awarded to the United Engineering Company. The "Annie Johnson," which is owned and operated by the Matson Navigation Company between this port and Honolulu will undergo extensive engine repairs.

It was announced that the new Standard Oil tanker "Charles Watson," launched recently at the Union Construction Company's yard, will be placed in the coastwise oil carrying trade to take the place of the tanker "George Loomis," which disappeared at sea in December, 1918, en route from San Francisco to Seattle.

Reports from the north received by the marine department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce stated that the motor-ship which went ashore just inside the mouth of the Nehalem river recently was not damaged by the accident. After a survey of the craft upon her arrival recently at Seattle the vessel started loading lumber.

It is reported that some San Francisco interests have decided to fit out a salvage vessel for operations on the West Coast, which will be welcome news to the underwriters on account of the paucity of salvage facilities in that section. It is said that the enterprise will be financed on a co-operative basis by underwriters, merchants and shipowners.

The first direct passenger service between San Francisco and the ports of South America since the war will be inaugurated by W. R. Grace & Co. in February. This announcement was made during the week. The steamer "Colusa," now under charter to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, will open the new service. She is scheduled to return from India on January 20th.

With an unidentified member of the crew missing and believed to have been burned to death or drowned, the historic river steamer "Gold" was totally destroyed by fire at Petaluma, Cal., on November 8. The damage to the pier and a number of box cars, together with the cargo of merchandise loaded on the "Gold" and bound for San Francisco, is estimated at $150,000.

The oil tanker "M. F. Elliott," built by the Moore Shipbuilding Company for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was launched at 12:45 o'clock last Saturday afternoon from the Oakland ways. Miss Dorothy Seapon, daughter of an official of the Standard Oil Company, sponsored the vessel. The launching was superintended by Joseph A. Moore and a large number of officials from the bay cities attended the launching. The tanker is of 10,000 tons, and has a capacity of 75,000 barrels of oil. She is one of the new fleet of 17 tankers being built at various American shipyards for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The Panama canal is rapidly paying for itself, according to a report issued by the Panama Canal Register. A record of the movement of vessels passing through the canal for the first six months of this year shows a total of 1324 steamers, against 1154 for the same period last year. The growth of business on the Pacific Coast with East Coast ports of South America and of the Atlantic seaports with the Far East promises an amazing increase, according to the report, and it is expected that the end of this year will show a heavy increase in the number of vessels passing through the canal over the number for the first six months.

K. D. Dawson, general manager of the Columbia-Packing Shipping Company of Portland, is back from a trip to eastern ports. He reports eastern operators turning their vessels back to the Shipping Board with the collapse of business in the Orient and adds that business in Cuba and the eastern coast of South America is very dull. Because of a drop in prices and exchange rates, some $12,000,000 worth of goods exported to South America remain in the warehouses because the importers refuse to take delivery. Mr. Dawson says it will require close and efficient operation hereafter to get a profit out of the shipping business.

Two thousand bottles of smuggled liquor have been seized on ships by customs inspectors at San Francisco since August 24th. During the entire eight months previous to this date seizures totaled only 6000 bottles. Two reasons are given by J. O. Davis, Collector of Customs, for the increase: More liquor is being brought in owing to lack of sufficient customs guards on the water front, and the fact that the men now on duty are growing more proficient in their new occupation of searching for contraband liquor. Davis will advertise the 2000 bottles for three weeks, awaiting owners to claim it. As no one is expected to admit ownership of the contraband, it will be sold to licensed dealers by auction, in the same manner the 6000 bottles seized earlier in the year were disposed of a few days ago.

The final chapter in the controversy of the Navy against the various oil companies of California and the Pacific Coast was written when a telegram was received at the headquarters of the Twelfth Naval District advising executives of the local naval headquarters that the General Petroleum Corporation agreed to supply oil to the Navy at $2 a barrel at the pipeline terminal of that company at San Pedro. This action takes away the last opposition to the Navy in getting a supply of oil at the quoted price of $2 a barrel, and it closes a series of conflicts which included seizures by armed forces, mandatory orders from Washington and a long series of unpleasantness between naval officials and executives of various oil concerns. As the result of this termination of the struggle, the Navy gets oil at the $2 price from any terminal pipe line of any company on the Coast, and it pays $2 a barrel plus transportation charges at any other point.

Operating expenses of the United States Shipping Board in the Pacific Coast offices have been curtailed to an extent whereby the Government will save nearly $600,000 annually, according to a report received from the offices of Admiral Benson, chairman of the Board. The report stated that a general reduction in the overhead expenses of the controllers' division of the Shipping Board would result in a million dollars saved yearly. Sale of the Government shipyards at Seattle is now under consideration, according to Admiral Benson. Yard No. 1 will be stripped and a survey will be made to determine whether the present shipping situation warrants the continuance of the Government's yard No. 2 at Seattle as a repair yard. The move is part of the policy announced by Chairman Benson some months ago, in which he stated that unless means were taken to curb the present expenditures of the operation of the Shipping Board, the Government would be hard pressed to secure funds for its maintenance.

"There is no harbor in North America equal to the harbor of San Francisco either in natural conditions or equipment," said John H. McCallum, president of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners before the Mutual Business Club at San Francisco. McCallum has recently returned from an inspection trip to every large harbor in the United States and Canada, and not only speaks from actual comparison but from reports of the best harbor engineers in America. This condition is due to the fact that San Francisco's harbor is State owned and operated by the State. He pointed out the fact that the forty docks are connected by rails of the Belt line, bringing railroads direct to the ship; that the 15 cents per ton charge on foreign trade is the lowest rate in the United States, and that from this revenue all expenses are paid, with from $30,000 to $40,000 per month being set aside for permanent improvement. San Francisco can handle at her docks 240 vessels a day, or close to 1,000,000 tons of shipping a month. In all the experience of the Commission, McCallum said, not one complaint has been set to record, due to the advisory board of twenty prominent business and shipping men who assist the Commission in carrying out their policy of a square deal to every man, big or small, who has business on the docks of San Francisco. McCallum closed his address by inviting the members to visit the docks and familiarize themselves with the best and largest port in America.

The first of the Shipping Board's new, palatial liners, known in steamship circles as the "535s," built to compete with foreign vessels in the Pacific passenger trade, will be delivered to San Francisco operators on January 15. The first of the new steamships to come here will be the "Wenatchee," which has been allocated to the Admiral Line. In quick succession the "Keystone State" and the "Bay State" will be delivered. Leaving New York on January 29, the "Wenatchee" will touch at Havana on February 1, departing two days later for the Panama canal. She is expected to reach San Francisco on February 18. These new liners represent the last word in the art of shipbuilding. Each has a capacity of 559 passengers and is capable of maintaining a speed of 17½ knots an hour. Their accommodations include a music room, palm garden, veranda, library, writing room, ballroom with marble floor and glass-inclosed promenade. The staterooms range from four-room suites, consisting of sitting room, bedroom with twin beds, maid's and trunkroom, to those of standard size, accommodating two and three passengers each. Practically all of the staterooms have connecting showers and baths and are luxuriously furnished. It is announced that the entire fleet of 15 will be out here by spring. Five of these vessels are allocated to the Admiral Line, five to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and five to the Matson Navigation Company.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....ROBERT OLSEN, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C...ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF
Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RODEN, Agent
260 President Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....F. NELSON, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
510 Trust Building
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
332 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....A. BOGE, Agent
21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 West Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....J. VALLE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....R. BELL, Agent
669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.
Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC
Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION
H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....816 River Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG.....Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1920.

PROGRESS OF THE I. S. U. OF A.

The current report of Secretary Hanson of the International Seamen's Union of America contains facts and figures which should give hope and encouragement to the most confirmed pessimist.

During the three months ended October 1, covered by the report, the membership of the International Seamen's Union of America has increased by 7,242, making the total number of members in good standing—113,307.

During the same period the cash balance in the treasuries of the District Unions was boosted upward to the tune of nearly $100,000, making the total assets on October 1—$1,320,332.74.

Secretary Hanson has a deserved reputation for being modest and disinclined to crow. But on the strength of the beforementioned showing even our ever cautious and unassuming "Tom" cannot refrain from making a few appropriate remarks.

To quote our International Secretary:

> The information obtained from secretaries of District Unions and compiled in the enclosed Quarterly Report make it evident that the International Union is in a very healthy condition both in membership and funds and should prove to the individual that never before in our International Union's history has such progress been made nor such results obtained as are now enjoyed by nearly 115,000 members, who compose the largest and best conducted organization of seamen in existence that we know of.
>
> These expressions should not be labeled "Boast" as they are intended for those who desire to "Boost" the International Union and will be found true if investigated. The duty of all is to utilize the ability and energy we possess to guard against such attack as may endanger our Union in its onward march for bigger and better things for all seamen.

Our Secretary's comment on the progress of the seamen's trade-union movement is timely.

The American seamen and the American Seamen's Union movement have passed through many trying times and severe tests. The American Seamen's union movement has developed and progressed through lean and fat years by a gradual and practical process. Practically every advance made and every improvement attained have only been secured by a constant and determined struggle against opposition and barriers which at times seemed insurmountable.

With every forward step the merchant seamen have gained in public favor and influence. Our Union's standing with the American people has never been so high as it is today. Its constructive attitude and conduct, its loyal support of the government during the war; its reasonable and humane policies have earned for the seamen of America a public recognition never surpassed by any movement of the wage-earners.

History here and elsewhere discloses the indisputable fact that wherever revolutionary policies were pursued, wherever passion supplanted reason and good judgment, wherever progressive measures were displaced by destructive methods, invariably destitution, suffering, ruin and chaos followed in their wake; better things to come were delayed and the hope of a brighter day was dimmed, if not destroyed.

It is fortunate, indeed, that our International Union has always heeded this lesson from history. And with a continuance of that constructive policy it matters not, what the future has in store. Hard times, unemployment, in fact every storm can be and will be weathered by adherence to methods that have proved sound and never failed under the acid test.

THE SHIPPING BOARD MUDDLE.

President Wilson has finally completed appointments for the new Shipping Board, after allowing five months to elapse since the passage of the merchant marine act, which enlarged the board from five to seven members and increased salaries from $7500 to $12,000.

The new board is made up of four Democrats and three Republicans, the law requiring that not more than four members shall belong to one political party. Under the law's requirements two members represent the Atlantic Coast, two the Pacific, one the Gulf States, one the Great Lakes States and one the interior States.

The appointments follow:

Atlantic—Admiral S. Benson, Georgia, Democrat; John A. Donald, New York, Democrat; incumbents.

Pacific—Joseph T. Teal, Oregon, Democrat, lawyer; Chester H. Rowell, California, Republican, newspaper publisher.

Gulf—Frederick I. Thompson, Alabama, Democrat, newspaper publisher.

Great Lakes—Guy Goff, Wisconsin, Republican.

Interior States—Charles Sutter, Missouri, Republican; shipping interests.

Admiral Benson, designated by the President to continue as chairman, was appointed for a six-year term; Thompson, five years; Teal, four years; Donald, three years; Rowell, two years; Goff and Sutter, one year.

Men who are rated as "wise ones" among politicians declare it is significant that the President gave the four Democrats the long terms. And, they say, this makes it a certainty that the Senate will refuse to confirm the appointments and that Harding will name a new board on March 4.

Under the circumstances it is very obvious that the men just appointed cannot, with the best of intent, render effective and efficient service. Men who are merely "filling in" on jobs until the Republicans assume control will have a difficult task in an exceptionally difficult situation.

In the meantime the charges made public during the week by the Congressional committee investigating Shipping Board graft have caused a sensation. The charges made by Investigator J. F. Richardson include sweeping accusations of graft, corruption, bribery and stupidity. Among the definite accusations made by Richardson are that political influence was used in obtaining allocation to new operating companies; irregularities in sales and adjustment of claims; that profitable cargo was handled by companies in their own ships while the less profitable was sent out in Board ships; and that grafting by Board officials was frequent.

It would appear therefore that the newly appointed members of the Shipping Board will find anything but a bed of roses when they settle down to duty. Really, it is a deplorable mess and can have only one final result: A general, overwhelming demand for the prompt disposal of all Government-owned merchant vessels and the total abolition of the Shipping Board just as soon as possible.

It should be made plain, however, that the seven men who have accepted the President's appointment under these conditions can scarcely be held responsible for the muddle. Moreover, in signifying their willingness to serve the country, knowing full well what is before them, these men have already shown genuine public spirit and are therefore entitled to every sort of commendation.

THE 48-HOUR WEEK.

Readers of the JOURNAL will recall that the International Conference, which met in Genoa, Italy, during June of this year under the auspices of the League of Nations, failed by a narrow margin to adopt the "draft convention" for the forty-eight hour week. The full text of the defeated draft convention was published in the JOURNAL, dated Sept. 15.

The regular meeting of the International Seafarers' Federation, held at Brussels, Belgium, in August, took due notice of this refusal to establish the forty-eight hour week for seamen. On motion of the delegates from France the meeting at Brussels thereupon decided:

"1. To select a delegation that will have for its mandate to go to the Director of the International Labor Bureau and ask him to organize an arbitration where the shipowners' delegates and the seafaring men should be heard.

"2. In case such arbitration should not take place the International Seafarers' Federation is to organize an international manifestation by declaring a strike of 48 hours in all ports;

"3. If, following this first movement, the shipowners and governments still remain obstinate a strike committee, selected by this conference, shall meet in order to fix the date of a strike without limitation and to make all arrangements necessary to carry the strike to a successful conclusion."

The committee provided for in the first paragraph was elected and, according to information just received, recently met Mr. Thomas, the Director of the International Labor Bureau (functioning under the League of Nations). The meeting was held in London and Thomas Chambers (Great Britain) acted as spokesman for the seamen. To begin with Mr. Chambers pointed out that the Conference at Genoa had shown nearly everybody of the opinion that the seamen should be included in the forty-eight hour week, and while admitting that he was not quite clear as to who should act as arbitrator for the conference proposed above, he felt sure that if the meeting could be arranged all parties should be bound to accept the arbitrator's decision, and he appealed to Mr. Thomas to use all his influence to get the two parties together.

Mr. Thomas stated that he agreed with Mr. Chambers that a plan ought to be drawn up before such a meeting was called, and he suggested that a national meeting of the owners and seamen should first be held in each country.

Mr. Chambers replied that so far as England was concerned they were quite prepared, but it was thought that the International Labor office should take the initiative in calling an international conference.

Mr. Thomas then agreed to write to the shipowners. It was also mutually agreed that the meeting to be called should deal with the entire subject matter embodied in the draft convention of the Genoa conference and refer to arbitration only such points on which it was not possible to come to an agreement.

It was further agreed that the basis of representation for said meeting should be two delegates from each country—one for the employers and one for the employes.

In closing the conference Mr. Thomas asked: "If the owners should agree to come to an arbitration, but refuse to use the draft convention as a basis, would he then be permited to ask the owners what they were prepared to discuss?" It was agreed that he be given such authority, but, should the owners refuse, then the second paragraph of the resolution adopted by the Seafarers' Federation would be carried into effect. The selection of the meeting place for the conference was left with Mr. Thomas.

So the struggle for the shorter workday at sea and in port is progressing with every indication that it will not be necessary to resort to the strike.

THE WORLD DOES MOVE.

In commenting on the compromise settlement of the British coal miners' strike, the San Francisco Argonaut, a paper with a pronounced anti-union labor policy, says:

The danger, ... is by no means over, nor will it be over until basic human rights receive a warmer recognition in England than has been the case heretofore. Industries that must be kept alive by the social degradation of a million men must either be reorganized or they must disappear.

A few years ago our contemporary vigorously denounced American trade-union officials because they had made similar statements about certain home industries. But distance seems to lend enchantment and it is a genuine pleasure to say that the world and The Argonaut "do move"!

A strike is a method, and frequently the only effectual one, or protesting against injustice. If the public could be got to take action upon a mere statement of the facts they would have less occasion to complain of the hardship inflicted by strikes upon "the innocent third party."

RADIUM'S USE IN INDUSTRY.

A New Element in the Safety Movement That Is Likely to Become an All-Important Factor.

Radium, the most mysterious and most powerful element known to science, which has the greatest power of all discovered sources of energy, has now been linked with the safety movement and will lend its power to the prevention of avoidable accidents. So great is its power that one gram is sufficient to raise a ton of water from the freezing to the boiling point If one ton of it were harnessed to a ship equipped with 1500 h.-p. engines, the ship would be propelled at the rate of 15 knots an hour for thirty years.

Radium is best known to the world through its curative properties in the treatment of cancer and through its commercial value in making radium luminous material. The power of radium was made known only a few years ago through the efforts of a Polish woman scientist and a French and an American professor. Radium now treats thousands of cases of cancer annually, preventing death and eliminating a great deal of suffering.

Radium's role in industry as a life saver is less spectacular, but perhaps even more important than it is as a therapeutic agent. The great mass of accidents in factories, in mines and in other industrial institutions where darkness is a creator of danger are being eliminated through the newest invention of science—radium luminous material. Radium illuminated watches are familiar articles. The same material that illuminates these is now being employed in great factories on all power line switches where fumbling might mean electrocution to the operator.

High-pressure gauges, which are installed as an insurance against dangers, are deprived of a great deal of their safety value through inconstant lighting. Their dependability as indicators is increased tremendously through making them safe 24 hours a day by the application of radium luminous material, which is invariably luminous in the dark. Steam gauges and water gauges of all sorts are making use of radium to increase safety.

Electric switches are often set in places which are unlit. This includes electric lighting equipment, which is usually visible only after the light it controls has been turned on. A spot of radium luminous material on the bottom or switch makes them easily located in the dark, so that in emergency they may quickly be made use of.

Likewise a fire alarm or a fire extinguisher is deprived of a good deal of its efficiency through being invisible in the dark. Radium luminous material acts as a quick locater for them. Telephones which are often necessarily found quickly in the dark in emergencies, various emergency call bells, and revolvers are made more useful through the application of undark. Gun sights, illuminated, insure accuracy of aim in the dark. The need of luminating poison bottles, so that they may stand out warningly in the dark, has been demonstrated too often to need further dwelling on. An interesting safety device is the safe combination whose dial is radium luminated, so that no artificial light need be used for it.

The industrial uses of radium luminous material are many. Bolts that are necessarily attached to the dark underportions of machines and equipment are being touched with dabs of this luminous material with a consequent great saving of bloodshed. In mines, where the carrying of oil lamps or the placing of electric lighting equipment is not feasible, radium has been found to be a boon to humanity. There are dark corners in the dark underground channels which miners must traverse, corners where danger lurks—these are made safe through the unvarying luminosity of radium.

The value of radium to mariners is commencing to be recognized. Not only the compass dials, but the steering wheels, the gauges, and other instruments which should be instantly and uninterruptedly visible have been touched with radium. Motorists, motorcyclists and the operators of any machinery which has indicating dials, or gauges which tell of the speed of the motor or the quantity and mixture of fuels and oils, are finding the solution of their difficulties in radium luminous material. The hazard of uncertainty has been reduced.

While radium is the most valuable element in the world—a gram of radium, which is about a thimbleful, costs $120,000, as opposed to $150 for an ounce of platinum. So powerful is it when mixed with other materials that even the minutest particle is effective in making material self-luminous for years. It is this quality which makes radium luminous material commercially possible.

The great value of radium is due to its scarcity, and to the great difficulty in isolating it after it has been found. Much of the radium of the world is now found in America, in carnotite fields. A great portion of this comes from the Undark Radium mines in the Paradox Valley of Colorado.

The ore is found in narrow seams in the ground. It is sorted and packed in 100-pound sacks and transported sixty miles to the nearest railroad station on the backs of burros and

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 15, 1920.
Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Andrew Furuseth presiding. Secretary reported shipping medium; members ashore plentiful.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.
This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 8, 1920.
Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.
153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Nov. 8, 1920.
Shipping dull.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.
2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Nov. 8, 1920.
Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL, Agent.
84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Nov. 8, 1920.
Shipping dull.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.
P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Nov. 8, 1920.
Shipping dull; prospects uncertain.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.
88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Nov. 8, 1920.
Shipping dull; members ashore plentiful.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.
128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Nov. 8, 1920.
Shipping slack; prospects uncertain.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.
P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 12, 1920.
Shipping slack. Balloting on officers for the ensuing term and delegates to the I. S. U. of A. convention was proceeded with.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.
No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Nov. 3, 1920.
Shipping quite slow. Balloted on officers for the ensuing term and delegates to the I. S. U. of A. convention.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.
Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro, Nov. 3, 1920.
Shipping good. Men scarce. Balloted on officers for the ensuing term and delegates to the I. S. U. of A. convention.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.
No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED.

John R. Rauer, No. 1641, a native of Tennessee, age 30. Died at Kobe, Japan, September 26, 1920.

It is stated in the Japan Advertiser that a law establishing a maximum and minimum loading capacity for freighters will be introductd in the next Diet. This is a new departure in Japanese shipping regulations, and it is believed that the law will be applicable to foreign vessels as well as to Japanese ships.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

PERJURY OR PERSECUTION

We are all accustomed to hearing of the false and forcible imprisonment of seamen in foreign ports on one flimsy frame-up or another, negotiated by agile-minded skippers with the official assistance and personal connivance of obliging consuls.

Such cases, however, are the usual outgrowths of lingering displays of detestable motives—"hatred, malice or revenge"—cherished against the unfortunate victims and revealed in unlawful outbursts of tyrannical authority by unprincipled masters.

A designing skipper who fails to get a sailor into chokee for something he has done, will invariably land him there for something he hasn't done. The result is the same, only the policy is different.

But here comes a wily skipper who slyly decoys his entire crew right into prison, keeps them there twenty-six days on starvation rations, then has them transported without a hearing and beached in New York minus their wages—and all because they refused to commit perjury to cover his blundering stupidity and save his owners an unjust claim for marine insurance.

The potential villain in this deep-laid plot is Captain Alex Georgadia, a naturalized but unregenerate Greek, master of the schooner "Ruth E. Merrill." His official intermedium was the Spanish consul at Hamburg, and the victims are seven colored seamen, all members of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, and all of them residents of New York City.

The names of the complaining members are: Samuel Small, Charles Ellis, William Folberg, Gervis Cilion, Isaac N. Matticks, Alfred Delancy and Iglon Cyrus. The substance of their combined tribulations as set forth in a joint affidavit, submitted to both the Federal and City Courts of New York on October 25, 1920, in a suit for damages, wages, extra compensation and other relief against the master and owners of the "Ruth E. Merrill," may be briefly summed up as follows:

All the petitioners were signed as able seamen at Norfolk, Va., on July 1, 1920, for a voyage to Finland and return, at the going rate of $100 a month.

The voyage across was pleasant and uneventful until they dropped anchor in the North Sea about 10 o'clock on a midsummer morning. According to the captain's reckoning they should have been up to the lightship when the anchor was dropped, "but," declare the deponents, "although the weather was clear we could see no lightship."

When the anchor was let go, Ellis and Folberg were assisting the first mate, Mister Allen, who was in charge of operations on the forecastle head. After a great scope of chain had been paid out, Ellis was ordered into the chain locker to see how much cable was left below. He came back and reported that only about five fathoms remained in the starboard locker and that the end of the chain was unshackled from the keelson bolt, but that there was a spare shackle and pin lying on deck which evidently belonged to it.

The mate paid no attention to Ellis's report, but secured the compressor and went aft.

About 12:30 that night the mate came forward, mounted the forecastle deck, where Ellis was keeping anchor watch, and without a preliminary word released the compressor and let the last link of the starboard chain fly round the wild cat the hawse pipe. The ship being now adrift, Ellis proposed to go aft and call the old man, but Mister Allen halted him with an order to clear away the port bower. The port anchor was accordingly let go, "and," says the affidavit, "the weather was fair; air clear; no wind to speak of; very little sea. Any rowboat could have negotiated without difficulty, and there was no strain on the anchor chain at any time."

Next morning the "Merrill" was got under way and picked up the lightship about 5 p. m.

"Good sailing breeze," says the sailors' log, in this connection. "Ship sound and seaworthy. Port anchor raised without difficulty. We dropped anchor at the lightship at 12 o'clock midnight."

The following morning, about August 27 or 28, by a rough calculation, a tug arrived to tow the "Merrill" into port, and after taking her hawser on board the order was given to heave up.

In this instance Mister Allen and the second mate, Mister Hurlston, were on the forecastle-head together with Small and Delancy as helpers.

Mister Allen locked the windlass on a half turn, or thought he had and started to heave. The slack chain came in readily enough, but in tripping the anchor the windlass jammed and broke the clutches and there was no more "heave away." An attempt to break out the anchor with the spanker boom tackle and the donkey engine used as a double purchase, resulted in breaking the block hook on the tackle, but nothing else.

Whereupon Captain Georgadia, in great excitement at the delay, ordered the mate to "cut away" and let the anchor chain go by the run, which he obediently did.

The "Merrill's" course was then changed to Hamburg to obtain anchors and equipment.

About September 4, according to the affidavit, the skipper took seaman Small and the second mate ashore with him in Hamburg "to sign a paper."

The character of the "paper" was not divulged to them at the time. When he got them ashore the captain left the two men in a barroom to wait for him, and disappeared for some time.

Upon returning the captain generously offered to settle for the drinks presumably consumed in his absence, but upon being told by the men that they had ordered no drinks and owed no bills, he said: "All right, we will go to the Consulate and sign that protest."

"What protest?" inquired Small, suspiciously.

"About losing the anchors and chains," replied the surething skipper.

"I'll not sign any protest alone," demurred Small. "Why don't you bring all hands?"

The skipper then instructed the second mate to return to the ship and bring another man.

The second mate went aboard and returned to the Consulate, bringing seaman Charles Ellis.

But Ellis also refused to sign the "protest" and advised the skipper to bring the engineer.

When the engineer arrived the "protest" was read over to him, but he likewise protested that the statements therein were "not true" and refused to sign it.

The captain thereupon exclaimed: "Unless you fellows sign this paper I will send you to jail."

"Next day," continues the affidavit, "two policemen came aboard and took the engineer ashore. We haven't seen him since. It was rumored, though, that he had been paid off."

Two days later, on September 7, at 8:30 a. m., the mate came aboard, bringing two policemen with him, and ordered all the seamen to "get ready to go to the Consulate."

They all got into the boat unsuspectingly and pulled ashore. Then they were ordered to get into a covered wagon which was waiting on the dock and were driven rapidly uptown.

"The wagon was so enclosed," say the deponents, "we could not see where we were going and when we jumped out we jumped into jail."

They had simply been decoyed into the common jail for refusing to commit perjury, and were kept there twenty-six days on a diet of "bread and cabbage," they assert.

The crew wrote to the consul the day after their arrest, inquiring why they had been imprisoned. Three days later they received a reply stating that they had been arrested on the strength of the captain's allegation that they had refused duty "and threatened him with bodily harm."

The men wrote again to the Spanish consul, denying these allegations of the master and demanding a hearing, but received no further reply.

On September 24 the skipper visited them in jail and told the men he intended to send them home in the next boat.

"Why have you got us in here, captain?" demanded Ellis.

"The mate says you were fighting on board the ship," the skipper is said to have replied.

The seamen then asked the skipper to have the mate brought ashore and let him prove which men had been fighting.

"You are fighting all the time," blurted the skipper. "Now will you sign that 'protest'?"

"No!" they all shouted defiantly.

"Then stay there!" barked the baffled perjurer and left them.

On October 2 the crew of the "Ruth E. Merrill" were released from jail and placed on board the S. S. "Manchuria" and arrived in New York, October 15, 1920.

Upon arriving in New York the persecuted but unperjured seamen made formal demand upon the Olympic Steamship Corporation, 76 Broad street, owners of the "Ruth E. Merrill," for the payment of their wages. But they were informed by the officials of the concern that no report having been received from the captain as to them, their wages could not be paid.

The aggrieved and persecuted seamen thereupon appealed to the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association for protection and redress, and suit has been entered in their behalf as aforesaid in the sum of $2,000 each.

The legal developments in this case will be watched with intense interest by the organized seamen.

If the seamen's charges against that Greek skipper are well sustained by the evidence adduced in the trial of the case, he should be disrated for stupidity, imprisoned for perjury, and then denaturalized and deported as an undesirable imposter. J. H. W.

SEA-TRAINING OR SUJI-MUJI

We respectfully recall to the serious attention of our manjack members the leading editorial published in the JOURNAL of October 13, last.

In discussing the problem of practical sea training the editor takes broad issue with the yacht cruising advocates and insists upon the real ship as a sea school. In support of his argument—if any were needed—he submits the sworn affidavit of two practical bos'ns lately in the training ship service. This affidavit only reaffirms the irrevocable conviction of all real seamen, that so-called "training" ships are a maritime nuisance and a useless public expense. A ship that earns nothing teaches nothing. It matters not whether she lies alongside a dock or goes skimming along the coast, her crew, and especially her cadets can never see any use in being there.

Practical seamanship does not consist in holystoning decks, polishing brass and sujiing paint work. That is a housemaid's work. We can never create practical, case-hardened, hard-fisted, honest-to-God sailors of the bulldog breed by subjecting boys to long hours of stupid, useless, time-serving drudgery on a ship that has nowhere to go and nothing to do.

We have never yet known a man or a boy—a training-ship graduate, worth his salt under sail in a merchantman—and the longer he has been trained the longer it will take to untrain, and then real train him and make a sailor of him. In the majority of cases it is impossible to retrain him because his faculties have become set in a wrong mold like a plaster cast and are no longer pliable.

Whatever a man learns first he usually remembers longest, and a man trained as a dolt will never become a scholar. The right way to train men for the sea, is to send them to sea right.

If a fraction of the many millions of dollars squandered and diverted through the Emergency Fleet Corporation during the war on the construction of clap-trap wooden steamers, that can neither be operated or given away, had been judiciously expended in the construction and equipment of a large serviceable fleet of stately sailing ships to be owned by the Government and operated on Government account we would now have in service in the merchant marine a very large body of thoroughly trained, competent, true-hearted American seamen that would be an honor to the service and a credit to the country. And in addition we would have a permanent fleet of very serviceable and highly profitable wind-jammers to supply our public needs, serve as supply ships to the navy and naval bases, and preserve the arts of practical seamanship and uphold the highest, truest and brightest traditions of sea service at the same time.

The great opportunity was lost in a riotous orgy of public extravagance. But the men, the means, the material and the opportunities are still with us if the will only exists.

The gods created Cape Horn and the Cape of Good Hope to prevent molly-coddles from becoming wise; they are the two most instructive points in the world, and our merchant marine will never be worth a paper mask until we can breed and educate a class of seamen who are able to negotiate them in wind-jammers. If this does not mean business it means training, and training and education are the foundation and forerunners of all business.

The caravels of 1492 were the hope of 1920. But our government policies are evidently too intimately controlled by big business projects to bother about training seamen; not money enough in it to satisfy maritime investors. It is up to the seamen's unions therefore, to undertake the great work of training their own members. When it becomes known and recognized that Union Seamen are the best trained and best experienced afloat, and when union graduate and post graduate certificates are acknowledged as standards of character and training par excellence by government authorities and marine experts, then the organized seamen will take their rightful and logical place among the most useful and highly respected citizens of their time and their services will always be in high demand.

Then the maritime prestige of our country will be restored and American boys will remain at sea.

J. H. W.

OFFICIALLY SHANGHAIED

That a seaman can be shanghaied officially by an American immigration inspector in the interests of foreign maritime competitors is amply demonstrated in the case of Comrade K. A. Korner, A. B., just submitted to us in a communication from Mr. Julius Nelson, agent at Newport News, Va., of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association.

The complaint of Comrade Korner is contained in a letter written by him on October 12, 1920, when about to depart for Europe in the British S. S. "Singapore," and is addressed to Mr. Nelson in the hope that his case may be noticed. Comrade Korner also appears to be expecting some money—from what source he does not indicate in his letter—which he wishes the Union Agent to protect for him until called for.

In his communication to the Agent, Comrade Korner states that he was discharged from the American S. S. "Portsmouth" at Buenos Aires. There being no shipping going on at Buenos Aires at the time, probably owing to the harbor strike, Korner was obliged to stow away in the British S. S. "Norumbega," bound to New York. But the "Norumbega" called at Newport News for coal, and there Korner was taken ashore and locked up in the County Jail, apparently without inquiry or official hearing, and kept there thirteen days.

Comrade Korner, a Dane by birth, holds a Danish passport, an American seaman's certificate and identification card, was bos'n of the "Portsmouth" when discharged at Buenos Aires, and is also a member of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association. Yet in spite of all these evidences of personal standing and regularity, he was arrested as a stowaway simply because it could be done.

Korner claims to have been sailing in American ships for a number of years, and if this is so we can see no good purpose to be fulfilled by denying him the right to land without due and diligent inquiry.

On October 12 an immigration official visited Comrade Korner at the jail and asked him if he was willing to sign in an English ship bound to France. Upon agreeing to this proposal Korner was taken to the Custom House and introduced to the British captain. But when he demanded American wages, the limejuicer replied that he would pay only British wages, £14 10s. per month. Korner rebelled at this and insisted that he could not sign below the union scale of wages; whereupon the immigration official threatened him with another term of imprisonment if he refused to sign as ordered.

So Korner was virtually shanghaied and forced on board a foreign ship by an American official, and compelled under threat of imprisonment to sign for a foreign rate of wages far below the American scale, and proceed to a foreign port with no provision for his return to the United States.

It is just such high-handed and dishonorable actions as the foregoing on the part of sworn officials of the United States Government that is preventing good Americans from becoming seamen, and good foreigners from becoming citizens, and placing the American merchant marine at a serious and unjust disadvantage in competing for the world's trade.

This case demands and should receive the closest official scrutiny and legal inquiry, for if such practices are permitted to continue unchallenged there is no knowing how far they may extend. J. H. W.

COAST NOTES

Comrade G. H. Brown, who is now making an educational tour of the Atlantic and

(Continued on Page 11)

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

(By Laurence Todd.)

Due to a nationwide tidal wave of disgust and resentment at the betrayal of pledges by the Wilson administration, a hundred separate elements and groups among the voters of the United States joined, on November 2, in kicking out the Democrats and putting the Republicans in control of national, State and local government. Most of the Republican nominees this year were actively reactionary and anti-labor. The Republican platform was hostile to every principle of trade unionism and especially hostile to public ownership and democratic operation of the basic industries. Hence the country wakes up, after the election, to wonder how soon the new Congress and the Harding administration will "smash the labor unions."

Trade union spokesmen are not blind to the danger. They see the railroad managers breaking the National Agreement in a manner that invites a railroad strike. They see the coal operators looking for more trouble. They see the steady increase of unemployment, accompanied by the demand in the editorial columns of the reactionary press for "deflation of labor." Half-baked politicians who have been pitched into office by the political tide of this campaign are saying that they will enact a law forbidding employes of the Government from belonging to any union affiliated with the A. F. of L. Seeing these signs of rough weather ahead, the responsible officials of many of the big labor organizations are proposing to each other that a national conference be held to plan out measures for their mutual defense.

William H. Johnston, general president of the Machinists, who made this suggestion, believes that the thing to be done is to launch an all-inclusive Labor Party—one which will represent the determination of the whole labor movement to defend the liberties of its members against any assault which the junkers may now make. Officers of the Steam Shovel and Dredgemen, the Railway Signalmen and the Marine Engineers—the ones having headquarters here—approve the idea of a conference. They frankly admit that the prospects are dark, and that all possible defensive measures should be agreed upon and carried out at once.

What the railroad labor organizations think of the result is indicated by their paper, "Labor," as follows: "First, the American people are sick and tired of war. They failed to support the Wilson League of Nations because they feared Article X would involve us in the bloody conflicts of Europe. But they are in favor of an association of nations which will end militarism and substitute arbitration for war. The close of the campaign found all the candidates shouting 'Vote for me and I will keep you out of war'. The voters have taken them at their word, and woe betide the individual or the party that disappoints them.

"Second, Cox suffered terribly because his party had failed to take an advanced position on domestic problems. The Democratic national platform was written by the Democratic reactionaries of the Senate. Senator Glass reactionary of Virginia, was chairman of the platform committee. Senator Robinson, reactionary of Arkansas, who helped Cummins put the Cummins-Esch bill through the Senate, presided over the convention. Senator Pomerene, reactionary of Ohio, and Senator Underwood, reactionary of Alabama, were premitted to write many of the most important planks. These men had delivered their party to Wall Street in the Senate. When they had passed the Railroad bill and other legislation in the interest of Big Business, they could not be expected to frame a progressive platform."

How the other side looks at the returns is indicated by an editorial in the Wall Street Journal, which calls upon the Republicans to forthwith enact a Federal law requiring the incorporation of all labor unions, together with a secret ballot on all strikes. It demands the immediate repeal of the Clayton anti-trust act amendments which safeguard the right of wage workers to organize and strike.

Governor Allen of Kansas has been re-elected by a huge majority—reported at about 200,000. Like Coolidge, the labor-baiter, he becomes a national figure because of the political success of his advertising as an enemy of unionism. The new administration will probably have scores of these fanatical junkers in high public positions. Harding may be expected to follow the example set by Taft, in picking out many of the most malevolent brains of this type as judges to plague the Federal bench for the next twenty years or more.

Harding goes to Panama to look over the Canal and to discuss the wisdom of re-enacting the preferential canal-tolls law, which was repealed at the demand of President Wilson. W. R. Hearst, who still has hopes of getting back the Mexican lands given him by the late dictator, Diaz, suggests that Harding consider the need for conquering all of Mexico and Central America in the coming four years. The Latin-American press, which is quite aware that the present Government in Mexico is strongly pro-labor, will take the occasion of the visit of the President-elect to Panama to ask him whether he does indeed propose to make war against the Mexican nation. If so, Latin-America will lose no time in calling upon the rest of the world to intervene, directly or indirectly, against Yankee imperialistic brigandage. They have had enough of it from the Wilson administration in Haiti and San Domingo.

There is just one direction in which the new administration seems likely to take a course that will meet with the approval of organized labor in general, and that is in giving appointments to Raymond Robins of Chicago and Congressman John I. Nolan of San Francisco. Robins is almost certain to be either Secretary of Labor or our first ambassador to Soviet Russia. The Republican bosses are said to be anxious to put Robins in the Department of Labor as a sort of anchor against the possible storm of labor opposition to their general program. They do not want an active trade unionist in the office, because of the "prejudice" which membership in a union is supposed by the junkers to confer upon a man. Moreover, they do not want Nolan to be Secretary of Labor, because he is a devoted follower of Samuel Gompers.

But Robins and his political backer, Col. Wm. Boyce Thompson, the Wall Street copper magnate, are looking beyond Washington to Europe. They are just as firmly convinced now as they were two years ago, that the United States is making a tragic mistake in withholding recognition and friendly aid from Soviet Russia. As Thompson was in charge of the raising of funds for the Republican National Committee, and as he is a notably able, blunt, hard-headed American business man, he is likely to influence the Harding administration on this subject. Harding is likely to recognize the fact of the existence of the Russian workers' government, and to send a man like Robins to Moscow as our ambassador. Indeed, big preparations for the re-opening of American trade with Russia have been under way ever since Wall Street became satisfied that Harding would win. So Robins may go to Russia, and the job of Secretary of Labor will go to another applicant.

Mitchell Palmer and Albert Sidney Burleson will walk the plank amid loud cheers from every union man and woman in the nation. Whether Palmer will join the Baldwin-Feltz or Pinkerton or Burns detective agency or go into the movies with W. J. Flynn, his recent chief of secret service operatives is a secret not yet disclosed. Burleson will be free to go as far as Texas—or even much farther.

Consumption taxes is the keynote of the financial program of the new crowd. They are going to tax the things which the workers and producers must use every day—their food and clothing and houses and transportation and fuel and light. They are going to shift taxes on incomes, if possible, so that the burden will fall more upon the citizens of small income than at present. What they cannot do directly they will do indirectly by juggling the tariff. When that is accomplished they will try their hand at increasing the profits of the bankers, through amendment of the banking and currency laws.

Their greatest obstacle right now is not the resistance of the scattered political forces of the workers, but the opposition of La Follette, the Nonpartisan League, Hiram Johnson and a few radical Democrats led by Tom Watson in the Senate and Huddleston of Alabama in the House. This opposition will not be sufficient to prevent the passage of reactionary laws, but it will keep up a running fire of criticism which will arouse the country to the menace of this junker regime, and will pave the way for a tremendous reversal of political form in 1922. Chances of the creation of a new liberal party on a farmer-labor basis, which may capture the next House, are improved by the very fact of the election this year of every sort of Republican—a haphazard menagerie which cannot possibly avoid domestic fighting that will soon make the Republican party a sorry plight.

If the Republican family feud starts quickly enough, the labor movement may escape a bitter persecution.

Although seventy-three years of age, a miner named Birchall, who recently celebrated his golden wedding, is still working underground near Wigan, Lancashire.

ATLANTIC COAST AND GULF

(Continued from Page 9)

Gulf Coasts, writing from Mobile, reports most encouraging success and progress so far in his difficult undertaking. Well attended and attentive meetings at all ports visited so far have been the rule, reports Mr. Brown.

Comrade Brown notices a perceptible slackening of business along the coast proper, but reports present conditions more favorable in Gulf ports, with few unemployed seamen ashore.

On the question of establishing a new branch at Port Tampa, Florida, Comrade Brown recommends that a beginning be made with a corporate branch jointly maintained by the Sailors, Firemen and Stewards' Unions combined. This proposition has now been submitted to the other organizations concerned, the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association having already acted favorably thereon.

Walter Macarthur's excellent and instructive text-books on Maritime Laws, "The Seaman's Contract" and "Handbook of the Navigation Laws," have been formally and officially adopted as the standard reference works of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association by unanimous vote of a supreme quorum.

We also notice that the United States District Attorney in New York is becoming addicted to scanning the same books. We feel sure he will light upon something illuminating if he gazes long enough.

It is reported that three of the twelve ex-German merchant ships awarded the Italian Government have been allocated to the Italian Seamen's Union, on motion of Captain Giulletti, president of the Italian Seamen's Federation, and a member of the National Commission for the Allocation of the Newly Acquired Ships. This will increase the Union fleet of the Co-operativa Garibaldi to ten big steamers.

Is it not about time to request the allocation of some of the U. S. Shipping Board ships to the International Seamen's Union of America? We can certainly prove our ability to operate them, and make the initial payments, and if we can not pay the balance in the fifteen years allowed under the law it will be because the sea has run dry.

The steamship "Sophie Rickmers," first merchant ship flying the German flag to enter New York since July, 1914, arrived here November 4 and lies docked at the Army Base, Brooklyn. She is 4,833 tons register, is officered and manned entirely by Germans, flies the flag of the old German Merchant Marine, and is consigned to the Kerr Company, which will act as her agent here.

None of her crew are permitted to land, and her Master, Captain Wilhelm Hulsebush was only allowed to visit the Custom House under guard to enter his ship. After his documents had been filed he was escorted back to his ship in the same way.

Ain't war hell if you keep it up after it is over!

Mexico is getting ahead of U. S. According to the latest advices from Mexico City, the government is preparing to assume absolute control and development of its merchant marine. This is to include constructing of docks, warehouses, premiums for the construction of ships, the granting of exclusive rights in coastwise trade and reduction of railroad freight rates for goods to be exported in national ships.

Wow! If this pace keeps up we'll have to weld an iron band around the land of the big sombreros to keep it from bu'stin'!

Asiatics, either docile or dead, but anyhow, Asiatics! Such seems to be the slogan of the redoubtable owners of the British steamship "Elmleaf," operating between New Orleans and Tampico, Mexico.

According to reports from Good Hope, fifteen miles above New Orleans, 24 members of the Chinese crew of the "Elmleaf," armed themselves with knives, pieces of pipe, iron bolts, etc., and attempted to rush the guards stationed aboard to prevent them from landing. The guards greeted them with pistol volleys and eleven of the Mongolian rioters were shot while several escaped over the side and hid in the dense woods. The rest surrendered under the influence of pistol play, and were placed in irons. We hear that the dead Chinamen will be allowed to land.

Major-General George W. Goethals, retired, and H. M. Verrill of Portland, Me., were named as receivers of the East Coast Fisheries Company and the East Coast Fisheries Products Company upon petition of creditors in the Federal District Court at Portland, Me. The plants of the companies are located at Rockland and the main office is in New York. The East Coast Fisheries Company is shown by the schedules filed to have liabilities and assets of approximately $13,000,000, while the subsidiary company, incorporated to handle the products of the parent corporation, has assets of $7,196,000, with liabilities amounting to $10,590,000, the capital stock of $10,000,000 being included in both cases.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Inwar Kihle, born in Tansberg, Norway, in 1891, last heard from in Duluth, Minn., in 1910, will confer a favor by communicating such information to Adolf Kile, Agent the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, 1710 Thames St., Baltimore, Md.

RADIUM'S USE IN INDUSTRY.

(Continued from Page 7)

mules. Thence it is shipped in carload lots 2900 miles across the continent to an extraction plant in Orange, N. J.

Two hundred and fifty tons of ore treated with an equal amount of chemicals and water yields one gram, which is about the size of a pin head.

The power of radium lies in the penetrating character of its rays, which disintegrate and travel at the rate of 3000 miles a quarter of a second.

In addition to the use of radium luminous material on machinery in industrial plants, it is used extensively for the marking of any corner or spot which should be visible in the dark. Angles of tables and chairs, corners in rooms, numbers to indicate cubby holes or doorways on which there is no other illumination are touched with a spot of undark. Even the valuable electric torch increases its efficiency when it has a touch of radium on it so that it can be reached instantly in an emergency in the dark.

When other lights fail, when fuses blow out, wires break down—radium will glow dependably without danger of explosion or of burning.

The employment of radium to help solve our medical and industrial problems of life safety is as yet in the first stages of its development. What the future will bring, no one knows.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

LAKE DISTRICT

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION
D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn ..... 13½ Collis Street

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175
BUFFALO, N. Y. ..... GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588
CLEVELAND, O. ..... E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842
MILWAUKEE, WIS. ..... CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich. ..... K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street
TOLEDO, O. ..... S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666
SUPERIOR, Wis. ..... W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue
CONNEAUT, O. ..... W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 71 Main Street
Telephone Seneca 48
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED HICKS, Treasurer
Branches:
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... 74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W
SUPERIOR, Wis. ..... 332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O. ..... 992 Day Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666
TOLEDO, O. ..... 618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823
CLEVELAND, O. ..... 1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866
MILWAUKEE, Wis. ..... 162 Reed Street
Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich. ..... 44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... 122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION
Headquarters:
Buffalo, N. Y., 35 West Eagle Street
Telephone Seneca 896
J. M. SECORD, Secretary
Branches:
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O. ..... 308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis. ..... 162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... 74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O. ..... 992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O. ..... 618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... 122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 59 Clay Street
VANCOUVER, B. C. ..... P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash. ..... 2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash. ..... P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore. ..... 88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T. ..... P. O. Box 814

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 58 Commercial Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 64 Pike St. Viaduct, P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore. ..... 242 Flanders Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... 613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 42 Market Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION
Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 49 Clay Street
Agencies:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 42
ASTORIA, Ore. ..... P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Headquarters:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca Street
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada ..... 437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada ..... P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska ..... P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG ..... Alaska
UNGA ..... Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC
ASTORIA, Ore. ..... P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION
C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal. ..... F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION
FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C. ..... 311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

Striking coal miners in the Mingo county field, West Virginia, are facing winter in their struggle against non-union coal owners and their murderous thugs. There are 2504 men, 1920 women and 4973 children on the relief roll.

The Oregon State Supreme Court has upheld the Oregon anti-injunction law and has set aside a court decision that there is no such thing as peaceful picketing. The court also rejects a favorite claim of anti-unionists by holding that a strike or lockout does not terminate relations between employer and employe. Relations between these parties, says the court, are not the same as between an employer and a stranger seeking employment.

In a survey of women in industry in Virginia, by the women's bureau of the Federal Department of Labor, it is stated that in 148 establishments in that State, employing 34,913 workers, over one-half are women. The number is 18,781, or 53.8 per cent. of the total. It is estimated that there are 226,000 wage earning women in Virginia. In the plants investigated there is almost a total absence of any health or accident records. In 89 establishments, employing more than 8000 women, no proper equipment was found for the treatment of injuries or illness.

A citizens' conference on negro education has been called by Dr. P. P. Claxton, federal commissioner of education, and will be held in Atlanta, November 19-20. It is stated that invitations have been sent to the Governors and State superintendents of public instruction of all the southern States, to educators, to influential business men and publicists "and to leading men and women of the south who have shown a deep interest in improving education among 12,000,000 American negroes, a large percentage of whom live in the south and largely determine the economic progress of that region."

Coal miners have produced fifty-one and one-third million tons more bituminous coal in the year ending October 2 last than in the previous year, says the United Mine Workers' Journal. In every coal field but Alabama and in Mingo county, West Virginia, the miners are at work. In the two exceptions miners are on strike for a living wage. The miners' journal says coal is being produced in great quantities and if there is a coal scarcity this winter the responsibility will not rest on these workers. "Evidently there is something wrong with the system of distribution and the coal produced is not being properly placed," says this labor publication.

The theory that strikes can be stopped by jailing workers rather than remove the cause of strikes is being urged in Oregon. Employing interests are behind a bill patterned after the Kansas law. Under the proposed act if two persons agree to quit their employment they could be jailed as conspirators to hinder production. Picketing and the boycott would be forbidden and any trade union official who called a strike under instructions of his union could be fined $5,000 and jailed for two years. Three judges, appointed by the Governor, will have unlimited powers over the lives of the workers. The State Federation of Labor has taken charge of opposition to this proposal.

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Your Old Friend JOE WEISS

WHITE PALACE SHOE STORE
92 FOURTH ST. nr. MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO
Union-Made Shoes for Men Exclusively
Repairing Done While You Wait
We use only the best leather that the market affords

M. BROWN & SONS

SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL

529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson, Jack
Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Welch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, E. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Kullo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Allurl
Kallinan, Frank
K N , -1013
Kompsen, M.
Kearney, Hugh Kurton, Lester
Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Ferslund, Victor
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Heritz, Ivor
Hickka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jensen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Jullsen, C. A.
Keane, John
Kisor, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K.
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liljquest, Rudolf
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Richardsen, J. W
Richardson, E. C.
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T
Samuelsen, H. N
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sipple, G.
Simonsen, H.
Sioberg, G
Standart, M.
Talce, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson L.
Wall, W
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan.
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muler, James
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -972
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John E
Pinerd, F. H.
Pipione, J.
Prinz, Carl
Runsten, Arthur
Rvlander, R.
Rysock, M. van
Smith, C. J.
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. L.
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R
Sterndoch, J
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M
Sverdrun, Walter
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C
Wright, H
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

SAN FRANCISCO
Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson, A. G.
Carlson, Gust
Ericson, Rob
Erickson, John
Eisen, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kjerdalen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O
Levele, Ed
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lauren William
McVelar, Gus
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbl, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Paulsen, Axel
Pettron, W.
Peterson, Louis
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R
Skovbo, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren, Hilmer

Registered Letters

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

UNION LABEL
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
NYMAN BROS.
Bee Hive Store
Men's Furnishings, Hickory Shirts, Hats, Oil Clothing.
Home of the union made Co-operative Shoe
302 So. F Street, ABERDEEN, Wash.
on the Water Front.

INFORMATION WANTED

Charles Bernard Wilson, born in Stevenson, Alabama, write or come to your mother, Flora M. Wilson, 719 18th street, Oakland Cal., care Mrs. J. Buck. 9-22-20

Portland, Or., Letter List

Adams, Hugo
Ahlstrom, Kilian F.
Ahlstrom, Ellis
Ahren, Wm.
Allen, W.
Allison, Benjamin
Amundsen, Albert
Andersson, Axel
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakaihn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsic, Karl
Austin, Melvin
Backman, Peter
Baker, Eddie
Benton, G. W.
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Franz
Carr, B.
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Dikkensen, S.
Diez, H
Doehring, Otto
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. E.
Fisher, Chas.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gallery, Russell B.
Gilkison, A. F.
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Handt, Wm.
Halley, W.
Hansen, Thorolf
Hanson, Carl
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hatland, R.
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Holm, Harry
Heino, Gust
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Jacobs, Fulton
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, C. Eilert
Johanson, John
Johnson, Alfin
Johnson, Anton
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kelly, Norman
Kelly, Albert J.
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Laine, A. A.
Larsen, Hans
Larsen, Christ
Lauritzen, Ludvik
Lavsen, Carl C.
Learstad, Peter
Leisig, John
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank B.
Malkoff, Peter
Maline, Stanley
Matson, R. M.
McDermott, W. M.
McCarlif, Gail
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLean, M. R.
Meyer, W.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Monroe, N. S.
Nelson, Nels
Neilsen, Harry
Nelson, Nels E.
Nilsen, Christ
Nilson, Herman
Norman, A.
Nurmisto, Ovio
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peppert, Fred
Petersen, Wm.
Petterson, Charley
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Pohl, W.
Pope, Bert
Prestoff, S.
Preston, E.
Rever, John T.
Robinson, G. H.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Runge, R. L.
Saine, Arthur A.
Schmeltning, M.
Scott, M.
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Skogmo, Paul
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spatig, Harvey L.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sullivan, Fred L.
Suvaal, A.
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Tensfeldt, John S.
Thorsen, Chas.
Tinsman, J. T.
Tuhkanen, John J.
Viets, Clayton L.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wallace, E. J.
Wehtje, Wm. H.
Whiteside, Thos.
Wilson, J. W.
Wikstrom, Carl
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Fred L.
Worn, Otje
Young, Carl Henrey
Yeoman, W. E.
York, Chas. E.

San Pedro Letter List

Aldo, K. Nestor
Alfredsen, Adolf
Albertson, John
Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, Sven
Anderson, C.
Anderson, Bartines
Anderson, Gus
Anderson. John
Andowiz, H.
Arentsen, John
Arnell, John
Arnesen, Isack
Bentley, Clifford
Berglund, Emil J.
Bengston, Sigfried
Beschorner, Robert
Boyce, R. H.
Brickman, Harold
Bridges, R. H.
Brusbard, Ewalt
Brown, Irwing
Braden, W. A.
Brast, Sjomans
Bush, Peter
Carr, R. W.
Carlera, Peter
Carrol, Kenneth
Church, C. A.
Christoffersen, C.
Costley, F. L.
Cormie, William
Daunt, C.
Davis, Orville
Daw, Walter
Deasy, William P.
Desmond, Albin
Deaver, Alwin
Dischler, Peter
Disney, Robert
Doty, Erwin
Dragich, Peter
Drennen, William
Eckhardt, William
Eliasen, John
Engdahl, Robert
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Farrell, H. D.
Fallbom, J. A.
Fahey, M.
Feeder, George
Fickle, Omer
Fisher -707
Fottinger, Karl A.
Frair, Enoch
Freitag, F.
Gallagher, Denny
Galke, Roy
Gayton. H. L.
Gerrity, John
Gotz, Rudolph
Grason, Joe
Grue, Theodor
Gunnerud, Ulrick
Gullaksen, Hans
Godmundsen, John
Guthrie, Raymond
Gustafson, Johan
Hansen, Claf
Hasko, Anton
Harnick, Julius
Hansen, B.
Harvey, Earl
Hamilton, Walter
Hartog, J.
Hagen, George
Hellesten G.
Herlin, W.
Hey, Ben
Hill, Chas.
Hickey, John
Hingren, John
Hogsted, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Holland, Jonny
Holtkamp, C.
Hurley, Michael
Isakson, J.
Janson, Fr.
Jacobsen, Tom
Janofy, Axel
Jensen, Marius
Jeeden, George
Jensen, Kristian
Johnsen, P. -2313
Johansen, David
Johansen, Carl
Johnson, George
Johnson, Matt.
Johnson, Tom.-3014
Johnson, Waldron
Johansen, J. -1432
Jonaseon, Johanes

The James H. Barry Co.
"THE STAR" PRESS
PRINTING
1122-1124 MISSION ST
SAN FRANCISCO

The Anglo-California Trust Company has established at 101 Market Street a complete-service bank. This advanced business ideal is attained through the purchase of the Seaboard National Bank and its expansion for broader duties.

Here—the only bank located between First Street, Battery and the Bay, one of San Francisco's most thriving commercial districts—are found facilities for every banking need—savings, commercial, trust, securities and safe deposit departments.

Seafaring men will find here a full-functioning bank especially helpful to them. It is conveniently located for the quick transacting of their business upon arrival in the port of San Francisco. It takes scrupulous care of their savings and other banking requirements whenever they may call upon it from the far-flung ports of the world. Why not start a savings or commercial account to-day?

ANGLO-CALIFORNIA TRUST CO.
COMMERCIAL-SAVINGS-TRUST
"The City Wide Bank"
Market & Sansome Streets
San Francisco

THIRD & TWENTIETH SIXTEENTH & MISSION FILLMORE & GEARY 101 MARKET ST.

Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Kallio, Frank
Kenrich, Richard
Kelty, Peter D.
Keel, Jewel
Ketelson, Fred
Killat, Dau
Kepplar, C.
Kirshfeld, J.
Kluge, Frank
Klahn, Karl
Kramer. O.
Klementsen, Alf.
Larsen, Johan 1542
Langeman, W.
Laine, John
Landen, A.
Leirevaag, Halvor
Lehmus, Bill
Lindquist, Emil
Lindahn, Al.
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John A.
Lindholm, Charles
Lill, Karl
Lobeles, Jose
Lowrey, John
Loderson. John
Lorgeman, Fred
Knudsen, Andrew
Lund, F. V.
Lund, Alal
Luther, Frank
Mathiesen, Nic
Martinson, J. L.
Matson, Hilding
Magnussen, Karl Martinson, John
Maahs, Willi
Mato, Alex
McGhee, E. J.
McHelvey, T. B.
McNeil, D. R.
Mehrtens, C. H.
Mize, J. H.
Michelson, Erik
Miller, Frederik
Moor, Peter
Moritz, W.
Morisse, Henry
Monteiro, John
Mueller, John
Murray, Ernest
Murphy, Frank
Melander, G. L.
Nelson, C. A.
Nelson, Nicholas
Nielsen. Jens.-780
Nilsen, Alfred
Nilsson, Edward
Nielsen, P. F.
Njutrom, Uno
Nelson, Emil
Nelson, Gust
Nelson, Charlie
Ogren, V. E.
Olsen, Emil
Oisen, Olaf V.
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Ole M.
Olsson, Otto
Olsen, Sander
Olsen, Harold
Ostedal, Caspar
Pastrillen, H. K.
Petersen, August
Petersen, Hugo
Pera, Gust.
Pett, Dick
Perry, William
Porthan, M. T.
Raaum, Harry
Rasmussen, S. J.
Rensen, Albert
Rosenthal, Walter
Rossdam, Ha.
Rod, Halfdam
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred
Rosamund, J.
Rueter, Aman
Runge, R.
Ruiz, Jose
Rupp, Albert
Sanders, Chas.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Schroeder, Ernest
Schmidt, H. G.-3619
Schmees, Herman
Schlachte, Alfred
Scheumberg, Wm.
Scrivers, W.
Schultz, W.
Seppel,
Seland, Hans
Sillman, Robert
Smith, Carl Johan
Smedsvig, Oluf
Soder, Paul
Steen, Ivar
Sterndock, John
Strom, Oscar
Strahle, Chas.
Stenard, Percy
Steere, Ernest
Sundquist, Walter V.
Sunde, O. H.
Sunde. C.
Sundholm, Franz
Sundquist, Walter
S. C.-887
Svendsen, Fred
Swenson, A. -1932
Takhunen, Hugo
Tanum, Helge
Thompson, M.
Thompson, James
Thal, R.
Thorsen, Henrik
Torvik, Hans
Tommola, Vaino
Torsman, Niels
Treiberg, Peter
Treiberg Peter
Ullman, Emil
Veckenstedt, Wm.
Vitol, Alex
Voth, Gus
Vitol, Alex.
Voth, Gus
Wanquist, Ernest
Ward, Wallace C.
Wennerquist, Anton
Weiprecht, E.
Wennerquist, Anton
Werne, John
Winkelman, Otto
Wilson, John
Wihemson, Karl
Wich, Ole
Wilck, Ole
Wilhelmson. Karl
Wilson, John
Winkelman, Otto
Wilhelm, Eduard
Wieprecht, Ernest
Whiteside, Thomas
Woods, Claude F.
Woods, Claude
Wrobluske, Paul
Wrig, P.
Wrobluwski, Paul
Wyerman, William
Young, William
Yeoman, W. E.
Zoerb, Walter
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

Registered Mail.

Pinnington, E. D.

Packages and Photos.

O'Brien, J. S.
Norlund, Albert
Gotz, Rudolf
Lauritzen, Ole
Jones, Ernest L.
Tamm, Helge
Peters, J. M.
Langman. William
Olsen, Ole
Jensen, J.
Ericksen, E. R.
Jones, Ernest L.

Honolulu Letter List

Bading, G.
Balk, W. S.
Bradley, Ed.
Bott, James
Bjorkquvist, R.
Buck, H. -1284
Campbell, Ed.
Caldwell, John
Darwin, L.
Harms, H. O.
Hefling, J. S.
Johnson, Hilding
O'Brien, James
Olson, Carl
Parker, O. L.
Pedersen, L.
Pepoon, H. L.
Roggio, R.
Sandel, Franklyn S.
Stewart, R. T.
Solberg, B. P.
Keenan, Thomas
Makinon, K.
Mulligan, Ed.
Liljeborge, Will.
Larsen, John
Lundgren, Karl Zakostelny, Joe

Home News

Meat consumption in the United States is decreasing; during the last year, according to J. I. Mohler, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry in the Department of Agriculture, the per capita consumption fell by eight pounds.

In spite of a considerable emigration of Hungarian laborers in recent months, two new Hungarian periodicals have made their appearance in the United States, a Republican weekly, entitled A Het, and a politically independent semi-monthly, A Napi Munkas. The total number of Hungarian newspapers and magazines printed in the United States is forty-one.

Herbert Hoover stated at a convention of the American Association of Baking Industry recently that there is only enough wheat in the world to feed those able to pay for it; and that cheaper bread for this reason must not be expected here for a long time. Our average yield of wheat per acre, he added, must have a steady increase if we are to meet the necessities of an increasing population.

The North Carolina State Supreme Court has upheld the absentee voters' law. Opponents of the act said that the law was intended to permit soldiers to vote, and that now the soldiers are home the purpose of the act is past. It was also claimed that the law might be an aid to fraud and illegal voting. Chief Justice Clark resented this libel and cited 43 States which have adopted this principle.

The earnings of all national banks in the country averaged 24 per cent on their capital, an unprecedented figure, during the year, according to John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, in his annual report, just made public. Only five small banks, with a total capital of $205,000, went into the hands of receivers. This is less than one-eighth of the yearly average of the banks that have failed for the past 56 years.

The steel trust's report for the third quarter of this year shows a profit of $48,051,540, after paying Federal taxes and interest on bonds of the various units of the trust. These profits are an increase of nearly $5,000,000 over the report of the second quarter, and an increase of nearly $8,000,000 over the earnings of last year's third quarter. Thus far 1920 profits of the steel corporation have amounted to more than $133,000,000.

What is claimed to be the "highest safety record in the world" is announced by President Hedley of the New York Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which recently celebrated the sixteenth anniversary of underground transportation on Manhattan Island. During these sixteen years the subway has carried 4,301,000,000 passengers, approximately three times the total population of the world. During that time there have been only seven passengers killed by accident, or one to every 614,400,000 carried, according to President Hadley's report. On the opening day, sixteen years ago, the subway carried 111,881 passengers, compared to more than 2,000,000 now carried daily. The company now has 220 miles of trackage, compared to 62 miles sixteen years ago.

Domestic and Naval

Under an executive order signed by the President, the former German line piers at Hoboken, N. J., Nos. 1, 4, 5, 6 and 11, have been withdrawn from control of the Shipping Board. They are now occupied by the Army Transport Service and the Panama Railroad, although used occasionally to berth Shipping Board boats.

The recent compromise settlement in respect of the steamship "San Ramon," 993 tons, owned by the Mexican Fruit Co., gives an idea of the extent of the loss in connection with recent mishaps. The total insured value is $220,000 and the compromised claim amounts to $140,000. This vessel collided with the Shipping Board steamer "Dannedaike" at New Orleans last May and the prospects of recovery from the latter vessel are looked upon as meager.

The Secretary of Commerce has authorized the reciprocal inspection of Spanish passenger steamers, so that hereafter Spanish passenger steamers sailing from ports in the United States and holding unexpired certificates of inspection issued in Spain shall be subject to no other inspection than such as necessary to satisfy the local U. S. inspectors that the condition of the vessel, her boilers, and life-saving equipment are as stated in her current certificate of inspection.

The Shipping Board has renewed its annual contract with the Radio Corporation of America, the Shipowners' Radio Service and the Independent Wireless Telegraph Service. Under the agreement the companies undertake to maintain the radio apparatus on the 1,200 vessels owned by the Board in good working order. For this they are paid $30 a month, making a total for the fleet of $432,000 a year. The new contracts extend for one year from Oct. 1. The radio equipment is owned by the Board and the services of the companies are to maintain it in efficient order.

Only four bids were received by the Shipping Board for supplying lubricants over the year beginning Nov. 24. The Texas Co.'s bid for 1,000,000 gallons ranged in price from 47.7c a gallon up to 82.5c a gallon, delivered at any U. S. port. Other bids ranged from 42c to $1.23 a gallon, delivery at Atlantic Coast ports. It is expected that the Board will advertise again for bids, dividing the requirements between Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Coast companies in order to stimulate bidding. The total requirements of the Board for the annual period are 2,777,670 gallons.

In a complaint filed with the Insurance Commissioner of Rhode Island, the National Surety Co. accuses the Shipping Board of coercion in connection with the refusal to accept the company's bonds. It appears that the National Surety Co. bonded the bankrupt Triangle S. S. Co. for $100,000 for the benefit of the Board and has since declined to accede to the request of the Board to pay the amount of the bond without prior action to determine the extent of the Triangle Co.'s liability under the indenture. In retaliation, the Shipping Board has refused to accept the National Surety Company as a guarantor and has even refused to accept its name as a co-surety on bonds issued by other companies.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN
GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. W.
Adolfsson, John
Alakaihu, Moses
Albers, G. J. L.
Altonen, Karl
Algren, Charlie
Alhstrom, Ellis
Alto, John
Almon, L.
Andersen, Hans -2423
Andersen, Adolf
Andersen, O.-1118
Andersen, R. P.
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Anderson, John Nathaniel
Anderson, Johann
Andersson, C. J. -2185
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, C. -2001
Anderson, Ingemar
Anderson, John O.
Anderson, Julius
Andreasen, Jorgen
Andreasen, Lewis
Aronson, Gunnar
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Arvidson, N.
Aso, Gustaf
Attaberry, Clarence

Baardsen, Hans
Bading, G.
Barlow, R.
Bading, Gus
Baptiste, Lawrence
Bates, E. A. J.
Beckby, Christ
Berne, Bill
Bergman, G. A.
Bengtson, Oscar
Berg, Arvid
Benson, Helge
Beschorner, R.
Bergman, Alrik
Bolstadt, Hans J.
Boylan, C. J.
Borjeson, Hilding
Bowman, Jack
Boyce. Fred
Bosshardt, H.
Boutwell, Billie
Bower, Gordon
Brauner, Chas. J.
Brander, Wm.
Braun, James
Bresnahan, Jeremiah
Brown, Dudley G.
Brickell, Teddy
Butler, James
Burr, W. H.
Bussik, Joe
Bye, K.

Carlson, Chas. E.
Carlson, Gust.-529
Carlson, Julius
Carney, James
Campbell, Martin
Carlson, Axel
Carp, Christ
Carter, Haskell S.
Case, H. F.
Chilcott, Geo.
Chippe, Eric
Christensen, A.-1857
Christensen, Nils
Clarke, Mathew
Clausen, Louis
Cochrane, Robert
Coffey, G. E.
Colville, G.
Correro, Tom R.
Coffey, George E.
Conley, Irvin
Cornelius, Leonard

Dahl, E. L. K.
Dahl, Otto
Dahls, Ogden
Dahlgren, Wm. A.
Daunt, C.
Davidsen, Oskar
Davies, B. L.
Davis, Warren
Demorest, Carl
DeMario, Thos
Denner, R.
Domke, Willi
Drasbeck, Chas.
Drennen, W. N.
Dunlap, George
Dushane, Matt.

Earl, Herbert
Eastman, J. W.
Eide, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Eliasson, Martin
Ekeland, Ingvald
Eliasson, M. B.
Ellefsen, Thorleif
Elridge,
Elrod, A. N.
Ellis, F. L.
Emulate, E.
Engstrom, Edw.
Engstrom, R.
Endemann, M.
Englebritsen, Ale
Erickson, -997
Ertman, Eskil
Erikson, Simon
Evensen, Andreas A.

Evensen, Martin
Everett, W. J.
Fabrowsky, F.
Fagerberg, Ivan
Fallbom, John A.
Farevoog, C. M.
Felsch, Harry
Fernquist, C. W.
Fergerson, Thos.
Fjellman, Georg
Fletcher, Jos.
Foster, C.
Frandsen, F. N.
Fradera, T. F.
Franson, A. E.
Fraser, H. W.
Freitag, W. J.
Freiberg, Carl
Friz, Ottmar
Fraser, Alex V.
Fulmer, W. A.

Garnetzky, Fritz A
Gallery, W. B.
Geary, Albert
Germenis, Socrates
Gibbons, Elmer L.
Goerecke, Fritz W.
Golden R. L.
Graham, Thomas
Graham, Ray
Graham, W. F.
Gray, Frank
Green, Granville
Green, Henry M.
Griephan, Paul
Grosvenor, C.
Grundell, W. C.
Grundstrom, C. W.
Groman, Gusta
Gustaffson, Walter
Gustavsen, I.

Hakanson, Bernt -2401
Hanschman, Wm.
Hansen, Gustavo
Hansen, Jack
Hahn, Emil
Haider, H. T.
Hakanson, Bernt
Hamilton, Walter J.
Hammond, Robert
Hansen, G. A. -2837
Hansen, Knud
Hansen, H. V.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Harris, J. S. -3161
Haunt, C.
Hayward, C. R.
Healy, G. S.
Hellsten, Gus. -2168
Hermansson, C. P.
Hexell, Algot
Hexren, Henry
Hellman, Rowland L.
Hellpap, A.
Henrikson, K. Hj.
Hein, M.
Hessin, B.
Heyn, T. 2789
Hicks, Wm. H.
Hobbs, F. A.
Hoke, V. L.
Holdaway, C.
Holm, Arthur
Hopp, Carl
Hoglander, Martin
Holbrook, G. A.
Huber, C. L.
Hubertz, Emil
Hurley, M. S.

Ibsen, V. L.
Ingebretsen, Christian
Irving, John

Jacobsen, Alfred
Jahnke, Paul
Jansson, Fredrik
Jaycox, James
Jepperson, Chris
Jensen, Jens C.
Jensen, A. L.
Jensen, Martin
Jentausch, Solfred
Jewell, A. M.
Johansen, Johan R.
Johansen, Chas.
Johansen, E.-2715
Johnson, Aubury F.
Johnson, C. B.
Jones, Arne M.
Jorgensen, Adelsten
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johannesen, Ole
Johnson, Edward S.
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William

Kaasik, G.
Kaasik, August
Kajander, Eino
Kaplan, I.
Karlson, E. W.
Karlgren, -644
Kasperson, E.
Ketelsen, F.
Kelly, Geo.
Kierne, G. H.
Klindt, Frederico
Kine, Conrad
Kluge, Martin
Knoph, John O.
Knorsky, Adam
Knudsen, Martin
Knudsen, Ragnval
Kolbe, A. R.
Kokko, Martin
Koster, Walter
Kraal, J.
Kragero, C. M. J.
Kristensen, J. P.
Krishjan, K. W.
Krumholtz, W.
Kuckens. B.
Krueger, Harry

Lattin, W. C.
Laine, Frank
Lambert, Jos.
Lanphear, D.
Larsen. Alex. 1777
Larsen, Alexis
La Rue, C. E.
Lauritzen, Ole
Laursen, Max O.
Lee, Albert
Leeder, W. -2287
Linderoos, W.
Lindahl, G.-2342
Lindroos, Geo.
Lidsten, Chas.
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Loberg, Bror
Lofenberg, Pete
Lorentzen, Jean
Lundberg, Oskar

Madsen, Anton
Magnusson, E. W.
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
MacKay, Wm.
Maki, Ivar
Manning, H. H.
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Martens, Fritz
Mattson, Victor
Matheis, Herman
McGann, T.
McGregor, D.
McKinsey, Alex
McGann, Oliver
McPherson, Donald
McGovern, Jim
McFarlane, Dougal
McGauley, Geo.
McCallum, Chas.
McWade, W. C.
Melder, Albert
Melander, G. L.
Meyer, Henry
Meigand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Meyer, George
Meyers, Alfred
Millard, Martin
Mitchell, David
Moe, Harald
Monsen, Jacob
Morrissey, W.
Mortensen. K. A.
Mooi, Petei
Mol, J. W.
Moore, H. L.
Mohr, Chas.
Monteiro, Joe
Morales, Louis
Moore, Ernest E.
Morean, Victor
Morisse, H.
Morris, O. R.
Mortensen, Georg
Morton, Frank J.
Morgan, R. B.
Morrison, Phillip
Mortensen, Thomas
Moulas. Nicholas
Muldrose, W. L.
Mullins, John

Naylor, Geo. D.
Nauta, H.
Neergard, A. C.
Nelson, Jerome
Nelson, N. H.
Ness, Aksel
Neveau, Thomas
Nicolaisen, Ancker
Nilsen, Anders
Nillson, S. H. H.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nickolsen, -1429
Nilsen, Christ
Nordlie, Christ
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordling, Sven
Nordstom, Hans
Nurken, H.
Nyman, John A.
Nundorf, F. R.

O'Connor, Dennis
Ohlson, Hj.
Olafson, O. B.
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, Kristian
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsson, Enock
Olsson, W. O.
Olsson, V.
Olsson, Charle
Ortman, Carl
Osterberg, Hj.
Olsson, James
Olsson, Dolph
Olsson, C. O. -705
Olson, Tollef
Ozolin, Jan
Pakis, M.
Paulsen, E. A.
Paul, Ben
Payne, J. E.
Pedersen, Henry
Pedersen, Lewis
Pedersen, S.-1888
Pels, H.
Petersen, Axel L.
Peterson, Axel
Peterson, Frank G.
Peterson, Elias
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Peterson, Henry
Pihlstrom, R. J.
Pipione, Joseph
Phillips, Bob
Post, Albert
Pree, E. Deu
Prusch, Anthony
Publicatus, A.
Punis, Tony

Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Rasmussen, Peter
Redinger, Mike
Reigwein, A.
Regnill, Gustaf
Renstrom, Axel
Riis, A.
Ring, Walfrid
Richardson, Edwin
Rosa, John
Roach, Steffen
Robson, Carr
Roberts, John
Roon, A. van
Roth, M.
Rodriquez, Antonio
Rogers, Thos. G.
Rundstrom, Albert
Rupp, A.-1029
Russell R.-1662
Rueter, A.
Rydelius, Rolf
Rytko, Otto

Saar, John
Savage, Roland
Salli, Rudolf
Sanne, Rudolf
Sandstrom, Olaf
Schmehl, Paul
Schneider, H. F. F.
Schuldt, Theodor
Schulze, Hans
Schulze, John
Schwarz, H. -3746
Seiffert, John
Skaar, P. P.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Sorensen, E.
Sodergren, Ragnar
Skoog, Paul
Smeling, B.
Smitana, Leo C.
Smith, John H.
Sonne, Herman
Sorensen, Jorgen
Sorensen, N. M. -2447
Sorenson, Soren H.
Stanford. Harry
Sternberg, Alf.
Stolzerman, E.
Stenberg, Hj. N.
Stone, M. C.
Stragseth, Svend
Sund, Aleks
Sundstrom, Ernst
Swanson, Eric

Tammola, Waino
Tellefson, E.
Thompsen, H. T.
Thoren, Victor
Thornquist, Adolf
Thorsen, Hendrik
Thiel, Werner
Thode, Rudolph
Thomas, Andrew
Thomas, John
Thomas, N. S.
Thomas, Fred
Thomsen, Ebbe Peter
Timmermann. Willy
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tiptman, Ray
Tohtz, R. E.
Torrance, John
Toyra, A.
Tolano, A. R.
Torwick, H. S.
Tovano, A. R.
Tufty, C. J.

Vadum, N. Kr.
Verhoef, A.
Vitol, A.
Vihavainen, George

Wakrom, J.
Walstrom, Albert
Weatherby, Thomas
Wezwagar, Andrew
Wilks, J.
Wohlers, Diedrich

Yarkwelt, A.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Grienne, Fred
Goodman, Tony
Henrikson, Ernst
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis. Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Olsen, O. J. -1020
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Travers,
Tillsten, Jack
Wallin, V. O.
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED.

The following named members of the crew of the S. S. "Kenebec," who helped salve the schooner "Thomas L. Wand" on November 19, 1919, have vouchers ready to be distributed at our office:

Demetre Sakelaris, $46.80; Carl Puika, $56.72; Isidro Flores, $50.55; Janes Franco, $50.55; Daniel Rodrigues, $50.55; Rafael Corrillo, $50.55; Dimity Sacelarius, $50.55; Siegor Sorensen, $50.55. Levy & Levy, Lawyers, Trust Bldg., Galveston, Texas. 10-6-20

If anyone knows the whereabouts of Arthur Kasper, a member of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, kindly communicate with S. Alexanderson, Box 571, Portland, Me. 11-17-20

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 6361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the

CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

GEO. A. PRICE
Says:
DEMAND THE UNION LABEL

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

KELLEHER & BROWNE
THE IRISH TAILORS
716 MARKET STREET
at Third and Kearny
SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices
Established for 20 years
All work done in our own sanitary workshop
Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

SALE
SHOES SHOES
YOU CAN SAVE FROM $3 TO $5 A PAIR AT THE SALE PRICE THAN YOU CAN PURCHASE THEM ELSEWHERE. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SALE.
AGENTS—W. L. DOUGLAS, JUST WRIGHT, STRONG & GARFIELD, WALK EASE
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET, S. F. Between Market and Mission

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
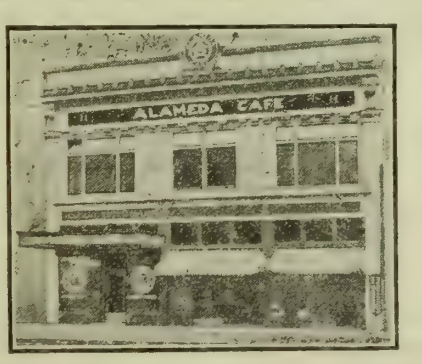
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS UNION — UNION STAMP — Factory
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer



JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.
SEPT. 1880
Issued by Authority of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.
Union-made Cigars.
This Certifies that the Cigars contained in this box have been made by a First-Class Workman a MEMBER OF THE CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION of America, an organization devoted to the advancement of the MORAL, MATERIAL and INTELLECTUAL WELFARE OF THE CRAFT. Therefore we recommend these Cigars to all smokers throughout the world
All infringements upon this Label will be punished according to law.
CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA LOCAL
STAMP
J. W. Bertetti, President C.M.I.U. of America

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING AT YOUR POST OFFICE
GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES
PRICES IN DECEMBER
THRIFT STAMPS AT 25 CENTS
$5 Government Savings Stamps for.....$ 4.23
$100 Treasury Savings Certificates for.....$ 84.60
$1000 Treasury Savings Certificates for.....$846.00
ASK YOUR POSTMASTER
GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
120 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

News from Abroad

A Mexican executive order just issued establishes free ports at Salina Cruz and Puerto Mexico (Isthmus of Tehuantepec) and Guaymas.

The German government has decided to pay 17 billion marks to German shipping companies for the loss of their tonnage.

Near Sofia, a site of about fifty acres has been granted by the Bulgarian government in perpetuity to the American Mission Board for the erection of a new school.

American coal has been sent to Soviet Russia through Archangel by way of transhipment at Vardö, Norway. Coal from England has also been sent to Russia in the same manner.

Since Eastern Galicia has come under Polish rule foreign capital to develop the oilfields has been introduced to such an extent that almost the entire industry is in British, French, and Belgian hands.

Apart from the savings taken with them from the United States by 75,553 Italian emigrants last year, the amount of remittances from Italians in this country to their home country through the Banco di Napoli amounted to about $110,000,000.

The Finnish S. S. Co., of Helsingfors, is said to have placed a contract with P. Smits Scheepswerft, Rotterdam, for four cargo steamers of about 3,000 tons deadweight, the price agreed upon being about £27 per ton deadweight ($94.50 at current exchange).

The Antwerp journal "Neptune" says that German shipbuilders, in order to avoid handing over to the Reparations Commission ships constructed with material recently ordered in America, are arranging to have the contracts passed through Scandinavian houses.

As a result of the slump in British shipping, one of the leading Liverpool companies is reported to have stopped for the time being the building of thirteen new steamers. Apart from the cessation of shipbuilding in the United Kingdom there is growing tendency for ships to be transferred to Continental ports for repair and reconditioning.

It is reported that a Finnish shipping company, Uudenkaupungin Valtamerilaiva O. Y., plans to establish regular steamship service between Finland and New York. The company has recently bought an ocean steamer, the "Valtameri," which is to make four trips a year each way and will not call at any intermediate ports. There will be accommodations for about 100 passengers. The project is dependent upon the Finnish government granting subsidies to the enterprise.

An increased building cost amounting to nearly fifteen times that before the war has practically put an end to all building of homes in Germany, and with it to the development of modern garden cities and villages of which quite a number were planned during the war. Nevertheless, the preparation of interesting and important schemes of both urban and semi-rural settlement continues, and a recent issue of Die Volkswohnung lists some fifty towns and cities with housing plans—ranging from the establishment of entirely new industrial towns to small groups of houses contemplated by municipalities, co-operative societies, employers and housing associations.

With the Wits

They Had 'Em.—"Was the site owner's offer to supply the militia encampment tentative?"

"Oh, no; the militia had the tents."

Different Animal.—Miss Burden—I overheard that dear young man telling you I danced like a Zephyr.

Miss Bright—Zephyr? He said "heifer."

Mistake or Confession?—The nervous bridegroom was called upon to make a speech at the wedding breakfast.

Putting his hand on his bride's shoulder, he hesitatingly remarked: "Ladies and gentlemen, this thing has been thrust upon me."—London Tit-Bits.

Washed With Care.—Mr. Newlove—This lettuce tastes beastly—did you wash it?

Mrs. Newlove—Of course I did, darling—and I used perfumed soap, too!—London Mail.

Clerk of the Shore Hotel—Five dollars, sir, for room with bath.

Farmer Harrower (after consultation with his wife)—But we don't want no room with a bath. We're goin' to wash in the ocean every three or four days.—Judge.

His Guide Book.—"I must look in the book to see where I'll go on my vacation."

"You mean a resort directory?"

"No, my bankbook."—Buffalo Express.

Ambiguous.—"Do Englishmen understand American slang?"

"Some of them do. Why?"

"My daughter is to be married in London and the earl has cabled me to come across."

"Well?"

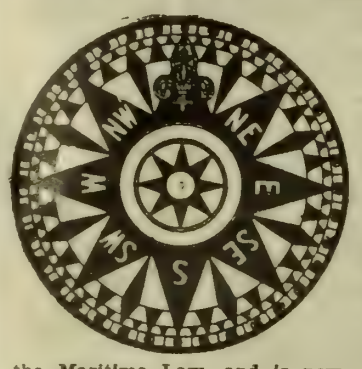
"Does he want me or my wad?"

He—I suppose when all women vote the party managers will have to put handsome men on their tickets for candidates.

She—What makes you think women will demand handsome men to vote for when you look at the kind the most of them marry?—Baltimore American.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888



Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ Phone Douglas 5752 ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. JEWELERS

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James R. Sorensen
Pres. and Treas.

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked in Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved in Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold in 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

716 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's GOOD GOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell
UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization.

VOL. XXXIV, No. 12. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1920. Whole No. 1728.

PROGRESS OF ADULT EDUCATION

Educational Facilities Offered by U. S. Trade Unions

The pending proposal in the Sailors' Union of the Pacific to give members an opportunity, under union auspices, to perfect their technical training is but one phase of the great forward movement made by adult education.

A mass of valuable data upon this subject has just been made available by the Adult Education Committee of the British Ministry of Reconstruction. Lack of space forbids any attempt to extensively review the remarkable strides made by adult education in recent years.

However, the efforts made to create educational opportunities for members of American trade unions furnish an optimistic and exceptionally interesting story. A summary of these developments is published herewith and shows conclusively that the organized workers are taking stock in the old adage: "Knowledge is Power."

Perhaps the most significant development in the sphere of adult education in the United States is that which is taking place in the trade union movement. Special reference may be made to the recently established United Labor Education Committee of New York. In recent years certain unions in New York have appointed education directors. It was realized that the provision of adequate educational facilities for trade union members was possible only through the co-operation of interested trade unions. The experimental work which had been carried on prior to the establishment of the Committee has been met by difficulties, some of which have hampered the growth of adult education amongst working people in this country. The trade unions in New York who attempted educational work provided systematic classes in economic and social subjects, as well as in English, Yiddish, and similar auxiliary subjects. The results were regarded as disappointing, and the number of students who attended the classes was small. The partial failure of the schemes was attributed to the fact that provision was made for classes before steps had been taken to stimulate and organize the demand.

It was also found that membership of the unions was spread over so wide an area of the City of New York that distances were too great for the classes to serve even the limited number of people who are anxious to undertake systematic study. As the Chairman of the United Labor Education Committee has said, the distance from the homes of members to the places where the classes were held "involved for them so many hardships and sacrifices as to overweigh the desire for education or as to make them look for substitute facilities, even if of a less satisfactory nature, within their own vicinity. Moreover, many of the members of labor organizations who made some provision for education found that the classes arranged were either too elementary in character or too limited in their choice of subject to satisfy their own particular needs." One of the chief difficulties was to be found in the organization of the trade unions. None of these bodies succeeded in creating adequate machinery for the work which they desired to undertake.

Trade union organization, which was developed for an entirely different purpose, proved inadequate for the provision of educational facilities, and its organization was too rigid to adapt itself to the educational needs of the unions. The educational directors, therefore, were more or less left without that administrative and organizing assistance which was essential.

As a result of these considerations and the experience of the trade unions interested, it was decided to federate trade union bodies for education purposes. The United Labor Education Committee was formed, and its affiliated organizations at present are the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, the Fancy Leather Goods Workers' Union, the Furriers' Union Joint Board, the Jewelry Workers' Union, the United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers of North America, the Women's Trade Union League, and the Workmen's Circle. The United Labor Education Committee consists of two members from every organization having a membership of over 20,000, and one member each from those with a smaller membership, these members being selected from the central bodies of their organization. The Chairman of the Committee has expressed the purpose and intentions of the new organization as follows:—

"The task which the Committee faces is enormous. The total membership under the jurisdiction of the Committee in the City of New York alone is, in round numbers, 150,000. A broad-visioned, systematic educational campaign, having as its purpose to wake, develop and strengthen the inherent strivings of the people to the higher ideals of humanity and of human nature to the fulness and the beauty in life and to supply adequate mental food for their intellectual and psychological life, is connected with such enormous difficulties that the Committee feels that the mobilization of all the men of science, art and labor, who have this task at heart, will be absolutely indispensable. Moreover, the Committee realizes that if the educational work is to accomplish its purpose and to reach the greater part of these 150,000 members and their dependents, it will have to create a very considerable number of carriers of this educational work, from the ranks of the labor masses themselves. It is felt that this great membership contains within itself a very considerable number of potential intellectual elements, who under necessary guidance and with satisfactory and competent preliminary training, could become a strong connecting link between the higher modern provinces of science and art and the workaday life of the laborer. The Committee realizes that one of the most essential first steps in its activities must be these attempts—first, to mobilize all the representative men of Art, Science, and Labor who have the cause of education at heart; and second, to promote the springing up out of the ranks of labor of a substantial educated and responsive nucleus. Moreover, with the present unsettled time of reconstruction setting in, the necessity of creating a greater mutual understanding and promoting an 'entente cordiale' among Labor, Science and Art, the paramount factors of human progress, is becoming ever more desirable."

Although the United Labor Education Committee was but recently instituted, it has already commenced work. "Art, Science and Labor Centers" have been established in all the residential sections of the City of New York. They are conducted on Saturday evenings or Sunday afternoons, the program consisting of a lecture, music, and "educational moving pictures."

Classes in subjects of interest to the members of the trade union movement, in sociology and economics are conducted in the same centers on week days, as well as classes in elementary and advanced English. These classes are called for owing to the large number of members of alien nationality. A section has been established "aiming to establish a theater for the people, giving productions of modern art at a charge of $1 for three performances for members of the organizations affiliated with the United Labor Education Committee and $3.50 for other persons, with no classification of seats, people being seated by lot." The section is under the guidance of a special Workmen's Theater Committee, which includes a number of people prominently identified with the stage.

There is also a section on music "with the aim of supplying music for all our membership and of arranging symphony orchestra concerts on the same basis as the Workmen's Theater for workmen, and of developing folk-music and understanding of music in general." A committee of experts has been appointed to further this object. Of particular interest is the Workmen's University Seminar, which may be described in the words of the chairman of the United Committee:—

"In order to create a substantial educating force within the ranks of Labor itself, the Committee plans to arrange a special auxiliary seminar, consisting of about from 75 to 150 selected members from the hundreds of locals affiliated with our Committee, the admission of members to the classes to be determined by their fitness and readiness to devote their energies and the training and higher education which the seminar will give them to the educational work of the Committee. This auxiliary seminar, or whatever name it will eventually adopt, is planned to be conducted on the lines in which the university seminaries for post-graduates usually are, with such modifications as the element and the special task may make necessary or as the instructors of the class may find advisable. It is planned that the class shall be under the guidance of the best authorities on labor, industrial and social problems and history, which the Committee may be able to procure."

The United Labor Education Committee, although its program of work is still for the most part a project to be accomplished, represents a spontaneous movement on the part of organized Labor towards the provision of non-vocational adult education. Not the least interesting fact regarding the United Committee is that the affiliated organizations are largely composed of women workers. Whilst the Committee proposes to arrange concerts, cinema shows, visits to art galleries, debates and general lectures, it stresses the need for more serious and more systematic study.

The insistence on the importance of seeking the co-operation of scholars wherever they may be found provides an interesting parallel with the procedure of the Workers' Educational Association in this country. At the outset the Committee is taking steps by means of its seminar to provide a steady stream of people from within the ranks of organized Labor to take part in the educational work of the Committee. The provision of teachers, which is now becoming an acute problem in this country, is referred to elsewhere in this report, and the recommendations we make are based upon the necessity for adult educational movements providing more and more in the future from within their own ranks tutors and lecturers.

Another recent development in the United States is the establishment of a Trade Union College at Boston, Mass. This College, which is to open in the autumn of 1919, is maintained by the organized workers of Boston for the use of trade union members. The Governing Committee includes representatives of the organizations of transport workers, painters, tobacco strippers, freestone cutters, milk wagon drivers, shorthand writers, etc. The classes will be held in the evenings and attendance is to be confined to members of unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The Boston College has adopted the same principle of co-operation with the academic world as the United Labor Education Committee of New York, and the teachers are to be drawn from various universities, for example Harvard, Yale, Columbia, etc., and from the School of Social Research in New York.

CONFESSIONS OF A FAKER.

(From the New York Nation.)

Little by little the truth about the war prevails. One of its mightiest warriors—of the stay-at-home variety—John R. Rathom, editor of the Providence Journal, late in 1917 wrote a series of articles, "Germany's Plots Exposed," for the World's Work, widely advertised as follows:

How the devilishly cunning plots to kill our people, sink our ships, dynamite our factories, and disrupt our national life were run down and thwarted. More thrilling than fiction, and, withal, the most patriotic service to America since the war began. It is the modestly told story of a brave editor and resourceful reporters who beat the Germans at their own game.

But after one issue, "The Great Rathom Series," scheduled to appear for one year, which the World's Work predicted would make it the "most talked of, the most quoted, the most eagerly sought for magazine in America" was suddenly withdrawn. Rathom, who in frequent public addresses was modestly admitting his exploits, explained that the cessation of the articles was decided upon from "motives of patriotism." Now it appears that on February 12, 1918, Rathom, at the instance of the United States Government and by advice of counsel, signed a confession admitting the falsity, or such exaggeration that it equaled falsity, of almost all of these revelations and exposures.

No one who is in any doubt about the shameful deception that was practiced in this country throughout the war—and indeed in every country, for it is an inevitable by-product of war—should fail to study the amazing confession of John Revelstoke Rathom, British-born and bred, archpatrioteer and super-spy-hunter, editor and molder of public opinion, director and member of the executive committee of the Associated Press. While "patriotism" was smeared thick over all his utterances and works, Rathom's role was wholly un-American. The vaunted exploits of his editors and reporters he has now admitted were myths, and what little information he did have as the basis for his sensations was supplied by British secret agents whose tool he was, and who used him for their own purposes. And this dime-novel clap-trap was the sort of propaganda with which the country was drugged, as The Nation has repeatedly shown. As for Mr. Rathom, he is aptly characterized by the New York World, which declares in an editorial entitled "Confessions of a Faker," that his confession is "one which for comprehensive avowals of downright falsehood has few parallels in the annals of mendacity."

On the other hand, the incident sheds no enviable radiance on Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mr. Francis G. Caffey, and other officials behind the scenes, on the opposite side of the controversy. Mr. Rathom recently made charges derogatory to the naval administration of Roosevelt; a United States District Attorney owing his appointment to Roosevelt's political party makes public facts long possessed by the Government; facts which should instantly have been given to the American people, but are only now divulged for the sole purpose of discrediting personally a political opponent of the Administration. That they do this successfully does not for one moment lessen the indecency of the procedure. The Government which suppressed this important information, contributing in that way—among others—to the war hysteria and terrorism, and publishes it only to aid the political ends of one of its henchmen, is an accessory after the fact to Mr. Rathom's malfeasance.

SOME VOCABULARY.

A man whose vocabulary seems to be unlimited when he desires to describe conditions, and whose nights were made sleepless by a switch engine, recently wrote as follows to the railroad company:

"Is it absolutely necessary in discharge of his duty day and night, that the engineer of your yard at the upper terminal bridge should make his engine ding and dong and fizz and spit and clang and bang and buzz and hiss and bell and wail and pant and rant and yowl and grate and grind and puff and bump and click and clank and chug and moan and hoot and toot and crash and grunt and gasp and groan and whistle and wheeze and squawk and blow and jar and peek and rasp and jingle and twang and clack and rumble and jangle and ring and clatter and yelp and croak and howl and hum and snarl and puff and growl and thump and boom and clash and jolt and jostle and shake and screech and snort and snarl and slam and shake and throb and crink and quiver and rumble and roar and rattle and yell and smoke and smell and shriek like h—?"

When a man tires at the "slow progress" of the labor movement a good recipe is to stand off a bit and survey the work actually accomplished.

SHIPPING BOARD CONTRACTS.

By the terms of a new contract for the management of government-owned merchant vessels, private ship companies are assured a profit and the United States Shipping Board assumes all risk, according to Reuben A. Lewis, in the Annalist, financial paper.

It is stated that the terms of the contract are not generally known to the public. The Shipping Board has agreed to pay all expenses incurred by the ships on their voyages and to give to the ship companies 5 per cent. of the gross freight money on outward voyages and 2½ per cent. on the incoming trips. This replaces the old contract which provided for the payment of a small fixed sum per deadweight ton and a division of profits, provided there were any.

The writer says it is doubtful if the agreement is one over which the taxpayers will enthuse. The companies to which the Government Board consign the ships for operation do not risk a single cent in the management and operation of property worth more than $1,000,000,000. The agreement dates back to March 1 last and it is predicted that the income of the steamship companies for this year will be "far in excess of what it otherwise would have been."

"There seems to be little doubt but the unheralded agreement—which few taxpayers know is in existence—will prove a severe drain upon the Treasury. Thus far the Shipping Board has not made any demands upon the exchequer, but it must be recalled that the millions of dollars which it derives from the sale of ships may be applied to meet any deficits incurred through operation."

BRITISH WIRELESS RULES.

The British Merchant Shipping (Wireless Telegraphy) Act, 1920, and the rules made thereunder, have been in operation as regards ships registered in the United Kingdom since Sept. 1 last. As regards other ships trading to the United Kingdom they will come into force on December 1 next. Already some criticism is being offered as to the inelasticity of the rules, and incidentally as affecting small passenger-carrying steamers. The case is mentioned of a steamer of less than 250 tons gross, which is never farther than a couple of miles from land and lies in port at night, yet must be fitted with wireless.

ENGINEERS RENEW AGREEMENT.

The National Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association has come to an agreement with the Shipping Board and the Steamship Owners' Association as to the renewal of the wage scale and working agreement from November to May 1, 1921. It was recently extended from August 1 to November 1. The only change in the agreement is that engineers will be granted the subsistence allowance received by deck officers, or $4.50 a day to chief engineers and $3 to assistant engineers and $2.50 per night for room hire when compelled to eat and sleep ashore.

The labor movement is a thing not of idealism but of instinct.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

Opposed Labor Injunctions

Announcement from Chicago of the death of Stephen S. Gregory, former president of the American Bar Association, recalled the defense of labor's position on the injunction question by this jurist in 1915 before the commission on industrial relations at its final hearings in this city.

The lawyer rested his case on the purposes of the injunction writ and insisted that it is intended for the protection of property rights and never to apply to personal rights or to permit judges to act as law makers, judges and executioners.

"The newspapers and even the judges," said this jurist, "have much to say when an employer files a bill and obtains an injunction against workmen on strike from interfering with his men that he has hired in the place of these workmen, and acts of violence, and so forth, about that injunction being granted in order to protect the right of every man to work for whom he chooses. There is really no just relation there, and no lawyer could justify it upon any such theory. I have no right to go out and file a bill to be permitted to work for whom I choose; and if I did, any one of these judges, who sometimes use that language incautiously, would laugh me out of court.

"Equity deals only with the right of property."

In referring to the practice of injunction judges jailing strikers without trial by jury or other constitutional guaranties, Mr. Gregory said:

"The Constitution has thrown around the prosecution of criminals—the Constitutions, State and Federal—a number of securities. They are entitled to trial by jury; they are entitled to be confronted by the witnesses who are to testify against them; they are entitled to be heard by counsel.

"But none of these guaranties, except, perhaps, the right to be heard by counsel, is secured in contempt proceedings, and to provide that the court may proceed against them for contempt, where the conduct charged against them is criminal, is really an evasion of the constitutional guaranties and a plain attempt to commit to equity jurisdiction over matters which it has been decided over and over again by all the courts that it has no jurisdiction with respect to, namely, the administration of the criminal law.

"For instance, I might receive as I leave the room of this tribunal to-day, a threatening letter from somebody saying they were going to kill me for something that I had said or had not said, in a court of equity. Now, that involves personal loss possible to my wife or those dependent upon me; but no court of equity would listen for a moment to a bill I would file, saying 'A B,' or some other black hand gentleman had threatened to kill me, or if filed by anybody dependent upon me, and therefore there should be an injunction to prevent him from killing me.

"That would be an absurdity, a legal absurdity, and none the less is it so where a man is enjoined from committing acts of violence in a strike to try him for contempt without a trial by jury. And that has been an injustice that has rankled in the minds of everybody that has been a victim of it and justly so.

"Sir Charles Napier says: 'People talk about agitators, but the only real agitator is injustice; and the only way is to correct the injustice and withdraw the agitation.'"

In defending the right of workers to boycott, Mr. Gregory said:

"If you agree to commit murder, that crime is illegal, whether it is two or two thousand. If you agree to do any other unlawful act, that agreement is illegal and constitutes in itself an unlawful act. But if men combine to do that which they, each one, severally, have a right to do, if after all the combined act is essentially the same as the act of the single individual, then it is very difficult to establish on any logical, legal principle that such a combination in and of itself is illegal."

Mr. Gregory's testimony ended with this question and answer:

"Commissioner Lennon—Mr. Gregory, is the issuance of injunctions warranted where there is other adequate remedy at law to cure that which the injunction seeks to handle?

"Mr. Gregory—It is one of the canons of the law on that subject that in such cases injunction should not issue—particularly, a preliminary injunction."

---

44 Hours in Australia.

The 44-hour week for pastoral workers has been established in practically every section of the Australian commonwealth by the Australian Workers' Union.

An agreement with the various pastoralist associations makes the shorter work week a fact, increases wages, improves working conditions and fixes the price of meat for these workers on terms more favorable than have yet prevailed. The agreement includes sheep shearers, shed hands, wool scourers, cooks and all other employes connected with the pastoral calling.

The Australian Workers' Union has made these gains through organization, and despite the opposition of organized employers and men who should be associated with this labor organization, but who talk "one big union."

"These bellicose individuals," says the Australian Worker, "have done absolutely nothing to contribute to the peaceful victory which the A. W. U. has gained.

"They have made a most tremendous row, it is true. They have bellowed to the full capacity of brazen throats; have caused the atmosphere to tremble with their bombastic clamor; have babbled and blabbed in interviews with the capitalistic press. But tested by practical results all that their pugnacious pratings amount to is an expression of furious futility.

"Members of the A. W. U. will know how to assess at their true worth these

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg., Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.

Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.

National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Transportarbeiter Verband, Reichsabteilung Seeleute. Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.

Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.

Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.

Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.

Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.

Sociedade Uniâo dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.

Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

The little city of Lauscha in Thuringia is believed to be the banner co-operative town of the world, according to figures just made public. Of the 6000 inhabitants of Lauscha, 1555 are members of the co-operative, which means that practically the whole population is drawing supplies without the intervention of retailers.

The French Seamen's Federation recently called a general strike at Havre and Marseilles to last 24 hours from noon October 23 in retaliation for the action of the naval court which sentenced several seamen to terms of imprisonment of from three days to one year, in connection with the mutiny on steamship "Menes."

Italian metal workers, by a vote of 127,904 against 44,531 are reported to have accepted the agreement made in their name by the Italian Federation of Labor, in its dealings with the government and the manufacturers; the Italian Prime Minister has made his report to the Senate and has announced the amicable settlement of the whole affair.

Policemen in New South Wales have decided to form a union. The proposed union is being largely supported throughout the cities and country, and it is hoped that it will be 100 per cent strong in the near future. In the Labor State of Queensland, the police have been organized in a union for several years past.

The Railway Advisory Board, created as a result of last year's strike of railway employes in Great Britain, has failed to function, and dissatisfaction is general. It is declared that there is no co-operation between the workers and the Government's ministry of transport. One official of the railwaymen's union said: "Causes of delay have increased and multiplied until our members are threatening revolt. There seems to be a policy of pin-pricks, and this is at the root of more trouble than clear-cut grievances."

According to cable dispatches, the British Labor party met reverses in recent elections. In 70 of the leading boroughs Labor put forth 747 candidates and of these 548 were defeated. Anti-labor elements in England declare that this ends Labor's political activity, while the workers declare that when their campaign of education gets in full swing they will come back stronger than ever. "The lesson that comes from the election to labor," said J. H. Thomas of the Railway Men's Union, "is to convert the public to the general aims of labor."

Social insurance against sickness together with maternity insurance are unanimously recommended by an official commission in Sweden in its report recently issued preparatory to legislative action. It is estimated that eighty per cent of the total population will be protected by the compulsory health insurance measure now advanced by the Swedish government with prospects of early adoption. More than two-thirds of the industrial map of Europe is now covered by health insurance laws. In the United States—the only great industrial nation still remaining without workmen's health insurance—recent reports of nine official State commissions have disclosed an appalling burden of sickness among wage-earning families and a lack of adequate medical care.

REMOVAL and REDUCTION SALE

GREATEST IN THE HISTORY OF SAN FRANCISCO'S WATERFRONT

Our Store Will Be Moved to

37 MARKET STREET

Corner of Steuart on or About December 10, 1920

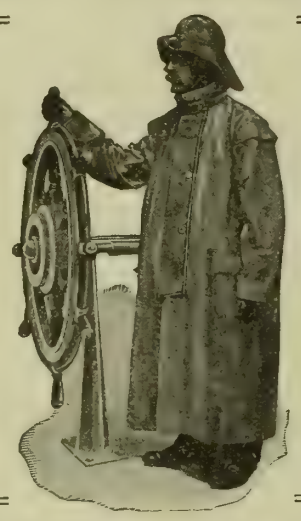
Commencing Nov. 10, We Will Offer For Sale

Can't Bustem and Headlight

Union-Made Waist Overalls, each	$1.50
Bib Overalls	2.00
Blue or Khaki Boiler Suits	3.75
Argonaut Union-Made Double-back Hickory Shirts	1.50
Blue Chambray Shirts	.90
Khaki Pants	2.50
Chalmers Heavy Cotton Ribbed Union Suits	2.00

ARGONAUT UNION-MADE HEAVY WOOL FLANNEL SHIRTS—BLUE, GRAY, OR BROWN, $3.50

MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS
CAPT. CUGLE'S BOOK ON NAVIGATION



FREE INFORMATION OF THE MOVEMENTS OF ALL VESSELS UNDER EVERY FLAG

Lawrence Balbriggan Underwear, Ankle-Length Drawers and Half Sleeve Undershirts, each $ .75
Heavy Wool Underwear, per garment 1.75
Sweater Neck Navy Undershirts 40c and .65
Cotton Socks 15c and Heavy Wool Socks 40c to .90
Regular $3 Dress Shirts for 1.50
Brown Flannel Shirts 1.75

Nautical Instruments and Uniforms

SUITS, OVERCOATS, HATS AND SHOES IN PROPORTION

CAN'T BUST'EM UNION-MADE CORDUROY PANTS, REGULAR $6.50 AND $7.50 VARIETY, NOW FOR SALE AT $4.75

A visit to this store will convince you.

CAPTAIN CHAS. J. SWANSON

36 Steuart Street, near Market

In the Southern Pacific Building
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
Telephone Douglas 1082

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R. $22.50
Mattson, Geo. J. 22.50

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney-at-law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 676 Mills Bldg., Telephone Sutter 4673. Residence Phone Prospect 2908.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Any one knowing the nearest relatives of C. C. Stewart, a late member of the Marine Firemen's Union of the Atlantic, are kindly requested to communicate with the Secretary of the above organization at 70 South St., New York, N. Y. 3-3-20

Crew of the S. S. "Wasco," which signed on at New York March 19th and were discharged and arrested at the Cape Verde Islands about October 19th, will be good enough to report or communicate with the undersigned. The trial of some of the crew will come up shortly and I should like to join as many of the crew as possible in their action.—S. B. Axtell, New York, N. Y.

8-4-20

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM

A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
R. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING
Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

You Want the Truth

This year there will be stirring times in the Nation. Under government censorship it is increasingly difficult for the average man to get the real meaning of the social and political movements of the day.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE

will be specially represented at Washington and will analyze and present the news from the capital truthfully and fairly. Senator La Follette is making a real fight to lift some of the tax burdens from the common people and place them where they belong—on excess profits, war profits and surplus fortunes and incomes. Because of this he is being attacked more bitterly than any other man in public life.

Send in your order today.

$1.00 Per Year—Agents Wanted
La Follette's Magazine, Madison, Wis.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Arturo Longueira, age 18, who mysteriously disappeared at South Ferry, New York, on August 25th, or any one knowing his whereabouts, will please communicate with Secretary, Marine Firemen's Union, 70 South St., New York City. 10-20-20

AXTELL'S BOOK

"Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen" for the use of seamen and officers, just out. Copies may be obtained by addressing

RIGHTS & DUTIES OF SEAMEN PUBLISHING COMPANY,
9 State Street, New York City.
$1.00 Per Copy.

To Scandinavian Sailors:

Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.

LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

Announcement is made that the Canadian Government has signed the long-pending contract giving a subsidy to the Coughlan Shipyard Co. of Vancouver to build a drydock in Vancouver. The dock will be 725 feet long and will cost $3,500,000. It will accommodate any vessel passing through the Panama Canal.

A virtual warning has been given by the Shipping Board to the Seattle dry dock companies that repairs to vessels at that port should not exceed the cost of similar work carried out at San Francisco. It is stated that up to the present the cost of repairs at Seattle has been materially higher than at San Francisco.

Bids for the reconditioning of the Matson Navigation Company's steamer "Enterprise" were opened during the week, and the contract was awarded to the Moore Shipbuilding Company on a bid of $186,000, which was the lowest submitted. The "Enterprise" will be completely renovated and reconditioned from stem to stern. Other bids submitted were: Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company, $275,000; Union Construction Company, $219,500; Los Angeles Shipbuilding Company, $269,000; Hanlon Shipbuilding Company, $193,578.95; United Engineering Company, $255,941.

Bringing the largest number of Chinese coolies ever arriving on a single vessel into San Francisco bay, the Dutch steamer "Tjikembang" of the Java-China-Japan line is due to arrive about November 27. The Chinese upon their arrival will be taken to Angel island to await trans-shipment to Cuban destinations for work in the sugar plantations. Recently the Java-China-Japan line entered into a contract for the carrying of the Chinese here. On the last arrival of the steamer "Tjisondari" here a heavy list of Chinese arrived. The "Tjikembang" is also arriving with a full load of merchandise from Javanese ports via Hongkong.

The new Pacific freight rate agreement is now in effect. Under it, all regular lines agree to use as a basis the tariff of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, which is $10 a ton on general cargo from Japan to United States. The main purpose of the tariff is to stabilize rates rather than raise them, although an advance has been made on some commodities. There are 11 signatories to the agreement, as follows: Nippon Yusen Kaisha, Osaka Shosen Kaisha, Toyo Kisen Kaisha, Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, China Mail S. S. Co., the China Pacific S. S. Co., Struthers & Dixon, Admiral Line, American Express Co., Pacific Mail S. S. Co., and F. Waterhouse Co.

Suit has been filed in the Federal Court at San Francisco by Dan J. Hanlon of the Hanlon Shipyards against the owners of the Dutch steamer "Arakan" for $250,000 for aid rendered to the vessel while ashore two miles north of Point Reyes, California, some time ago. The suit, it is stated, was filed following the refusal of the owners, of which J. D. Spreckels & Bros.' Company are the agents here, to meet the bill submitted by Hanlon for the part played by the steamer "Homer" in succeeding in pulling the vessel from the beach. The "Arakan" is at present on drydock at the Moore yards undergoing repairs to her engines and hull, representing a cost of $250,000, according to surveyors.

Nome, Alaska, once the mecca of gold-seekers and adventurers, is not the desolate, deserted place it has been pictured by passengers arriving on the last ships out of the freezing north, A. J. Mueller, a jeweler of Nome, asserted during the week. The hectic tides of fortune hunters who came with the gold rush are gone and the permanent population is thinning out, but 700 stout-hearted residents remain, Mueller said. He was at a loss to account for the tales of travelers that Nome had been denuded of population. Four hundred and fifty votes were cast in Nome at the Presidential election, he said. Mueller has been a resident of Nome for seventeen years and is visiting here for the first time in thirteen years.

Captain Roald Amundsen, Arctic explorer, has sent the following message from East Cape, Siberia, bearing date of August 13th: "We sailed from Nome immediately after my wire of August 8th, with only three men, as the others claimed wages of £300 sterling monthly. The following day we were held up by pack ice in Bering sea. All aboard well." This is the first direct message from Captain Amundsen since he set out on his polar expedition from Nome, Alaska, in the ship "Maude." Five weeks later information reached Nome that the famous explorer's ship had become wedged in the ice twenty miles off Cape Serge, 225 miles northwest of Nome, on the Siberian coast. The reports said the ice was ten feet high about the vessel. East Cape, Siberia, the point from which the explorer sent his message, is about 170 miles northwest of Nome and is on the Bering Straits.

An attempt is being made by the "Arctic," one of the fleet belonging to Police Commissioner Andrew Mahony, to pull the "G. C. Lindauer" off the beach at Albion. The "Arctic," with a full salving apparatus, left San Francisco Sunday on the rescue mission. The "G. C. Lindauer" went ashore in the gale which raged along the coast last Tuesday, when a rope became entangled in her propeller as she was making preparations to leave her moorings and get out to sea before the full fury of the storm should break. She was engaged in the coastwise lumber trade. Local shipping men familiar with her situation believe that there is a good chance of saving the vessel. The "G. C. Lindauer" was a craft of 453 gross tons and was built in 1901 at Aberdeen, Wash. A peculiar coincidence of the accident was that she is lying in nearly the same spot where the steam schooner "Girlie Mahony" went ashore on December 23 last year. The "Girlie Mahony" was also operated by the owner of the "G. C. Lindauer." The "G. C. Lindauer" was purchased to replace the "Girlie Mahony" as a coastwise lumber carrier.

The steamer "Joan of Arc" of the Rolph Navigation and Coal Company, which went ashore off Point Orford on the Oregon coast duing the past week, broke in two inside the reef, according to advices just received. The "Joan of Arc" went ashore on November 15 during a 60-mile-an-hour gale. The tug "Storm King" was rushed to the rescue, but assistance was impossible on account of the rough sea. The steamer "Homer," which was sent from San Francisco, arrived there later, but not until the stranded steamer had broken her back on the rocks. The cargo of the wrecked vessel consisted of 1,300,000 feet of lumber, consigned to the Charles R. McCormick Company of San Francisco. The lumber was being shipped to San Pedro. The cargo can be salved, according to shipping men, and efforts to this end will be undertaken. As much of the machinery and equipment of the vessel as possible will be salved also, but it was said that the vessel will be practically an entire loss. The "Joan of Arc" was built three years ago at Rolph, Cal., for the French government, at a cost of approximately $600,000. The ship is insured for more than $250,000.

The California State Board of Harbor Commissioners announced a 100 per cent. increase in rentals of the ferry slips used by the Southern Pacific, Key Route, Northwestern and Western Pacific systems in the San Francisco Ferry building. Beginning January 1 next, the monthly charge will be $1000 for each slip. Despite rising costs of material and labor, the monthly rental for each of the ten slips has remained at $500 since 1912, the announcement said. No increase is contemplated, however, in other dock rentals on the State-owned waterfront according to John H. McCallum, president of the Board. Docking charges in this port are lower than anywhere else in the country, he said. Seven of the ten slips in the Ferry building are under permanent lease, three by the Southern Pacific, two by the Key Route, one by the Northwestern and one by the Western Pacific. "The ferry slips have been expensive to build and very expensive to maintain," McCallum said. "Destruction of material by boats crashing into the slips has made continual replacements necessary. The increases in material and labor costs have been so great since the war that rentals had to be doubled to meet the added expense." Figures have been prepared by the Board showing that the cost of maintaining the slips in proper condition has been far in excess of receipts from rentals.

Representatives of all the steamship lines plying out of San Francisco in the trans-Pacific freight trade, who comprise the Pacific Westbound Conference, have been in session for a number of days, seeking to avert the threatened gigantic rate war which was precipitated by the action of two of the former members of the association in withdrawing from the organization three months ago. The two companies who, according to steamship men, withdrew from the association are the Blue Funnel Line and Mitsui & Co. The former operate under the British flag and the latter under the Japanese flag. Steamship men stated that they were frankly "up in the air" regarding the action of the companies in withdrawing, but they stated that the move could be construed in no other light than a determination on the part of the lines withdrawing in slashing the present freight rates. Daulton Mann, assistant general manager of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, stated that while it was stated there were certain slight reductions in accepting freight on the part of certain lines not members of the association, it really concerned only certain commodities on a few vessels and was not a general reduction in rates. "The members of the Pacific Westbound Conference cannot cut their present rates and operate, and we do not contemplate any reductions," said Mann. "We believe there will be a complete adjustment of rates and that everything will soon return to normal," he said.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

Affiliated with
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
and
INTERNATIONAL SEAFARERS' FEDERATION

THOS. A. HANSON, Secretary
355 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

AFFILIATED UNIONS:

ATLANTIC DISTRICT

EASTERN AND GULF SAILORS' ASSOCIATION

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....PERCY J. PRYOR, Secretary
67-69 Front Street
Branches:
BOSTON, Mass.....MILLER JENSEN, Agent
1½ Lewis Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....ADOLF KILE, Agent
1710 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....O. CHRISTIANSEN, Agent
138 South Second Street
NORFOLK, Va.....DAN INGRAHAM, Agent
54 Commercial Place
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....JULIUS NELSON, Agent
123 Twenty-third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....VINCENT M. THORN, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....JAMES C. BURNS, Agent
400½ Fulton Street
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....WM. MILLER, Agent
132 Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....JOHN CLAUSEN, Agent
321 Twentieth Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....ALFRED TAMKE, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....N. P. CLAUSEN, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....ROBERT OLSEN, Agent
27 Houston Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....R. J. LEWIS, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....C. THEO. IVERSON, Agent
12½ Liberty Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....ERNEST H. STEWART, Agent
13 Vendue Range

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF

Headquarters:
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.....12 South Street
H. P. GRIFFIN, President
W. L. CARTLEDGE, Secretary-Treasurer
Telephone Bowling Green 8840-8841
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....D. E. GRANGE, Agent
514 Greenwich Street
BOSTON, Mass.....J. A. MARTIN, Agent
6 Long Wharf
NEW ORLEANS, La.....R. T. KAIZER, Agent
228 Lafayette Street
NORFOLK, Va.....WM. J. SIGGERS, Agent
411 Union Street
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. V. RODEN, Agent
260 President Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....J. A. MORRIS, Agent
1641 Thames Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....F. NELSON, Agent
140 South Third Street
MOBILE, Ala.....J. W. ENGLAND, Agent
60½ Saint Michael Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....CHAS. F. BULLOCK, Agent
510 Trust Building
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....R. M. WILSON, Agent
332 Proctor Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....A. BOGE, Agent
21 West Bay Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....FRANK D. WHITE, Agent
123 West Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....LEAN W. MENDELL, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....CHAS. OGRAIN, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PORTLAND, Me.....J. VALLE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....R. BELL, Agent
669 Eddy Street

MARINE FIREMEN'S, OILERS' AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND GULF.

Headquarters:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....OSCAR CARLSON, Secretary
70 South St. Phone John 975 and 976
Branches:
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JAMES LYNCH, Agent
164 Eleventh Avenue
BROOKLYN, N. Y.....E. DITTMER, Agent
296 Van Brunt Street
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.....FRANK LIBBY, Agent
138 South Second Street
BALTIMORE, Md.....LAWRENCE GILL, Agent
804 South Broadway
NEWPORT NEWS, Va.....SAMUEL PORTER, Agent
2212 West Avenue
PORT ARTHUR, Tex.....H. LONDEMA, Agent
332½ Proctor Street
GALVESTON, Tex.....HARRY BROWN, Agent
321½ Twentieth Street
BOSTON, Mass.....JOHN OLSEN, Agent
3 Long Wharf
NORFOLK, Va.....PETER McKILLOP, Agent
513 East Main Street
NEW ORLEANS, La.....DAN LYONS, Agent
600 Chartres Street
MOBILE, Ala.....JAMES GRACE, Agent
11½ St. Francis Street
PROVIDENCE, R. I.....C. BLAKNEY, Agent
489 Eddy Street
PORTLAND, Me.....A. ANDRADE, Agent
5 Exchange Street
SAVANNAH, Ga.....GEO. McMURDO, Agent
523 East Bay Street
JACKSONVILLE, Fla.....J. T. HADAWAY, Agent
437 East Bay Street
PENSACOLA, Fla.....PATRICK KEANE, Agent
707 South Palafox Street
CHARLESTON, S. C.....J. T. ROBINSON, Agent
49 Market Street

FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE ATLANTIC

Headquarters:
WM. H. BROWN, Secretary.
BOSTON, Mass.....202 Atlantic Avenue
Branches:
GLOUCESTER, Mass.....NEWMAN SHEA, Agent
209 Main Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.....JOHN R. FOLAN, Agent
111 South Street
PROVINCETOWN, Mass.....F. L. RHODERICK, Agent
Commercial Street
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.....H. F. McGARRIGEL, Agent
700 North Rhode Island Avenue
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.....C. E. DOUCETT, Agent
91 North Second Street

BOATMEN'S BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION

H. ESKIN, Secretary
HOBOKEN, N. J.....816 River Street

(Continued on Page 11)

The Seamen's Journal

Published weekly at San Francisco
BY THE
SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC
Established in 1887

PAUL SCHARRENBERG..... Editor
S. A. SILVER.....Business Manager

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One year, by mail - $3.00 | Six months - - - $1.50
Advertising Rates on Application.
Business and Editorial Office, Martime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay St., San Francisco. Telephone Kearny 2228.

Changes in advertisements must be in by Saturday noon of each week.

To insure a prompt reply, correspondents should address all communications of a business nature to the Business Manager.

Entered at the San Francisco Postoffice as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized September 7, 1918.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications from seafaring readers will be published in the JOURNAL, provided they are of general interest, brief, legible, written on one side only of the paper, and accompanied by the writer's name and address. The JOURNAL is not responsible for the expressions of correspondents, nor for the return of manuscript.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1920.

OWNERS AND SEAMEN TO MEET.

Last week's JOURNAL contained an editorial résumé of the seamen's international struggle for the forty-eight hour week.

During the week information has come to hand of further developments in the contest.

The American correspondent of the International Labor Office (functioning under the auspices of the League of Nations) has been officially advised that the Joint Maritime Commission of the International Labor Organization, composed of five representatives of shipowners, five representatives of seamen's organizations, and two members of the Governing Body of the International Labor Office, which has been sitting in Geneva, Switzerland, has decided to call an international conference of representatives of shipowners and seamen to discuss the question of the limitation of hours of work in maritime occupations.

So far as the record shows this will be the first international labor conference composed entirely of representatives of employers and employees in the history of the labor movement.

It will be recalled that the International Labor Conference, held in Washington in 1919, adopted a draft convention limiting the hours of work in industrial undertakings to 8 in the day and 48 in the week. This convention, however, set forth that the provisions relative to transport by sea and on inland waterways should be determined by a special conference dealing with employment at sea and on inland waterways. The special conference was held in Genoa in June, 1920, but, as readers of the JOURNAL already know, the question of limitation of hours of work was left somewhat in suspense.

The Genoa conference failed to adopt any draft convention on this subject, although it did adopt two recommendations. The first provided that the conference recommend to the members of the International Labor Organization that they enact legislation limiting the hours of work of all workers in the fishing industry to the direction of eight in the day and 48 in the week. The second contained practically the same provisions applied to workers employed in inland navigation.

The organization of the Joint Maritime Commission was decided upon by the governing body of the International Labor Office during its session in London in March, 1920. It consists of twelve members, five of which are shipowners appointed by the shipowners' group at the Genoa conference, five representing seamen, appointed by the seamen's group of the Genoa Conference, and two members chosen by the governing body of the International Labor Office. The Commission meets when convened by the president of the governing body, who presides over its sittings.

The shipowners on the Commission are Mr. Emile Deckers (Belgium), secretary of the Union of Belgian Shipowners; Mr. Keijero Hori (Japan), president of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha; Mr. Cuthbert Laws (Great Britain), of the Shipping Federation, Ltd.; Mr. O. A. Nordberg (Sweden), managing director of the Swedish Shipowners' Association; and Mr. Thomas Robb (Canada), director of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The seamen are Mr. Johan Doring (Germany), of the Union of German Transport Workers; Captain Giuseppe Giuletti (Italy), secretary of the Italian Seamen's Federation; Mr. Oscar Nilsen (Norway), general secretary of the Norwegian Sailors and Firemen's Union; Mr. Ange Rivelli (France), secretary general of the National Federation of Marine Trade Unions; and Mr. J. Havelock Wilson, M. P. (Great Britain), president of the National Sailors and Firemen's Union.

The composition of the Commission was completed during the fifth session of the governing body by the appointment of two of its members, Mr. Robert Pinot, French representative of the employers, and Mr. Jan Oudegeest, Dutch representative of workers.

It is to be regretted that one of the representatives of the seamen, Mr. Doring of Germany, is not a seaman but a longshoreman; also, that Mr. Jan Oudegeest, representative of the workers appointed by the governing body of the International Labor Office, is not a seaman but a railroad man.

The date for the international conference of representatives of shipowners and seamen has not been fixed, but the employers' and employes' representatives on the Joint Maritime Commission have already unanimously decided that M. Albert Thomas, director of the International Labor Office, should preside over the conference when it does meet.

It is significant and highly encouraging that a meeting such as outlined above has been definitely agreed to. Whatever may be the net result of such a conference the seamen's world-wide movement for the shorter workday is bound to make progress.

America, of course, is not a member of the League of Nations, and is therefore not affiliated with the International Labor Office. It is likely, however, that the organized seamen and ship operators of America will be invited to send delegates. For in all questions of this character the attitude of American interests, both shipowners and seamen, is a vital if not a determining factor.

AN INSPIRING INTERVIEW.

The current issue of Il Lavoratore del Mare, official paper of the Italian Seamen's Federation, contains the substance of an interesting interview between the editor of a Turin daily and Commander Rizzo, director and general manager of the Society "Garibaldi." This society, it will be recalled, was organized by the Italian Seamen's Federation to acquire and operate merchant vessels.

A synoptic translation of the interview follows:

Luigi Rizzo is the Director of the Garibaldi Co-operative Society. His efforts and his activity may be comprehended in the following words: "The ships to the workers of the sea." . . . "You want a definition of the 'Garibaldi'," says the Commander. "It is a sour fruit, to be sure. A fruit which must mature. But it will mature."

It is the only real co-operative society among all seafaring people; the only one with ships plying over the seas. It has partners: 40,000. This society intends to raise its capital to two hundred millions. It has at present five ships of an aggregate tonnage of 40,000 tons.

The "Garibaldi" has emanated from the Italian Seamen's Federation. Perfect discipline is kept on board of the Society's ships. Steamers for the transportation of passengers will soon be installed.

The shipowners are not favorably inclined toward the development of this Society, but the latter will hold its own.

Anarchistic influence is not feared, this Society's motto being: "Construction," not Destruction.

The ships of the "Garibaldi" will provoke enthusiasm, all over the world, in the hearts of the workers of the sea. Italy, however, needs a large mercantile marine for the benefit of many, not of few. For the advantage of all those who have suffered through the war, who still suffer in times of peace, but not for the advantage of those few who still dominate with their egoism our national life.

Thus spoke Commander Rizzo, the Director of the Co-operative Society "Garibaldi."

PRODUCTION VS. CONSUMPTION

It is not over-production but rather under-consumption that is causing certain lines of industry in America to close down.

The soundness of this assertion may be questioned but cannot be disproved.

It is cheap labor at home and abroad, more than any other fact, that most endangers our institutions; the mistake of the wealthy is that they consider their direct interest in the cheap labor they hire, and not their direct interest in the dearer laborer who buys what they wish to sell.

The number of laborers who can buy must be large, or many of those who produce to sell will have nothing to do. Buyers are as important as sellers, and those who buy are those who have something to pay.

Causes that penetrate deep down into the foundation upon which rest institutions, governments, and various national peculiarities, must be established, or perhaps rather be permitted to act from their natural impulse, if we are to permanently improve the wage system.

The most of mankind think they must have whatever they have been in the habit of having; there is more resistance in this fact than in any other short of absolute natural necessities. The fact that men must eat or starve, can not be changed at all. The fact that they must eat certain things in certain ways, or at particular times, can be changed, but only very gradually.

James Hole says: "Inferior habits of living are as much a cause as they are a result of low wages."

John Stuart Mill says: "No remedies for low wages have the smallest chance of being efficacious, which do not operate on and through the minds and habits of the people."

McCulloch, in his political economy, says: "That the lowering of the opinions of the laboring class with respect to the mode in which they should live is perhaps the most serious of all evils that can befall them. Let them once become contented with a lower species of food and an inferior standard of comfort, and they may bid a long adieu to anything better."

Amasa Walker, in his Science of Wealth, says: "That the standard of wages varies according to the expenses of subsistence in different countries, and the condition in which the laboring classes are willing to live."

To epitomize the sayings of these noted thinkers:

Hovel life gives hovel wages;

Shabby clothes give shabby wages;

Good clothes, good eating, good homes, mean good wages!

It is under-consumption and not over-production that is responsible for periods of industrial depression.

California's Industrial Accident Commission has completed the tabulation of industrial injuries occurring in the State during the year 1919. There were 586 deaths, 1714 permanent injuries and 106,647 temporary injuries. It is gratifying to note a substantial decrease in the death list for 1919 when compared to the totals for 1916 (657), 1917 (626) and 1918 (706). Commissioner Will French, formerly editor of the San Franciscco Labor Clarion, has specialized in the "Safety First" activities of the Accident Commission and to him is due the lion share of the credit for reducing the death rate in California industries.

The Marine Cooks and Stewards' Association of the Pacific Coast has commenced building operations on the property recently acquired by that society on Clay street, San Francisco. The plans call for a modern three-story building. The Sailors' Union of the Pacific will shortly vote on the acquisition of certain real estate at Seattle. The latter union will also vote on the question of erecting a modern building on the property previously purchased at San Pedro, California.

The question has been asked in a marine publication: How do the sailors spend all their idle time at sea under the three-watch system? The answer is: Men content with working twelve hours a day will be content with low wages, because the excess of time devoted to labor will unfit them for study and inspirations that create new wants. Men working eight hours out of 24 have the time for self-education and the opportunity to fit themselves for greater and better things in life.

Man's first duty is to organize.

THE DEMANDS FOR OIL

Admiral Benson Addresses American Petroleum Institute on the Requirements of the Merchant Marine

Gentlemen:—It is indeed a pleasure to have the opportunity of addressing you this evening on a subject which I consider vitally affects the successful development and operation of our American Merchant Marine, i. e., the American Petroleum Industry as it relates to the fuel and lubricants necessary for the propulsion of our enormous fleet.

For the reason that conditions are changing so rapidly in the privately owned American shipping, accurate data is not available as to the fuel oil requirements of such shipping, and I have taken the liberty of interpreting the subject which I have been asked to discuss this evening, as "The Demands of the Shipping Board for Oil."

I find that comparatively little is generally known of our enormous requirements of fuel oil and believe that a brief resume of the efforts of the Shipping Board to purchase its fuel oil requirements and of the problems which have confronted us in this respect during recent years is essential to full appreciation of the extent to which the interests of the Shipping Board and of the American Petroleum Industry are interwoven.

For the year 1919, our requirements of fuel oil amounted to approximately 18,000,000 barrels, for the year 1920, 30,000,000 barrels, and for the year 1921, we estimate our requirements will amount to approximately 40,000,000 barrels. Our first fuel oil contracts were made to cover the period from April, 1919, to April, 1920, and amounted to 12,000,000 barrels. The contracts covered the principal Gulf and North Atlantic ports and ranged in price from 74c to $1.15 per barrel. The balance of our requirements were purchased in the open market at from seventy-five to one hundred per cent. in excess of the contract prices.

During the early months of 1920, our fuel oil contractors experienced great difficulty in supplying the contract quantities of fuel oil, which was also very scarce in the open market, our contractors reporting that this was due to unsettled political conditions in Mexico and shortage of tank steamers. In the face of these condition, our failure to receive acceptable bids in February, 1920, was to be expected. However, we succeeded during March, 1920, in contracting for our requirements of fuel oil at the principal North Atlantic and Gulf coast ports for a six months' period, at prices ranging from $1.34 per barrel to $2.07 per barrel, an increase of over one hundred per cent. as compared with our 1919 contracts.

We have recently contracted to purchase over 30,000,000 barrels of fuel oil during the period October, 1920, to October, 1921, on the Atlantic and Gulf Coast, at prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.30 per barrel. We have never been successful in our efforts to contract for our fuel oil requirements on the Pacific Coast, but, by virtue of our agreement to purchase from the United States Department of the Interior all of the Government's royalty crude oil in the States of Wyoming and California, we have been enabled to secure our requirements of fuel oil on the Pacific Coast since June, 1920, in exchange for the royalty oil from the Salt Creek, Wyoming, fields. It is the Board's intention to conclude similar arrangements with respect to the royalty oil in the State of California. With reference to our fuel oil requirements in the Pacific, you may be interested to know that of the 140 Shipping Board vessels operating from the Pacific Coast ports, only one burns coal as fuel.

The Shipping Board, though rather late in launching its foreign bunker station program, has diligently pursued the policy of creating fuel oil bunker stations at strategic ports on established trade routes. In October, 1919, we completed our first foreign bunker station on Hassel Island, St. Thomas, V. I. This station has a storage capacity of 110,000 barrels and will shortly be increased to 220,000 barrels. The Board has also constructed fuel oil stations at Honolulu, which has a storage capacity of 110,000 barrels, and at Manila, which has a storage capacity of 165,000 barrels, and has also provided floating storage at Ponta Delgada, Azores, for 22,000 barrels of fuel oil. In addition to these stations, we have contracted with various oil companies to receive, store and redeliver fuel oil for our account at Shanghai, Iquique, Rio de Janeiro, Bizerta, Brest, Genoa, Savona and Hamburg. These stations are supplied with fuel oil purchased under our contracts and transported in Shipping Board tank steamers, and their creation has enabled the Board to supply seventy-five per cent. of its foreign fuel oil requirements at a saving of millions of dollars per annum. The establishment of these stations has in each instance had the effect of reducing the price of fuel oil on the open market to a marked degree, thereby benefiting shipping in general.

We have for over a year suffered seriously from the effects of insufficient tank steamers with which to transport our constantly increasing requirements of fuel oil and the tank steamer

(Continued on Page 11.)

OFFICIAL

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 22, 1920.

Regular weekly meeting came to order at 7 p. m., Ed. Andersen presiding. Secretary reported shipping slack; members ashore plentiful.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary pro tem.

Maritime Hall Bldg., 59 Clay Street. Phone Kearny 2228.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Members at San Francisco must not ship themselves to join vessels at Agencies. Those that do will be required to conform to Shipping Rules of Agencies.

This rule adopted at regular meeting, San Francisco, Cal., August 30, 1920.

ED. ROSENBERG,
Secretary, p. t.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 15, 1920.

Shipping very dull; prospects uncertain.

R. TOWNSEND, Agent.

153 Cordova St. W. P. O. Box 571. Phone Seymour 8703.

Tacoma Agency, Nov. 15, 1920.

Shipping dull.

H. L. PETTERSON, Agent.

2016 North 30th Street. Phone Main 808.

Seattle Agency, Nov. 15, 1920.

Shipping dull.

P. B. GILL, Agent.

84 Seneca Street. P. O. Box 65. Phone Main 4403.

Aberdeen Agency, Nov. 15, 1920.

Shipping dull.

CHAS. OLESEN, Agent.

P. O. Box 280. Phone Main 557.

Portland Agency, Nov. 15, 1920.

Shipping dull; prospects uncertain.

JACK ROSEN, Agent.

88½ Third Street. Phone Main 6013.

San Pedro Agency, Nov. 15, 1920.

Shipping medium.

HARRY OHLSEN, Agent.

128½ Sepulveda Bldg., Sixth St. P. O. Box 67. Phone 137-R.

Honolulu Agency, Nov. 15, 1920.

Shipping slack; prospects uncertain.

JOSEPH FALTUS, Agent.

P. O. Box 314. Phone 1930.

MARINE COOKS' AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 17, 1920.

Shipping slack. Plenty of members ashore. Balloting on officers for the ensuing term and delegates to the I. S. U. of A. Convention was proceeded with. The amendment to Art. XI, Sec. 1, was declared carried.

EUGENE STEIDLE, Secretary.

No. 42 Market Street. Phone Kearny 5955.

Seattle Agency, Nov. 11, 1920.

Shipping slow. Not many members ashore. Balloted on officers for ensuing term and delegates to the I. S. U. of A. Convention.

LEONARD NORKGAUER, Agent.

Grand Trunk Dock. Room No. 203. P. O. Box 214. Phone Main 2233.

San Pedro Agency, Nov. 11, 1920.

Shipping medium. Shortage of members for steam schooners. Balloted for officers for the ensuing term and delegates to the I. S. U. of A. Convention.

JOSEPH MACK, Agent.

No. 613 Beacon Street. P. O. Box 54. Phone Sunset 547-W.

DIED.

John William Leinen, No. 1043, a native of Russia, age 50. Died at San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 20, 1920.

William Scrivens, No. 1310, a native of England, age 42. Died at Seattle, Wash., Nov. 12, 1920.

The Russian three-masted auxiliary schooner "Avassa," owned by Karaeff Brothers, Siberian fur traders, was wrecked on the Kamchatka coast, Siberia, the latter part of October, according to a message received at Nome, Alaska.

ON THE ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS

Contributed by the Atlantic and Gulf Seamen's Unions

SEA LAWS FOR SEAMEN

The organized seamen on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts have long been perplexed over the adoption of a suitable manual of sea laws and sea logic that might be used as a standard and dependable guide and safe interpreter amid the confused maze of ambiguous sea doctrines, ancient, modern and prehistoric, which still encumber the Revised Statutes.

Numerous attempts to epitomize the maritime laws for the special enlightenment of seafaring men have from time to time been made, and various so-styled "Seamen's Hand Books," summaries, digests, synopses, abstracts, etc., of marine laws have been printetd and foisted upon confiding seamen only to leave them further adrift and more doubtful than before.

In one essential respect all these productions are alike. Written by lawyers or published by legal "aid" societies, they all lack sea-sense and abound with non-sense; they all evince more regard for the law than concern for those to be affected thereby.

These law treatises remind us very strongly of the many current manuals on practical seamanship—"simplified." The only sailor who can understand and interpret their meanings is the one who doesn't need instruction. In the hands of a novice they are very apt—like Johnson's dictionary—to become "jammed in the sheave hole."

In view of the prevailing indecision over a reliable reference work, we respectfully and cheerfully commend to the use and diligent study of all interested or concerned—masters, officers, owners and attorneys, as well as seamen—Mr. Walter Macarthur's very complete and admirably practical and up-to-date codification and exposition of the Maritime Laws, contained in two splendidly prepared and patiently collated volumes, "The Seaman's Contract" and "Navigation Laws of the United States."

These books are adopted as standard works by the International Seamen's Union of America. They have been prepared and published by one of the oldest, best known and most generally esteemed members of that organization. They are not mere vest pocket text-books or superficial glossaries of maritime law, but a complete and thorough explanation, comparison and compilation of all present and pre-existing marine laws, with a most comprehensive and instructive introduction, explanatory observations, chronological tables and complete indexes.

All Congressional legislation relating to seamen, from the foundation of our Government down to the end of 1918, are contained in these volumes, and with the recent appendix accompanying them, containing the text of the Jones Merchant Marine Act in so far as it relates to seamen, the entire scope of seamen's laws has been covered, and the books, therefore, contain the last word spoken by Congress on this subject down to and including today.

The maritime laws relating to seamen have never before been collated or chronologically arranged or classified in their proper relation to one another; they have always hitherto been submerged, obscured or scattered promiscuously through the general statutes, because on account of their unpopularity no one before was ever sufficiently interested to go to the labor, trouble and expense of digging them out and arranging them in orderly and regular sequence.

To quote from Mr. Macarthur's admirable preface to "The Seaman's Contract":

"The sections of the Revised Statutes here reproduced number two hundred and eleven, which were originally contained in forty-three Acts of Congress, enacted during the period 1790-1873.

"The amending and original Acts passed between 1874 and 1918 number fifty-seven. The total number of enactments reproduced is three hundred and eighteen.

"The compilation of these enactments has necessitated a reference to thirty-six volumes of the Statutes at Large in which they were originally published.

"The present work is, in effect, a reproduction of the Revised Statutes and the Statutes at Large, to the extent embraced by its title."

In the preparation of the two volumes before us Comrade Macarthur has diligently, methodically and conscientiously canvassed, compiled and systematically annotated the entire range of maritime laws, ancient and modern, in so far as they relate to the personnel of ships.

While in his very interesting and instructive introduction he carries us back through the dim and bygone ages in a deep and profound, but highly illumined excursion through the fundamental principles and archaic theories of ancient maritime codes, and reviews and discusses them from the standpoint of modern advancement.

All of the statutes included in this work are authoritative, compiled and expounded by a union seaman, himself an authority of note and reputation.

Mr. Macarthur's many years' conscientious and magnificent service to the Seamen's Unions as editor of THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL will never be forgotten by the organized seamen of America, nor forgiven by the reactionary shipmongers and their now happily banished parasites, the blood-sucking crimps.

Every ship in the merchant marine should carry a library as well as a slop chest, and no library should be considered complete without half a dozen sets of Mr. Macarthur's invaluable reference works for the general instruction of officers and crew alike.

Every Union office should also be supplied with copies for the use of our agents and delegates, and every wide-awake seaman who wants to be abreast of the times and go to sea prepared for eventualities, should be sure and pack a copy with supplements in his suitcase as a "very present help in time of trouble." J. H. W.

BEACHED AND BUNCOED

The complaint of Comrade Theobold Albertyn, A. B., a member of the colored branch of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, has just come to our table.

Albertyn's complaint involves charges of gross official neglect of a sick and disabled seaman in a foreign port, and unlawful sequestration of wages by the American consul at Havana, Cuba.

Albertyn arrived in Havana in the U. S. Shipping Board steamship "Suwild," under charter to the New York and Cuba Mail S. S. Co. (the Ward Line).

When the ship reached Havana he was suffering from an inflammation of the eyes and was sent to a hospital where he was detained six weeks under treatment.

Before entering the hospital Albertyn was informed by the captain that his wages would be left with the consul pending his recovery. Upon making application for his wages at the Consulate, however, he was told his wages would be paid in New York. The consul further tried to persuade him to ship workaway to New Orleans; but as New Orleans is very much farther from New York by water than Havana, Albertyn refused to comply, at the same time pointing out that in case he consented he would arrive in New Orleans destitute, whereas if the consul's statements were true he would have money to command on arrival at New York.

The consul was obdurate, however, and refused to send him home.

After three Ward Line ships had refused him a passage to New York, Albertyn was left to his fate and remained over a month on the beach in Havana. Finally, in despair he stowed away in a steamer bound to New Orleans and landed there destitute and half blind.

Some of our colored members there took compassion on him, however, and opened a tarpaulin muster to raise money to pay Albertyn's fare to New York.

Upon arriving at New York, Albertyn called at the U. S. Shipping Commissioner's office to collect his wages. But there he was shown an official entry copied from the log of the "Suwild," declaring that his wages had been lawfully deposited with the American consul at Havana by the master of that ship.

That was five weeks ago, and three separate communications sent by the U. S. Shipping Commissioner to the consul at Havana in respect to Albertyn's wages have so far elicited no response.

Perhaps an official communication to the State Department might bring better results, unless all our consuls are appointed by Tammany Hall. J. H. W.

MUTINY OR ABANDONMENT?

The trial by jury of thirty Spanish firemen, formerly belonging to the crew of the American steamship "Martha Washington" on a charge of mutiny, has furnished the most engrossing topic of discussion among waterfront denizens of New York during the past week.

The trial of the case which occupied three days in the criminal department of the Federal Court, resulted in a verdict of acquittal of all the firemen involved except two. The verdict was returned Monday evening, Nov. 1, after about three quarters of an hour deliberation by the jury.

The facts in this case are somewhat peculiar and deserve special study by those interested in the rights of seamen, the duties of masters or the interpretation of maritime laws. Briefly stated the contentions in the case are these:

The "Martha Washington" carried an entire Spanish crew. Of 56 men in the engineers' department, only the three leading firemen understood enough English to take orders. In the course of her voyage the ship called at Montevideo for fuel. When the ship was nearly ready to depart, at about 11:30 in the forenoon, one of the firemen named Perez came on board under the influence of liquor, and carrying a bottle of liquid inspiration in his hand. So far the witnesses agree in their testimony. But beyond that point there arises a serious divergence in the trend of evidence which has led to a tumult of legal squabbling and resulted in a mixed verdict.

The alleged mutineers all testified that the Captain, assisted by the master at arms, hustled the intoxicated fireman ashore and hauled up the gangway ladder, intentionally abandoning him. This charge is stoutly denied by the Captain, and his testimony on this point is supported by other witnesses among the officers. Moreover, no one, even among the firemen, has testified on this important point at all except from hearsay.

When the ship was clear and ready to let go, as it appears from all the evidence submitted, Perez, standing on the dock, shouted to his comrades, in Spanish, that he was being wilfully abandoned by the master. Whereupon the firemen on watch demanded that he be taken on board before leaving the dock, and in this demand they were joined by a number of those in the other watches.

This demand was refused by the master and in consequence 39 of the firemen accused of mutiny went on strike.

After a delay of fifteen or twenty minutes the ship was hauled astream by two tugs, and anchored. A "mutiny" flag was then hoisted, and eventually the rebellious firemen were taken ashore in a police launch and left there destitute, though some of their effects were afterward sent to them. Thirty of the thirty-nine stranded seamen were afterwards sent to New York as passengers in the S. S. "Huron" and upon arrival were placed under arrest.

These men were afterwards indicted by the Federal Grand Jury, and held for trial. Some of them secured bail after remaining in jail for various periods. The majority being friendless, however, remained in jail from thirty to sixty days. The Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders' Union furnished bail for a number of the men who were members, but the majority of them were non-union men.

Of the two men convicted of mutiny, one was discharged under suspension of sentence, having already served sixty days' imprisonment in default of bail, and the other, who had been out on bail was sentenced to fifty days' imprisonment in the county jail.

Inasmuch as the jury tempered their verdict with a recommendation to clemency, efforts are now being made by the Firemen's Union and attorneys to secure a commutation or suspension of sentence in this case also.

Such in brief are the principal facts in the case and the results of the trial. The contentions set up, and the issues involved in the arguments, however, deserve serious consideration. All points considered, both sides seem to have been measurably culpable. The master through arrogance, the seamen through ignorance. But the master was the first and final offender against the law, and the verdict was a judicial compromise based on false premises and misconceptions. To begin with, the master and operators of the "Martha Washington" deliberately violated the law by ignoring the language clause of the Seamen's Act in signing on an entire crew of foreigners. Their action in this respect was diametrically opposed to the express policy of the U. S. Shipping Board as laid down by Admiral Benson, "American citizens first," and the results might have been expected under such conditions. According to the evidence the entire crew, fore and aft, and up and down, except officers, were Spaniards; if they had only hoisted the Spanish ensign the outfit would have been complete.

Since the ship is owned by the Shipping Board, and operated by the Munson Line, we believe American policies should go with the flag. Another significant fact is that the trial of this case, involving thirty defendants and occupying three days, has been practically suppressed in the New York papers although the press was represented in court. The master admits having pushed the intoxicated fireman down the bridge ladder on to the main deck, but denies driving him ashore. Be this as it may, the master committed a grave and grievous error either in not keeping the offender on board when he was there, or in abandoning him on the dock minus wages, clothing or identification certificates. The united remonstrance of the crew against such a monstrous act was only natural; one of the firemen who was on watch below even offered to go down and take the fires until the intoxicated member should be fit for duty if the master would only take him aboard. The master, however, refused to assent to this proposal, evidently feeling, in his fit of temper, that he could do as he pleased on his own ship. For this act of reckless arrogance the master should have been punished.

Again in beaching the objectors after the ship had anchored astream, the master having found time to engage substitute firemen must also have had time to leave the wages and papers of the men he was deserting with the American consul, which he failed to do. A report to the consul might have resulted in an official investigation which might have become awkward for the self-sufficient master mariner. It would have caused delay, and possibly have placed him at a disadvantage in a port where the crew understood the prevailing language and he did not. In the United States where neither the language nor the facts were understood, he would have a better chance to impress his views upon the court. Thus, probably reasoned the subtle-minded skipper, and he was as wise as a serpent in his scheming. Then, upon their arrival in the United States, as the wily skipper had probably anticipated and prearranged, the helpless defendants were summarily arrested on a charge of mutiny, alleged to have been committed in violation of the Act of Congress dated April 30, 1790, as amended, re-amended and then amended some more by subsequent acts, and about as applicable to the incidents in this case as the archaic and immutable laws of the Medes and Persians, which "change not."

If we can read English the statute in question, under which these firemen were held, applies to, and provides penalties for mutinous acts committed upon "the high seas, or other waters within the Admiralty and Maritime Jurisdiction of the United States." The revolt in question did not occur "on the high seas," and Montevideo is not "within the Admiralty and Maritime Jurisdiction of the United States." We therefore maintain that the crew was not lawfully indicted, nor legally charged or tried. Throughout the whole dismal proceedings, in our opinion, the statutes have been misapplied, appropriate laws covering the matters at issue have been held in contempt by the master and prosecutor alike, and specifically ignored by the Court in charging the jury or in considering the pleadings of Counsel for the defense. The ancient doctrines of maritime autocracy are as firmly imbedded in the judicial mind as prehistoric salamanders in virgin rock. Courts in Admiralty ofttimes seem mentally immovable, they forget nothing old, learn nothing that is new. Wise in the interpretation of ancient cryptograms they appear dense in the application of modern laws to passing incidents.

The jury in this case was eminently fair and conscientious as well as intelligent and progressive. The Court was just but bigoted. The prosecution was admittedly unfair to the defendants but felt constrained to uphold ancient dogmas in defense of private interests.

The accused seamen were placed at a serious disadvantage at both ends of the controversy. At Montevideo, because they were destitute and had no one to intercede for them. In New York, because they were obliged to testify through an interpreter, and because being unnaturalized aliens they were, more or less, the victims of prejudice. The Captain's defense was supported by the testimony of both deck and engineer officers, while witnesses for the crew could not be found. The notable absence of witnesses for the seamen may be in a measure accounted for by the fact, that the moment they were taken ashore in the police launch at Montevideo, their lockers were broken into and rifled by those remaining aboard, and goods and effects estimated in value at $1200 stolen from them, for which cause suit has already been commenced against the operators of the ship for recovery of the same.

After the trial we had the privilege of

(Continued on Page 11)

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

(By Laurence Todd)

On the morning of the meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, ten days after the election, the Social Action Department of the National Welfare Council issued a statement which should serve to stimulate the officers of the A. F. of L. to constructive efforts to meet the nation-wide drive by employers against the labor movement. It read:

"The 'open shop' drive of certain groups of American employers is becoming so strong that it threatens not only the welfare of the wage earners, but the whole structure of industrial peace and order. Employers sometimes favor the 'open shop' because they do not want to be limited in the employment of men to union members. But the present drive is not of that kind. The evidence shows that in its organized form it is not merely against the 'closed shop,' but against unionism itself and particularly against collective bargaining. Of what avail is it for workers to be permitted by their employers to become members of unions, if the employers will not deal with the unions? The workers might as well join golf clubs as labor unions if the present 'open shop' campaign is successful.

"The 'open shop' drive masks under such names as 'The American Plan,' and hides behind the pretense of American freedom. Yet its real purpose is to destroy all effective labor unions, and thus subject the working people to the complete domination of the employers. Should it succeed in the measure that its proponents hope, it will thrust far into the ranks of the underpaid the body of American working people.

"The Bishops of the National Catholic War Council who issued the program of Social Reconstruction said: 'It is to be hoped that the right of labor to organize and deal with employers through representatives will never again be called into question by any considerable group of employers.' The Archbishops and Bishops of the United States in their pastoral letter proclaimed again 'the right of the workers to form and maintain the kind of organization that is necessary and that will be most effectual in securing their welfare.'

"During the war the National War Labor Board recognized a genuine kind of 'open shop,' one which assured the non-union man freedom and the members of the union the right of collective bargaining. That is not the kind of 'open shop' for which the drive is now being made.

"The unions were necessary during the war when working-people found their labor in great demand. They are still more imperative now, and they must keep their strength and grow. Otherwise we shall see a repetition of the old bad days when the workers were utterly dependent upon their employers.

"There is great danger that the whole nation will be harmed by this campaign of a few groups of strong employers. To aim now at putting into greater subjection the workers in industry is blind and foolhardy. The radical movements and distempers in Europe ought to hold a lesson for the employers of America. And the voice of the American people ought to be raised, in the endeavor to drive this lesson home."

Events of the next week will register the influence of this warning, both upon the labor movement, the employers and the general public, including the fanatical anti-labor forces in Congress. One apparent outcome was a sudden change in the editorial tone of the Washington Post, one of the most virulent of the reactionary organs of the East. It printed this morning an appeal to both labor and capital to be moderate, and to remember that the American people are agreed that trade unions are a worthy institution. It begged labor to take a cut in wages in the right spirit, and it begged capital to be as kind as possible in inflicting the cut. All of its buckets-of-blood manner of talking to the labor movement was suppressed, even though it made its usual point—that invested capital is the soul and center of civilization, and payment of private profits on capital the chief business of the human race.

At the A. F. of L. headquarters to-day there met the National Committee to Organize the Iron and Steel Workers. Representatives of most of the original 24 internationals comprising that Committee were there, or were on the way. M. F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, was on hand, with his usual hostile remarks concerning the men who organized the 250,000 workers who went out on strike a year ago. His effort now is apparently directed toward quieting the demand that another strike be called at the first reduction of wages in the steel industry. Most of the members of the committee are out of sympathy with Tighe because of his failure to co-operate with them in the last strike, and because of his open hostility to Fitzpatrick, Foster and Jay G. Brown, who led the strike. They believe that the Gary attitude, and its temporary triumph in the steel industry, has been the chief factor in creating the present anti-union agitation among big employers, and that until steel is organized there will be no safety for any other industry. However, their immediate action will depend on the willingness of the executive officers of the A. F. of L. to give active and personal aid in getting the steel workers together.

One of the first things which this session of the executive council is expected to accomplish is the formal divorce of the A. F. of L. from the International Federation of Trade Unions. This step was authorized by the Montreal convention, through its adoption of a report hostile to affiliation with the Amsterdam office of the moderate labor movement of the world. Recent developments in Europe indicate that while the American movement is splitting off from the Amsterdam international because of the "radical" character of that body, the movements of labor attached to the Moscow, or Communist international have rejected the Amsterdam central as being "reactionary." The Amsterdam international of labor stands for the policy of restoring peace and establishing democracy in industry, with recognition and friendship for Soviet Russia. The Moscow international demands endorsement of the Communist program of a dictatorship of the proletariat through revolution, rather than socialization of industry through the ballot. And the A. F. of L. executive stands against any socialization of industry and against recognition or friendship with Soviet Russia.

In this connection it is worth noting that Senator Harding and his political advisers have unanimously refused to be led into the trap set for them on the Russian issue by the Palmer-Colby-British entente. They are not stampeded into saying that they are sorry that Mr. Vanderlip of Los Angeles, with his syndicate, has made a contract with the Soviet government to furnish Moscow with one billion dollars' worth of American manufactured goods—chiefly metal products. Even Elihu Root, in a speech to the millionaire women's society which sends socks to Russian ex-aristocrats now refugees in other countries, was careful not to say that we should refuse to trade with or recognize the government headed by Nicolai Lenine.

Harding knows that unemployment is becoming a terrible spectre in this country, and that his one hope of saving his administration will be to find a way of selling American products for money or for goods which America needs. Russia has the money and the raw materials we want. The Vanderlip syndicate has settled that point. Every banker in Wall Street can tell Harding that there is no other market in Europe that offers a chance for the resumption of industries now closing down in all parts of the United States. Harding can add two and two. So can the scores of central labor bodies that have urged the Wilson administration, though in vain, to permit trade with Russia to be resumed. It is probable that the British blockade, and the Palmer-Colby-British barrage of bunk concerning Russia will continue until Harding takes office.

Fear of the political and industrial effects of widespread unemployment is already taking the edge off the pleasure the Republicans have taken in the election returns. They wonder how they are going to meet the wage workers' demands for a living wage and steady work. Until the industrial depression is past, there will be no security for any political party or faction in power. For that reason, the Harding administration will probably have no dealings, in public, with the proposed National Open Shop Federation, which is being promoted by the Associated Employers of Indianapolis, and with which hundreds of local, State and National associations of employers and chambers of commerce are declaring their agreement.

The incomplete list of organizations "which are interested in promoting the American Plan or open shop in industrial relations," as their official circular states it, is an amazing document. It names the American Defense Society, National Erectors' Association, National Association of Manufacturers, Inter-Racial Council, National Security League, National Industrial Council, American Service League, Railway Executives' Advisory Committee, Conference Committee on National Preparedness, and many other of the "patriotic" and "100 per cent. loyal" masqueraders of organized industrial oppression in this country.

Demand the Union Label.

THE DEMANDS FOR OIL

(Continued from Page 7)

fleets of the established oil companies were totally inadequate to meet the demand. A large number of our tank steamers in order to keep them fully employed were chartered to private companies before the growing demands of the Merchant Marine created such a shortage in tank steamers and they were thus beyond our control during a considerable period. This condition, I am glad to say, has been rapidly corrected and early in the year 1921 we will have at our command sufficient tank steamers to enable us to expand our bunker station program and eliminate the purchase of oil on the open market, which will result in further enormous savings

Lubricating oils also play an important part in ship operation and our requirements of this product now amount to approximately 4,000,000 gallons per annum. Our first contracts for lubricating oils were made in October, 1919, for all domestic ports for one year, at prices substantially fifty per cent. below the prevailing market and we have recently executed contracts for another year.

I have discussed this matter in considerable detail, desiring that you leaders in the American Petroleum Industry should have an intimate knowledge of our requirements and the policy which we are pursuing to secure the necessary supplies of fuel oil and lubricating oils, in the hope and belief that we may have your sympathetic co-operation to the end that our efforts to upbuild the American Merchant Marine may be lastingly successful.

In conclusion, may I impress upon you with all the earnestness at my command, that we are now facing the most unrelenting and stifling competition of nations trained in all the fine points of ship operation. One of our greatest advantages lies in the fact that about seventy-five per cent. of our entire fleet burns oil for fuel, as compared with about fifteen per cent. for all foreign shipping. This advantage cannot be realized to the fullest extent unless the Shipping Board and the American Merchant Marine as a whole can be assured of an adequate supply of fuel oil not only now, but of more importance, in the future as well, at reasonable prices. To this end, I have no hesitancy in appealing for a continuance of that support which the American Petroleum Industry has so patriotically tendered in the past.

ATLANTIC COAST AND GULF

(Continued from Page 9)

listening in at a conversation between one of the jurymen and counsel for the defense, at which the U. S. District Attorney, his assistant, and a newspaper reporter were also present.

According to the statements of this gentleman, who appeared entirely fair-minded and sympathetic, the jury had been deeply impressed by the arguments of counsel for the defense. They felt, he said, that under similar circumstances they would have acted precisely as the crew of the "Martha Washington" had done in defense of an abandoned shipmate. They also realized, he added, that the crew had a perfectly legal right to leave the ship in a safe port, taking their effects with them. But the jury was not convinced from the evidence adduced that the master had actually forced the drunken fireman ashore. Had that point been established beyond a doubt, he concluded, the verdict would have been for acquittal of all concerned, thus leaving the master open to prosecution under the Statute for abandoning a seaman. A compromise of some sort being, therefore, inevitable, it appears, the two defendants who understood English and should, therefore, be deemed to "know better," had been convicted with a recommendation to clemency to gratify the prosecution and placate the defense.

The United States District Attorney, himself an antique exponent of the old school, maintains in private conversation the same hoary old doctrines which he vociferously upholds in public contention before the court. "Unless," insists this case-hardened disciple of the ancient scepter, "a shipmaster can control his own crew in a foreign port, he might as well lay down and quit!"

Granted, Sir! But his control must be in accordance with the law, and not counter thereto. The master and seamen by their individual signatures affixed to the articles all become parties to the same agreement, and are thereby amenable to the same laws. If the seamen offend by violation of one statute, the master cannot correct them by wilfully violating another for revenge.

If a shipmaster persists in shipping seamen entirely ignorant of our language or traditions in preference to men who understand and appreciate both, how, then, can he expect them to comprehend our laws, which because of their verbosity and ambiguity leave judges and juries, and legal practitioners, often, in doubt and always in dispute?

Owners and operators of American ships should require their masters to engage their crews in strict accordance with American statutes and treat them accordingly under all circumstances. Then there would be no reasonable or justifiable cause for revolt on the part of the crew.

Alien seamen entering the American merchant marine should separate themselves as much as possible from old world ideals, take out their intention papers at once, and take up the study of the English language for the purpose of becoming full fledged American citizens of good repute and legal status.

Until a final decision has been handed down by the United States Supreme Court on the question involved in the "Poughkeepsie" case, we expect that public prosecutors will continue to dig up and try to revive and galvanize into renewed activity the dead and gone, embalmed and buried doctrines found in ancient catacombs for the prosecution of suspected seamen.

J. H. W.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

(Continued from Page 3)

garrulous incompetents. They will also be able to make a shrewd guess at the motives for the campaign of disruption which has been started from the same quarter."

CONGO HAS MISSING LINKS.

A race of pigmies of such primitive characteristic that they are but little removed from ape men have been discovered in the forests of the Belgian Congo, Africa, by Dr. Leonard J. Vandenbergh, a Catholic missionary and anthropologist, who returned to the United States recently from a tour of Central Africa which extended over eleven months. The adults of the newly-discovered tribe average about four feet in height. The creatures are known to other tribes as Mambuti, and are very ape-like in appearance, and the males can move with surprising agility through tree branches.

In a state of universal organization among the workers one meal would be worth all the money in the world. In that event the advantage would lie with the stomach most inured to abstention. In other words, hunger would be the ally, not the enemy, of the workers.

International Seamen's Union of America

(Continued from Page 5)

EASTERN MARINE WORKERS' ASSOCIATION

D. J. GEDDES, President
NEW HAVEN, Conn ..... 13½ Collis Street

LAKE DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 355 North Clark Street
PATRICK O'BRIEN, Secretary
THOS. A. HANSON, Treasurer
Phone State 5175
BUFFALO, N. Y. ..... GEORGE HANSEN, Agent
55 Main Street. Phone Seneca 5588
CLEVELAND, O. ..... E. J. SULLIVAN, Agent
308 W. Superior Avenue. Phone Main 1842
MILWAUKEE, WIS. ..... CHAS. BRADHERING, Agent
162 Reed Street. Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich. ..... K. B. NOLAN, Agent
44 Shelby Street. Phone Cherry 342
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... J. W. ELLISON, Agent
74 Bridge Street
TOLEDO, O. ..... S. R. DYE, Agent
618 Front Street. Phone Bell Navarre 1823
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... J. MURPHY, Agent
122½ Main Street. Phone 890
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... B. DAFOE, Agent
3308 E. 92nd Street. Phone South Chicago 7666
SUPERIOR, Wis. ..... W. EDGEWORTH, Agent
332 Banks Avenue
CONNEAUT, O. ..... W. J. WILSON, Agent
992 Day Street

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS, WATERTENDERS AND COAL PASSERS' UNION OF THE GREAT LAKES

Headquarters:
BUFFALO, N. Y. ..... 71 Main Street
THOS. CONWAY, Secretary
ED. HICKS, Treasurer
Phone Seneca 48
Branches:
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... 74 Bridge Street
Phone 428-W
SUPERIOR, Wis. ..... 332 Banks Avenue
Phone Broad 131
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O. ..... 992 Day Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 3308 E. 92nd Street
Phone South Chicago 7666
TOLEDO, O. ..... 618 Front Street
Phone Bell, Navarre 1823
CLEVELAND, O. ..... 1012 Superior Avenue
Phone Main 866
MILWAUKEE, Wis. ..... 162 Reed Street
Phone South 598
DETROIT, Mich. ..... 44 Shelby Street
Phone Cadillac 543
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 332 N. Michigan Avenue
Phone Central 8460
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... 122½ Main Street
Phone 890 P. J.

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' UNION

Headquarters:
BUFFALO, N. Y. ..... 35 West Eagle Street
J. M. SECORD, Secretary
Telephone Seneca 896
Branches:
CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 355 N. Clark Street
CLEVELAND, O. ..... 308 West Superior Avenue
MILWAUKEE, Wis. ..... 162 Reed Street
ASHTABULA HARBOR, O. ..... 74 Bridge Street
SOUTH CHICAGO, Ill. ..... 3308 E. 92nd Street
CONNEAUT HARBOR, O. ..... 992 Day Street
TOLEDO, O. ..... 618 Front Street
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. ..... 122½ Main Street

PACIFIC DISTRICT

SAILORS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 59 Clay Street
VANCOUVER, B. C. ..... P. O. Box 571
TACOMA, Wash. ..... 2016 N. Thirtieth Street
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 65
ABERDEEN, Wash. ..... P. O. Box 280
PORTLAND, Ore. ..... 88½ Third Street
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... P. O. Box 67
HONOLULU, H. T. ..... P. O. Box 314

MARINE FIREMEN, OILERS AND WATERTENDERS' UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 58 Commercial Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 1016 First Avenue, South
P. O. Box 875
PORTLAND, Ore. ..... Room 21, Ainsworth Building
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... 613 Beacon St., P. O. Box 574

MARINE COOKS AND STEWARDS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 42 Market Street
Branches:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... Room 203, Grand Trunk Dock
P. O. Box 214
SAN PEDRO, Cal. ..... P. O. Box 54

ALASKA FISHERMEN'S UNION

Headquarters:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 49 Clay Street
Agencies:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca St., P. O. Box 43
ASTORIA, Ore. ..... P. O. Box 138

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN'S UNION OF THE PACIFIC

Headquarters:
SEATTLE, Wash. ..... 84 Seneca Street
Branches:
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 49 Clay Street
VANCOUVER (B. C.), Canada ..... 437 Gore Avenue
PRINCE RUPERT (B. C.), Canada ..... P. O. Box 1675
KETCHIKAN, Alaska ..... P. O. Box 201
PETERSBURG ..... Alaska
UNGA ..... Alaska

UNITED FISHERMEN OF THE PACIFIC

ASTORIA, Ore. ..... P. O. Box 138

FERRYBOATMEN'S UNION

C. W. DEAL, Secretary
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ..... 166 Steuart Street
Phone Sutter 2205
STOCKTON, Cal. ..... F. E. McFARLANE, Agent
46 West Main Street

BRITISH COLUMBIA STEWARDS' UNION

FRED WALSH, Secretary
VANCOUVER, B. C. ..... 311 Hastings Street, West
Room 2. Phone Seymour 3976

Labor News

Federal troops have been withdrawn from the strike-bound coal fields in Mingo county, West Virginia. They are replaced by State cossacks. Governor Cornwall asked for the troops. The strike is still on. The strikers declare that the Governor is disappointed that they did not stampede back to the mines when the soldiers appeared.

At a mass meeting of organized teamsters of New York the employers' offer for longer hours and the same rates, as a reply to the workers' demand for wage increases, was booed. The drivers unanimously rejected the bosses' plan and accepted the advice of their officials not to fall into a trap and precipitate a strike. It was decided to remain at work and demand arbitration.

The Washington State Federation of Labor is urging a complete revision of the State workmen's compensation law. A conference has been arranged by the State Industrial Commission, the unionists and employers. The workers say the particular need is for substantial increases in all of the awards provided by the act. The law is nine years old, and they point out that 1911 minimums are now impossible with living costs advancing to nearly 150 per cent.

If Federal employes were unorganized, 9000 of them would not secure wage increases that range from 5 to 50 per cent. Last September the Navy Department made a wage advance for civilian mechanics, as a result of the agitation by these organized workers. Clerical and messenger navy yard employes were not included, and the National Federation of Federal Employes took the matter up with the Navy Department. Local boards were established with results noted above.

Labor is not going back, declared Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, in an interview in a Toronto newspaper. "I would remind those employers who talk of labor accepting lower standards," said the unionist, "that 300,000 from labor's ranks have come back from the world war with terrifying ideals, ideals for which they fought and were prepared to die. Depend upon it, labor is not, nor should it be expected to, going to bear the brunt of falling prices. The ideals of these 300,000 men have permeated the ranks of Canadian labor. Those captains of industry who think labor should be the first to suffer are making a serious mistake."

The Engineering and Mining Journal discovers that "more and more is the social condition of the working man being improved," and that this movement is "good business" and benefits the employer. One reason, it must be admitted,' continues this publication, "is that conditions in [illegible] camps were too unspeakable to continue, and another is that things had to be made more attractive than in similar employment in urban communities in order to hold men in [illegible] places." This journal suggests that "granting a paid vacation of two weeks of the year to wage earners who have worked steadily will help to eradicate class distinction and will tend to remove the idea that they do not belong to the privileged class. It will also, in many cases, make for greater efficiency."

Office Phone Main 2665
Residence Phone Elliott 4271W
Established 1890
COMPASSES ADJUSTED

MARSHALL'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

WE GUARANTEE to teach you until you receive a LICENSE.
WE will save you TIME and MONEY.
435-36 GLOBE BLDG., FIRST AND MADISON
SEATTLE, WASH.

Your Old Friend JOE WEISS

WHITE PALACE SHOE STORE
92 FOURTH ST. nr. MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO
Union-Made Shoes for Men Exclusively
Repairing Done While You Wait
We use only the best leather that the market affords

M. BROWN & SONS

SAN PEDRO
Clothing and Furnishing Goods
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Exclusive Agents Florsheim and Douglas Shoes
And the Best in Oil Clothing and Boots
See them at M. BROWN & SONS
109 SIXTH STREET Opposite Sailors' Union Hall

FRERICHS NAVIGATION SCHOOL

529½ BEACON STREET, SAN PEDRO, CAL.
Seafaring people who desire to take up navigation, San Pedro, situated in the sunny south, is the ideal place. Captain Frerichs has established a Navigation School here and under his undivided personal supervision students will be thoroughly prepared to pass successfully before the United States Steamboat Inspectors.
TERMS ARE REASONABLE

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.
Andersen, E. A. -1410
Andersen, J. F.
Andersen, C. D. -1131
Baskes, Jack
Anderson, Karl A.
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, K. P.
Anderson, H.
Anderson. Jack
Back, Soren
Baumgartel, A.
Backstrom, C.
Barentes, Joe
Ballah, Lee
Berg, H. J.
Berglund, Iver
Barrington, P.
Berger, Aug.
Belmont, Joe
Bergkvist, Axel
Bergesen, Birger
Carlson, M. -906
Carr, A.
Campbell, John R.
Christensen, E. O. H.
Danielsen, O. E.
Degerstedt, Karl
Devich, Joseph
Donovan, J. J.
Donnelly, R. A.
Edin, Gust
Engberg, O. L.
Engvall, J. A.
Felsch, Chas.
Fernandez, Elisio
Fex, Andrew
Framnes, Ivar
Gabrielsen, Peder
Gaughan, Tom
Gran, Aksel
Gravander, Nils
Greighan, P.
Hansen, S. P. -2794
Hansen, Nels -2072
Hansen, Ed.
Hansen, Edgar
Hansen, Oscar
Harms, E. E.
Haltnes, M.
Hansen, Frank
Jonas, H. A.
Johnson, Jack
Johanson, C.
Johnson, Clarence A.
Jacobs, Fulton
Johnson, B. E.
Johnson, J.
Johnson, Harry
Kallo, K.
Karlson, Ingvald
Karlson, G. A. -1190
Karlson, Louis
Kaskinan, Alluri
Kallinan, Frank
K. N., -1013
Kempson, M.
Kearney, Hugh Kenton, Lester
Lampe, Fred
Larsen, Lars
Andersen, O. -1339
Anderson, J. -555
Anderson, John
Anderson, Chris
Anderson, G. N. B.
Andersen, Adrian
Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, Hilmer
Alonzo, N.
Axelsen, Herman
Axelsen, George
Bendixon, Hans
Berntsen, Nils
Bingham, Dexter
Blomgren, Adolf
Blindheim, A. E.
Blomgren, Carl
Boyle, Andrew
Bretsen, Jos.
Brown, H.
Brown, Martin
Braun, T.
Bunden, L. W.
Chekan, W.
Clifford, H. W.
Clair, A.
Clark, Sterling
Dunham, Dexter
Duncan, T. W.
Dunne, F.
Dutton, Henry
Erikson, Einer
Erikson, E. -38
Franzell, A.
Fredriksen, B. D.
Fersiund, Victor
Graham, E.
Gragan, J. H.
Gutisen, J. H.
Gustafsen, Oscar
Gusjaas, Oscar
Hansen, Immanuel
Helmer, Fred
Herlitz, Ivor
Hiekka, E. J.
Hasselberg, Gustaf
Hape, Hans
Hoopes, Bill
Hahnqvist, E. J.
Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Chris
Johansen, O.
Johnson, A.
Johnson, John S.
Jonsen, V. J.
Jorgensen, Adrian
Jorgensen, D.
Julisen, C. A.
Keane, John
Kiser, Adlai
Kelly, John
Klahn, Karl
Klenk, K. A.
Koppen, O.
Kristensen, N., 1093
Kristensen, K
Kukes, Conrad
Kuten, Alex.
Lindholm, A.
Lindstrom, Geo.
Lambert, E. A.
Larsen, Herman
Lauritsen, Ludvig
Langman, Wm.
Leason, J. A.
Liljquest, Rudolf
Martinsen, Ingvald
Mattson, Hilding
Maline, Stanley
McLean, Angus
McVicar, P.
Meyer, Frank
Mickelson, Harry
Micklans, J.
McPherson, R.
McDonald, J.
Nelsen, Anton
Nelsen, H. -1460
Nelson, A. B.
Nelson, N. J.
Neilson, O.
Oberg, J.
Ohm, Henrich
Olsen, Fred A.
Olsen, Andrew
Olsen, E. O.
Olsen, Oscar
Olsen, Nick
Petersen, Harry
Pedersen, K. M.
Pettersen, Eric
Pettersen, Kristian
Petersen, Bjarne
Peterson, Oscar
Richardsen, J. W.
Richardson, E. C
Rod, S.
Ruhr, Hans
Sale, John
Saarni, Frank
Salvesen, T.
Samuelsen, H. N
Schurr, Harm
Schelenz, C.
Scott, W. N.
Sickman, A.
Sinnis, G.
Simonsen, [illegible]
Simondsen, H.
Sioberg, G.
Slandart, M.
Talce, John
Tangvalt, G. J.
Thornquist, A.
Unwen, Harry
Verst, C. A.
Ward, Fred
Watson, L.
Wall, W.
Whete, R. E.
Williams, L. A.
Wilhelmsen, S. J.
Lilburger, Wm.
Linne, Theodore
Lokken, O. K.
Lundgren, Carl
Lund, Erik
Lynch, J. P.
McCoy, J. L.
McKenzie, Dan
Miller, S.
Monrad, Trygue
Molurg, K. G. E.
Monroe, N. S.
Mosley, S. E.
Murphy, Thos.
Muier, James
Nelsen, Oscar
Newman, J. S.
Nielsen, C. L.
Norsheim, Ben
Nordstrom, A. R.
Olsen, Louis
Olsen, O. -597
Odella, V.
Olsen, Kristian
Olsson, K. W. -97
Owens, James
O'Donnell, J.
Person, Johan
Peel, P.
Peterson, John F
Pinerd, F. H.
Pipione, J.
Prinz, Carl
Runsten, Arthur
Rylander, R.
Rysock, M. van
Smith, C. J
Smeland, John
Sommerfeld, P. I
Sohnn, M.
Soroos, S.
Sobel, R.
Sterndoch, J
Strand, C.
Stuhr, H. M
Svenson, Thure
Sverdrun, Walter
Symons, W. A.
Thorn, Arvid
Thor, L.
Thorpe, J. W.
Vilen, I.
Vaher, C.
Wilhelmsen, S.
Wilson, C.
Wright, H.
White, R. E.
Ylonen, S.
Yorkvelt, A.

SAN FRANCISCO

Alaska Fishermen's Letter List

Anderson, Oscar
Bakinen, John
Bjorseth, Konrad
Bodehl, Hans
Carlson, A. G.
Carlson Gust
Ericson, Rob.
Erickson, John
Elson, Peter
Groth, J.
Gustavson, Emil
Hansen, Emanuel
Hansen, Anton
Johansen, F. C.
Johanson, Fritz
Jacobson, Emil
Kleindelen, Ole
Kristoffersen, H. O
Levele, Ed.
Larsen, Theodore
Leonard Heber
Lauren, William
McVicar, Gus
McDonald, J. B.
Mikelsen, P.
Nesbl, Frank
Newton, A. B.
Osterman, John
Olsen, Thom
Olsen, John
Ome, Tobias
Olander, Erik
Paulsen, Axel
Pettron, W.
Peterson, Louis
Risse, W. M.
Rasmusen, Peter
Swanson, Oscar
Smith, R.
Skovbu, Nils
Shivers, Wibt
Swanson, August
Schultz, Walter
Tennison, Peter
Walgren, Hilmer

Registered Letters

L. V. WESTERMAN
UNION LABEL
CLOTHER, FURNISHER & HATTER
Alaska Outfitter
TWO BIG STORES
Store No. 1—Cor. Main and First
Store No. 2—Westlake and Pine
SEATTLE

Bonney-Watson Co.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND EMBALMERS
Private Ambulance Service
Crematory and Columbarium in Connection
Broadway at Olive St. East 13

PUGET SOUND NAUTICAL SCHOOL
Conducted by CAPTAIN H. S. SMITH, four years Assistant Inspector of Steamboats, Puget Sound District. Formerly Instructor in New York Nautical College.
Pier No. 1, Rooms 37-38-39
SEATTLE, WASH.

The Old Reliable House of Staples
K. K. Tvete & Sons
Incorporated. Established 1890
MEN'S CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS and FURNISHING GOODS
108-110 Main Street Seattle, Wash.

Union Store
Best Line of Men's Suits
Overcoats, Raincoats, Shoes, Hats and Men's Furnishings
CARL SCHERMER
103-107 First Avenue South
Near Yesler Way SEATTLE

THE HUB
Shoe and Clothing Company
UNION MADE HEAD TO FOOT OUTFITTERS
615-617 First Ave. Opp. Totem Pole.
SEATTLE, WASH.

ABERDEEN, WASH.

Seamen's Outfitters
C. P. Salmi & Co.
Men's Furnishings
Shoes, Hats and Oiled Clothing
411 EAST HERON STREET
ABERDEEN, WASH.

ANNOUNCEMENT
THE "RED FRONT" CARRIES A FULL STOCK OF
UNION MADE CLOTHING, HATS, SHOES, COLLARS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, OVERALLS, SHIRTS
A. M. BENDETSON
321 East Heron Street - - Aberdeen
Exclusive Owner of "The Red Front"

A. A. Star Transfer
Successor to CHRIS PETERSON
EXPRESS—BAGGAGE
AUGUST WALLIN, Prop.
Retired Member Sailors' Union
ABERDEEN, WASH.

HUOTARI & CO.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE and MEN'S FURNISHINGS
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED
UNION MADE GOODS
Orders taken for Made-to-Measure Clothing
HUOTARI & CO.
Heron and F Sts., Aberdeen, Wash.
1st and Commercial Sts., Raymond, Wash.

Phone 263
"Niels and Charlie"
"THE ROYAL"
"THE SAILORS' REST"
Cigars, Tobaccos and Soft Drinks
219 EIGHTH ST., HOQUIAM, WASH.

UNION LABEL
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
NYMAN BROS.
Bee Hive Store
Men's Furnishings, Hickory Shirts, Hats, Oil Clothing.
Home of the union made Co-operative Shoe
302 So. F Street, ABERDEEN, Wash.
on the Water Front.

INFORMATION WANTED

Victor Bono is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of his brother, Eugin Bono, a native of Norway. Kindly communicate with the above party at 59 Clay street, San Francisco. 11-24-20

Portland, Or., Letter List

Adams, Hugo
Ahlstrom, Kilian F.
Ahlstrom, Ellis
Ahren, Wm.
Allen, W.
Allison, Benjamin
Amundsen, Albert
Andersson, Axel
Anderson, J. A.
Anderson, Ed.
Andersson, Bill
Anderson, Herman
Anderson, Carl E.
Austin, Ed.
Amundsen, Ben
Alakaihn, Moses
Allen, I. J.
Alsio, Karl
Austin, Melvin
Backman, Peter
Baker, Eddie
Benton, G. W.
Bieler, Ben
Blake, Frank
Bohm, Franz
Carr, B.
Carmelie, Guiseppe
Custer, Kenneth R.
Danilson, Albin
Darlington, Wm.
Dikkensen, S.
Diez, H.
Doehring, Otto
Dooly, Frank E.
Douglas, Joseph
Durett, J. E.
Fisher, Chas.
Erickson, J.
Erickson, Hans E.
Ellegard, M.
Engler, S. H.
Forsberg, Swen S.
Fugman, Arthur
Gallery, Russell B.
Gilkison, A. F.
Golden, Roy L.
Graff, John D.
Handt, Wm.
Halley, W.
Hansen, Thorolf
Hanson, Carl
Hanson, Oskar W.
Hardie, Wallace
Hatland, R.
Hogstrom, Karl I.
Holm, Harry
Heino, Gust
Huber, Charles S.
Hurley, Michael
Jacobs, Fulton
Jespersen, Martin
Johnson, C. Eilert
Johanson, John
Johnson, Alfin
Johnson, Anton
Johnson, Emil
Johanson, S.
Johnson, Louis
Kalfholm, Edw.
Kelly, Norman
Kelly, Albert J.
Kennedy, B. L.
Kjellberg, A. C.
Klaver, R.
Laine, A. A.
Larsen, Hans
Larsen, Christ
Lauritzen, Ludvik
Lavsen, Carl C.
Learstad, Peter
Leisig, John
Lovell, G.
Lundgren, Gust
Malech, Frank E.
Malkoff, Peter
Maline, Stanley
Matson, R. M.
McDermott, W. M.
McCarlif, Gail
McCroskey, Ray A.
McGregor, Thos.
McLean, M. R.
Meyer, W.
Mikkelsen, Harry
Monroe, N. S.
Nelson, Nels
Neilsen, Harry
Nelson, Nels E.
Nilsen, Christ
Nilson, Herman
Norman, A.
Nurmisto, Ovio
Olsen, Michael
Olson, T.
Olson, John
Pederson, Geo.
Peppert, Fred
Petersen, Wm.
Petterson, Charley
Petersen, Knut
Pehte, Frank L.
Pohl, W.
Pope, Bert
Prestoff, S.
Preston, E.
Rever, John T.
Robinson, G. H.
Robertson, E. J.
Robles, Frank
Ross, Geo.
Runge, R. L.
Saine, Arthur A.
Schmeltning, M.
Scott, M.
Shalin, Nils
Sibley, M.
Skogmo, Paul
Sinclair, P.
Smith, Carl J.
Slade, I. S.
Spatig, Harvey L.
Spencer, Tom
Stout, R. E.
Sullivan, Fred L.
Suvaal, A.
Svansson, Ernest
Taylor, Bert
Tensfeldt, John S.
Thorsen, Chas.
Tinsman, J. T.
Tuhkanen, John J.
Viets, Clayton L.
Walmough, P.
Walter, E.
Wallace, Chess C.
Wallace, E. J.
Wehtje, Wm. H.
Whiteside, Thos.
Wilson, J. W.
Wikstrom, Carl
Wood, E. E.
Wolf, Herbert
Walters, Fred L.
Worn, Otje
Young, Carl Henrey
Yeoman, W. E.
York, Chas. E.

San Pedro Letter List

Aldo, K. Nestor
Alfredsen, Adolf
Albertson, John
Andersen, J. -2157
Anderson, Sven
Anderson, C.
Anderson, Bartines
Anderson, Gus
Anderson, John
Andowiz, H.
Arentsen, John
Arnell, John
Arnesen, Isack
Bentley, Clifford
Berglund, Emil J.
Bengston, Sigfried
Beschorner, Robert
Boyce, R. H.
Brickman, Harold
Bridges, R. H.
Brusbard, Ewalt
Brown, Irwing
Braden, W. A.
Brast, Sjomans
Bush, Peter
Carr, R. W.
Cariera, Peter
Carrol, Kenneth
Church, C. A.
Christoffersen, C.
Costley, F. L.
Cormie, William
Daunt, C.
Davis, Orville
Daw, Walter
Deasy, William P.
Desmond, Albin
Deaver, Alwin
Dischler, Peter
Disney, Robert
Doty, Erwin
Dragich, Peter
Drennen, William
Eckhardt, William
Eliasen, John
Engdahl, Robert
England, Thomas
Evans, Wilbert
Farrell, H. D.
Fallbom, J. A.
Fahey, M.
Feeder, George
Fickle, Omer
Fisher -707
Fottinger, Karl A.
Frair, Enoch
Freitag, F.
Gallagher, Denny
Galke, Roy
Gayton, H. L.
Gerrity, John
Gotz, Rudolph
Grason, Joe
Grue, Theodor
Gunnerud, Ulrick
Gullaksen, Hans
Godmundsen, John
Guthrie, Raymond
Gustafson, Johan
Hansen, Claf
Hasko, Anton
Harnick, Julius
Hansen, B.
Harvey, Earl
Hamilton, Walter
Hartog, J.
Hagen, George
Hellesten G.
Herlin, W.
Hey, Ben
Hill, Chas.
Hickey, John
Hingren, John
Hogsted, Chas.
Houston, Robert
Holland, Jonny
Holtkamp, C.
Hurley, Michael
Isakson, J.
Janson, Fr.
Jacobsen, Tom
Janofy, Axel
Jensen, Marius
Jeeden, George
Jensen, Kristian
Johnsen, P. -2313
Johansen, David
Johansen, Carl
Johnson, George
Johnson, Matt.
Johnson, Tom.-3014
Johnson, Waldron
Johansen, J. -1432
Jonaseon, Johanes

The James H. Barry Co.
"THE STAR" PRESS
PRINTING
1122-1124 MISSION ST.
SAN FRANCISCO

Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen

SEAMEN, have you got a copy of Axtell's new book, "Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen"? It deals with income tax, how to become a citizen, contains a complete digest of the Constitution of the United States and amendments, the famous Thirteenth Amendment, declaring that men shall not be compelled to do involuntary servitude under the laws of the United States; a history of the great fight made by organized seamen of America for liberty, how that liberty was obtained and is now expressed in our statutes and is buttressed by the foundation of our Government itself, the Constitution of the United States. This book contains a complete digest of the Constitution of the United States. It contains a complete digest of the Statute of the United States pertaining to seamen, officers, consuls and owners, their rights and duties to themselves and to each other; the subject of wages, overtime, salvage, personal injury, discharge in foreign ports, wrongful and proper; questions of discipline; rights and duties of consuls are fully set forth in this little volume of one hundred pages.

The actual cost of publication is 65c. The price is $1.00 in single copies. In orders of ten, a discount of 10% is allowed. In lots of twenty 20% is allowed, in lots of twenty-five 25% discount, in lots of one hundred 30% discount. In other words, in lots of one hundred there is 5% to cover cost of shipment.

The author, Silas B. Axtell, Attorney for the International Seamen's Union of America, in nine fights before the Supreme Court of the United States to enforce the Seamen's Act, Attorney for the Seamen's, Firemen's and Cooks' organizations in innumerable legal battles, is the leading authority on the law pertaining to seamen.

There are only 2000 copies of this book to be disposed of. They are going at the rate of 250 per week by mail order alone.

This is what Harry Olsen, who initiated Mr. Axtell into the Sailors' Union of the Pacific before he went on board the "West Calumb" as ordinary seaman in September, 1919, says:

> "Your book, 'Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen,' ought to be in the hands of every seaman. Knowing the law would settle a good many disputes which now arise. I will do my best to further the sale of the book and to start with I enclose P. O. Money Order for $20.00 for which kindly forward twenty books as soon as you can."

The following is quoted from a letter just received from Frank Manning, an American Seaman, who met with a serious accident on board an American ship. After stating the facts in his case and asking for assistance and advice, he says:

> "Orunds Hospital, Copenhagen, Denmark, October 27, 1920.
>
> "As I am not up in the Maritime Law whatever and do not pretend to know the least thing about it, it is no good for me to get into any arguments over here with these people because an uneducated person cannot cope with them. Well, Mr. Axtell, hoping to hear from you and hoping this finds you in good health, I am
>
> "Respectfully yours,
>
> FRANK MANNING,
> Copenhagen, Denmark."

Every seaman should have one of these books, "Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen."

RIGHTS & DUTIES PUBLISHING CO.
IVER OLBERS, A. B., Sales Manager
9 State Street New York

Johnson, Carl E.
Johansen, Anton
Kallio, Frank
Kenrich, Richard
Kelty, Peter D.
Keel, Jewel
Ketelson, Fred
Killat, Dau
Kepplar, C.
Kirshfeld, J.
Kluge, Frank
Klahn, Karl
Kramer, O.
Klementsen, Alf.
Larsen, Johan 1542
Langeman, W.
Laine, John
Landen, A.
Leirevaag, Halvor
Lehmus, Bill
Lindquist, Emil
Lindahn, Al.
Lind, Gustav
Lindstrom, John A.
Lindholm, Charles
Lill, Karl
Lobeles, Jose
Lowrey, John
Loderson, John
Lorgeman, Fred
Knudsen, Andrew
Lund, F. V.
Lund, Alal
Luther, Frank
Mathiesen, Nic
Martinson, J. L.
Matson, Hilding
Magnussen, Karl Martinson, John
Maahs, Willi
Mato, Alex
McGhee, E. J.
McHelvey, T. B.
McNeil, D. R.
Mehrtens, C. H.
Mize, J. H.
Michelson, Erik
Miller, Frederik
Moor, Peter
Moritz, W.
Morisse, Henry
Monteiro, John
Mueller, John
Murray, Ernest
Murphy, Frank
Melander, G. L.
Nelson, C. A.
Nelson, Nicholas
Nielsen, Jens.-780
Nilsen, Alfred
Nilsson, Edward
Nielsen, P. F.
Njutrom, Uno
Nelson, Emil
Nelson, Gust
Nelson, Charlie
Ogren, V. E.
Olsen, Emil
Olsen, Olaf V.
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Ole M.
Olsson, Otto
Olsen, Sander
Olsen, Harold
Ostedal, Caspar
Pastrillen, H. K.
Petersen, August
Petersen, Hugo
Pera, Gust.
Pett, Dick
Perry, William
Porthan, M. T.
Raaum, Harry
Rasmussen, S. J.
Rensen, Albert
Rosenthal, Walter
Rossdam, Ha.
Rod, Halfdam
Robertson, E.
Robinson, Fred
Rosamund, J.
Rueter, Aman
Runge, R.
Ruiz, Jose
Rupp, Albert
Sanders, Chas.
Saxby, Charles
Sandstrom, O. H.
Sahlberg, Rudolf
Schroeder, Ernest
Schmidt, H. G.-3619
Schmees, Herman
Schlachte, Alfred
Scheumberg, Wm.
Scrivers, W.
Schultz, W.
Seppel,
Seland, Hans
Sillman, Robert
Smith, Carl Johan
Smedsvig, Oluf
Soder, Paul
Steen, Ivar
Sterndock, John
Strom, Oscar
Strahle, Chas.
Stenard, Percy
Steere, Ernest
Sundquist, Walter V.
Sunde, O. H.
Sunde, C.
Sundholm, Franz
Sundquist, Walter
S. C.-887
Svendsen, Fred
Swenson, A. -1932
Takhunen, Hugo
Tanum, Helge
Thompson, M.
Thompson, James
Thal, R.
Thorsen, Henrik
Torvik, Hans
Tommola, Vaino
Torsman, Niels
Treiberg, Peter
Treiberg Peter
Ullman, Emil
Veckenstedt, Wm.
Vitol, Alex
Voth, Gus
Vitol, Alex.
Voth, Gus
Wanquist, Ernest
Ward, Wallace C.
Wennerquist, Anton
Weiprecht, E.
Wennerquist, Anton
Werne, John
Winkelman, Otto
Wilson, John
Wihemson, Karl
Wich, Ole
Wilck, Ole
Wilhelmson, Karl
Wilson, John
Winkelman, Otto
Wilhelm, Eduard
Wieprecht, Ernest
Whiteside, Thomas
Woods, Claude F.
Woods, Claude
Wrobluske, Paul
Wrig, P.
Wrobluwski, Paul
Wyerman, William
Young, William
Yeoman, W. E.
Zoerb, Walter
Zimmerman, Fritz
Zunderer, Theo.

Registered Mail.

Pinnington, E. D.

Packages and Photos.

O'Brien, J. S.
Norlund, Albert
Gotz, Rudolf
Lauritzen, Ole
Jones, Ernest L.
Tamm, Helge
Peters, J. M.
Langman, William
Olsen, Ole
Jensen, J.
Ericksen, E. R.
Jones, Ernest L.

Honolulu Letter List

Bading, G.
Balk, W. S.
Bradley, Ed.
Bott, James
Bjorkquvist, R.
Buck, H. -1284
Campbell, Ed.
Caldwell, John
Darwin, L.
Harms, H. O.
Hefling, J. S.
Johnson, Hilding
O'Brien, James
Olson, Carl
Parker, O. L.
Pedersen, L.
Pepoon, H. L.
Roggio, R.
Sandel, Franklyn S.
Stewart, R. T.
Solberg, B. P.
Keenan, Thomas
Makinon, K.
Mulligan, Ed.
Liljeborge, Will.
Larsen, John
Lundgren, Karl Zakostelny, Joe

Home News

A bid of $10,000,000 for the Hog Island shipyard, made by J. N. Barde of the Barde Steel Products Corporation of New York, has been rejected by the United States Shipping Board. Admiral Benson said the sum offered was entirely too small, adding that the Hog Island plant was not for sale at a bargain.

Prices of foods served at Child's restaurants throughout the United States will be reduced from 11 to 28 per cent. as soon as new menu cards can be printed and distributed, it was announced by A. W. Riley, head of the Government's "flying squadron" of profiteer hunters. The 10-cent cup of coffee, however, will remain.

The Merchants' Association of New York has completed a study of industrial pensions. The association confined its attention to the old age system maintained by private corporations. It reports that there are now between 150 and 200 such systems in this country. Manufacturing concerns, railroads, banks and other large organizations chiefly have undertaken the development.

Four of the C. W. Morse group of shipping companies have filed suit against the Shipping Board for a total of $2,378,256, representing alleged damages suffered by reason of failure of the Board to authorize the transfer to the Canadian flag of the steamships "Minneapolis," "Binghamton," "Huron" and "St Paul," sold to G. A. Moulton for $570,000, of which $170,000 was to be in cash and $400,000 on mortgage to be pledged with the Board as part security for a loan of $750,000 to be made by the Board to the Virginia S. B. Corp., a Morse concern, which was to build 12 steamers for the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Twenty-one States have accepted the terms of the Federal industrial rehabilitation act. These States, in the order of their acceptance, are: Nevada, Minnesota, New York, Tennessee, Arizona, Indiana, North Dakota, Oregon, Ohio, Georgia, Arkansas, North Carolina, West Virginia, Iowa, Delaware, New Jersey, South Carolina, Alabama, Utah, Mississippi and Texas. The industrial rehabilitation law has been described as "an act to set up injured workers." It is based on the theory that an injured person is of more benefit to society and to himself if he is assisted, through training, to earn his living. The Federal government appropriates to each State an amount equal to that appropriated by the State for that purpose.

Admiral Benson, in a recent address before the Boston Chamber of Commerce, expressed the opinion that the United States Shipping Board, of which he is chairman, would ultimately be to shipping what the Interstate Commerce Commission is to the railroads. He said the Board had very little opportunity to study the real problems connected with commerce, due to the abnormal situation developing from the rapidity with which the ships were built. He supported the St. Lawrence river canal project, saying that if necessary the United States should issue bonds to finance the enterprise, and urged that American vessels be given preference by shippers over those of foreign countries, even though the rates were slightly higher.

Domestic and Naval

With the delivery on October 15 of the steamship "Bayou Chico," a cargo-boat of 9000 tons deadweight, the Pensacola Shipbuilding Company completed the last order on hand for the Emergency Fleet Corporation. During and since the war the company in all built ten steel steamers for the Shipping Board.

The latest available statistics show that on Oct. 1, 1920, the number of sea-going merchant vessels, of 500 tons gross and over, under the American flag (exclusive of U. S. Shipping Board tonnage), was 1,829 of 4,625,324 tons gross, which was an increase of 25 vessels of a gross register tonnage of 116,335, since September 1.

The steamship "Minnekahda," 17,221 tons, which has been employed as a freighter by the Atlantic Transport Line since she was built at Belfast in 1917, is to be put under the American flag for service between New York and Hamburg, in conjunction with the "Manchuria" and "Mongolia." As an emigrant ship she will carry 3,000 steerage.

Sale of the former United States gunboat "Machias" to the Mexican Government for a price said to be $35,000 was reported during the week. The "Machias" is a vessel of 398 tons and was built in Bath, Me., in 1893 by the Bath Iron Works. Her personnel calls for eight officers and 182 men. The craft is listed with a speed of fifteen knots.

The Shipping Board has rejected a bid of $3,000,000 for the "Leviathan" made by J. W. Thompson & Co., Philadelphia, as being entirely inadequate. A request from the Department of Labor that the steamer be turned over to Ellis Island for use in housing emigrants also has been refused, as it was thought unwise to risk the wear and tear incident to such use.

The steamship "Imlay," an oil tanker of 9900 tons deadweight, built by the Moore Shipbuilding Company at Oakland, Calif., and delivered in September, 1919, has gone back to that yard to have her 3000 s.h.p. geared turbines taken out and replaced by reciprocating engines at a cost of $82,623, which includes other repairs. The "Imlay" is owned by the Shipping Board.

Management of the Shipping Board's fleet of refrigerator steamers from the River Plate to United Kingdom ports, recently relinquished by the International Mercantile Marine Company, will be transferred to other companies. The service was instituted about a year ago with the refrigerator steamers "Monasses," "Oskawa," "Yamhill" and "Guimba." The first three boats have been allocated to the Elder-Steel Steamship Company and the "Guimba" to the International Freighting Corporation.

After [illegible] hours aboard their storm-tossed vessel, the 7600-ton steel freighter "Frances J. Widlar," Captain Arthur Forbes and the twenty-seven members of the crew reached Sault Ste. Marie on the rescue tugs "Iowa" and "C. E. Ainsworth." Rescue of the crew, which was effected when a yawl from the "Iowa" made three trips through heavy seas to the "Widlar," which lies in imminent danger of breaking up on Pancake Shoals, near Whitefish Point. The vessel, according to Captain Forbes, lies hard aground in about fifteen feet of water.

The San Francisco Savings and Loan Society

SAVINGS (THE SAN FRANCISCO BANK) COMMERCIAL

526 CALIFORNIA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Member of the Federal Reserve System
Member of the Associated Savings Banks of San Francisco

MISSION BRANCH, Mission and 21st Streets
PARK-PRESIDIO DISTRICT BRANCH ,Clement and 7th Ave.
HAIGHT STREET BRANCH, Haight and Belvedere Streets

JUNE 30, 1920

Assets	$66,840,376.95
Deposits	63,352,269.17
Capital Actually Paid Up	1,000,000.00
Reserve and Contingent Funds	2,488,107.78
Employees' Pension Fund	330,951.36

OFFICERS

JOHN A. BUCK, President
GEO. TOURNY, Vice-Pres. and Mgr. A. H. R. SCHMIDT, Vice-Pres. and Cashier
E. T. KRUSE, Vice-President
A. H. MULLER, Secretary
WM. D. NEWHOUSE, Assistant Secretary
WILLIAM HERRMANN, Assistant Cashier GEO. SCHAMMEL, Assistant Cashier
G. A. BELCHER, Assistant Cashier R. A. LAUENSTEIN, Assistant Cashier
C. W. HEYER, Manager Mission Branch
W. C. HEYER, Manager Park-Presidio District Branch
O. F. PAULSEN, Manager Haight Street Branch

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

JOHN A. BUCK — A. H. R. SCHMIDT — A. HAAS
GEO. TOURNY — I. N. WALTER — E. N. VAN BERGEN
E. T. KRUSE — HUGH GOODFELLOW — ROBERT DOLLAR
E. A. CHRISTENSON — L. S. SHERMAN

GOODFELLOW, EELLS, MOORE & ORRICK, General Attorneys

San Francisco Letter List

Members whose mail is advertised in these columns should at once notify S. A. Silver, Business Manger, The Seamen's Journal, 59 Clay Street, San Francisco, Cal., to forward same to the port of their destination.

Letters at the San Francisco Sailors' Union Office are advertised for three months only and will be returned to the Post Office at the expiration of four months from the date of delivery.

Aagaard, A. W.
Adolfsson, John
Aftedal, Caspar
Alto, Wm.
Alakaihu, Moses
Altonen, Karl
Algren, Charlie
Alhstrom, Ellis
Alto, John
Almon, L.
Ames, M. M.
Andersen, Adler
Anderson, John Oscar
Andreassen, Oscar P.
Antonsen, Martin
Andersen, Hans -2423
Andersen, O.-1118
Andersen, R. P.
Andersen, O. -2099
Andersen, Chas. Theo.
Anderson, John Nathaniel
Anderson, Johann
Andersson, C. J. -2185
Anderson, A. G. -2440
Andersson, C. -2001
Anderson, Ingemar
Anderson, John O.
Andreasen, Lewis
Aronson, Gunnar
Arzziro, Geo. N.
Arvidson, N.
Aso, Gustaf
Attaberry, Clarence

Baardsen, Hans
Barlow, R.
Bading, Gus
Berg, Christ
Bertinussen, Indal
Berne, Bill
Bergman, G. A.
Bengtson, Oscar
Benson, Helge
Bergman, Alrik
Bjorklund, Kar
Bonchiker, L. M.
Botsford, Roy
Polstadt, Hans J.
Boylan, C. J.
Borjeson, Hilding
Bosshardt, H.
Bower, Gordon
Bratt, A. W.
Brauner, Chas. J.
Brander, Wm.
Braun, James
Brown, Dudley W.
Burns, Frank
Butler, James
Burr, W. H.
Bussik, Joe
Bye, K.

Carlsson, Fred
Carlson, Chas. E.
Carlson, Gust.-529
Carney, James
Carlstrom, A.
Campbell, Martin
Carlson, Axel
Carter, Haskell S.
Case, H. F.
Chilcott, Geo.
Chipps, Eric
Christensen, H. P.
Christensen, A.-1857
Christensen, Nils
Clarke, Mathew
Clausen, Louis
Cobb, Ralph H.
Cochrane, Robert
Colville, G.
Conley, Irvin
Cornelius, Leonard

Dahl, Helge
Dahl, E. L. K.
Dahl, Otto
Dahlin, Ogden
Daunt, C.
Daniels, Walter
Davis, Warren
Demorest, Carl
Dean, C. S.
DeCaire, Ray
DeMarlo, Thos
Donner, R.
Domke, Willi
Drasbeck, Chas.
Duerkhahn, M.
Duff, Peter
Duke, F. W.
Dunlap, George

Earl, Herbert
Eastman, J. W.
Eide, W.
Eisenhardt, K.
Eliasson, Martin
Eliasson, M. B.
Ellefsen, Thorleif
Elridge,
Elrod, A. N.
Ellis, F. L.
Emulate, E.
Engstrom, Edw.
Engstrom, R.
Endemann, M.
Englebritsen, Ale
Erickson, -997
Ertman, Eskil
Erikson, Simon
Evensen, Andreas A.
Evensen, Martin
Everett, W. J.

Fagerberg, Ivan
Fallbom, John A.
Fernquist, C. W.
Fergerson, Thos.
Fjellman, Georg
Fletcher, Jos.
Forss, Ellis
Fradera, T. F.
Franson, A. E.
Fraser, H. W.
Fraser, Alex V.
Fulmer, W. A.

Garnetzky, Fritz A
Gallery, W. B.
Geary, Albert
Gibbons, Elmer L.
Goerecke, Fritz W.
Golden R. L.
Graham, Thomas
Graham, Ray
Graham, W. F.
Gray, Frank
Green, Henry M.
Grosvenor, C.
Grundell, W. C.
Grundstrom, C. W.
Groman, Gusta
Gustaffson, Walter
Gustavsen, I.

Fagerlie, Odell
Hakanson, Bernt -2401
Hanschman, Wm.
Hansen, Gustavo
Hansen, Jack
Hahn, Emil
Haider, H. T.
Hakanson, Bernt
Hamilton, Walter J.
Hammond, Robert
Hansen, Antonius
Hansen, G. A. -2837
Hansen, Knud
Hansen, H. V.
Hansen, H. F.
Hansen, Harold
Hardy, Wm.
Harris, J. S. -3161
Haunt, C.
Hauptman, Frotz
Hayward, C. R.
Helmers, Thorleif
Hermansson, C. P.
Hellman, Rowland L.
Hellpap, A.
Henrikson, K. Hj.
Hein, M.
Hessin, B.
Heyn, T.-2789
Hicks, Wm. H.
Hobbs, F. A
Hoke, V. L.
Holm, Arthur
Hopp, Carl
Hoglander, Martin
Huber, C. L.
Huberiz, Emil
Ibsen, V. L.
Ingebretsen, Christian
Irving, John

Jacobsen, Alfred
Jakobsen, Rangvald
Jamerson, K. Hj.
Jensen, Arthur L.
Jensen, Chas. Chris.
Jensen, Jens C.
Jensen, A. L.
Jensen, Martin
Jernberg, A.
Jentausch, Solfred
Jewell, A. M.
Johansen, Chas.
Johansen, E.-2715
Jones, Arne M.
Johnson, Carl -2783
Johannesson, A. C. -2277.
Johansen, J. M. -1081
Johanson, E. A.
Johansson, E. -2715
Johnson, A. B.
Johannesen, Ole
Johnson, Edward S.
Judd, Jack
Jungstrom, William
Jukkenekke, J. P.
Juniper, F. P.

Kaasik, August
Kaaveland, Thos.
Kamm, John
Kaplan, I.
Karlson, E. W.
Kasperson, E.
Ketelsen, F.
Kelly, Geo.
Kierne, G. H.
Kilhman, G. T.
Kirby, E. B.
Klindt, Frederico
Kine, Conrad
Kluge, Martin
Knoph, John O.
Knorsky, Adam
Knudsen, Martin
Kolbe, A. R.
Kokko, Martin
Koster, Walter
Kraal, J.
Kragero, C. M. J.
Krishjan, K. W.
Krumholtz, W.
Kuckens. B.

Lattin, W. C.
Laine, Frank
Lambert, Jos.
Lanphear, D.
Lanka
Larsen, G. B.
Larsen, L. M.
Lasdin, H.
Larsen. Alex. 1777
Larsen, Alexis
La Rue, C. E.
Lauritzen, Ole
Laursen, Max O.
Leirevaag, H. J. -2213
Leskinen, John
Lee, Albert
Leeder, W. -2287
Liesen, Wm.
Liljedahl, L.
Lindholm, B. T.
Livermore, Ernest
Lindahl, G.-2342
Lindroos, Geo.
Lindgren, A. A.
Lind, H. -2314
Ljungquist, Hj.
Lloyd, Wm.
Lofenberg, Pete
Lorentzen, Jean
Lundberg, Oskar
Lundstrom, Ernst

Madsen, Anton
Magnusson, E. W.
MacLeod, Norman
Macauley, D.
MacKay, Wm.
Maki, Ivar
Manning, H. H.
Mattos, M. D.
Markman, Hy.
Martens, Fritz
Mattson, Victor
Matheis, Herman
McGann, T.
McKinsey, Alex
McGann, Oliver
McPherson, Donald
McGovern, Jim
McFarlane, Dougal
McGauley, Geo.
McCallum, Chas.
McWade, W. C.
Melder, Albert
Melander, G. L.
Melgand, Ricard
Meyers, J. E.
Meyer, George
Meyers, Alfred
Millard, Martin
Mitchell, David
Moe, Harald
Monsen, Jacob
Morrissey, W.
Mortensen. K. A.
Mool, Petei
Mol, J. W.
Moore, H. L.
Mohr, Chas.
Monteiro, Joe
Morales, Louis
Moore, Ernest E.
Morean, Victor
Morisse, H.
Morris, O. R.
Mortensen, Georg
Morton, Frank J.
Morgan, R. B.
Morrison, Phillip
Mortensen, Thomas
Moulas, Nicholas
Muldrose, W. L.
Mullins, John

Naylor, Geo. D.
Nauta, H.
Neergard, A. C.
Nelson, Edw.
Nelson, Nels E.
Newton, A. B.
Nelson, Jerome
Nelson, N. H.
Ness, Aksel
Neveau, Thomas
Nicolaisen, Ancker
Nielsen, E. S. -1116
Nilsson, John -1013
Nilsson, Reinhold
Nilson, S. H. H.
Nicolaisen, Sam
Nilsen, Christ
Nordlie, Christ
Nord, Clarence W.
Nordling, Sven
Nordstom, Hans
Nurken, H.
Nyman, John A.
Nundorf, F. R.

O'Connor, Dennis
Ohlson, Hj.
Olafson, O. B.
Olausen, Christian
Olsen, Kristian
Olsen, -1020
Olsen, Ole
Olsen, Wm. J.
Olsson, Enock
Olsson, W. O.
Olsson, Charle
Ortman, Carl
Osterberg, Hj.
Olsson, C. O. -705
Ozolin, Jan

Paulsen, E. A.
Paul, Ben
Payne, J. E.
Pedersen, Henry
Pedersen, S.-1888
Pels, H.
Petersen, Axel L.
Peterson, Axel
Peterson, Elias
Peterson, Albert
Petterson, O. A.
Pihlstrom, R. J.
Pipione, Joseph
Phillips, Bob
Post, Albert
Pree, E. Deu
Prusch, Anthony
Publicatus, A.

Ramos, Enrique
Randmetz, Mich.
Redinger, Mike
Reigwein, A.
Regnill, Gustaf
Renstrom, Axel
Riis, A.
Ring, Walfrid
Richardson, Edwin
Rosa, John
Robson, Carr
Roberts, John
Roon, A. van
Roth, M.
Rodriquez, Antonio
Rogers, Thos. G.
Russell R.-1662
Rydelius, Rolf
Rytko, Otto

Saar, John
Savage, Roland
Salli, Rudolf
Sanne, Rudolf
Sandstrom, Olaf
Schmehl, Paul
Schneider, H. F. F.
Schuldt, Theodor
Schulze, Hans
Schulze, John
Seiffert, John
Skaar, P. P.
Sinnes, K. E.
Sjogren, Fred.
Sorensen, E.
Sodergren, Ragnar
Skoog, Paul
Smitana, Leo C.
Smith, John H.
Sorensen, N. M. -2447
Sorenson, Soren H.
Stanford, Harry
Sternberg, Alf.
Stolzerman, E.
Stenberg, Hj. N.
Stone, M. C.
Sund, Aleks
Sundstrom, Ernst
Swanson, Eric

Tammola, Waino
Tellefson, E.
Thompsen, H. T.
Thoren, Victor
Thornquist, Adolf
Thorsen, Hendrik
Thiel, Werner
Thomas, N. S.
Thomas, Fred
Thomsen, Ebbe Peter
Timmermann. Willy
Tingstrom, A. R.
Tiptman, Ray
Tohtz, R. E.
Torrance, John
Toyra, A.
Tolano, A. R.
Torwick, H. S.

Vallenius, Chas.
Vallianos, Spiros
Van de Loef, Henry
Van Helden, H.
Van Order, Louis
Verhoef, A.
Vihavainen, George

Wahi, J.
Wallen. Gustav
Wallenius, Karl Walters, Nelson
Warsanen, Wm.
Wakrom, J.
Walstrom, Albert
Weber, Fred C.
Weddle, Robert
Welteverde, J.
Wendell, Emil
Wenngren, Carl
Weatherby, Thomas
Wezwagar, Andrew
Whiteley, H. A.
Wichman, Carl H.
Wilkens, Henry
Williams, W. I.
Wind, Jacob
Wilks, J.
Wohlers, Diedrich
Wuorinen, Frans E.

Yarkwelt, A.
Ychivalbe, F. T.
Ylinen, Sam
Young, B. L.
Yon, F. C.
Young, R. T.

Zeaberg, John
Zeier, Andy
Zeiss, Walter
Ziehr, Ernst
Zikman, A.

PACKAGES.

Barlow, Robt.
Blake, L.
Booshard, H.
Breeze, J.
Churman, W. C.
Deu Pree, E.
Eads, Joe
Frey, Peter
Ganser, Joe
Grienne, Fred
Goodman, Tony
Henrikson, Ernst
Hoglander, M.
Holmes, Geo.
Johnson, John
Jorgensen, Jorgen
Kallio, F.
Kalning, P. G. -1342
Larsen, J. -2012
Larson, Axel
Lehto, Oscar
Liljedal, L.
Lindgren, E.
Locke, J. E.
Mathis, Hartley H.
McPherson, R.
Newman, L. O.
Nordlund, Albert
Olsen, O. J. -1020
Pattersen, Frank
Pedersen, Anders
Sorensen, Jos. E.
Travers,
Tilisten, Jack
Williams, J. D.

INFORMATION WANTED

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Anders Teodor Turesson, born at Gothenburg, will please notify The Swedish Firemen's Union, Gothenburg 7, Sweden. 11-24-20

If anyone knows the whereabouts of Arthur Kasper, a member of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, kindly communicate with S. Alexanderson, Box 571, Portland, Me. 11-17-20

Olaf Nyhagen, a native of Bergen, age 36, is inquired for by his mother, Mrs. Dina Nyhagen, Bergen, Norway. 4-28-20

FRANK M. NESTROY

Phone Kearny 5361 THE ARGONAUT TAILORS UNION TAILOR

We do Master Tailoring on Suits, Overcoats and Uniforms for men who desire to dress and look superior. We carry the largest selection of imported and domestic woolens. Quality and workmanship guaranteed.

50 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

PACIFIC NAUTICAL SCHOOL

260 HANSFORD BLDG.
268 MARKET STREET

Conducted by Capt. Chas. Ehlers
Formerly Superintendent of the
CHRISTENSEN'S NAVIGATION SCHOOL

All up-to-date methods of navigation are taught for passing a successful examination before the U. S. Inspectors.

Phone Douglas 315
Attorney for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific since its organization.
H. W. HUTTON
Will give the cases of seafaring men prompt attention.
527 Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco

Phone Kearny 3373
DENVER HOUSE
221 THIRD STREET
300 Rooms at 50 cents per day, $2.50 to $3.00 per week, with all modern conveniences. Free Hot and Cold Shower Baths on every floor. Elevator Service.
AXEL LUNDGREN, Manager

Phone Garfield 2457
HOTEL EVANS
ED. COLL
THOS. S. CHRISTENSEN
Cor. Front St. and Broadway

— Phones —
Office, Fkln 7756 Residence, Rand 27
Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. by appointment
Saturdays 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.
DR. B. J. STICKEL
DENTIST
Liberty Bonds accepted in exchange for dental work
2 Golden Gate Avenue, at Golden Gate and Taylor Streets, San Francisco

D. EDWARDS & SONS
UNION MADE GOODS
Fair Prices. Reliable Goods
50 EAST STREET
SAN FRANCISCO
GUARANTEED OIL CLOTHING

Phone Kearny 693
Argonaut Outfitting Co.
SEAMEN'S OUTFITTERS
CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS, HATS, SHOES, ETC.
A Complete Stock at Most Reasonable Prices :: :: Union Made Goods Only
103 EAST STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Residence 1337 12th Ave.
Residence Phone, Sunset 2957
HENRY B. LISTER
ATTORNEY AT LAW
805-807 Pacific Building
Phone Douglas 1415 San Francisco

GEO. A. PRICE
Says:
DEMAND THE UNION LABEL

Phone Douglas 3725
EDWIN PERSSON
139 EAST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
GENERAL SEAMEN'S OUTFITTER
Union Made Goods

Kearny 3863
JENSEN & NELSEN
Gent's Furnishing Goods
Sayer's Oil Skin Clothing
Uniforms, Caps, Hats, Shoes
110 EAST STREET Near Mission

Jortall Bros. Express
Stand and Baggage Room
— at —
212 EAST ST., San Francisco
Phone Douglas 5348

Joint Accounts
This bank will open accounts in the name of two individuals, for instance, man and wife, either of whom may deposit money for or draw against the account.
HUMBOLDT SAVINGS BANK
783 MARKET STREET, Near Fourth
SAN FRANCISCO

KELLEHER & BROWNE
THE IRISH TAILORS
716 MARKET STREET
at Third and Kearny
SUITS AND OVERCOATS to Order at Popular Prices
Established for 20 years
All work done in our own sanitary workshop
Represented by E. PEGUILLAN

S SALE S
H H
O O
E E
S S
YOU CAN SAVE FROM $3 TO $5 A PAIR AT THE SALE PRICE THAN YOU CAN PURCHASE THEM ELSEWHERE. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SALE.
AGENTS—W. L. DOUGLAS, JUST WRIGHT, STRONG & GARFIELD, WALK EASE
PRICE'S 58 THIRD STREET, S. F. Between Market and Mission

UTTMARK'S NAUTICAL ACADEMY
(Established 1804)
CAPTAIN F. E. UTTMARK, Principal
8 State Street, New York, N. Y.
30 India Street, Boston, Mass.
CANDIDATES PREPARED FOR MASTERS', MATES' AND PILOTS' EXAMINATION
Our ACADEMY is recognized as the oldest and best equipped NAVIGATION SCHOOL in the United States and is up to date in every respect. For full information call at school or write. Catalog sent free on request.
"UTTMARK'S FOR NAVIGATION"

For Twenty Years we have issued this Union Stamp for use under our Voluntary Arbitration Contract
OUR STAMP INSURES:
Peaceful Collective Bargaining
Forbids Both Strikes and Lockouts
Disputes Settled by Arbitration
Steady Employment and Skilled Workmanship
Prompt Deliveries to Dealers and Public
Peace and Success to Workers and Employers
Prosperity of Shoe Making Communities
As loyal union men and women, we ask you to demand shoes bearing the above Union Stamp on Sole, Insole or Lining.
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS UNION — UNION STAMP — Factory
BOOT & SHOE WORKERS' UNION
246 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
COLLIS LOVELY, General President CHARLES L. BAINE, General Secretary-Treasurer

JACOB PETERSEN & SON
Proprietors
Established 1880
ALAMEDA CAFE
Coffee and Lunch House
7 MARKET STREET
— and —
17 STEUART STREET
SAN FRANCISCO

SMOKERS See that this label (in light blue) appears on the box in which you are served.
SEPT. 1880
Issued by Authority of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.
Union-made Cigars.
This Certifies, That the Cigars contained in this box have been made by a First-Class Workman a MEMBER OF THE CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION of America, an organization devoted to the advancement of the MORAL MATERIAL and INTELLECTUAL WELFARE OF THE CRAFT. Therefore we recommend these Cigars to all smokers throughout the world.
All infringements upon this Label will be punished according to law.
J. W. Perkins, President, C. M. I. U. of America LOCAL STAMP

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING AT YOUR POST OFFICE
GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SECURITIES
PRICES IN DECEMBER
THRIFT STAMPS AT 25 CENTS
$5 Government Savings Stamps for.....$ 4.23
$100 Treasury Savings Certificates for.....$ 84.60
$1000 Treasury Savings Certificates for.....$846.00
ASK YOUR POSTMASTER
GOVERNMENT LOAN ORGANIZATION
120 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

News from Abroad

Cost of living for people of moderate means in Constantinople has increased by 1420 per cent. since the beginning of the war.

The Danish Court has awarded Kr. 444,825 as salvage compensation to Em. Z. Svitzer's Salvage Co. in connection with the stranding of the steamer "Lordship Manor." The hull in damaged condition was legally valued at Kr. 3,600,000 and the cargo at Kr. 3,700,000. The salvage remuneration therefore represents about 6 per cent. of the total interest.

A report from Stockholm quotes the manager of the Goetaverken shipbuilding yards, at Gothenburg, to the effct that the situation of the Swedish shipbuilding industry is serious, especially so far as the smaller yards are concerned. Most orders for new vessels are now being placed in Germany, Denmark and Great Britain, owing to the more favorable rates of exchange.

Germany has delivered to the reparation commission bonds to the amount of $11,580,000,000. This announcement was made in the House of Commons by Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. The delivery is in accordance with the requirements of the peace treaty, and the commission proposes to hold them as security for and in acknowledgment of Germany's debt.

The American Red Cross expended $51,000,000 in relieving suffering Europe during the year ending June 30, according to a preliminary report by that organization. The details will appear in the forthcoming annual report. Relief is now confined to Poland, Serbia, Montenegro, Albania, West Russia, South Russia, the Baltic states, Vienna, Budapest and Constantinople.

The Australian Government does not appear to have been more successful than the United States Shipping Board with its wooden steamers. Replying to a question in the House of Representatives at Melbourne recently, the Australian Premier stated that the wooden ships "Burnside" and "Braeside," being built at Ryde, N. S. W., have been sold to an Australian firm for £90,000 in completed condition, although £112,320 has already been disbursed on the vessels.

Germany is drifting steadily toward bankruptcy, and under present conditions this is not the worst that could happen to her, says a Berlin dispatch to the American quoting officials. Minister of Finance Wirth has threatened to resign unless Cabinet takes immediate steps to reduce national debt, now estimated at 242,700,000 marks. Claims of citizens for losses suffered by treaty total 131,000,000,000, including 17,000,000,000 for loss of merchant marine and 90,000,000,000 for loss of German property in enemy countries.

Immediate withdrawal of American troops on the Rhine was urged by Representative Kahn of California, chairman of the House Military Committee, speaking at the Armistice Day celebration. If he would have his way in the next Congress, the forces would be recalled, he said, adding that American troops are not "bill collectors for other nations, nor are they policemen for the nations of Europe." Kahn urged military preparedness as a means to prevent war, adding that he takes little stock in talk of war with Japan.

With the Wits

"All that the motion picture lacks is the mere matter of human speech." "Well," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes, who never will forget the palmy days, "that's all a deaf and dumb asylum lacks."—Washington Star.

"Gabbleton tells a funny story of how he shortchanged a taxicab driver." "The infernal liar!" "Ah! You know Gabbleton?" "No, but I know taxicab drivers."—Kansas City Star.

Mr. Longsuffer—If I pay the rent you're asking I won't have enough left to keep the wolf from the door.

The Agent—The janitor will see to that. Wolves are not allowed in these apartments.—Judge.

"Has your son gone into business yet?"

"No," said Mr. Grabcoin, "but I'm inclined to be lenient with Jack and let him loaf for several years if he wants to."

"Why so?"

"He got through college without getting engaged to a chorus girl, smashing his automobile, and joining the Glee Club."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Rendix (boarder from city, viewing splendid new touring car in Farmer Seedlum's stable)—I say, Seedlum, this is an infinitely better proposition than the little rattling machine you had last year.

Farmer Seedlum—But it ain't mine, Mr. Rendix. I ain't got no car any more. Such things as gasoline, oil an' tires got so plum high I just couldn't afford keepin' no car. This 'ere new one belongs to Jackson, my hired man.—Toledo Blade.

"How comes you to get that gang of city fellers to come out and spade up your farm?" inquired Clem Jeter of the grizzled old farmer. "When I drove by there a while ago they was a-spadin' all over the place."

"Well, I wasn't feelin' like workin' myself," replied the g. o. f., "so I sorta insinuated down at the post-office tuther day that I had seen a feller burying something that looked like a gallon of likker tuther night."—Barber County (Kansas) Index.

Taylor's Nautical Academy

Established 1888

Consular Building, Corner Washington and Battery Streets, Opposite New Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

THIS OLD AND NOTEWORTHY SCHOOL is under the direct and personal supervision of CAPTAIN HENRY TAYLOR and equipped with all modern appliances to illustrate and teach any branch of Navigation.

The class of teachers of Navigation in the past have been those having simply a knowledge of Navigation, and Navigation only. Conditions have changed, and the American seamen demand a man as a teacher with higher attainments than one who has only the limited ability of a seaman. The Principal of this School, keeping this always in view, studied several years the Maritime Law, and is now, in addition to being a thorough teacher of Navigation and its kindred subjects, a regularly admitted Member of the Bar.

There is no standard of education required of a pupil entering the School, for no matter how ignorant the seaman may be, even in the rudiments of common education, Captain Henry Taylor will teach and raise him from the depths of ignorance to the height of the average well informed man, and in a comparatively short interval of time.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR

HENRY TAYLOR

500 Battery St., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

IMPORTERS OF NAUTICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hezzanith's, Lord Kelvin's, Whyte, Thomson's Compasses, Binnacles, Azimuth Mirrors, Sounding Machines, Sextants, Parallel Rulers, Pelorus, Dividers, Nautical Books, Charts and Tide Tables.

COMPASS ADJUSTERS

SEAMEN PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

This store has been established on the Waterfront since 1866—over 50 years. Enough said.

We DO NOT Supply Cheap Mattresses or Bedding to Vessels

J. COHEN & CO.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING STORE

72 EAST STREET Opposite Ferry Post Office

Suits Made to Order—Union Label

HENRY HEINZ — Phone Douglas 5752 — ARTHUR HEINZ

When you buy from Us, Liberty Bonds are Accepted for Cash

Diamonds Watches

Heinz Bros. Jewelers

Original Size

SOLID GOLD $1.50
GOLD FILLED .50

64 MARKET STREET

High Grade Watch Repairing Our Specialty

FACTORY TO WEARER

MEN OF THE SEA!

When in Port Don't Fail to Visit

THE HOME OF THE UNION LABEL

Most Complete Line of Union Made

SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND FURNISHINGS

In America at Factory Prices

Eagleson & Co

1118 Market St., Opp. 7th San Francisco
717 K St., near Postoffice Sacramento
112-116 S. Spring St. Los Angeles

I CAN SAVE YOU

$15

ON YOUR SUIT

My place is located on a side street, hence my expenses are practically nothing, compared to big houses on main thoroughfares.

TOM WILLIAMS

THE UNION TAILOR

28 SACRAMENTO ST.

You get the same class of Service, Woolen trimmings and excellent Workmanship. The Style, Quality and Fit I guarantee.

Is the amount not worth saving

James H. Sorensen
Pres. and Treas.

The One Price Jewelry Store. Everything Marked In Plain Figures

ENGAGEMENT RINGS

Attractive Platinum or Gold Mountings with Exquisite Diamonds

WEDDING RINGS

Hand Carved In Platinum, White Gold, Green Gold and the Old Style Plain Gold In 12 DIFFERENT STYLES and all sizes

WEDDING GIFTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION

Sorensen Co.

715 MARKET ST., Above Third SAN FRANCISCO

JEWELERS, WATCHMAKERS, OPTICIANS

Store Open: 8:30 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., Saturday Included

Hale's GOOD GOODS

Market at Fifth

San Francisco

H. SAMUEL

THE OLD UNION STORE

Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods

Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Boots, Shoes, Rubber Boots and Oil Clothing
All Kinds of Watches and Jewelry
676 THIRD STREET
At 3rd and Townsend San Francisco
Phone Kearny 519

SEAMEN

You Know Me

I am
"YOUR HATTER"

FRED AMMANN

I sell
UNION HATS

at the right prices. I'll try and wait on you personally and show you a large assortment and give you your money's worth.

JOHN B. STETSON hats, too

If you want your Panama blocked right I'll do that.

You'll find me at

72 Market Street

next to Ocean Market

BEST SMOKE ON EARTH

RED SEAL CIGAR

UNION MADE

RED SEAL CIGAR CO., MANUFACTURERS

133 FIRST ST., SAN FRANCISCO
Phone Douglas 1660

CAN'T BUST 'EM

OVERALLS & PANTS

UNION MADE

ARGONAUT SHIRTS

331.805
CO

THE SEAMEN'S JOURNAL

FOR THE SEAFARING PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.
Official Paper of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A Journal of Seamen, by Seamen, for Seamen. Our Aim: The Brotherhood of the Sea. Our Motto: Justice by Organization.

VOL. XXXIV, No. 13. SAN FRANCISCO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1920. Whole No. 1729.

WHAT IS INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY?

An Outline of the American Workers' Basic Rights

What has the worker a right to expect of industry?

This is a question not easily answered. At any rate, there seem to be irreconcilable differences of opinion upon the subject. Mr. W. Jett Lauck, former secretary of the National War Labor Board, attempted to answer the question in an address before the National Consumers' League at Philadelphia.

Mr. Lauck has had an unusually varied experience in industrial problems affecting labor. He is anything but a novice in the world-wide struggle for the democratization of industry. For this reason his speech, published herewith, and the timely suggestions offered must not be considered as mere words and phrases. But—

Do we really need Wage Adjustment Agencies under Government auspices?

In any consideration of the question, "What has the worker a right to expect of industry," we must assume general recognition and acceptance of the fundamental social right of labor—the right to an opportunity to work. Orderly society must afford opportunities of employment to its great constituent element, the workers, and that form of society which does not do this has something inherently wrong with it that must be corrected, either by unemployment insurance, or measures for the regularization of employment.

Conceded this social right, the industrial rights of the workers are elementary.

1. The worker has a right to a living wage—a wage that will enable him to live and to support his family according to American standards of living in health and a reasonable degree of comfort.

2. The worker has a right to a basic day as short as commensurate with maximum efficiency and maximum production.

3. The worker has a right to recognition as a so-called part of industry, and, as the result of this recognition, entitled therefore to a voice in the control of industry and its operation. This embraces the right of the worker to organize and to bargain collectively with his employer through representatives of his own choosing, and his right to a share in the proceeds of industry over and above his wage in proportion to his productive efficiency.

These rights of the worker are predicated upon his being considered and treated as a social being. Labor is no longer regarded as a mere commodity, to be dealt with on the basis of the law of supply and demand to be exploited mercilessly, or to be exploited intelligently and patronizingly by self-appointed overlords of industry. That industry which does not or can not yield its workers a living wage is unsocial, and has no economical or ethical right to exist, and that industry which requires of its workers unduly long hours is destructive and may also be classed as inimical to the best interests of society as a whole.

As a rule such industries as these which take advantage of and exploit their workers, are equally unscrupulous in the tribute they levy upon the general public in the way of high prices and unjustifiable profits. There is no better concrete illustration of this than is to be found in the anthracite coal industry, the control of which centers in Philadelphia and the mining operations of which are within a short distance.

When the anthracite miners presented their wage demands and other grievances to the commission appointed by President Wilson they exposed a condition of affairs shocking to all right-thinking men and women. They showed that miners and their families were living under housing and community conditions which were deplorable to say the least. The earnings of heads of families in the coal mines were found to be inadequate. In order to supplement the family income, or the earnings of husbands and fathers, the wives and children of the miners were forced into the silk mills, the shirt factories and the knitting mills that are to be found throughout the anthracite region, some of which have been deliberately developed there to take advantage of the necessities of the mine workers and their families. Forty per cent. of the wives of the anthracite miners either kept boarders and lodgers or were employed for wages, and approximately 28 per cent. of the families were dependent upon the earnings of children. Evidence was also offered to show the monopolistic control and monopolistic profits of the anthracite industry, and that the industry could pay a living wage without increasing the price of coal to the consumer, but this evidence was barred from consideration on the technical grounds that it was not germane to the arbitration. The anthracite operators took the position that the matter of their profits was none of the public's business, and to date they have been permitted to get away with this amazing arrogance.

Those familiar with the proceedings will recall that one operator testified that he knew $3.34 per day to be a living wage because he knew miners who lived and supported their families on that amount. He admitted that the wives and children "helped." Another operator declared that the budgets of living requirements presented on behalf of the miners were not fair because they did not take into consideration "opportunities for growing foodstuffs in gardens, for securing fresh eggs from the worker's own flock of chickens, for fresh milk and cream and butter from cows owned by the workers, for fresh air, open country and independent living, which are afforded without cost to the workers in many sections of the anthracite region"! He did not suggest, however, that the operators might be content with a smaller margin of profit because of their incomes from outside investments.

The Commission gave the miners a wage increase that increased the cost of a ton of anthracite coal approximately 50 cents. Before the Commission began its hearings, however, the operators had advanced the price of coal $1 per ton in anticipation of any possible wage increases, and during the arbitration and subsequent to it the price was still further advanced until today in Philadelphia the public is paying a price for anthracite that is at least $3.25 in excess of a fair price.

And yet the operators tell you that it is not a matter of public interest which controls the anthracite industry, or what its profits, direct or indirect, amount to! They explain the abnormally high price of coal by placing the responsibility on "a few independent operators." Those few independent operators must be handling all the coal produced by the industry, for the public is paying top prices for all the coal that is sold.

This is a representative example as to how the failure to secure a living wage is productive of discontent, reduced output, and of serious loss to the public through recurrent dislocations in the industry.

I would suggest that the important thing at this critical stage in the affairs of this nation and of the world is that we proceed in orderly fashion to establish guarantees by which the worker will be protected in those rights which have been enumerated as elementary, and by which the public interest will be safeguarded against an autocracy of capital or an autocracy of labor. The first step in this direction, I believe, should be the establishment of an industrial code defining the fundamental principles to govern all relations in industry on the basis of fair dealing to labor, fair dealing to capital and fair dealing to the public.

President Wilson's first industrial conference in October, 1919, which was to have accomplished some such purpose as this, failed because the employer's group would not accept a definition of collective bargaining submitted by the labor group and approved by the public group. The President's second conference adopted a program for the adjustment of industrial controversies and recommended the establishment of an elaborate series of boards or adjustment agencies, but it failed to recommend the principles or basis of adjustment which should underlie the deliberations of these boards, although such principles were discussed in the report. The Senate Committee on Labor now has before it a proposal submitted by Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, which contemplates both the establishment of the code and the creation of machinery adequate to apply it.

Real progress in this direction depends essentially upon an aroused and militant public opinion that demands and will have industrial peace, for constructive action by the Congress is essential.

Increased production of our farms, our mines and our mills is absolutely essential if the nation is to recover from the disastrous effects of the world war, discharge its international obligations and realize its world-wide opportunities.

Increased production is impossible, unthinkable, unless we have reasonably satisfied and contented workers in every field of industry. This means the prevention of strikes and dislocations and the maintenance of industrial peace. It is the judgment of statesmen, of economists and of intelligent leadership of both capital and labor that there can be no permanent industrial peace until there has been defined and promulgated by legislative action, a Magna Charta of industry or a bill of industrial rights which can be used on a basis of procedure, and which would be mandatory upon the deliberations and arbitration of wage adjustment boards.

At the close of the war it was thought that the way was open for such action through voluntary agreement between capital and labor. Our own experience during the war in the application of the principles or code which was at the basis of the work of the National War Labor Board, had led to the belief that such a constructive program could be adopted as the basis of the production of which the world was in so grievous need after the cessation of hostilities. Moreover, the enlightened opinions of the leading industrial and commercial nations of the world had given its sanction to these same principles in the labor provisions of the Treaty of Peace, and they had received further sanction from the reconstruction pronouncement of churches, both Catholic and Protestant, without regard to denomination.

But the golden opportunity was lost. The spirit of co-operation between capital and labor gradually disappeared. It was replaced by open conflict. The lines are now being drawn for industrial warfare on an unprecedented scale.

Public opinion can alone save the situation. The public always has been and will continue to be the sufferer from industrial conflicts. It should act, therefore, in its own interest by the establishment of wage adjustment agencies, and the formulation of an industrial code or series of principles which would be mandatory upon the deliberation of such agencies, and those principles, or code, should guarantee and safeguard both labor and capital in their fundamental rights as factors of production.

This program, I believe, would protect industry from the arbitrary control of either capital or labor, and make possible a larger measure of industrial democracy. At the same time it would also advance the well-being of the general public, for the reason that it would, by stimulating the co-operative effort of capital and labor, increase the productive efficiency of industry as a whole.

BACK TO THE FARM.

Why not look for riches in the rural districts? Throughout our entire history the youth of the land have been flocking to the cities in search of opportunity; but the question arises whether big opportunities cannot be found and developed on the land. Our cities have never produced as much wealth as the country has done; and it is probable that the time has already arrived when our people exclusive of the wealthiest 10 per cent., can earn more per capita in the country than in the city.

The gross wealth production of the United States in 1919 was about $54,000,000,000. This includes crops, animal products, manufacturing output, mineral production, timber and lumber output, and fishery production.

Of this $54,000,000,000, the cities last year produced about 23 billions, while the other 31 billions came from the ground.

One usually thinks of mining enterprises as though they contained endless possibilities of sudden wealth; and yet of that which came from the ground last year, only 5 billions consisted of mineral products, including gold, silver, petroleum, coal and all the rest, while 25 billions were agricultural products.

From 1914 to 1919 the wages of New York factory labor increased 88.3 per cent. It is estimated that average per capita incomes in the United States during the same period increased about 75 per cent. However, this wage average is accurate, being an actual compilation covering nearly 000,000 workers. But impossible as it may seem, the gross income of the typical farmer during the same period increased 171 per cent., as may be seen by dividing the total value of agricultural output by the number of persons engaged in the industry. Thus the farmer obtained a greater benefit from the war than any other class of people except the ultra rich.

One need not be a farmer in order to obtain the fullest share of rural prosperity. There are about 5,220,800 persons living in the rural districts who do not belong to farmers' families. The stores, shops and other business establishments in these districts get all the benefits of the prosperity and stability of agriculture, and indeed the trade of the farmer is the best and most constant trade in the world.—Paul Clay, in Forbes Magazine.

ADMIRAL BENSON'S APPEAL

Admiral Benson, chairman of the Shipping Board, has just issued the following message addressed to all Seafarers of the American Merchant Marine:

There exists in marine affairs at the present time a situation which I deem it advisable to bring to the attention of the entire personnel of our vessels.

There has been a serious lessening in ocean freight movement with the consequent tying up of Shipping Board and many privately owned vessels. Foreign competition which our merchant marine must face has become keen.

I must appeal to your public spirit in helping the Shipping Board under these unusual conditions, to the end that we may meet competition successfully.

It is of vital importance that hearty support of all those serving on Shipping Board ships be given in the direction of reducing expenses and in making our merchant fleet self-sustaining.

Masters and chief engineers on our ships, as well as port captains and port engineers, are urged to take the utmost interest in the operation and proper repair of the vessels in their charge. To do this it will be necessary for every individual to exert himself to maintain his ship in seaworthy condition, to effect quick turn around, to reduce the cost of repairs by making them within the regular hours allotted, and by avoiding overtime by every possible means. In this officers should set a good example to their men.

Our attention has been called to the lack of discipline on shore among some of the officers and seamen of vessels touching at foreign ports. This situation is resulting in some vessels being delayed with consequent expense or in having to sail shorthanded. It should be stopped at once.

Unless such improvements in efficiency can be brought about it is inevitable that an increasing number of vessels must be tied up with consequent reduction in the opportunities for employment of both men and officers.

The men of the merchant marine have never failed to respond to an appeal in behalf of the best interests of our country. I feel sure that prompt and earnest effort will be made by everyone in the service to meet the present situation.

(Signed) W. S. Benson, Chairman.

The extent of trade unionism is the best possible measure of a people's capacity for self-government.

"CAN'T-STRIKE" LAW IS COSTLY

The publicity bureau of the trade union-farmer non-partisan political campaign in Kansas is enlightening Kansas voters on the cost of Governor Allen's "can't-strike" law and its power over every citizen.

It is stated that the law has been in existence a little over seven months and vouchers on file at the state house show that the industrial court, which enforces the act, has spent $54,950.99. During that period increased rates were granted to 61 corporations and 13 industrial cases were reviewed. Five of the industrial disputes were individual employees of the Joplin & Pittsburg railway. One of the cases was the unorganized employees of the Great Bend flour mills, and on whom the court took compassion and recommended a work day of less than 12 hours; no wage increase was granted.

The jurisdiction of this court extends beyond stopping strikes. Other powers of these irresponsible three judges are:

"Preserving the public peace, protecting the public health and morals, the general welfare, private security, preventing industrial strife, disorder and waste, and securing regular and orderly conduct of the businesses directly affecting the living conditions of the people."

"As thus seen," continues the trade union-farmer press bureau, "the powers of this court are almighty—civil and criminal, secular and spiritual—nothing is exempt, not even our conscience, superseding every other tribunal, board, commission or department of our State government, with preference given to its matters over all others. Of all things, God alone could be imagined to have more power, but in Him we would expect to find justice tempered with mercy."

REBELS IN MESOPOTAMIA

The following spicy comment is from the Maoriland (N. Z.) Worker:

"The Mesopotamians, whose country we are holding down with military, are now described as 'rebellious,' and their leaders as 'agitators' when they resist the foreign yoke. Several of 'our' garrisons have been cut off by patriotic Mesopotamians during the past fortnight, and many casualties have been suffered. The railway has been cut in many places, and in Rumeartha several 'agitators' were released from prison by 'rebels' after the latter had killed some soldiers. The 'Sunday Express' (London) states that a permanent occupation of Mesopotamia will cost us £40,000,000 a year."

"COMPANY" UNION PAYS.

The Oregon Lumber Company of Enterprise, Ore., announces a wage reduction of 20 per cent. This concern operates a company "union" known as the Loyal Legion of Lumbermen and Loggers, established during the war by Col. Disque. The legion is rapidly falling to pieces despite every effort to give it the appearance of life.

Organized timber workers point to this wage reduction as proof of their claim that the timber barons favor the legion because they can use it when wage reductions and a long work day are wanted.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

Contributed by American Federation of Labor

High Lumber Prices Traced to Monopoly.

High lumber prices are traced to their cause by George P. Hampton, managing director of the Farmers' National Council.

Mr. Hampton calls attention to a report by Commissioner of Corporations Davies in 1914 that sixteen holders own 47,800,000 acres of timber lands in this country. This is an area 10 times greater than the State of New Jersey. The Federal official also reported that 1,694 timber owners hold in fee over one-twentieh of the land area of the entire United States from the Canadian to the Mexican border. These 1,694 holders own 15,600,000 acres. Of the 82,500,000 acres granted to three western railroads in the 60's, the railroads retained 40 per cent. in 1910.

In 1911 Commissioner of Corporations Smith reported that in 1880 at least three-fourths of the timber then standing was publicly owned. Now about four-fifths of it is privately owned, the great bulk of it having passed through enormous railroad, canal and wagon road grants by the Federal government, direct government sales of unlimited quantities at $1.25 an acre, and certain public land laws.

The lumber situation, said Mr. Hampton, is a further indication of the tremendous cost to the American people of permitting private ownership of natural resources, such as timber lands.

"It is the bitterest irony that the railroads which received grants from the Federal and State governments of 150,000,000 acres of land should this year have received a guarantee of 6 per cent. (Cummins-Esch law) on their capitalization, and they are also, as owners of these valuable timber lands, being permitted by the Government to charge such unconscionably high prices for timber which the farmers need to continue farming."

Unionism Means Americanism.

The union shop is a challenge to absolutism in industry.

In the union shop the employer is shorn of autocratic power to set wages, hours and working conditions. Here, joint bargaining is the rule. The workers have a voice.

In the non-union shop the employer is master.

This employer is less frank than the Roman slave owner and the feudal baron, both of whom controlled the lives of their chattels. But his purpose is the same—mastery over the men and women of toil.

He makes no pretense of superiority and divine right, as did other autocrats. He talks of liberty and equal opportunity.

His liberty is to have each worker, single-handed, pit his wit and his need to labor against a trustified industry that is powerful enough to defy government, debauch the judiciary and corrupt public opinion.

His equal opportunity is for workers to be content with wages set by him or by officials of the State who can be controlled by him.

This employer believes in labor organizations—if he has "the last guess." He must be the court of last resort, have the final word in every dispute.

To talk of liberty where non-unionism exists is mockery. There can be no democracy where employers have personally-controlled company "unions," and welfare systems, as did slave owners who boasted of their kind treatment to vassals.

There are only two systems in industry—union and non-union.

The union system rests on collective bargaining and the workers' right to be represented by persons of their own choosing.

The non-union system rests on individual bargaining with the worker pleading his own case or by a person the employer approves.

The non-union system is never referred to as such by feudal employers. Their publicity agents coin catchy phrases to cloak this un-American system.

Their "open shop," "free labor" and similar terms are tricky, deceitful and misleading.

Man's noblest ideals are "gutterized" by these labor exploiters who would destroy independence in their workers.

These non-union employers, these petty autocrats, lack the courage of German militarists who boldly declared: "Might makes right."

The need for trade union agitation and education was never so urgent.

The difference between the union and non-union systems should be stressed at mass meetings, by discussion and every other publicity method.

Unionism means resistance to wrong.

Non-unionism means docility, servility and "squaw men."

May Have "Booked Up."

In a political speech Governor Morrow of Kentucky declared: "I understand the Constitution of America." The "Labor Union" replies:

"Our estimable Governor must have been reading up a bit on the Constitution of America since signing the notorious anti-sedition bill last spring. This bill nullifies one of the most important articles of that immortal declaration—the one which guarantees the right of peaceful assemblage and freedom of speech."

Under this act any town constable or special police officer, paid by a mill owner, can disperse any meeting he believes will "engender bad feeling" in that community.

When Governor Morrow signed the bill he acknowledged that it was unconstitutional and expressed the hope the courts would set it aside. He violated his oath of office that he would uphold the Constitution, which he now says he "understands."

Mobbers in Bisbee Escape Punishment.

The mobbing of 1,186 workers, who were run out of Bisbee, Ariz., in July, 1917,

(Continued on Page 11)

MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WORLD

International Seamen's Union of America, 355 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

[A complete list of unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America will be found on page 5.]

AUSTRALASIA

Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia—
38 Trades Hall, Sydney, N. S. W.
49 Clarence Street, Sydney, N. S. W.
1 Crawford Street, Dunedin, N. Z.
Queens Chambers, Wellington, N. Z.
Palmerston Bldg, Auckland, N. Z.
Trades Hall, Newcastle, N. S. W.
Maritime Bldg., Melbourne, Victoria.
Seamen's Offices, Port Adelaide, South Australia.
26 Edward Street, Brisbane, Queensland.
Dredge Platypus, Cairns, Queensland.
Wharf Rockhampton, Queensland.
Ross Island, Townsville, Queensland.
Patriot, Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Patriot Office, Maryborough, Queensland.
Federated Cooks' and Stewards' Association of New Zealand, Wellington.

GREAT BRITAIN

National Sailors' and Firemen's Unions, Maritime Hall, West India Dock Roads, Poplar, London E., England.
Hull Seamen's and Marine Firemen's Amalgamated Association, 1 Railway Street, Hull.
National Union of Ships' Stewards, Cooks, Butchers and Bakers, 4 Spekeland Bldg., 22 Canning Place, Liverpool.

BELGIUM

Belgian Seamen's Union, Brouwersvliet 30, Antwerp.

GERMANY

Transportarbeiter Verband, Reichsabteilung Seeleute. Engelufer 18, Berlin S. O. 16, Germany.

FRANCE

General Federation des Marins, 4 Avenue Opera, Paris.

NORWAY

Norsk Matros-og Fyrboter-Union, Grev Wedels plads 5, Kristiania.
Norsk Restaurationsforbund, Sandbrogatan, F. Bergen.

SWEDEN

Svenska Sjomans Unionen, 4 de Longgatan 25, Goteborg, Sweden.
Svenska Eldare Unionen, Andra Langgatan, 46 Goteborg.

DENMARK

Somandenes Forbund, Toldbodgade, 15 Kobenhavn.
Sofyrbodernes Forbund, St. Annaplads 22, Kobenhavn.
Dansk So-Restaurations Forening, Y. Strandstrade 20, Cobenhavn.

HOLLAND

Zeelieden Vereeniging "Eendracht," 4 Nieuwsteeg, Rotterdam.

AUSTRIA

Verband der Handels-Transport, Verkehrsarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen Oesterreichs, Trieste, Via Madonnina 15, Austria.

ITALY

Federazione Nazionale dei Lavoratori del Mare, Genova, Piazza S. Marcellino 6-2, Italy.

SPAIN

Sociedad Sindical de Fonda Maritima de Camaros, Cocineros y Reposteros, Calle Mayor 44, Barcelona.

URUGUAY

Sociedad Carboneros y Marineros, Calle Inglaterra 60, Montevideo.

ARGENTINA

Federation Obrera Maritima (Sailors and Firemen), Buenos Aires, Olavârria 363 (Altos).

BRAZIL

Associacâo de Marinheiros e Remadores, Rua Barâo de San Feliz 18, Rio de Janeiro.
Sociedade União dos Foguistas, Largo de São Domingos 4, Rio de Janeiro.
Centro Marittimo dos Empregaods em Camara, Rue dos Benedictinos 18, Rio de Janeiro.

SOUTH AFRICA

Amalgamated Society of South African Seafaring Men and Fishermen, 355 Point Road, Durban, Natal.

World's Workers

Social insurance against sickness, together with maternity insurance, are unanimously recommended by an official commission in Sweden in its report recently issued preparatory to legislative action. It is estimated that 80 per cent of the total population will be protected by the compulsory health insurance measure now advocated by the Swedish government with prospects of early adoption. More than two-thirds of the industrial map of Europe is now covered by health insurance laws.

Immediate and complete nationalization of coal mines is recommended by the majority report of the special commission appointed to investigate the question of socialization of German industries, recently made public. All the members of the commission agreed that the elimination of capitalistic profit in the coal-mining industry is indispensable. An imperial coal council, which would have complete control over the industry and which would turn over all profits to the state, is recommended in the majority report. Mines would deliver their entire product to the council, which would arrange deliveries and fix selling costs. It would have power to open, close or buy mines.

Unemployment in Vienna, while showing a marked improvement over the situation last year, remains large. More imposing than their number is the ghastly plight of the workers. According to official information, obtained from the Austrian ministry for social welfare, there are now 32,800 unemployed in Vienna, 8800 being women. This list is headed by the metal workers, unskilled laborers, clerks, builders, printers, carpenters, bakers and waiters. Of 32,000 job seekers only 18,000 receive the state unemployment allowance. Those who are granted this dole are not much better off, since only 12 crowns are granted to married men daily and 9 crowns to unmarried. This is equal to 8 cents, which scarcely suffices to buy one loaf of unappetizing black bread.

Nearly a thousand delegates attended the special National Conference of the English Co-operative Union held at Preston recently to protest against the corporation profits tax as applied to co-operative societies by the Finance Act of 1920. In a memorandum issued by the conference to all co-operative societies, the special committee advised that every legitimate step be taken to secure the amendment or abolition of the existing law. It further recommended that the amendment or repeal of the existing law be made a test question at every election and that no co-operator should give a vote to any candidate failing to pledge himself in favor of securing justice for co-operators. All were united in their determination to agitate both in season and out of season until the law is altered in a manner satisfactory to the four million co-operators whom it subjects to a grave injustice. The English co-operators contend that the surpluses which arise from mutual trading should be exempt from taxation, and point out that the profits that are made by co-operative societies can in no legitimate sense be classed with the profits made in private capitalistic businesses.

REMOVAL and REDUCTION SALE

GREATEST IN THE HISTORY OF SAN FRANCISCO'S WATERFRONT

Our Store Will Be Moved to

37 MARKET STREET

Corner of Steuart on or About December 10, 1920

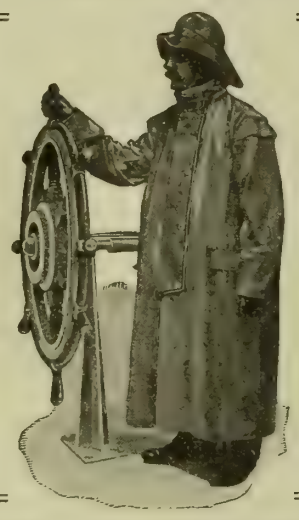
Commencing Nov. 10, We Will Offer For Sale

Can't Bustem and Headlight

Union-Made Waist Overalls, each	$1.50
Bib Overalls	2.00
Blue or Khaki Boiler Suits	3.75
Argonaut Union-Made Double-back Hickory Shirts	1.50
Blue Chambray Shirts	.90
Khaki Pants	2.50
Chalmers Heavy Cotton Ribbed Union Suits	2.00

ARGONAUT UNION-MADE HEAVY WOOL FLANNEL SHIRTS—BLUE, GRAY, OR BROWN, $3.50

MACARTHUR'S NAVIGATION LAWS
CAPT. CUGLE'S BOOK ON NAVIGATION



FREE INFORMATION OF THE MOVEMENTS OF ALL VESSELS UNDER EVERY FLAG

Lawrence Balbriggan Underwear, Ankle-Length Drawers and Half Sleeve Undershirts, each $ .75

Nautical Instruments and Uniforms

Heavy Wool Underwear, per garment	1.75
Sweater Neck Navy Undershirts 40c and	.65
Cotton Socks 15c and Heavy Wool Socks 40c to	.90
Regular $3 Dress Shirts for	1.50
Brown Flannel Shirts	1.75

SUITS, OVERCOATS, HATS AND SHOES IN PROPORTION

CAN'T BUST'EM UNION-MADE CORDUROY PANTS, REGULAR $6.50 AND $7.50 VARIETY, NOW FOR SALE AT $4.75

A visit to this store will convince you.

CAPTAIN CHAS. J. SWANSON

36 Steuart Street, near Market

In the Southern Pacific Building

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Telephone Douglas 1082

INFORMATION WANTED.

Members of the crew of the S. S. "Porter" are requested to call at the Secretary's office for their vouchers for salvage services rendered to S. S. "Washington" on or about November 5, 1919. The vouchers are issued to the following members, and the respective amounts due thereon is as follows:

Amudsen, R.	$22.50
Mattson, Geo. J.	22.50

ALBERT MICHELSON, Attorney-at-law; attorney for Marine Firemen & Watertenders' Union; Admiralty law a specialty. 676 Mills Bldg., Telephone Sutter 4673. Residence Phone Prospect 2908.

Seattle, Wash., Letter List.

Under a rule adopted by the Seattle Postoffice, letters addressed in care of the Sailors' Union Agency at Seattle can not be held longer than 30 days from date of delivery. If members are unable to call or have their mail forwarded during that period, they should notify the Agent to hold mail until arrived.

Abolin, K.	Andersen, O. -1339
Andersen, E. A. -1410	Anderson, J. -565
Andersen, J. F.	Anderson, John
Andersen, C. D. -1131	Anderson, Chris
Baskes, Jack	Anderson, G. N. B.
Anderson, Karl A.	Andersen, Adrian
Anderson, Gus	Andersen, B. E.
Anderson, K. P.	Anderson, Hilmer
Anderson, H.	Alonzo, N.
Anderson, Jack	Axelsen, Herman
	Axelsen, George
Back, Soren	Bendixon, Hans
Baumgartel, A.	Berntsen, Nils
Backstrom, C.	Bingham, Dexter
Barentos, Joe	Blomgren, Adolf
Ballah, Lee	Blindheim, A. E.
Berg, H. J.	Blomgren, Carl
Berglund Ivar	Boyle, Andrew
Barrington, P.	Bretsen, Jos.
Berger, Aug.	Brown, H.
Belmont, Joe	Brown, Martin
Bergkvist, Axel	Braun, T.
Bergesen, Birger	Bunden, L. W.
Carlson, M. -906	Chekan, W.
Carr, A.	Clifford, H. W.
Campbell, John R.	Clair, A.
Christensen, E. O. H.	Clark, Sterling
Danielsen, O. E.	Dunham, Dexter
Degerstedt, Karl	Duncan, T. W.
Devich, Joseph	Dunne, F.
Donovan, J. J.	Dutton, Henry
Donnelly, R. A.
Edin, Gust	Erikson, Einer
Engberg, O. L.	Erikson, E. -38
Engvall, J. A.
Felsch, Chas.	Franzell, A.
Fernandez, Elisio	Fredriksen, B. D.
Fex, Andrew	Ferslund, Victor
Framnes, Ivar
Gabrielsen, Peder	Graham, E.
Gaughan, Tom	Gragan, J. H.
Gran, Aksel	Gutisen, J. H.
Gravander, Nils	Gustafsen, Oscar
Greighan, P.	Gusjaas, Oscar
Hansen, S. P. -2794	Hansen, Immanuel
Hansen, Nels -2072	Helmer, Fred
Hansen, Ed.	Herlitz, Ivor
Hansen, Edgar	Hickka, E. J.
Hansen, Oscar	Hasselberg, Gustaf
Harms, E. E.	Hape, Hans
Haltnes, M.	Hoopes, Bill
Hansen, Frank	Hahnqvist, E. J.
Jonas, H. A.	Johnson, Gatterd
Johnson, Jack	Johnson, Chris
Johanson, C.	Johansen, O.
Johnson, Clarence A.	Johnson, A.
	Johnson, John S.
Jacobs, Fulton	Jensen, V. J.
Johnson, E. E.	Jorgensen, Adrian
Johnson, J.	Jorgensen, D.
Johnson, Harry	Julisen, C. A.
Kallo, K.	Keane, John
Karlson, Ingvald	Kisor, Adlai
Karlson, G. A. -1190	Kelly, John
Karlson, Louis	Klahn, Karl
Kaskinan, Alluri	Klenk, K. A.
Kallinan, Frank	Koppen, O.
K. N., -1013	Kristensen, N., 1093
Kempsen, M.	Kristensen, K.
Kearney, Hugh	Kukes, Conrad
Kerton, Lester	Kuten, Alex.
Lampe, Fred	Lindholm, A.
Larsen, Lars	Lindstrom, Geo.
Lambert, E. A.	Lilburger, Wm.
Larsen, Herman	Linne, Theodore
Lauritsen, Ludvig	Lokken, O. K.
Langman, Wm.	Lundgren, Carl
Leason, J. A.	Lund, Erik
Liliquest, Rudolf	Lynch, J. P.
Martinsen, Ingvald	McCoy, J. L.
Mattson, Hilding	McKenzie, Dan.
Maline, Stanley	Miller, S.
McLean, Angus	Monrad, Trygue
McVicar, P.	Molurg, K. G. E.
Meyer, Frank	Monroe, N. S.
Mickelson, Harry	Mosley, S. E.

SEAMEN'S FREE READING ROOM

A PLEASANT PLACE FOR ALL SEAMEN WHILE IN PHILADELPHIA. NO BOARDING OR SHIPPING. NOTHING TO SELL.
332 SOUTH FRONT ST., PHILADELPHIA.
R. SIMONSEN DR. H. P. McHENRY

S. G. SWANSON
Established 1904
For the BEST there is in TAILORING Less the Fancy Prices
NOTE—S. G. Swanson is not connected with any dye works and has no solicitors.
Clothes Made Also From Your Own Cloth
Repairing, Cleaning and Pressing
2d Floor, Bank of San Pedro, 110 W. 6th St.
San Pedro, Los Angeles Waterfront, Cal.

Navigation School
License Guaranteed or Fee Refunded.
Mates' Courses, $55.00
WRITE FOR CIRCULAR
Sextants, best makes, from $117.50; Octants, $72.50; Marine Night Glasses from $27.50—Best Makes.
CAPTAIN PENNRICH
36 Garden Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Near Borough Hall Sub. Station

EUREKA, CAL.
— For —
A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE
— or —
A SQUARE MEAL
— Try —
EUREKA CHOP HOUSE
Cor. Second and D Sts., Eureka, Cal.
A. R. ABRAHAMSEN, Prop.

Sailors' Outfitter
BENJAMIN'S
The Old Reliable
CLOTHING, SHOES, HATS, RUBBER AND OIL CLOTHING
207 Second Street Eureka, Cal.
E. BENJAMIN, Prop.

To Scandinavian Sailors:
Inheritances collected Money forwarded to all places in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark to banks or private persons at lowest rates. Full guarantee.
LEONARD GEORGES,
General Passenger Agent Swedish-American Line, 268 Market St.

Pacific Coast Marine

The British steamer "Oneka," bound from San Francisco to Kobe, put into Honolulu with her bunkers on fire, according to word received by the marine department of the Chamber of Commerce. The advices further stated that the fire was under control.

The following schooners built at Port Blakeley, Wash., and owned by the Fife Shipping Co., San Francisco, are reported sold to Henry G. Seaborn, Seattle: "Gamble," 626 tons reg., built in 1901, "Spokane," 570 tons reg., built in 1890 and "Sophie Christenson," 570 tons reg., built in 1901.

The 12 German sailing vessels laid up at Santa Rosalia since 1914 have been allocated as follows: "Hans" and "Thielbeck," to England; "Adolf Vinnen, "Egon" and "Schurbek," to Italy; "Lasbek," "Harvestehude," "Helwig Vinnen," "Orotava," "Rheinbek," "Wandsbek" and "Walkure," to France. They will be towed to Europe for reconditioning. The crews have already been sent home.

More than 100,000,000 pounds of sugar were imported into San Francisco during the first nine months of 1920. Figures just compiled by J. O. Davis, Collector of Customs, show that from January 1 to September 30 the importations totaled 108,567,041 pounds, valued at $18,-064,376. The heavy importations were due to the high price of sugar in America during the early part of the year. During the same period exports of sugar totaled 1,824,872 pounds, worth $259,380.

A radio received here by the Pacific Steamship Company from their freighter "Pawlet" stated that the vessel was hastening to the aid of the steamer "Yana," in distress at a point east of Vladivostok. The meager message did not divulge the trouble on board the "Yana." The "Yana" was formerly a steamer under the operation of the Russian Volunteer Fleet Corporation, but it is now believed to be under the Japanese flag. The "Pawlet" was bound from Vladivostok for Portland via Japan.

At noon on Saturday, Nov. 27, the auxiliary schooner "Doris Crane" was launched from the ways of W. F. Stone & Sons' shipyard in East Oakland. The craft was constructed under orders of Wightman & Crane, acting for the Fanning Island, Limited, of England. The owners of the vessel have control of Fanning and Washington Islands in the mid-Pacific. The vessel will be used to transport supplies to the islands, returning to San Francisco with shipments of copra. Miss Doris Crane sponsored the ship.

The steamer "Santa Rita" and the Coast Guard cutter "Snohomish" both report having discovered wreckage of barge "W. J. Pirrie" on the beach near Cape Johnson, according to a wireless message just received. The barge "W. J. Pirrie" was cut loose by the steamer "Santa Rita" off the Washington coast in an eighty-mile gale on Nov. 26. The barge had on board Capt. Alfred Jensen, his wife and baby and crew, 23 or 24 persons all told. Capt. J. K. Tibbetts of the "Santa Rita" was quoted as saying there was no possible chance of the barge getting off shore during the recent storm, if it ever got sails up.

In tow of the tug "Sea Queen," the steam schooner "G. C. Lindauer," which was pulled from the beach at Albion, where she went aground on November 15 during a gale, arrived at San Francisco on Thursday, Nov. 25. The craft was taken to Oakland, where a preliminary survey will be made by Captain Cecil Brown, preparatory to placing her on the ways of the Moore Shipbuilding Company. Aided by her part cargo of lumber, small difficulty was encountered by the "Lindauer" in riding the waves during the trip here. The vessel is owned by Andrew F. Mahony. It is said that extensive repairs will have to be made before the vessel is again seaworthy.

The port of San Francisco shortly will have at its disposal the finest salvage equipment of any port on the Pacific Coast, according to Tom Crowley, manager of the Shipowners and Merchants' Tugboat Company. Four 1000-horsepower tugs nearing completion at the Main Iron Works, have been equipped with heavy derricks and other salvage gear. They are the tugs "Sea Ranger," which will be ready in a few days; "Sea Monarch," "Sea Scout" and "Sea Lion." Thousands of dollars have been expended by the tugboat concern for ground tackle and other paraphernalia for this work. Need for first-class salvage equipment was demonstrated when the steamer "Arakan," representing millions of dollars, was threatened with total loss off the coast at Point Reyes some months ago.

Claims, said to aggregate over $86,000 for damage to shipments of vegetable oil while in transit on vessels of the Government, have been filed by several importers against the United States Shipping Board. Two of the claimants are S. L. Jones & Co. of San Francisco and Rogers-Brown & Co. of Seattle. Joseph B. McKeon, attorney for the United States Shipping Board, stated that these claims were those accruing against the Government for shipments covering a period of over a year and one-half and that they had been put over by Federal Judge Maurice T. Dooling until December. The claims are against the steamers "West Vaca," "West Caboa," "West Henshaw," "West Hepburn" and the steamer "Caddaretta," say reports. It was stated that all of the claims were submitted by the importers and that it was believed that an amicable settlement would be made before the hearing came up in court.

It is reported that the 440,000-mile land tract including besides other area the peninsula of Kamchatka, Siberia, leased with all its prodigious mineral and natural wealth rights to the Vanderlip syndicate of Los Angeles, was offered by the Siberian Government to Captain Robert Dollar, and refused. Rejection of the offer was admitted by Captain Dollar. Although conceding the vast wealth included in the grant, the offer, he said, was rejected because of complications with Japan that any attempt to exploit the territory would bring on. Japan's determination to dominate Siberian territory might result in friction which would provoke war, it was said. In the readiness of the Russian Soviet government to sanction the grant, Captain Dollar discerned a design to establish a medium of influencing sentiment in America in favor of the Soviet administration. The proffer of the concession to Robert Dollar was made about three months ago.

Word that the 3000-ton steamer "Mexico" and four other freight steamships formerly operated by the La Cia Mexicana de Navigacion Company of Vera Cruz, but not under the management of the Department of Fomento, Mexico City, will be employed in passenger and freight service between San Francisco, San Diego and west coast Mexican ports, has been received from Guaymas. The "Mexico" and the four other vessels that will be placed on the California run formerly were owned by Salvador Alvarado, recently Governor of Yucatan, but now Secretary of the Treasury under the Obregon Government. Alvarado, as head of the Cia Mexicana de Navigacion, turned these vessels over to the Government with the request that they be sent to the west Mexican coast to develop the maritime trade at those ports. In line with this policy of maritime trade expansion, the Mexican Government has established free ports at Guaymas and Mazatlan and is urging Mexican shippers to co-operate in the upbuilding of commercial relations with American exporters and importers.

Driven by heavy swells until her bow has been literally wedged between the rocks at Port Orford, with her stern awash, the Rolph Navigation and Coal Company's steam schooner "Joan of Arc" is being held together and prevented from breaking up on the beach by her cargo of 1,300,000 feet of lumber. Captain Cecil Brown, local marine surveyor, who was sent to the scene in an attempt to save the craft, reported that the vessel's seams are opening and that her decks have been split. According to Brown, the lumber aboard the "Joan of Arc" can be saved. The vessel's engines and winch can also be saved, Brown said. Exclusive of her lumber cargo, the loss of the "Joan of Arc" represents an expenditure of $600,000 the cost of her construction at Rolph three years ago. The vessel was insured for more than $250,000. The "Joan of Arc" was recently withdrawn from the San Francisco-South American trade, along with the "Annette Rolph" and "Georgiana Rolph" for services in the coastwise lumber trade. The cargo on the "Joan of Arc" was owned by the Charles R. McCormick Company.

Making the eighth vessel operating out of San Francisco to be tied up on orders of the Shipping Board, the freighter "Dellwood," 2063 tons, was taken to Southampton Bay to join the fleet of Government freighters now moored there. The "Dellwood" formerly served under the agency operation agreement for the Matson Navigation Company between here and the Hawaiian Islands. Her last trip was on November 2, when she brought a heavy consignment of pineapples to this port. There are now a total of eight freighters lying at Southampton Bay, representing an expenditure in excess of $20,000,000, not counting their earning capacity loss to the Government and other heavy expenses accruing for their upkeep during the lay-up. The vessels now lying in Southampton Bay are the "Janelew," "Mursa," "Hanniwa," "Mohinkis," "West Harts," "Eastern Gale," "Caprum" and the "Dellwood." Present freight conditions throughout the world are not promising for the vessels again entering the service in the near future and the Shipping Board, realizing this fact, has gone ahead making extensive preparations for taking care of them until they are again placed in service.

S. T. Hogevoll, Admiralty Lawyer. Seamen's cases a specialty. Sixth floor, Pacific Bldg., Fourth and Market Sts., San Francisco, Phone Kearny 1830.—Adv.

International Seamen's Union of America

